in a big establishment must know pretty nearly all that is worth while about "Salesmanship." Hugh Chalmers, of Detroit, is the man who climbed the $72,000 ladder. He knows how to "hire, manage and supervise men," and when he talks, it is in a racy style.

His views—snappy, bright and terse—appear in the April number of Busy Man's Magaziue. The article is thus written by one who knows—one, who at 29 years of age, was vice-president and general manager of a plant employing 5,000 persons, and directed a selling force of 500 men.

Business men—young men especially—should read this article. It is inspirational. It will incite them to greater things, assist them to realize what constitutes true salesmanship, and practice the basic principles on which it rests.

Capitalized Himself At $1,000,000 annually was what Chalmers did when working as a salesman, and he declares that "Salesmanship is nothing more or less than making the other fellow feel as you do about what you have to sell."

There is no greater art in the commercial world to-day than Salesmanship. You can learn a lot about it—about progressive business systems and methods—by reading Busy Man's Magazine each month. It is a publication full of ginger, alive with personal precept, direct in daily application.

It reproduces the latest and best contributions on business, industry, commerce and politics, from the current magazines of the world, and has much bright, original Canadian matter as well. Annually, it is a big $2 worth ; monthly, it is worth a great deal more than the price of a single copy—which is 20c.

FOR MORE THAN FORTY YEARS we have been making our trade-mark a synonym for highest perfection in Stove Polish. Our facilities have been multiplied and improved. There are four million bricks in our present factory. Original devices of our own are almost exclusively used in producing our goods. This spells out successful Stove Polish making and explains why more housekeepers every year ask for Stove Polish with the trade-mark RISING SUN. It pays you to push them.

Worms in Horses and All Live Stock

The eradication of worms from horses and other animals is one of the most striking features of Molassine Meal, and is proof of its unique properties. When is used regularly—although it is quite free from arsenic or drugs—in consequence of its antiseptic properties, all foul or putrid matter is evacuated, worms cannot live, and are naturally expelled.

A food which has effects like this must command the attention of all persons interested in the feeding of horses and cattle.

EXCITEMENT

Is the order of the day amongst the Tea Trade, owing to the United States probably placing an 8 cent or 9 cent duty per lb. on tea, and all American Houses buying everything in sight in Canada.

Do not let yourselves be talked into stocking up heavily in any class of Teas, with the idea that Teas are going to cost you more later on.

Such is not the case.

We shall continue to offer our Blue Ribbon Package Teas at the same prices, and in our Bulk Teas we shall offer you just as good value as in the past, without any alteration in the prices.

We do not mislead our friends. We endeavour to help them.

CEYLON TEA

IS SO

(Two and Three Quarter Millions Increase in Direct Shipments Alone in 1908 over 1907.)

First: Because it Takes a Strong, Full-Bodied Tea to Satisfy the Coffee-Educated Palate;

Second: Because of Its Piquant Flavor;

Third: Because of Its Unvarying Excellence;

and

Fourth: Because of Its Cheapness Regardless of Cost.

Better Tea
Better Business

All records are broken! Our business during the month of March showed a larger increase than at any time during the seventeen years of our history. Our sales in March, 1909, were 100,367 lbs.

than our sales for the month of March, 1908. This is a sure indication that honest, consistent service is appreciated—that it pays well to sell only tea of the highest quality. It is also conclusive evidence that grocers in ever-increasing numbers understand the real, practical value of

as a trade-winner—as the one tea that can be absolutely relied upon, year in and year out, to serve the public well. Its uniformity of quality, its delicious flavor and incomparable excellence, raise it to the pinnacle of tea superiority. "SALADA" is not better tea because it has a reputation; it has a reputation because it is better tea. To you it offers a sure road to quick profits and steadily increasing sales.

As Pure as Windsor Salt

$1.00 Sold $25 Worth of Groceries

It was a thirty-mile trip to town and the instructions of Mrs. Smith to husband John were to get a dollar's worth of Windsor Salt at the grocer's—naturally husband John secured his entire list of groceries at the store that was stocked with "Windsor." He spent twenty-five dollars in that particular store.

The reason why Mrs. Smith was determined to have Windsor Salt was and is plainly evident—its uniform excellence, purity, whiteness and dryness. It pays to sell the salt that helps to sell other goods in the store.

—Mr. Grocer—

Do you want to make money—here is a chance—to make it easily, quickly, and lots of it—Do you for any reason wish to take up this very profitable line—That will net you a good income, as well as increase your sales in other lines—If you do read this. Every housekeeper dreads ironing day, especially so when she has a lot of shirt-waists, men's shirts, collars, cuffs, etc. to iron, she always wants to obtain a high grade finish, equal to first class laundries. She of course asks the grocer for advice—in return he offers her the common wax—She knows it is impossible to do good work with common wax—So she walks away—one customer lost.

Now where she can procure an article of this merit—that reduces ironing time by half—reduces labor to a minimum—adds to the finish of clothes—and makes ironing a day of pleasure—There she is sure to do her buying—and leave her order for other things. The Kaiser Wax Pad and Iron Cleaner is used in more than a million homes, read what users say.—

Chicago, Jan. 4th, 1909

To whom it may concern,—

Some time ago I tried the Kaiser Wax Pad and Iron Cleaner, and was so pleased with the work it did, that I recommend it highly and advise every women who wants to make her work easy, to try the Kaiser Wax Pad and Iron Cleaner and be convinced of its good work.

Respectfully yours
Mrs. T. Ohmes, D.S.C.L.O.T.M., 937 W. Adams St.

Mr. Grocer

We do not want you to order until you have convinced yourself of the merits of our Kaiser Wax Pad and Iron Cleaner—Send us your name and address and jobber you do business with and we will send you one free of charge so that you may try it yourself and be convinced—Is this fair enough?

HOUSE CLEANING TIME

Suggests

The Ideal Duster

THIS SUGGESTION is not because the article depends upon any particular season for its uses, nevertheless the approaching cleaning time creates a profound interest in more usetul appliances than have been.

THE IDEAL DUSTER

AS { a high reaching duster
an outside Window Washer
a Polished Floor Duster

has a principle excelled only by the human hand.

It is a MECHANICAL HAND, closing automatically, opened by a wire pulling cord. The user may change wiping cloths with practically the same facility as in hand cleaning—without stooping or climbing. THE HAND AND WRIST SHAPE gives the hand action, to wipe tops of doors, mouldings, etc., and gives 11 square inches like the hand on top the cloth for surface rubbing—WHEREAS ALL MOPS HAVE ONLY A STRAIGHT LINE RUBBING SURFACE.

The wholesale trade will supply you at prices right to enable you to sell with a proper profit at 50 cents for the Duster complete in the two parts, or with a proper, a very proper, Dust Cloth at 60 cents.

The consumption of these Dusters in some towns, where introduced the past year, has been enormous and this demand shows no abatement. Retail Price:

1st section, 5 ft., carrying the head, 35c. 2nd section, 5½ ft. Extension Handle, 15c.
Ideal Dust Cloths, 10c. Sold separate or ensemble.

Any dealer can obtain this line with the same facility as

ST. LAWRENCE Granulated Sugar

Maintains its high standard of excellence. This is proved by the following recent Government analysis:

Montreal, February 22nd, 1909

I HEREBY CERTIFY that I have drawn by my own hand ten samples of the St. Lawrence Sugar Refining Co.'s Extra STANDARD GRANULATED SUGAR, indiscriminately taken from four lots of about 150 barrels each and six lots of about 450 bags each. I have analyzed same and find them uniformly to contain 99-99/100 to 100 per cent. of pure cane sugar, with no impurities whatever.

UNSOLICITED TESTIMONIALS

I consider The Busy Man's Magazine the best I have yet come in contact with.
HENRY WILSON, Toronto,

We have subscribed to many British and American magazines, but found none to equal yours as a Business or Busy Man's Magazine. The articles are so admirably selected that one can start at the first and read right through to the last page and enjoy superior reading all the way.
AULD & CO., South Dunedin, New Zealand

We would not like to miss the future copies of The Busy Man's Magazine.
INGERSOLL PACKING CO.

The Busy Man's Magazine is the best magazine I have had the pleasure of perusing. If my subscription should lapse, do not stop it; jar me up on remitting.
A. B. BURRETT, Amigari

It is pleasing to record that Canada can boast of such a publication, whereby the man, who can devote only a short time to reading each day, may become thoroughly conversant with all that the brightest minds are producing, and what the world's leaders of thought and research are doing, discovering or planning.
Such a publication is The Busy Man's Magazine, which is replete with the latest contribution of the world's centres in political and commercial affairs, science and invention, labor, business, industry, art, etc. The Busy Man's Magazine is a Canadian publication, and places before its readers the greatest amount of instruction and profit in the handiest form and most attractive manner. It indeed fills a long felt want. — Peterborough Daily Review.

The Busy Man's Magazine takes first position in my opinion. It has more interesting, concentrated, common-sense information in one issue than most periodicals have in a whole year.
C. C. NASH, D.D.S., Bath.

The articles in The Busy Man's Magazine are just what we want, short and so well written that a busy man can afford time to read them and feel benefitted for the short time given to each article.
WM. THOBURN, Almonte

The Busy Man's Magazine is the only publication that I keep a file of; in fact I have to, because practically every article in the various issues has been blue pencilled by me for future reference. You have certainly succeeded in obtaining all of the articles of value from the principle magazines of the world, and as a consequence I have not only been able to save a great deal of time by reading your magazine, but also a good deal of money. For instance, I had subscribed for 32 different publications. I now find that Busy Man's Magazine covers the gist of the majority of them.
C. EDGAR WOOD,
Sales Manager Dominion Cartridge Company, Montreal.

Any Article, to reach the page of Busy Man's, must possess the sparkle of merit.

It reproduces each month such articles as measure up to its standard. To secure these articles scores of the best magazines are ransacked. Each number also contains many original articles by clever Canadian Writers.

Thus condensed into Busy Man's are the most attractive features of the leading periodicals, including in the selections something good for every member of the family. Other good articles, for which space cannot be found, are classified in a section furnishing information as to where they may be found.

"The Busy Man's Magazine policy is as Wide as this Great Dominion."

The offer on the opposite page is the broadest one ever attempted by any publication in Canada. Only a magazine with unbounded faith in its merits, in the people and in the country, backed up by ample resources, could attempt such an offer as this. Without restrictions, anyone living in this wide Dominion, whether in Nova Scotia or British Columbia, can have this trip by First-class regular trains. "No special excursion crowding at second-class rates." These tickets will afford you every comfort that any first-class ticket will or can afford during the Exhibition.

The management of this trip is in the hands of a committee that will handle it carefully, liberally, and to the satisfaction of all who accept it. This great offer is made to popularize Busy Man's Magazine, and every detail will be carried out in a manner to insure this end.

Busy Man's is only two dollars per year; any Man, Woman, Boy or Girl can earn this trip at a very small tax on their time. Send in your acceptance and we will send you sample copy and order forms.

This announcement first appeared a few days ago; already we are receiving acceptances from all parts of Ontario (those from other provinces have not had time to reach us yet). Take this offer at its face value, accept it and win the trip. We'll help you, and carry out the offer in its entirety.

The Retailer's Ear

BY A. B. LEVER

MANUFACTURERS and wholesalers make a grave mistake when they think they can compel retailers to lend them their ears.

The retailer has a willing ear for those who go about getting it in the right way.

The right way to get the retailer's ear is the direct way.

Those who essay to get it through the medium of the consumer only are employing the indirect way—in other words, the way that is supposed to force the retailer to "sit up and take notice."

The retailer who is a salesman and knows his business cannot be cultivated by using the consumer as a plow to prepare his mind to lay in the products of any manufacturer or wholesaler.

The best and the most direct way to get the retailer's ear, and through that organ to cultivate his mind, is through the columns of the trade newspaper, every reader of which is a possible buyer.

Don't attempt to pinch the retailer's ear. He will resent it.

Merchants Suffer from Farmers Hoarding their Money

Cause Attributed to Abnormal Aggressiveness of the Banks in Their Desire to Get the Money From the Tillers of the Soil—Credits Prevail Where There are no Other Reasons — Farmer Usually Paid His Money by Cheque and not Cash.

Merchants, and especially those situated in a town or city surrounded by a good farming community, lay the claim that during the past couple of years the tillers of the soil have been getting top prices for their commodities, that they have not spent their money accordingly, and when they do spend it they want credit. What is the reason for this? It can scarcely result from the cause that farmers have not the money to spend, for with the present improved methods used by Ontario agriculturists, the assistance given by the governments, the reasonably good crops and the alluring prices, there must be money in the country.

The Banks the Cause.

Discussing the situation recently with The Grocer, one merchant contended that the banks, in their untiring zeal to build up deposits, were educating the farmers in the wrong direction—to hoard their earnings from the farm unreasonably—and that the tendency was being further encouraged by the introduction and use of cheques as mediums of payment, first, as between the buyer of farm produce and the farmer and second, as between the farmer and retail merchant. Once a bank account had begun to develop proportions, he argued, most farmers hated to see it shrink. It appears to be a condition which demonstrates that the bank and the farmer are a strong combination, but the complaint in the present instance is that it is not conducive to the greatest good to the greatest number deserving.

"When the farmer has money in his pocket," said the merchant, "he is a different man. A few years ago his house was rarely without cash. The banks had not begun to spread out. The farmer bought readily enough then, but this present day custom of carrying nothing more tangible than a blank cheque book in his pocket and an inordinate disinclination to disturb a fat bank deposit, is creating an undesirable merchandizing proposition. I think I may safely say, from instances I have encountered, that it is having a demoralizing influence upon the farmer's business principles. He does not draw the line. He keeps on depositing, and I contend that some of the money belongs to us. Backed by an account in the bank, there are those who apparently consider that they may demand an unlimited amount of credit. They expect the merchant to stand for it.

"Not having the ready cash, some of them frame up excuses for postponing payment, even though they know that our store is run on the cash plan. This man puts forward the plea that his money is deposited in another town and that he will settle up next time. Another man's wife says her husband filled out a cheque at home to make a withdrawal but that he came away and forgot it. The husband, of course, doesn't show up. These are some of the excuses, and I claim it is demoralizing. Of course there are exceptions—very notable exceptions, I am grateful to be able to say.

"I have noticed this condition developing for the past three years and I claim that it is not only having a serious effect upon business, but that the farm itself is not getting all that it is entitled to in order that the highest standard in agriculture might be developed. A few years ago, when the farmer brought his hogs, his cattle, his hay or other produce to market, he received the cash. His wife comes to market with butter and eggs it is true, and receives cash in payment, but that represents a very small part of the proceeds from products of the farm. Nowadays, when the farmer brings his hay or hogs to town, he either receives a cheque or a ticket which is as good as a cheque. He then goes to the bank and deposits it. The entire system is one which plays into the hand of the banker.

"The competition for these deposits has developed a plan which appeals to most farmers. He has been told that it is more businesslike to use cheques. The banks have accordingly equipped them with the means, but it is evident that the willingness to draw is not in it with the willingness to deposit. The bank book is the farmer's visible financial thermometer, and naturally, he likes to have the indicator soar as high as possible above zero."

Too Much Withheld.

"'Do you not think it a good thing for a farmer to have a bank account?'" was the question asked of me recently by a banker, and I agreed with him that it was, but I pointed out that the banks had so campaigned after the farmer's money, that he was now withholding more than he should from the merchant as well as from his own farm and even his own household. The agriculturalists of Ontario are, on the whole, now in a position to live more comfortably than was the case in the early days. Nowhere will you see tables so well supplied as in some of our farming districts. A man's ambition, however, should create in him a desire to be something more than a hewer of wood and a drawer of water. Farmer's wives have told me repeatedly, however, that it is now very difficult to secure money from their husbands. They state that the farm itself is being stinted by this regardless craze for bank accounts. True, the money is there for investment, but should the farm be neglected? Should the agriculturist cut himself down to a purely hand-to-mouth existence? The country requires something better of him than that. The banks, I claim, are responsible.

"Here is an example. A merchant in a small town remarked to me some time ago that trade then had picked up wonderfully. He could not explain it, but when he told me that the only bank in the place had gone out of business, I said, 'If any man comes to you to sign a petition for another bank, kick him out of the store.' There is a bank in that town now and trade has again gone back.

"The farmer will feel it; of that I am sure. The other day a farmer whom I knew to be very well off, came into my store and I asked his opinion of the outlook. He replied that while the year just closed had been very good, so far as he was concerned, the following year, he said, would fall short. I couldn't understand it and asked him why. His answer was that he would have no stock to sell.

"'Why not buy more stock?' I asked, "You have plenty of money in the bank?'

"'That is the trouble!' replied his wife. 'Everything has gone to swell that bank account. He will not draw out the money necessary to re-stock the farm.'

"We are doing what we can by friendly talks to the farmers and bankers," said the merchant, "to combat this evil, but it looks to me that the only remedy is a crop failure or a collapse of prices."

The story is told of a farmer who, though he had $10,000 in the bank, asked to have a note for $125 discounted.

"But you have plenty of money here," said the banker, "why should you want to discount a note and pay 7 per cent. interest?"

"Well," said the farmer, "I don't want to draw out any money just now."

Debtor Suggested a Loan.

Here is one which illustrates the altogether unreasonable proportions which sometimes confront the merchant. A farmer owed a storekeeper $100. He was well off, but the merchant was short just then. The farmer was unwilling to tap his bank account.

"But I must have the money." said the hard-pressed merchant.

"Well, then," suggested the farmer, "why not borrow the money off me? I'll let you have it for 6 per cent?"

And the merchant's finances were at that time in such a condition that he had to accept the farmer's very generous proposal.

Still another story. A farmer in a small town ran up a bill with the merchant to the extent of about $80. He was a well-to-do farmer, and that is why the account was allowed to grow. It was an hereditary custom. The time came, however, when the merchant decided to get after this man. One day the farmer entered the store. To the merchant he looked like $80.

"Dropped in to settle that little matter?" he asked.

"No, not exactly," replied the farmer hesitatingly. "It's just this way. The young banker here was over to my place last night and he convinced me that it would be a good thing to have a bank account. He's an awfully decent chap, and he suggested that it would be nice if I had an even $100 to start on. Now I've only got about $80 and I want to know if you could lend me enough to make up the balance."

ANNUAL STATEMENTS.

BOVRIL.—The annual general meeting of Bovril, Limited, was held in London a few days ago, and the chairman of the board was able to congratulate the shareholders that notwithstanding the very serious general depression of trade last year, the sales of Bovril throughout the world were larger in 1908 than during the previous year. After a very satisfactory statement of the present financial position the shareholders were given a very good idea of the extent of their business by being told that the increased cost of beef, the raw material of Bovril, had in 12 years occasioned a reduction of profits to the extent of $3,000,000. This loss will be prevented for the future, for the company has just receently purchased 438,082 acres of the finest grazing grounds in the world in the Argentine Republic, where the company will breed and raise their own cattle. There are already 100,000 head of cattle on the farms, and that number will be largely increased. One of the directors, Sir James Crichton Browne, N.D.F.R.C.S., related how he had introduced Bovril for use in that terrible scourge of tropical countries, the sleeping sickness, and told how, carrying the matter further, Sir David Bruce, of Uganda, was prescribing Bovril as a reviver and pick-me-up in place of the almost universal whisky and soda.

LEVER BROS., TORONTO.—The annual report of Lever Bros., Limited, the proprietors of Sunlight Soap and other brands, was published recently and makes a specially appropriate appearance at this time after the recent interesting announcement of the profit-sharing scheme. There has been no falling off in the wonderful prosperity shown by the company ever since it was floated, the net earnings for 1908 amounting to £380,700, an increase of £57,400, or 18 per cent., as compared with the preceding year. The ordinary dividend which was 8 per cent. in 1907, is now increased to 10 per cent., whilst the sum distributed amongst the employes, including village institutions account, has advanced from £32,200 to £37,200. The balance sheet reveals a strengthening of the general financial position in several respects. Stock has been reduced from £757,800 to £750,100, open accounts have been lowered from £509,500 to £452,200 and trade liabilities have been cut down from £386,200 to £376,300. Investments in associated concerns have gone up from £1,581,400 to £2,041,800, but goodwill remains as before at £750,000. The depreciation fund stands at £246,800, and there is also an insurance reserve amounting to £33,300. The general reserve has reached a total of £324,600.—The London Financial Times.

PROFITS DECREASE.

New York, March 28.—Publicity is not a strong point with the American Sugar Refining Co. and it will probably take some time for it fully to acquire the habit, after its long years of silence, though its securities are now on the regulas list of the New York Stock Exchange. Its annual report for the fiscal year ended Jan. 2, 1909, is only the second in its history that ever told anything. The net profits for the year were $6,502,929 a decrease of $2,246,362 as compared with the previous year, and were barely sufficient to pay the 7 per cent. dividends on the capital stock, which called for $6,299,942. In the financial district the report was regarded as disappointing to the stockholders, as there has been much talk of late regarding increased earnings and the general prosperity of the sugar trade. It gives no information about the gross sales or business done during the year, so the public is left in the dark as to whether the disappointing showing is due to decreased sales, or decreased profits on the output of the company's refineries, which are supposed to make 50 per cent. or more of all the refined sugar produced in the United States. The theory on which the stockholders have been building their hopes of increased earnings is that the consumption of sugar is not diminished by hard times because it is used very largely in foods that are substituted for meats when the necessity for economy arises.

One item in the list of assets is causing much speculation in commercial circles, including the wholesale grocery trade. The value of the raw sugar on hand is stated at $21,395,724, an increase of $3,863,498, the heaviest stock with a single exception of the year 1904, ever carried over into a new fiscal year in the history of the company.

CATALOGUES AND BOOKLETS.

Manufacturers and wholesalers are requested to send catalogues, booklets, etc., to The Grocer in order that it may be announced to the retail trade that they have been issued. Retailers in sending for catalogues referred to, should mention this paper to show they are in the trade and they should be read thoroughly by them on account of their educative value. Often they may be able to secure new ideas.

The Fairbank Plan.—The N. K. Fairbank Co. are sending out to the trade a neatly printed little booklet entitled "The Fairbank Plan." This book contains a very interesting list of prizes obtainable by merchants or merchants' clerks for certain numbers of Fairbank coupons. Any retail dealer or clerk who has not already received a copy of this catalogue will obtain one by sending their name and address to the Fairbank Co., Montreal, and mentioning The Canadian Grocer.

Holbrooks, Limited.—The April issue of "The Holbrook Gazette" is out and it deserves some recognition here. It is edited by H. Gilbert Nobbs, manager in Canada and the United States and published for the benefit of the representatives in these two countries as well as the head offices in England. The pamphlet contains some beneficial editorials for salesmen and should prove interesting to them.

HEAVY EXPORT COFFEE TAXES.

Washington, March 29.—The Bureau of Manufacturers has prepared a statement showing countries in which an export duty is imposed on coffee and the rate of duty, together with the United States equivalent. The pending tariff bill provides that a duty shall be collected on coffee imported into the United States from countries which impose an export tax, the duty collected to be equal to the amount of export tax imposed. The export tax for each 100 lbs. estimated in United States currency, is given in the bureau's statement.

The export taxes range from about three cents for each 100 pounds, in Ceylon, to $2.97 a 100 pounds in Haiti. The export taxes on coffee shipped from the three principal provinces of Brazil range from .411 cents to 57 cents a kilo, and in one province the tax is 8½ per cent. ad valorem.

TRADE NOTES.

Alex Stewart is back at Montreal from a trip to the old country.

S. J. McCreery, general merchant, of Glencoe, is succeeded by E. Mayhew & Co.

The sales offices of the Aylmer Condensed Milk Co. have moved from Hamilton to Aylmer, Ont., and are now being looked after by D. Marshall, M.P., president; J. E. Gayfer, secretary-treasurer, and H. W. Knight, manager.

Judgment in the Grocers' Guild case has not yet been delivered, and, from inquiry made at Osgoode Hall, the officials there cannot state when Justice Falconbridge, before whom the case was tried, will hand out the judgment.

Another Explanation Apparently is Necessary

E. M. Trowern Thinks Canadian Grocer Made Misleading Statements But According to Three Members of Parliament it is the Other Way Around—His Letter Contrasted With the Actual Events.

Editor Canadian Grocer,—In a recent issue of your paper in referring to the above subject you make some misleading statements that I desire to set right, not so much for the sake of the unfair references that you make to me as secretary of the Retail Merchants' Association of Canada, but for the sake of the cause that I am elected to represent, and for the principles that the association stands for.

Had you had a desire to fully understand the true facts, and not seize upon the daily newspaper reports that are unfortunately gathered up by young men who have no knowledge of the subjects under discussion you might have been set right in a few moments over the telephone, but I am rather inclined to think that the false newspaper reports suited your purpose better, as I must say that the sentiments of your journal have never been in any way kindly disposed toward me personally, for reasons that you may have, and which I am unable to understand.

Now, the real facts of the case are these: P. H. Bowyer, M.P.P., representing East Kent, introduced a bill to amend the Pharmacy Act. This was done at the request of a number of general merchants and others with a view to give them the right to sell some articles which they did not have the right under the law to sell, and for which some general merchants were prosecuted for selling. The clause in the Pharmacy Act covering the section which Mr. Bowyer was anxious to amend reads as follows:

> Section 26.—No person shall sell or keep open shop for retailing, dispensing or compounding poisons, drugs or medicines, except patent or proprietory medicines as provided for in Section 34 of this Act, together with turpentine, Epsom salts, senna, alum, borax, castor oil, sulphur, Glauber's salt, cream of tartar, carbonate of soda, bicarbonate of soda, and glycerine.

Mr. Bowyer's bill proposed to amend the above by striking out the words "drugs and medicines" after the words "poisons" down to the word "glycerine." This proposal would leave the clause to read: "No person shall sell or keep open shop for retailing, dispensing or compounding poisons." That is, they would be allowed to sell drugs or medicines, compound medicines and make up any prescription that may be asked for.

When the matter came before the association I took the trouble to ascertain from a number of general merchants if they really wanted these large powers, and they said no, all we want is to be allowed to sell a number of articles that we are now prohibited from selling. We do not want to make up prescriptions or deal in all sorts of drugs. The members of our "drug section" were consulted and they agreed that they had no objection to extending the list by adding those things that would make it more convenient for the public in those districts where there were no drug stores.

When the matter came before the committee of the House I explained my position, and stated that the general storekeepers throughout Ontario did not want the large powers that the bill provided for. Some of the members of the committee who are general storekeepers and who had not had time to consider the provisions of the proposed measure, jumped up and stated that I was wrong, that the general storekeepers wanted the bill. The youths who report for the Toronto daily papers, and who did not understand the nature of my objection, recorded the attack as a "knock out one" for me, but when the matter was postponed, and a sub-committee was appointed to consider the objection, and they met with the members of our drug section, they came to the conclusion that my objection was well founded, and they unanimously agreed to amend the bill not as Mr. Bowyer had prepared it, but by extending the list of articles on the schedule, thus giving the general merchant the right to sell a number of additional articles, but not to compound medicines.

This proved beyond a doubt that my views were correct, and representative, not only of the general merchants of Ontario, but in harmony with the druggists, and in the best interests of the public. It also proves the great advantage that our association possesses over single line associations as advocated by The Canadian Grocer, as we are in a position to properly gauge the requirements and objections of each section of trade, and to settle them among ourselves and not make the committee room of the Legislature a fighting ground for the various one-line associations, as you would have it if we went back to that old and ancient system of one-line associations, which is fast becoming discarded by all civilized nations, and as far as we can see are only advocated by trade journals who are anxious to increase their subscription list.

I trust that you will give this equal prominence to the article you published and which was by no means a correct report of the proceedings.

E. M. TROWERN,
Secretary Retail Merchants' Association of Canada.

THE OTHER SIDE.

As intimated last week The Grocer has received a letter of explanation from E. M. Trowern, secretary of the Retail Merchants' Association, and which appears above. The letter, as will be observed, refers among other things, to Mr. Trowern's alleged connection with the bill introduced in the Ontario Legislature a few weeks ago, to amend the Pharmacy Act. He affirms in his letter that The Canadian Grocer made "some misleading statements" which he wants to set right—and if some have been made The Grocer desires to be set right.

It will be observed from the letter Mr. Trowern infers that P. H. Bowyer, M.P.P. for East Kent, and the man who introduced the bill, desired to so amend the act that all retail merchants would be allowed to "compound medicines and make up any prescription." Nothing was further from Mr. Bowyer's mind, as his statement attached will prove.

Later in his leter the secretary of the Retail Merchants' Association tells of what he did and said, when the matter came up before the committee. He says he stated that the "general storekeepers throughout Ontario did not want the large powers that the bill provided for." Still later he says that the sub-committee "came to the conclusion that my objection was well founded."

Let us consider whether "these" statements are "misleading" or not.

Covered No Such Points.

Mr. Bowyer is member for East Kent and is the proprietor of a newspaper. He was asked by The Grocer on Tuesday of this week if his bill intended to allow merchants to compound medicines and make prescriptions?

"The bill covered no such points," he emphatically replied, "and it was never my intentions that it should. The Pharmacy Act prior to 1905 never allowed merchants to do it and what I wanted was to strike out an amendment made at that time in order that merchants might sell additional articles. If Mr. Trowern says the bill called for that he is entirely wrong."

"What did Mr. Trowern recommend?"

"We never heard him recommend anything," declared Mr. Bowyer. "He said that he represented the retail merchants of the Province of Ontario and he was there to say that there was no demand for the bill. Immediately Dargavel, Richardson, McElroy, Aubin and other members who are merchants, interrupted him to tell him he was wrong. He made no further statements in the general committee and nothing whatever at the meeting of the sub-committee which decided on the amendment submitted, so that he couldn't have recommended very much."

"What was the difference between your original bill and what the sub-committee recommended?"

"My original bill would have allowed merchants to be free to sell, as in 1905, articles not mentioned in the prohibited schedule. The only difference is that when we considered the matter in the sub-committee we deemed it better that a specific list of articles which could be sold should be made because we thought this plan more practical. I was entirely satisfied with it and I have had congratulations from different persons on my success in carrying it through."

What Other Members Heard.

"What did Mr. Trowern say in committee when this matter was being considered?" was asked of J. R. Dargavel, M.P.P. for Leeds.

"He stated that the Retail Merchants' Association was satisfied with the way the act read," was the answer.

"Did he not say that the Retail Merchants' Association wanted some additional articles added to the list that could be sold by merchants or words to that effect?"

"He did not," declared Mr. Dargavel.

"Did you answer him?"

"I certainly did; I said to him, 'You may represent the Retail Merchants' Association but you don't represent the retail merchants of the province.' I called him down for presuming to represent the merchants of Ontario because I was one and he didn't represent me."

"Was it your intention that the bill should allow retail merchants to compound medicines or make up prescriptions?"

"It certainly was not and I don't think Mr. Bowyer ever intended it to do such."

R. H. McElroy M.P.P., Carleton, was another of those present at the time the question arose. When asked as to Mr. Trowern's statement he said that that gentleman stated that the retail merchants were not in favor of any change and that they were not asking for it.

"Did he say that the retail merchants wanted some additions made to their selling list?"

"He did not," replied Mr. McElroy. "No person that I know of wanted to see the merchants have power to compound medicines or make up prescriptions. That was not my intention and I do not think Mr. Bowyer ever thought of that."

And still Mr. Trowern presumes to say that The Canadian Grocer made misleading statements.

On Thursday, April 1, the new duty on peanut butter coming into Canada came into effect. The general tariff is now four cents per pound instead of 20 per cent. as formerly. This decision of the Board of Customs applies to goods entered for duty on and after April 1.

ASSOCIATION GROWS.

The thirteenth annual meeting of The Retail Merchants' Association of Canada, Toronto Branch, was held in their board room Monday evening, March 29th, 1909, President F. C. Higgins being in the chair. The meeting was largely attended and great interest taken in the proceedings.

The president's address showed advancement in the growth and influence of the Association, and he dealt very fully with the great need there was in the present day to have all retail merchants organized, so that they could convey to their legislative representatives the needs of retail commerce.

Secretary E. M. Trowern dealt with the various legislative imeasures that had been considered during the past year, and laid especial stress on the fact that through their influence the investing public had been advised not to invest their capital in so-called Co-operative society stores, and the result was that many of them had not been able to succeed.

The treasurer's report showed that the great amount of legislative work and other important matters that had been undertaken took more money than had been received , and the Finance Committee are now engaged in raising a special fund to place the association on a sound financial basis.

Jno. Willmot representative on the National Exhibition Association reported very fully on the proposed improvements and additions to the grounds and buildings, and his report was unanimously adopted, every merchant believing that the exhibition is of great value to them. A resolution was unanimously adopted appointing a Press Committee to report to the members and advertisers any editorials or other references that may be made by the press that would be misleading in reference to any scheme or plan that would injure the business of the retail merchant.

A committee was also appointed to see that legisl ation was enforced that had for its object the abolition of fraudulent methods of advertising. adulteration or misrepresentation.

The following officers were elected for the coming year : President, R.W. Dockeray, milk dealer ; 1st Vice-president, W. Mann ; 2nd Vice-president, R. W. Walker ; Treasurer, W. Dineen ; Secretary, E. M. Trowern ; Auditor, M. Moyer ; Chairman of Municipal Committee, A. B. Griffin ; Chairman of Legislative Committee, G. J. St. Leger ; Chairman of Press Committee, Geo. Good ; Chairman of Criminal Law Enforcement, J. C. Van Camp ; Chairman of Finance Committee, A. M. Hobberlin ; Trustees, W. Dineen, A. M. Hobberlin, E. S. Coryell (C. F. Adams Co.) ; Representative on Exhibition Board : Jno. Willmot and F. C. Higgins.

An increase of over three hundred members had been made during the past year, and votes of thanks were tendered to the retiring officers.

EVAPORATED APPLE PRICES.

Are evaporated apples losing their prestige on account of the cheapness of California dried fruits? This is a question that many brokers and wholesalers are interested in and different opinions are expressed. Some claim that the demand for the "vaps" has fallen away, due to the low prices of dried peaches, prunes, etc.

Jos. Lintirie, manager of the Dominion Brokerage Co., Calgary and Edmonton, writing The Grocer, says:

"The demand for evaporated apples in this market has fallen off wonderfully during the last year, and the apple men of the east who have heretofore looked upon the west as a good field to offer their goods, are now wondering why their brokers out here are not selling more of them.

"While we are bringing in a few cars all the time the demand has fallen off fully fifty per cent. over last year, and it must be obvious to the eastern packers that something is taking the place of their goods.

"California fruits are responsible for this slump and people will certainly not pay ten and twelve cents per pound for apples when they can buy peaches, pears and prunes for seven and eight cents. This is no doubt an alarming prospect for the apple men, but the fact must be faced just the same, that not until the price of apples comes down to the level of California fruits, will the demand for apples increase.

"California fruits are finding a ready market here. Competition is keen as several firms are making a strong bid for the business and contractors have been compelled to buy these fruits in preference to evaporated apples because of the great saving in price."

Peaches Are Cheaper.

"Replying to your inquiry of the 22nd inst. regarding the evaporated apple situation there is hardly any doubt in our minds," says J. A. Somerville, of the W. A. Gibb Co., Hamilton, Ont., "but that the price of evaporated apples is affected considerably because of the low prices ruling on California dried fruits some of which can be sold as cheaply on our market to-day as evaporated apples, viz., peaches—of some grades only however. Pears are much dearer than evaporated apples. Prunes of some sizes are of course much cheaper, which is usually the case. In our judgment, however, California fruits cannot take the place of apples beyond a certain limit and we feel that there will be still an active demand for evaporated apples as the spring opens and it depends entirely on the holdings as to whether there will be an advance in price or not. It is hard to estimate the stocks held in this country at present. The greatest difficulty in the evaporated apple situation at the moment is the low prices ruling abroad, which, after all, largely makes the price on evaporated apples in this country."

F. A. Verey, agent in Toronto for the Edwardsburg Starch Co. has been ill for the past week or more with la grippe.

MR. TROWERN AND THE GROCER.

Two weeks ago The Grocer called attention to the presumption of E. M. Trowern, secretary of the Retail Merchants' Association, on account of his attitude in opposing the bill introduced into the Ontario Legislature by P. H. Bowyer, to amend the Pharmacy Act. In this week's issue on another page appears a letter from Mr. Trowern in explanation of his part in connection with the bill.

He states that what he suggested was endorsed by the sub-committee and intimates that the bill as Mr, Bowyer wanted it, would allow retail merchants to compound medicines and make up prescriptions. Both these statements are contradicted by three members of the Ontario Legislature, who were on the spot at the time. All he did say was that he represented the Retail Merchants' Association and that the merchants did not demand the changes wanted in the bill. They say that he did not suggest, as he says he did, that general merchants should have the right to sell a number of additional articles. This was exactly Mr, Bowyer's position; and Mr. Bowyer did not say that, and did not desire that the merchants should have the right to compound medicines or make up prescriptions.

Therefore, the action of the sub-committee did not prove beyond a doubt—as Mr. Trowern says in his letter—that his views were correct.

The Canadian Grocer has nothing nor did it ever have anything against the Retail Merchants' Association. We believe in a central organization, but that does not alter the contention that there is also the need of single line associations. The success which has attended the Retail Hardware Dealers' Association is an evidence of this, to say nothing of the successes which have characterized the Retail Grocers' Associations in both England and the United States.

There is no reason in the world why single line associations should not be represented in an organization like the Retail Merchants' Association.

The Retail Merchants' Association has done a great deal of good and effected many reforms, but it could have done a great deal more had it been more efficiently conducted. The great drawback to the Retail Merchants' Association is Mr, Trowern himself. If he would give the association more prominence, and Mr. Trowern less, the organization of which he is the secretary would be a great deal more successful.

The Canadian Grocer has no quarrel with the Retail Merchants' Association. The quarrel, if any, is with Mr. Trowern, and the instigator of it was not this paper. No one knows this better than Mr. Trowern.

GOVERNMENT MAY ACT.

The Grocer learns that there is a possibility of the Quebec Government appointing an inspector whose duty shall be the inspection of the hotels throughout the province. It is to be hoped that official action will be taken, and promptly, too. Not alone in the interests of the commercial travelers should such an officer be appointed, but for the better accommodation of the general public as well. The commercial traveler, however, is the man who suffers the greatest discomfort and inconvenience if hotels are not properly run. He spends ten to eleven months of the year on the road, and must, naturally, spend more time in the hotels than any other Canadian. It is his right, and only just, that accommodation should be good. Some proprietors take pride in keeping up the reputation they have won for their house. But an inspector is required because there are too many owners who do not give a continental for the "drummer," who chiefly supports him. The only way to keep up the standard is to appoint an inspector.

We would suggest the appointment of a commercial traveler, say, between the age of thirty-five and fifty, and preferably one speaking French as well as English. The position must not be filled by any peanut politician for $800 a year, but by a good, practical, sober, level-headed traveler, who knows from exeperience the life led by the commercial man. He must be able to understand the wants of the traveler, and at the same time he must be able to fairly consider the hotelman's position. A first-class man will fill this responsible office to perfection, and will do a great deal to improve the standing of many of our hotels. He should be paid $2,000 or $2,500.

If the Government contemplates following in the footsteps of Ontario, in choosing a man to fill this position the situation had better remain as it is, for unless the inspector be thoroughly equipped with the necessary knowledge, which can only be gained through having gone through the mill, he will do more harm than good.

THE CO-OPERATIVE MOVEMENT

At the present time there seems to be considerable controversy in Brantford over the co-operative store scheme. A short time ago the Courier, of that city, published an extract from The Canadian Grocer, dealing with the failure of the Toronto Co-operative Equitable Society, and which was signed by "Citizen." A few days later the president of the Brantford Co-operative Association came back at "Citizen," and The Canadian Grocer, with a lengthy reply, in which he makes statements, many of which are misleading.

The first point he attempts to make is that we should not judge all co-operative concerns by the failure of one. It so happened that he either didn't know or didn't desire to know the real facts of the case.

The original "extract" printed in the Courier dealt only with the Toronto Co-operative Equitable Society, but if the president had seen the issue of The Grocer from which the extract came, he would have observed that it also announced the death-knell of the Dominion Co-operative Association. In the succeeding issue he might have noticed the failure of a similar concern at Hochelaga, the dissolving of the Duck Lake Co-operative Association in the West, and the acquiring of the Workman's Co-operative Association in Sydney, C.B., by the Sydney Supply Co.

Surely this must be proof conclusive to the president at Brantford that there has been more than one failure in the co-operative ranks. When it is considered, therefore, that there are comparatively few of such concerns in Canada, the failure of five at about the same time is somewhat ominous.

Again, the president of the Brantford Association compares the failure of a co-operative society to that of an individual grocer, but he seems to appropriately forget that the failure of the former means loss of money to hundreds of stock subscribers, and not to a single person, and what is most irritating is that this loss to the subscribers —in some cases at least—has been a gain for the company promoters.

ONTARIO ASSOCIATION UPHELD.

In last week's issue a letter appeared from F. C. Higgins, a Toronto grocer, disparaging the idea of forming a Provincial Grocers' Association. While we do not agree with the views of the writer, we are always desirous of opening our columns to our readers for all legitimate discussion, and we gladly gave space to Mr. Higgins' communication and respect him for clear-cut opinions on the question.

The Canadian Grocer claims that there is the need of a Retail Grocers' Association in Ontario, but it does not, nor never did, discourage the Retail Merchants' Association, which, we believe, has accomplished some good work.

It must be plain nevertheless that if grocers want to get the best assistance possible they cannot get it from an association in which are interested hardwaremen, druggists, dry goods men, coal and wood merchants, undertakers, and representatives of all the various existing trades. A Retail Merchants' Association is all right where sufficient numbers are lacking in a separate trade, but when the vast number of grocers in Ontario is considered in comparison with the members of any other trade, it remains an indisputable fact that they certainly would have sufficient strength to look after their own interests, were they properly organized.

There are times when questions arise in Parliament in which grocers alone are interested and when the other members of a merchants' association do not so much as give the problems a thought. There are also times when questions come up in which the interests of two trades conflict. It has to be a very diplomatic Retail Merchants' Association which can bring about an amicable arrangement.

A concrete example might be found in the bill introduced into the Ontario Legislature recently to amend the Pharmacy Act. This was a question between the druggists and general merchants—who are all grocers—of Ontario. The druggists were organized, but the grocers were not, and a strong kick was made by the former. The general merchants happened to have some of their representatives in Parliament who came to their rescue and they secured practically what they desired.

Mr. Higgins can scarcely contradict the success of the Retail Hardware Dealers' Association, organized a couple of years ago. Its membership has grown from twenty to two hundred and seventy, and it has become a force to back up the interests of the members of the hardware trade. The benefits that would accrue from an annual convention of retail grocers of the province, where different members of the trade would read papers or give addresses on store management, cash system and other live questions, would be incalculable.

Mr. Higgins is also asked to remember that at the time the trading stamp evil was overcome, three-quarters of those who filed into Parliament were grocers or members of allied trades, the majority of whom came from the Retail Grocers' Association of Montreal.

There is no disputing the benefits that have followed the organization of the grocers in the Ontario cities of London, Hamilton and Brantford. Is there any possible argument against a unity of grocers of Ontario should not exist in one big association where ideas for the most efficient running of a retail trade could be freely exchanged?

In referring to failures of one-line associations where did Mr. Higgins get his information? The medical, drug and hardwaremen are united in Ontario, and he has but to look across the line to the United States to see the success of Retail Grocers' Associations. Cities have them and these are affiliated with state associations which practically all belong to the great National Retail Grocers' Association of the United States, which has more than 350,000 members. There are not "numberless tombstones in the commercial graveyard," showing the demise of one-line associations, but if The Grocer desired it could point to many that stand to the memory of Retail Merchants' Associations. Our desire is to see the Retail Merchants' Associations prosper, but we also wish to see the members of the trade we particularly represent united in one large body for the common interests of all.

THE WEATHER UNFAVORABLE.

Reports from the eastern townships of Quebec state that weather conditions have not yet become favorable for sugaring. There is to be noticed throughout the sugar-making district a reviving interest in the industry, as farmers are beginning to realize the value of the product. In proportion to the amount of labor that is put into the industry, it yields better results than almost any other phase of farm work. Every year confectioners are using more maple sugar in their work. The taste for it is yearly becoming more widespread. If this enthusiasm continues, it will not be long before every maple tree in Canada will be tapped.

Making maple sugar can be learned only by practice. Common sense methods will yield good results. Two words express all that there is necessary to make good sugar and syrup—push and absolute cleanliness.

In the old days it was thought that sap could stand around for an indefinite period, and be just as good as ever. This, however, is not true. The best results are gotten when the sap is put through the evaporater as soon as possible. The Government of Canada are recognizing the valuable asset they have in this industry, and are adopting means to encourage it. As a money-maker it beats the dairy. A farmer does not have to pay out all he gets to feed his trees. It is just labor, and the best paid labor on the farm.

DECEPTION IN BUSINESS.

Business men who practice deception are not wise. Possibly for a time deception may appear to pay, but as a paying proposition all the time there is no question of its futility.

The very foundation of successful and permanent business is confidence. It is as impossible to build up confidence on a foundation of deception as it is to build an enduring super structure on quick-sand.

Up-and-above-board ways of dealing with customers, creditors and employes may not make all rich in dollars who practise it, but it will create a name for probity and that, after all, is more important than even cash as a basis of commercial credit.

SPREAD OF THE CASH SYSTEM.

Even merchants doing business far back in what is sometimes termed the "hinterland of Canada" have caught the spirit of the cash system. Correspondence from Edmonton, Alta., appearing in this issue, contains the information that the seven merchants of Morinville, a little town some twenty-two miles to the northwest of the Albertan capital, have banded together and instituted the cash system. The penalty for breaking the contract has been placed at a hundred dollars, so that it is not probable the merchants will deteriorate from their good intentions.

In the same correspondence there is a splendid illustration of how an Edmonton grocer has built up a good business by sticking to the cash system. He was able to sell his goods cheaper than many of his competitors and was therefore able to work up a business in six years to which he can point with pride.

MONTREAL.

March 30.—T. S. Vipond, of the firm of T. S. Vipond & Co., fruit merchants, at 171 Youville Place, died suddenly at his home, in Kingston, Jamaica, Sunday, March 28, of apoplexy. The deceased was sixty-six years of age, and had rarely been ill. His son, Dr. Charles Vipond, his wife and his only daughter, Miss Mary Vipond, had left him at Kingston Jamaica, two weeks ago in perfect health, but a cablegram reached the family residence at 576 Dorchester St. West, stating that he had succumbed to a sudden attack of apoplexy.

The late Mr. Vipond was a life-long resident of Montreal. He was born at St. Henri and received his education in the public and high schools of the city. For the past twenty-five years, he has been engaged in the fruit business, and was the first merchant to bring a cargo of bananas from Jamaica to Montreal. Deceased was a governor of the Montreal General Hospital, the Protestant Hospital for the Insane at Verdun, and was a member of the American Presbyterian Church.

Mr. Vipond is survived by his wife, one daughter, and eight sons, William, the eldest, resides in Belleville, Ont.; the following live in Montreal: T. J. Vipond, Dr. A. E. Vipond, George A. Vipond, Dr. Charles Vipond, Frank, Ernest and Salkald. The remains are being sent to Montreal for interment. The funeral will be private.

Many of the grocers about town state that trade during the week has been decidedly dull which, in a large measure, is due to the cold weather. Spring trade cannot be said to have set in in earnest yet. The comparative scarcity of vegetables, and fruits, and the prevailing high prices of these products, at this time of the year, has given some impetus to the canned goods and dried fruits sales. In view of the seasonableness of these goods, several of the grocers are showing some nice window displays. Among the particularly attractive ones, may be mentioned Gavel Freres, corner McGill College Ave. and St. Catherine St. and the English Provision Co., corner of Bishop and St. Catherine St.

Thomas Waldron, 1375 Wellington St., near Church Ave., has opened a grocery at this address. Mr. Waldron has been doing a business as a tea merchant, but has decided to add groceries to his other trade.

W. C. Christmas, commission merchant, Merchants' Bank Building, St. James St., has secured the agency for the Hills Bros. Company, New York. This firm of dried fruit importers was for many years represented in Montreal by the late Thomas Montgomery. Mr. Christmas is one of the younger generation of brokers who is making good in his field.

Willis Rowe, late of Rowe, Dean & Lacy, Sherbrooke, Que., is spending a few days in Montreal, en route to the Cobalt district. Mr. Rowe is going up there to look over the prospects for establishing a business.

Frank Cote, late with Sweet Milk Condensing Co., St. Lin, is spending a few days in town.

A representative of The Grocer was recently told by a member of the trade that a law should be passed preventing people from borrowing from their family grocer. This at first sight appears humorous, but it is nevertheless a fact that the grocer is singled out among all other tradesmen, as the victim of the borrowing fraternity. This is especially so in smaller towns, and the suburbs. Some people seem to think he is in business as an accommodation bureau, and should supply all their little odd wants, from lending his horse and rig to supplying crockery to church socials.

ST. JOHN.

March 30—There has been a marked improvement in business here during the past few weeks and the usual spring activity has now set in Both wholesalers and retailers report that trade has picked up lately and a continuance of brisk sales is anticipated.

Baird & Peters, wholesale grocers, of this city, have announced to the trade that they are severing their connection with the New Brunswick Grocers' Guild. C. H. Peters, head of the firm, declined to discuss their reasons other than that given in the circular which they have sent out and which reads as follows :—

"It is interesting to note from recent reports that the mother country in addition to providing capital for her immense industries and foreign commerce, has, at the same time, been able to loan to other countries the fabulous sum of between four and five billions of dollars, and this under a free trade policy.

"After giving the question careful consideration, based on our long experience, and with a view of safeguarding the interests of our customers, we have decided our policy in future will be that of the mother country's—a free trade policy.

"We are satisfied it will be far the best interest and to the mutual advantage of our customers, prospective customers and ourselves, to be in a position to make our own arrangements with the manufacturers and producers, and fix our own selling prices.

"With this in view, we have given the required 60 days' notice to the Wholesale Grocers' Exchange of our decision to withdraw on the 20th May next.

"With the large volume of business here and at our branches, we have a purchasing power which places us in the best possible position to handle the grocery trade within our territory."

One of the most highly respected grocerymen in St. John, died on Tuesday, March 23, in the person of William H. Nose, of P. Nose & Sons. Mr. Nose was ill less than a week and his death came as a great shock to his friends..

Mr. Nose, with his brother Leonard T., succeeded to the business on the death of their father, Phillip Nose, in 1885, and have built up a very large trade in the north end, and all along the St. John river. He was 43 years of age and leaves a wife and three sons ; also seven brothers and two sisters. He was a charter member of St. John Lodge No. 30, Knights of Pythias. The funeral was held on Thursday, 25th inst., and was one of the largest seen in the north end for many years.

Charles A. Clark, retail grocer, who a few years ago moved from the market building, Charlotte street, to 73 Sydney, will on the first of May return to Charlotte street, occupying a store opposite the market building.

H. W. de Forest & Co., wholesale tea packers, of this city, who have a branch in Boston, Mass., are considering enlarging their business there, in view of the proposed change in the United States tariff. Mr. de Forest and Mr. Howell of the firm are now in Boston in connection with the matter.

It is stated here that the United Fruit Company, of Boston, will open a branch office here to be known as the Fruit Despatch. Walter Katzman, of Boston, will be in charge here and will open the local office about the first of April.

The creditors of Charles D. Trueman, wholesale grocer, whose stock was sold at auction recently by the assignees, have been paid their first dividend of twenty-five per cent. It is thought that about 60 cents on the dollar will be realized.

E. A. Goodwin, wholesale fruit dealer, was in Boston on a business trip last week.

HALIFAX.

March 30.—The feature of the grocery markets this week was two more advances in the price of sugar, making four within a short time. Quotations this week show an advance of 20 cents per hundred pounds all round. The ruling prices now are: Extra Standard, $4.90; No. 1 yellow, $4.60; bright yellow, $4.70; unbranded yellow $4.25 and Austrian, $4.60. Hand-picked beans also show an increase, being now quoted at $2.25.

Business is brightening up in all lines and the travelers are sending in good orders. With the opening up of navigation business is bound to show good improvement. Trade in Cape Breton is also improving and orders coming from that section of the province are very satisfactory. Collections are fair and the jobbers hope for still further improvement as the spring advances.

Several Halifax dealers were hit hard by the sudden slump in the prices of eggs and butter, more particularly the latter. In anticipation of higher prices in the spring, many of the dealers early in the season had bought up all the available butter and paid pretty fancy prices for it. They also had an interest in a lot of butter stored in Montreal, but the market failed to hold and the price gradually dropped. Strong efforts were made here to keep the market together but when the retailers offered fresh-made butter at lower prices than were quoted by the wholesalers, the bottom soon dropped out of the market. Indications of a "break" had been evident for some time before the slump in prices. When butter is offered for sale at public auction it is a pretty sure sign that the supply is good and the demand light, otherwise this stock would be bought up quickly. One Halifax dealer who was hard hit, has decided to eliminate butter from his business altogether. The trade has just received the reports of butter from the Inland Revenue Department Laboratory, Ottawa, and they tend to show that the butter handled here is good and the quality high. Of the samples tested all were considered to be very good.

The market is well supplied with eggs, but the demand locally is only fair. Large quantities of eggs are now being sent to Quebec where better prices are obtained. Eggs are now selling here at eighteen cents per dozen in crate lots.

The prospects for another excellent crop of apples this season are very good according to G. H. Vroom, Dominion Fruit Inspector, of Middleton, who is in the city. "The trees all through the Valley are looking very well," said Mr. Vroom. From the buds now formed it looks as if the autumn would yield another record crop. The insects are not going to be as bad as in former years, although there will be a lot of trouble caused by the canker worm. A lot of spraying will be necessary on this account. There are still about 25,000 barrels to be shipped. The steamer Virginian took four thousand barrels and the steamer Tobasco seven thousand barrels. Both sailed this week for London. The price has gone up in London. The market has held firm, especially at the close, and the season will wind up a most successful one.

The fish markets are now very active and the demand for fresh fish is heavy. Halibut is now coming in more plentifully and there has been a drop of three cents per pound in the price, it being now quoted at fifteen cents. The large stocks of cold storage mackerel have all been cleaned up. There is still some frozen salmon on the market, but as the price is high the sales are very limited. Cod and haddock are coming on the market in larger quantities and they relieve the rush on other lines. Very few lobsters are on the local market this week. There was a heavy drop in the price of lobsters in the Boston market this week, and as a result the shipments have fallen off. The season for smelts is about over and the market is now bare of them. Many of the grocers are complaining about the poor quality of the salt herring this season. Not only are the fish poor but they seem to be packed very carelessly and soon lose their pickle.

Address on Question of Manufacturers Maintaining One Price in Victoria—Edmonton and Winnipeg Grocers Build up Businesses on Cash System—British Columbia Travelers Going to Big Exposition—Large Shipment of Tea Landed.

VICTORIA.

April 6.—The Retail Grocers' Exchange held a smoker last week at the Pioneers' hall, to hear an address from J. J. Higgins, secretary of the Seattle Retail Grocers' Association, and also secretary of the State of Washington Retail Grocers' Association. The subject was, "Associations; some of their benefits, especially to Grocers." Invitations had been extended to the wholesale grocers, wholesale fruit dealers, cereal manufacturers, their travelers, all grocers' assistants and those grocers not members of the Exchange. The hall was well filled and the closest attention given to the address from 8.30 to 10.30. One prominent subject was the steady growth of the principle of manufacturers making and maintaining a minimum retail selling price on their manufactures. From all parts of the States, especially on the Pacific coast, leading manufacturers were falling into line and adopting this plan. It is felt to be the only way, said the speaker, to effectually and legally stop price-cutting; the general public seem to appreciate the one-price articles, and the retailer need not hesitate to consider the price to quote when asked by a customer. All present were urged to keep careful record of their expenses and remember these when pricing the goods. There should be a profit for the grocer on his invested capital, as well as enough to cover the expense amount. Retailers were urged to try always to be friends with the wholesalers, and they will be the friends of the retailer. Their interests were mutual and to succeed they must consult each other. Use well the "credit information department" of the Exchange, in which the secretary keeps private to himself the names of those enquiring, and those who give him the answers. It will save many a bad debt and pays many times over the small amount of the monthly dues. A number of other matters affecting the grocery trade were briefly referred to, the whole forming a most instructive and entertaining address.

Chinese peddlers of vegetables, fruit, fish, etc., are getting so numerous as to quite interfere with the business of the stores, and meetings of those most affected have lately been held, to consider how best to rectify this. It was decided to prepare a petition asking the city council to revise the amount paid for the license with a view to largely increasing it, to insist on correct scales and weights being carried, and sufficient officers to be appointed to check peddling without a license.

The retail flour market is still disorganized, different prices being quoted for the same make of flour. Manufacturers' representatives have been in town trying to straighten out the matter.

EDMONTON.

March 30.—Prospects for the coming season in and around Edmonton are extremely bright, judging from reports given in connection with the new railroads and branches from Edmonton. To date about the only definite result from a business standpoint is that the contracting firm of Wickham and Alfred have been purchasing big quantities of supplies in our city for the coming season's operations on the western extension of the Grand Trunk Pacific. They have a long stretch from the McLeod River west through the Big Eddy. Foley Bros. and Larsen are also freighting with several hundred teams large quantities of supplies west to the McLeod from Edmonton, thus showing that even if all contracts haven't been let there is surely going to be plenty of work going on.

From this work has sprung a trading company known as the Pembina River Trading Co., which is to open large general stores both at Pembina River Crossing and the McLeod. This company has unlimited capital and is rushing supplies in to both stores while the snow lasts with the anticipation of supplying survey parties and other outfits in connection with the railroad work. This company is also making plans for establishing a permanent store at the townsite, or divisional point of the G.T.P., in the vicinity of the McLeod or Wolf Creek as soon as the townsite is surveyed.

H. T. Langmaid is opening a new general store at the Paddle River about sixty miles north west from Edmonton. Mr. Langmaid has just returned from Boston where he was making arrangements for the establishment of the largest store in this section of the country. He is to put in a stock of about $30,000 thus enabling him buying in such large quantities to corral most of the north western business and to save people in this rapidly filling section from the long and hazardous freight haul from Edmonton.

V. H. Davies, for a long time in the employ of the Acme Co., in Edmonton, has gone west and opened up a general store at Wolf Creek, about one hundred and twenty miles on the direct line of the G.T.P. This is another aspirant for the early opportunities in connection with the opening of the divisional point.

As The Grocer has always advocated a cash business among merchants this bit of news might be of interest to its subscribers. At the little town of Morinville, twenty-two miles north-west from Edmonton, on the branch of the Canadian Northern Railway, which branch in the near future is to be extended to Athabasca Landing, the merchants, seven in number, have banded together for protection and all signed an agreement on Jan. 1st. last to do a strictly cash business, the first to break the contract to be penalized by a fine of $100. So far this scheme is acting very well. One would imagine this the hardest place to institute a cash business as it is the centre of a large farming community.

We have a splendid example in Edmonton of a man who has made a success at doing business on a strictly cash basis; this is F. Schattner. Starting in a little store on the corner of Mamayo Ave. and Isabella St. a little over six years ago handling groceries, he has been so successful by adhering strictly to a cash basis that to-day he owns the large new two story brick block where he does business, on the site of his former little store besides owning considerable city property. He claims that by doing business for cash only he has been able to undersell all his competitors and getting his money for his goods he has been able to buy in such large quantities that this is made possible. His little grocery store has grown into a departmental store of considerable size now handling groceries, dry goods, boots and shoes and flour and feed. He never solicits business but relies on the lowness of his prices and quality of his goods.

C. C. Thompson, who has for about two years been conducting a grocery, fruit and confectionery business at the east end of Jasper Ave., intends moving the first part of April into new and more commodious quarters in the west end at 439 Jasper Ave. West, the new Wellington Block.

T. W. Rourke, who has for about three years been manager of Revillon Bros., Edmonton branch, has been transfered to New York to become general manager of the New York branch. He is succeeded by Jean Revillon, of the head offices in Paris.

CALGARY.

March 30—Trade in grocery and produce lines is steadily improving. Large quantities of supplies are being purchased for shipment to country points in anticipation of a big demand in the near future. Settlers are arriving in increasing numbers from week to week, and this stimulates trade of a very satisfactory nature as it is spot cash business. The C.P.R. Irrigation Company have let contracts for a large amount of work to be done in extending irrigation canals to the south-east of Calgary. It is stated that more than 250 teams will be employed, and that settlers will be given the preference, provided they care to take up the work. The demand for wheat lands in the south country is urgent and the company is desirous of satisfying it. With Alberta winter wheat selling at 97c. per bushel, the farmer who last season harvested anywhere from 35 to 50 bushels to the acre, has surely no reason to complain of hard times. Since the movement of grain westward to the Pacific began, many inquiries are coming in for Alberta wheat. One of the local milling companies to-day received a wire from San Francisco asking for a quotation on 25,000 bushels of Alberta red winter wheat. It will not be long until our famous wheat is known and appreciated the world over. The recent snowfalls will prove beneficial to the crop, which is reported to be in excellent condition.

Prices are firming up in some grocery lines. Corn syrups have been marked up 15c. per case; sugars are higher, also California seeded raisins and evaporated apricots. In the produce market potatoes are more plentiful, as farmers are now hauling in loads from country points and this is satisfying the demand. Fresh eggs are plentiful, retailing at 25c. per dozen.

SASKATOON.

March 30.—B. A. Archibald has sold his general store business to A. W. Cooper.

A new general store has been opened on Broadway by A. I. Farnham.

J. F. Cairns is at present on a trip to Eastern Canada and is expected back in a few days.

A new residence is being erected on Saskatchewan Ave. for B. A. Archibald.

A new frame warehouse is under course of construction for Carruthers & Co., hide and fur merchants, of Winnipeg, who recently purchased a site here. The building is 28x60 ft. and will be metal clad. It is situated in the wholesale section and has track facilities.

Considerable alterations are taking place in the Cairns store. The whole front of the grocery section has been taken out and the door placed in the centre instead of at the end of the building where it formerly was. The windows will be fitted with glass doors and a refrigerator will be installed for meats and other articles requiring a cool place. The general offices have been moved upstairs, which gives much more room on the ground floor.

F. Booth has taken a position as manager with Avery Smith in the store on Avenue A. Mr. Smith has gone to Floral, where a general store has been opened under the name of Avery Smith & Searles. The new firm intend to extensively handle butter and eggs, which they will ship to the city store for disposal.

Early & Early, produce merchants, intend building a new warehouse on 20th St. The firm have done an extensive business in potatoes, flour and farmers' produce during the winter, necessitating the erection of larger premises. Some material is now on the ground ready to make a start as soon as the ground can be excavated.

A site for a city market has been purchased by the city on Avenue A at a cost of $25,000. Buildings will be erected as soon as possible. For some time there has been a feeling that a market should be established by way of encouraging farmers to go in more extensively for farm produce.

VANCOUVER, B.C.

March 30.—A visitor to the city last week was William C. Mooney, vice-president and assistant manager of the Mooney Biscuit and Candy Company, of Stratford, Ont., whose product is known in this part of Canada. H. B. McKelvie is the manager in Vancouver for the company. Mr. Mooney ascribes no little of the success of his company to judicious advertising, principally in trade papers. In six years it has accomplished what other firms in the same line of business have taken 50 years to achieve. As indicating the strides made by his company, Mr. Mooney stated that last year it did between $350,000 and $400,000 worth of business west of the Great Lakes.

The United Commercial Travelers of this city plan a large excursion to Seattle in June, when they will attend the Alaska-Yukon Exposition. Theirs is no cheap money-making proposition, but a scheme to give every member of the association an opportunity of attending the fair without being rushed and crushed to death. It was proposed at first to charter one of the Empresses, a rather ambitious project, and failing to secure that, negotiations are now pending for the Makura, the big liner that runs between this city and Australia. It is figured that if it costs each of the 300 members of the association about $20 each, it will be easy, as that will give accommodation while at Seattle, thus saving hotel bills. It will not be known until the Makura returns to Sydney whether or not she can be chartered for the trip.

The Northern Commercial Company, operating in the Yukon and Alaska, has its buyers in town this week, namely, F. S. Jones, J. A. Murphy and J. R. Hansen, of San Francisco. They are placing large orders, which will run, according to an estimate of one wholesale man, to between $75,000 and $100,000.

F. A. Bean, president of the Saskatchewan Flour Mills, of Moose Jaw, and the assistant manager, J. A. Wilson, are here introducing their Robin Hood flour. They are conducting a demonstration campaign, and their unique scheme is to have a group of charming young ladies, known as the Robin Hood girls, extol the virtues of this particular manufacture.

D. K. Chungranes, Ltd., one of the oldest fish houses in the province, which has operated at Victoria for many years, has started in Vancouver, and has absorbed the business at 630 Westminster Avenue. It is proposed to sell both wholesale and retail. Mr. Chungranes, president and general manager, is here in connection with the transfer. This company has for a number of years had its own fleet of fishing boats.

The grocers of New Westminster are taking an active interest in bowling this season and have a team which is competing for a trophy in the business league.

Capt. Charles W. Busk, a pioneer fruit grower of the Kootenay, was in the city the other day on his way home from a trip to Florida and Cuba, which he made principlaly to secure information about the methods of handling and marketing fruit. The results of his observations confirmed him in the belief that the vital need of the fruit growers of British Columbia is a central organization which will look after the distribution of the fruit in the large consuming centres in the prairie provinces and the coast cities.

The Victoria Fruit Exchange is in receipt of a number of letters from leading importing firms of London, England, enquiring as to a supply of fruit for the Old Country market. Of the various varieties grown here, it is pointed out that Ribstons, Kings, Jonathan and Cox's Orange Pippins best meet the requirements of British buyers. These inquiries are an outcome of the display made of British Columbia fruit at several fairs last fall by the local Government.

The W. H. Malkin Company, of this city, is one of the largest tea importing houses in Canada, and the constant large consignments received by them are making Vancouver one of the principal tea ports in the Dominion. Their large business in this line was exemplified last Saturday when 1,352 chests were taken from the Empress of China to their warehouse. This was the largest single shipment of tea landed here by one consignee, and it will be shipped to all parts of the west and north. The leaf was brought from points in India and Ceylon to Hongkong, where it was transhipped to the Empress of China. The removal of the tea was quite an event on Saturday afternoon, it being made under the direction of W. T. Heddle, manager of the tea and coffee department of the company. The shipment was loaded on sixteen drays.

The milk and cream shippers of the Fraser valley have organized and will approach the C.P.R. for cheaper freight rates, so as to reach the factory at New Westminster. T. Foster, of Whonnock, was elected president; H. Payne, Matsqui, vice-president, and S. H. Shannon, secretary.

The general store of Hardy & Company, of Midway, B.C., was destroyed by fire, with a loss of about $14,000, with insurance about $8,000. The origin of the fire is a mystery. About ten days ago $300 worth of damage was done to stock, and the business since then had been conducted in another building.

WINNIPEG.

March 30.—J. G. Hargrave, who has been in the retail trade in this city since 1879, last week referred to the gradual closing down of a credit business in connection with the grocery trade. It was interesting to note, he said, that upon looking over the books of three years ago, the term "charge" was repeatedly used, and on the books to-day, to see the term "C.O.D." repeatedly. Such a tendency in the grocery business will be welcomed by many. The old nuisance of waiting for the money will be to some extent eradicated. No doubt when the retail merchants become better organized, this matter of inaugurating a cash trade will be discussed. The largest grocery store in the city to-day is doing a strictly cash business, and other retailers ask, why cannot we? There are others doing a leading trade who are reluctant toward a cash business, because they are filling orders continually by phone from wealthy homes who prefer monthly settlements. Such customers may be the making of his trade and to ask for cash they consider would be a direct insult to those who have best served them in the past in the matter of payment.

J. F. Powell was in the city last week representing the Cadbury chocolate and cocoa manufacturers of Birmingham, England.

The McNaughton Dairy Co. have opened a jobbing creamery house in this city. The head of the firm is C. H. McNaughton, of the fruit company of that name, in another part of the city. The creamery puts up cheese in five sizes of jars for the retail market and their butter, which comes from creameries in Saskatchewan, is put up in one pound cartons. It is the intention of the company to manufacture cheese in their present plant before long.

Clements & Macdonald is the name of a new grocery and hardware retail store opened in this city a few weeks ago. H. M. Clements and R. G. Macdonald, the proprietors, were formerly real estate brokers here, and have put considerable capital in their new stock. The store is in the corner of a beautiful block, admirably situated in the city for good trade. At the rate of increase of business there is reason to believe that the firm will have good success.

There are many retail grocery stores in the city which cater to foreign trade. Few of these are on metropolitan streets but are scattered throughout the city among the residences. It is interesting to note the volume of business carried on by some of these stores. On Redwood Avenue, in the north end of the city, is a neat store conducted by S. Katz. For the past four years he has done a successful trade among his immediate neighbors, and looks forward to a busy season this coming summer. In this store the fruit trade is excellent, surpassing the same line of trade in some of the down town stores.

J. C. Gobart is erecting a departmental store in the St. James section of the city fronting on Portage Ave. The building will be 60 feet by 66 feet, and by July 1 will be fitted up modernly with a stock of groceries, hardware and dry goods.

The Olympic Cafe is said to have the most attractive display of fresh fruits in the city. J. F. Dasso, late of Chicago, is the special artist in window decoration. At present the front window is a mass of green moss arranged in three pyramids on the banks of which are terraces at frequent intervals, and on which are laid oranges, lemons, apples and the various other fruits. No prices are quoted in the windows.

J. A. McKerchar, a Main street grocer for the past twenty-two years, was presiding last week at the Manitoba school trustees convention.

Peterboro Grocery Window Dressed With "Rheumatism Cures" —Cash System in Bracebridge Better Than Collector—Shoplifting Prevalent in Ottawa

PETERBORO.

April 1.—Your correspondent had a conversation recently with a citizen of Norwood regarding the business conditions in that village and learned that mail ordering from Toronto houses is killing business in that place. The city companies that make a specialty of mail ordering give the village particular attention with the result that they are taking away a great deal of the home trade and are thus damaging the whole business of the village in every line. Even farmers from the outlying districts are feeling the effects and the exchanging or bartering has not been anything like it was formerly. The only business that has increased as a result is the handling of express and the villagers state that they are sorry that they have to report this state of affairs. Not only are hats and shoes, clothing, and house furnishings, stoves and hardware among the list but groceries are also purchased in bulk. The result has been a marked falling off in the wholesale purchases made by the merchants. The system has spread even to the farmers and the village is losing the position it formerly held as a centre for farmers trading. This condition indirectly effects Peterboro for in the past many of the Norwood people came to this city for their largest purchases, but now they obtain all their wants from Toronto and do not have to go any farther than the post office with the letter containing their money order.

In connection with the above it is learned that Peterboro business men do not suffer to any appreciable extent because they are able to offer their goods at tempting prices and there does not seem to be the tendency here to try the mail delivery system.

A collector for one of the leading up town establishments states that he has received offers from grocers to collect their debts with a promise of commission ranging from 10 to 90 per cent. Many of the outstanding debts are practically hopeless as they have been swelled by the past winter's lack of work to a high figure. With skilled mechanics a brisk summer will probably wipe off these debts but with the majority of the laboring people who have fallen into this lot the summer will no more than provide necessities and may leave a little over for the winter, but the debt cannot be lessened. This is the condition as reported by this collector who is well versed with the true conditions.

One of the grocers who was displaying a window of oranges this week had them marked "Rheumatism Cure." A druggist remarked that this was the latest method of cutting in on their trade.

The mercantile hockey league championship was won by the team representing the Quaker Oats factory who, after a successful season, were banqueted by the managers of the company.

As yet there have been no offerings of maple syrup on the local market. The farmers promise a good supply in a week or two providing the present conditions of the weather are maintained.

BRACEBRIDGE.

March 31.—The marriage of J. W. Reid, of Hutchison Bros., to Beatrice Ada Kirk, sister of Kirk Bros., was solemnized Wednesday at high noon, at the residence of her father, John Kirk.

On Monday evening the Tattie and Herrin Club of this town, entertained J. W. Reid on the eve of his approaching marriage.

Trade in town is splendid owing to the continued good sleighing. All merchants declare March the best month so far this year.

Plans have been accepted for the erection of six splendid stores to take the place of the ones destroyed by the late fire. The town council will raise the sidewalk in front of the new blocks going up.

The large linen mills of Bracebridge resumed active operations yesterday and in another week the large saw mill and planing mills will be in full swing making the grocers wear that smile that won't come off.

We have noticed that Guelph, Brantford and other cities are arranging for the collection of debts by a special collector to be paid a salary by the merchants. With all good success to them we have a still better system in Bracebridge, and that is "Cash." A merchant who cannot say "No," should try something else for a living. Nearly all of our stores have introduced the cash system and all speak highly of its success and may it become a factor in every city, town and village in Canada.

OTTAWA.

March 31.—The Retail Grocers' Association will not hold a pure food show in connection with the Central Canada Exhibition this year. There are none of the grocers who care to spare the time from their business necessary to work up a show again this summer. The association was offered the part of Howick Hall, formerly occupied by the stage for a pure food show this year. However, the association feels that even if it could secure men who had time to work up such an undertaking, the place offered would not be large enough or at all suitable for the show. The association will hardly take up this work again, which proved so successful last year, unless the exhibition association can provide a permanent building in which to hold the shows each year. In this way the exhibitors could be leased spaces for a term of years, which would prove much more satisfactory to them.

Suggesting changes in the market by-law, sixty members of the Ottawa branch of the Ontario Vegetable Growers' Association have presented a petition to the city council. Some rather novel reasons are set forth. What the petitioners want is the removal from the by-law of that provision which restricts them from selling to any but housekeepers before 9 o'clock in the morning. They say that they have to be on the market early in order to get a stand and that under present conditions they do not get home until noon; then, so to speak, they are "all in," or as the petition sets forth—so exhausted as to be unfit for work in the afternoon. The matter is one which will require very careful attention. The 9 o'clock restriction is for the benefit of the householder (5 per cent. in Ottawa go to the market) and designed to prevent hucksters and dealers going to the market and buying up the best of everything before the ordinary person is awake. The dealers who would engage in such business will doubtless support the petition, but it represents only a portion of the patrons of the market, as on busy days both sides are full and the line extends up to York St. Things are going pretty smoothly down there this year and from what can be learned at the city hall there is little likelihood of the by-law being changed, particularly in the direction suggested. The Allied Trades and Labor Association think the 9 o'clock by-law a farce because they claim it is never adhered to, though dealers run the risk of being fined. "The practice of shoplifting is costing merchants in this city thousands of dollars yearly," was the statement made in police court one morning last week by a prominent Sparks St. dry goods merchant. A grocer, in referring to the matter, said: "For my part I am getting tired of letting these people go. They just spread the news that our store is easy because if caught we do not prosecute, but in the future we will adopt a different policy. From now on we intend to bring up every shoplifter before the magistrate and insist on punishment.

LONDON.

The annual meeting of the Retail Grocers' Association will be held on Tuesday evening, April 6, when officers for the year will be elected and arrangements will probably be made for the annual excursion. There is a strong feeling in favor of giving President T. Shaw a second term, for which there is a precedent in the care of C. H. Lee, the first president of the association, who had two years of it. Vice-president John Diprose also finds many warm supporters for the office, while others again favor giving ex-President E. J. Ryan, who takes a very deep interest in the organization, another term. It is hoped there will be a very large turn out of members at the next meeting.

H. A. Bishop, for some time representative of the Shredded Wheat people, with headquarters in this city, has resigned his position.

QUEBEC MARKETS

POINTERS—
Molasses—Firm.
Maple Sugar—No new sugar.
Tea—Market strong.
Evaporated Fruits—Good demand.

Montreal, March 30. 1909.

The week has been an exceedingly dull one, in both retail and wholesale circles. Merchants state that spring trade will not open up actively, until the cold weather which has hung onto the tail-end of the winter has given place to warmer days.

There are scarcely any changes in the grocery situation during the week. The lack of interest has kept things about as they were one week ago. In discussing the situation with a leading wholesale man, he said "I believe this is the calm before the storm," and continuing "I someway think warm weather will come all of a sudden, and then there will be some brisk business doing. I believe the coming season will be a prosperous one, as indications seem to point that way. Dealers are buying with more caution it is true, but the sum of the business passing is good. The fact that an effort will be made to open the river channel by ice breakers earlier than usual, will be of great advantage to Montreal at least.

It has, however, left the market with added strength. Japans, owing to small compass, continue to be much sought and firm in price. CANNED GOODS

MONTREAL.—Fruits and vegetables are moving well. The demand for fish has been on the whole disappointing for the Lenten season. Meats are moving only fairly freely. Baked beans are having a steady sale.

TORONTO.—It is the general impression among wholesalers in Toronto that the available supply of canned goods will be well consumed before the new pack is placed on the market. As stated before, peas are scarce and corn is likely to be. Tomatoes are plentiful but the consumption is large and the demand good.

Some report a stiffening in prices of varieties of canned salmon owing to lowering of stocks. Gallon apples are in good demand, too.

BUYERS IN TORONTO.

During the week the following were among the buyers noticed in Toronto: J. A. McCrae, Guelph, Ont.; O. Donnell, Ravenshoe, Ont.; T. B. Reeve, Markham, Ont.; Lyman Larwag, Wexford, Ont.; B. Ward, Bloomington, Ont.; E. E. Emerson, Mongolia, Ont.; W. A. Brunton, Newmarket, Ont.

ONTARIO MARKETS

POINTERS—

Beans—Demand falling off.
Sugar—Advance probable.
Prunes and Peaches—Selling well.
Tea—Market firm.
Molasses—Slight advances.

Toronto, March 31, 1909.

The approach of spring, if doing nothing else, is creating a feeling of optimism among manufacturers and wholesalers. This week the latter report better collections and their travelers say that trade throughout the country is coming along well though probably slowly. But the feeling that better times are coming is showing itself and what the majority think usually comes to pass.

Wholesale merchants of Ontario have certainly profited by the opening of the district of Gow Ganda in New Ontario. Trouble is now being experienced in getting the provisions into the town owing to the state of roads and scores of car loads of material are piled in villages and towns on this side of Gow Ganda, many of the provisions having nothing above them to protect them from the elements.

Sugar has advanced again in the United States but not in Canada up to today. Another advance here, judging from the conditions of the market elsewhere is not unlikely. Canned fruits are moving well and so are vegetables and there may not be sufficient in some lines for the demand.

Tea continues to cross the border into the United States and the market is firm. There is a possibility however, since President Taft does not favor the tax, that it may be partially or altogether removed.

SUGAR—No changes occurred during the week in sugar prices in Canada, but this cannot be said of the article in the United States. Refiners are paying slightly more for raws, Cubans being over 4 cents on a duty paid basis. Sales are being effected, according to a New York despatch, at 2 11-16c. for April shipping cost and freight at New York, which is equal to 4.04 cents duty paid in New York for 96 test. Within the past week all New York refiners advanced their prices 10 points and a similar advance took place in New Orleans but there has been no change here since March 19th. The Federal prices on the other side are 10 points above all others. Europe is quoted higher also and while these conditions continue we may look for steady markets with probably further advances.

TEA—The market in tea is firm, not altogether owing to the movement reported last week across the border, but partly to that cause. This importing from Canada is, of course, for speculative purposes and is acceptable to Canadian tea dealers. It is reported that President Taft does not favor the tax on tea and it is quite likely some changes may be made before Congress passes the Payne bill. Should this duty be eliminated some losses, it would appear, should follow.

DRIED FRUITS—Prunes, peaches, and apricots are yet good sellers in the dried fruit line. There is a fair demand for currants, but not a great deal for raisins. The statement that evaporated apples do not sell so well as in other years on account of the low prices of some of the dried fruits, is met with varying opinions. Some wholesalers say that although the sales of evaporated apples have been comparatively light, it is not because of the prices of prunes and peaches. Prunes, they say, could always be sold under apples. The tastes of the public have apparently been changed.

BEANS—There has been, as expected, at this time of the year, a falling off in the bean demand. The prices have been steady and probably have checked some sales. There is also foreign beans from Rangoon, India, arriving in a small way. These are of a yellow color and used more for canning purposes with pork than for placing in retail stores. They are, however, just as good as the regular white beans.

EVAPORATED APPLES—The price of evaporated apples remains at 7½c. with the movement only fair. The Canadian Northwest has not taken so many beans as usual. A local broker states that the contention of the Calgary broker published in this issue is correct that the prices of California dried fruits are as low as to check the sale of evaporated apples in the West. The small business in apples here has been a disappointment to many brokers and wholesalers, who expected something better. Trade is likely to improve, however.

TRADE NOTES.

Adamson & Golding, grocers, West Toronto, have dissolved, Jas. St. C. Adamson continuing.

James Pope, for 30 years in the grocery business on Davenport Road was buried last Friday. He was 66 years of age and was born in Woodstock.

The bowling tournament of the Toronto Retail Grocers' Association will be held next Monday night at eight o'clock and altogether likely at the Minerva alleys, near the corner of College and Bathurst Sts. The captain is Bailey Snow, replacing Fred Thorne, whose mother died last Saturday.

Demand for Breeding Cattle in Western Canada

Surplus Stock Picked up During the Winter—Farmers Going Out of Hog Raising—Wheat Market Rallies After Recent Depression.

Winnipeg, March 31—While business of all kinds is showing the stir that invariably precedes the coming of spring, there is little of a startling nature to write about. The weather has been very soft and mild all week, and has been further marked by one or two very heavy falls of snow, which have been general throughout the whole west, and have been welcomed by the farmers, as in many sections further west particularly, the snow fall had been light and had almost entirely disappeared. It is generally conceded that nothing could be more opportune to put the seed bed in a good condition than this heavy blanket of soft snow, which is already beginning to melt and making the roads very sloppy and difficult to travel.

Implement men report a great movement in their business and the inquiry and orders both very much in advance of last year at the same time. New settlers are arriving daily, not in the hordes that marked the immigration two and three years ago, but in picked parties running from 20 to 100, and all with more or less money. A larger percentage of these settlers are remaining in Manitoba than has been the case in the past. The opening of so many homesteads in the northern part of the province, has had the effect of not only bringing people to Manitoba to homestead, but it seems to have awakened interest in Manitoba lands, and the older, larger and more conservative real estate firms report some good sales, and also many inquiries, particularly for land near Winnipeg.

The season promises to be an especially active one in building, not only in Winnipeg, but in the country districts and smaller towns, and the buildings are of all kinds, shapes, sizes and costs.

Elevators Going up,

A large number of elevators are being contracted for at different points, many of them along the line of the G.T.P. A considerable amount of building on the farms is taking the form of stabling for cattle, and marks the degree to which many of the districts are departing from purely wheat farming and going in for both dairy and beef cattle.

A well-known breeder of shorthorns was asked recently when he intended to have his customary sale of surplus stock. He answered: "I am not going to have one, I have nothing to sell, the private demand has been so good all winter that I have sold everything I want to sell, and in fact I am in the market myself for some additional breeding stock."

A breeder of Herefords reported that he had nothing left to dispose of this spring, the demand had been too good all winter. An even more significant circumstance is the interest taken in the dispersion of the herd of the "Munro Pure Milk Co." This is one of the largest, if not the very largest, herd of pure bred Holsteins in Canada. It has been specially built up with a view to quality as well as quality of milk. The company has consisted of the father and several sons, and the health of the sons has necessitated a removal to a milder climate, and the herd has been advertised for sale on April 1st. Previous to the announcement of the sale, in fact previous to the decision to sell out at all, the surplus stock of young bulls had been disposed of by private contract, 40 in all being sold. There are no males left excepting the heads of the herd, which will not be disposed of at all, unless a very high price is realized, and one or two yearling bull calves. The females, some 120 in number have among them some very noted cows with great records and great pedigrees. Ever since the announcement of the sale, inquiries have been pouring in from all over the country from as far west as Salmon Arm and as far east as mid-Ontario, with not a few inquiries from the states to the south. The sale promises to be a record one. The demand has been especially heavy from Alberta and Saskatchewan, showing that the farmers there are early realizing the need not only of raising stock but of dairying also. The loss of this dairy herd from the milk supply of Winnipeg will be no light matter, particularly as all the cattle have been tested and are warranted free from tuberculosis.

Such matters may be straws, but they sufficiently indicate the direction in which the wind is blowing in the matter of mixed farming.

Cattle Prices High.

Another feature was that of the high prices obtained for good males of beef type at the annual sale at Regina, in connection with the spring show, which was concluded on Friday, March 26th. Anything in the shape of a well-bred quality bull, either Shorthorn or Hereford, brought good prices and the bidding was active.

The year promises to be a record one in the matter of both cattle and horse breeding in the Canadian West; alas that it cannot be said that it will be a record one for hogs also, but as previously indicated, the farmers have taken what our Scotch friends so forcefully describe as "a scunner" at hog raising just at present, and are getting out of it with a zeal that is certainly worthy of a better cause.

Changes in Wheat Situation.

The wheat market has been both erratic and interesting, and after very considerable depression, has shown a very decided rally with an active increase in export trade. The lowering of the rates from Buffalo and the consequent lowering of rates along the Canadian route coming almost simultaneously with the advance in British markets, occasioned by light Argentine and Australian receipts made it possible to do business, and 25th, 26th and 27th of the month witnessed a very active trade with cash wheat higher than it has been all season. Receipts have been liberal and increasing, but these have come forward mainly out of interior storage, as all elevator lines report receipts very light. Country roads are in bad condition, and it is getting so near seeding as to make it doubtful as to much being delivered before that event is over. The small deliveries at interior elevators will certainly increase the full feeling of the market.—H.

MANITOBA MARKETS

Winnipeg, March 27.—The change in the temperature has given the trade a different aspect. There are evidences of the fast approaching spring and though the trade has not picked up in a substantial way yet it has strengthened as shown by the fact that there is a change in the demand for grocery commodities. A few fresh fruits are coming in but as yet these are specialties. The canned goods trade seems to be in a somewhat demoralized condition with the exception of peaches, pears and strawberries which have cheapened. The fresh fruits, however, have not displaced the canned fruits materially.

Owing to the Lenten season, the fish market has been heavy. Haddies sell retail for 7½c., herring at $2 per box, fancy No. 1 mackerel 25c. each, and smelts at 12½c.

The roads at the present time are in an almost impassable condition and the farmers' native produce is scarce among the retail stock. Collections for the week have been fair considering present conditions. The features of the week are the advances in cereals and corn syrup.

SUGAR—The sugar market is settled again, and it is expected that no changes will occur in the near future. The sudden rise of last week was due largely to the poor outlook for beet-sugar crop in some quarters.

SYRUP AND MOLASSES—The manufacturers have advanced syrup on account of the advance in the price of corn. Syrup is a heavy selling product in Winnipeg and the wholesalers supply it extensively to rural retailers. The advance is 15c. per case and ¼c. per lb. on bulk lots.

Molasses remains unchanged. Only a moderate business is being done in this commodity.

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS—There are a few declines this week, but not enough to materially affect the trade. These articles are moving slowly probably because of the good market for green fruits.

RICE AND TAPIOCA—The demand is only moderate. If our Chinese friends dealt more exclusively with the retailers there would be more trade along this line, but they look after their own shipments to a great extent. Japan rice is quoted at 4c. per lb., Patna, 4¼c.; Rangoon, 3¾c.; tapioca, 4½c.

EVAPORATED APPLES—For the time being the stock of evaporated apples is almost exhausted. But more will be in very soon. 25 lb. lots are quoted at 8¾c. per lb., 50 lb. lots at 8¼c per lb.

HONEY—The new act compelling the sale of "pure" honey is beginning to affect the market. A slight advance is noted.

CANNED GOODS—The prices have reduced to move off an over accumulation of old stock. Peaches, pears, strawberries and raspberries have cheapened, but this will not likely remain for any length of time. The whole market is very poor.

GREEN FRUITS AND VEGETABLES—These are coming in quite freely, but as yet the specialties alone are in any great demand.

BUTTER—The market is over stocked with No. 2 butter and it will take some time to clear it off. It is safe to say that at present there are 75,000 lbs. of No. 2 butter in Winnipeg, and the good butter trade is seriously injured. Jobbing houses are paying from 14c. to 15c. per lb. f.o.b. Winnipeg, for round lots. There is plenty of creamery on hand selling to the trade at about 22c.

EGGS—This week is perhaps the first for some time when jobbers ceased to bring eggs from below the line. Local farmers supply the demand which is about breaking even at the present time. The demand for fresh eggs has declined in the past few days. Perhaps some stales and fresh have been mixed previously and buyers have been deceived. It is only a matter of a few days, however, before nothing but fresh eggs will be found on the market, and a better trade will be reported. Produce houses are buying now for about 18c. per dozen.

TO BECOME WHOLESALERS.

C. S. Parsons, for twenty-eight years a traveler for John Sloan, wholesale grocer, Toronto, and P. H. Brown, for five or six years a traveler for the same gentleman, have decided to begin business after the first of May as wholesale grocers themselves. They will locate on Colborne St., Toronto.

A. H. Brittain has returned to Montreal from a trip to Toronto.

Produce and Provision Situation of the World

Change in Bacon Trade During Past Few Years — Cheese Stocks for Export are Small—Butter Trade in the Old Country Slow—Australian Make Arriving in England.

The provision situation is so different from what it was a few years ago, that it has to be studied from different standpoints. England does not now, as formerly, govern our prices here. Our rapidly increasing population and the fact of greater production in some of the European countries must be considered. During the whole winter the prices of cured meats in England were lower than our own, and therefore very little was exported, and yet the supply was scarcely sufficient to meet our local demand. We are rapidly growing into a great country, and instead of feeding people in other countries we get them to come here to place into commission the great resources of our country, feed them here, and derive the benefit of their producing power. Under these changed conditions, it might be well for the government to pay more attention to the local trade of our country, than to the export.

Cables from England, state that the cheese market there is quiet. This is not out of the ordinary however, as distributors are working on small lots, just before the fodders come in. The season has lagged dismally, and the usual spring activity has not yet set in, consequently the season is worse this year than ever. Holders are asking stiff prices for their fast diminishing stocks, and the undertone of the market keeps firm. Receipts for the season as shown by the Montreal figures of May 1, 1908, have been 1,959,492 boxes against 2,053,992 boxes for the corresponding time of last year. Stocks for export in Canada are very small if not quite exhausted.

The latest despatches from England, state that trade in butter is very slow, and little interest is manifested in it. The colonial season is drawing to a close and other countries like Denmark and Siberia are not encountering colonial competition. It is however a remarkable fact, that Australian butter may be gotten in England practically any time during the year, in more or less quantity. Canadian butter is only visible in Liverpool, and what there is there is in very small compass indeed. The Danish people are holding out for good prices as their own home demand is good.

MONTREAL.

PROVISIONS—A feature of the market is the strong undertone for live hogs, and prices have scored another advance of 5 to 10c. per 100 lbs., which is due to the continued limited supplies coming forward and the keen demand for the same. Sales of selected stock were made at $7.90 to $8.00, and straight lots at $7.75 to $7.85 per 100 lbs.

TORONTO.

PROVISIONS—There is no observable change in the hog situation this week. Even the drop reported last week was not maintained and the prices are firm. Scarcity of hogs seems to be the prevailing trouble to the packers. Sales of cured meats declined somewhat in the city during Lent, but were very little affected outside. Local demand keeps up well, and is far in excess of former years. Prices are steady and not much change can be expected for some time.

BUTTER—Good fresh made butter is in fair demand, and all that is coming in finds ready sale. There is still a good deal of the winter's accumulations of bad butter on hand, and without any outside demand for what is not good enough for the Toronto people, it has to be worked in to make up the various qualities of pastry to suit the purses of all classes of people. Although the spring is here there are no cards seen yet in the retail windows offering new grass butter.

EGGS—The egg market is watched with great interest, and each dealer seems to have his own idea about the prices between now and Easter. The rapid increase of the local demand changes the conditions from year to year, so that many new features must be taken into consideration in making calculations for the Easter supply. It is, however, the prevailing opinion, that the price will not be any lower before Easter. While there is a possibility of a shortage to meet the extra demand, the wisest thing to do is to sell and not allow them to accumulate on your hands.

FOOD BILLS SIGNED.

In Harrisburg, Pa., U.S.A., Governor Stuart has signed pure milk and ice cream bills, prepared by the dairy and food commissioner and they will become effective at once. The milk bill prohibits the sale of any milk to which water has been added or from which butter fat has been removed, provides that skimmed milk may be sold as such and that no cream shall be sold as cream containing less than 15 per cent. butter fat. The penalty is a fine of from $20 to $50.

The ice cream bill prohibits under the same penalty the sale of any ice cream containing preservatives deleterious to health, such as salts of copper, iron oxide, ochre or any flavoring matter not true to its name. One-half of one per cent. of gelatine and gum tragacanth, and nuts and fruits may be used. Where extracts are used the butter fat must reach 8 per cent. and but six where fruit or nuts are used.

WHY HOGS ARE SCARCE.

A Breslau, Ontario, Man Attributes Cause to Conditions in October, 1907.

By L. H. Stauffer.

It is a fact that farmers of this country are not raising as many hogs as in former years. One reason (and I may say the principal reason) is on account of the high cost of production. The price of hogs to-day is from $7 to $7.10 per cwt., to the farmer, live weight. This price you would think would be in proportion to the cost of production and so I think it is. But the trouble started in October, 1907, during the money panic when the price of hogs dropped just $2 per cwt. below the present price and the cost of production remained the same as to-day. At that time farmers got afraid to raise hogs and took advantage of every means to get rid of them by fattening off breeding stock, etc. Hence, the light supply of hogs in the country.

But these conditions will not always prevail. The cost of production will again become cheaper and even now farmers are getting after the hogs again. But as you say in The Grocer, home consumption is on the increase. This is not so much on account of the high quality of our hog products, but on account of the efforts of our packers to push their products on our markets. Packers all agree on this point: that the home trade is at present their best trade and they are going after it hard. Hence, the falling off in exports. But—as I have said before—when the cost of production of hogs becomes cheaper our exports will again become as heavy as ever.

HINTS TO BUYERS.

The recent large shipments of teas from Canada to the United States have made prices higher, from 2c to 5c a lb. Laporte, Martin & Co., Montreal, who are carrying a very large stock of teas, especially of the favorite brands, "Princess Louise" and "Victoria," have not increased their prices and are booking large orders. It may be also well to note that the time of placing orders for the new crop of molasses has arrived. Laporte, Martin & Co., Limited, are taking orders at prices much lower than actual market prices. The world-wide reputation of Soleil brand canned vegetables and fruits is due to the quality, prices and attractiveness of packages of these goods. Laporte, Martin & Co. are agents for these canned goods, and their travelers are now on the road taking orders for immediate delivery, until the new crop is ready to market. They handle also the best domestic brands.—Advt.

In London, Ontario, there are many attractive grocery stores and among them is the branch of A. Rowat & Co., 234 Dundas St., managed by R. J. Donaghy. As the illustration indicates, one of the chief features of the management of the store in the care exercised in its cleanliness. With its handsome silent salesmen on the right for confectionery it looks—from that side—more like a high-class confectionery store. Another feature displayed is the using of show cards, gotten up attractively and appearing in the windows as well as in the interior. Chairs are placed in convenient places for the use of the ladies, and they are very often used. On the whole, the store is arranged on the neat and attractive basis which should be a feature of every grocery store catering to a good class of trade.

News of the Flour, Feed and Cereal Markets

Advance in Price of Winter Wheat Flour in Toronto—Millers Awaiting Changes in Freight Rates and Opening of Navigation to Ship Flour and Cereals to Eastern Provinces—Consumption of Cereals Expected to Decrease With Warmer Weather.

March 30.—Winter wheat flour was advanced in Toronto on Monday twenty cents, due to the prevailing high figure at which wheat remains. There was no change in Manitoba flour owing to the same cause as has before been quoted. The price of that variety, according to one miller, is kept down to such a figure that millers are giving away flour. Some enquiries are reported from London and those from the country have also increased. There is not much flour going at present to the Maritime Provinces but with the lowering of the freight rates next month it will begin to move rapidly. Many millers are getting orders ready now in preparation for shipment to Newfoundland, Prince Edward Island and to the other eastern provinces.

No changes are recorded in prices in the cereal markets but the cereal men report a good demand, both domestic and foreign. The month of March shows a better business than the same month last year and the same may be said of January and February.

There are likely to be decreases in the volume of business done with the approach of warmer weather but this occurs every year and is expected. Many companies dealing in cereal products are awaiting the opening of navigation and the cheaper freight rates to ship to eastern Canada.

Bran is still a scarce commodity with the demand fairly good.

TORONTO.

FLOUR—The differences among western millers still seem to present the advance in price of Manitoba flour but in Toronto on Monday an advance of 20 cents was made in the winter wheat variety. The cause was of course the high price of wheat. One miller stated to The Grocer that they were all giving away their flour on account of the western war. "They can't get an advance in Manitoba," he said, "and we have also to keep the prices down.

CEREALS—In the cereal market there has been a fair domestic demand during the week and a good export demand also. Deliveries of wheat have been better. One miller stated that the month of March this year was a much better one for business than March in 1908 and another said that the first three months of this year have exceeded the corresponding ones of last. THROUGH CEREAL PLANT.

The trip of the Canadian Press Association to Peterboro last Saturday afforded the members of the fourth estate an excellent opportunity to visit the extensive plant of the Quaker Oats Co. in that city. Through the kindness of W. H. Denham, the general manager, the members were shown through every department of the establishment and their journey was a most profitable one.

The puffed rice department was interesting, especially to those who were fortunate in seeing the large guns discharge. The manufacture of the pasteboard and wooden boxes was also a revelation, but probably the greatest interest was taken in the filling with Quaker Oats the packages and the self-action of the machinery in closing and sealing them. One of the principal features of the plant is the cleanliness observed.

When each company of visitors concluded the journey through the establishment, they were entertained to a light luncheon by the young ladies of the office who served wheat berries and puffed rice with sugar and cream. Cigars for the gentlemen and a souvenir card for everybody made all leave in the best of spirits.

Mock Salesmanship and Buying Demonstration

Business Science Club of Toronto Hold Novel Meeting Full of Instruction for Traveler and Retailer—The Travelers Make the Sales and Retail Grocer Aims at Striking the Best Bargains—Some Humorous Situations.

Of more than ordinary interest to grocers was the last monthly dinner and meeting of the Toronto Business Science Club, held at the St. Charles restaurant, Toronto, last Saturday evening, in that the sales demonstration, which is a feature of the meetings of the club, showed the buying end of a retail grocery business.

The Business Science Club is an organization of business men formed nearly three years ago "to study and discuss the application of scientific principles to the conduct of business, especially to the sale of goods at a profit."

T. J. Pugh, manager of the Pugh Mfg. Co., was chairman of the meeting, which was attended by about 125 manufacturers, commercial travelers and merchants —members of the club. After dinner several musical numbers were contributed by J. Sproule, Geo. Hudson and W. Davis, and then came the sales demonstration.

The rear of the room was fitted up to represent a country grocery store, with a counter and displays of tea, boxes, cases etc., and all about were signs such as are seen in many stores in the smaller business centres. Horace Hardy, of Eby-Blain, Limited, was proprietor, and he proved himself a very shrewd merchant, his questions putting the travelers on their mettle to find ready answers. Some of the asides were very funny.

The Sale of Tea.

The first salesman to appear was T. Sterling, representing Melagama Tea. To place a trial order of 500 pounds of tea he allowed the merchant a discount at 60 days, and afterwards raised it to 90 days on condition that the merchant would place a 1,000 pound order. After getting this discount the grocer got the promise of an "ad. for his brother's paper," and a donation of some tea for "a church social." He also obtained a number of samples of tea for distribution among his customers. While the salesman proved to be persevering and did not leave until he got his order, the grocer did not appear to get "the short end of the stick" so far as a bargain was concerned.

The dialogue was bright and sharp. On the question od advertising, Mr. Sterling said his house, instead of using the newspapers to gain publicity, gave premiums in the shape of "money in every package" to the consumer. This brought out the retort that the order was cancelled forthwith, for Mr. Hardy "would have nothing to do with lotteries; I belong to the church," said he, immediately adding in sotto voce, "which end is the money in?" Another complaint made by the grocer was that Toronto houses were slow in delivering goods. "I can get goods from Hamilton in half the time," said he. Mr. Hardy's frequent glimpses at his watch and his pointed remark, "What time does your train leave?" punctuated every time the traveler's peroration on the merits of his wares, and his suggestion "don't tell the boss, tell the book-keeper," when the merchant was not able to meet his bills on time evidently struck a sympathetic chord in the hearts of the audience, judging by the laughter and applause brought forth.

Salesmanship Displayed.

E. W. Pyke, selling Cadbury's chocolates, was as ready with his answers as was his questioner. Mr. Hardy did not want any chocolates; "the last lot of milk chocolates I handled ran away." He would, however, take some "brandy chocolates." Mr. Pyke met this by giving some history of the makers and of the manufacture of his line. Then Mr. Hardy said his clerks ate too much cho-

That Nigger in the Wood Pile

FOUR POUNDS of wheat per barrel of flour—that's what the milling fraternity technically term "the invisible loss." How this loss creeps in, no one seems to know. Still, it's the nigger in our wood pile, and we always focus an observant eye on this "colored gentleman" when figuring cost.

¶ When tempted by a "confidential" price or "elastic" terms to stock cheap flours merely because of its cheapness—just poke that wood pile—find out exactly the net cost to you, not the apparent cost.

¶ Many a retailer has learned too late what "near-good" flour really costs. He overlooked the interest on capital tied up in a slow seller—forgot to figure in his selling price sufficient margin to cover the loss sustained when he sacrificed the balance of his shop-worn stuff—overlooked safeguarding the consumer's confidence without which none can prosper.

¶ It goes like this: dead stock, dead trade, dead capital, dead business. When charging up the facts against "near-good" flour don't fail to include "that nigger in the wood pile" —consequent cost!

¶ We can't express our boundless enthusiasm in FIVE ROSES and its goodness that is double-barrelled. Let your customer say "pastry flour," say "bread flour"—it's ROSES she wants first, last and all the time. Why? Because it's not a one-sided flour.

¶ This is going to be our biggest year—we want it to be yours, too. We are in the same boat; to "get there" we must pull together. Via your store we'll supply your customers with flour such as they have never known before. Your trade cannot know what thoroughly good flour means—unless you give them FIVE ROSES.

colate. This brought forth the ready response that "chocolate liked behind the counter is half sold over the counter." Mr. Hardy thought confectionery was a Christmas line, but Mr. Pyke said "people with a sweet tooth do not wait for Christmas. The summer is a good time to sell candy, too, as people from the city who are accustomed to eat the better grades will naturally want these kinds. There is a good profit, as well, running sometimes as high as 100 per cent." This argument was a "clincher" and Mr. Hardy was forced to say that he wished he could "sell chocolates all the time." Asked as to whether Mr. Pyke had sold to Smith across the street the answer came "No; we usually pick out the best store; that's why I came here," and a strong point made by the chocolate man when his goods were compared with other makes was his reply. "There are good chocolates and good chocolates, but we consider ours the best. Judge for yourself." Suiting the action to his words, Mr. Pyke handed a box to Mr. Hardy and asked him to circulate a couple of other boxes among the audience. He wound up with the remark that his company "gave no premiums and allowed no discounts—all the profit goes to the grocer." He secured a $100 trial order.

Soap Salesman Calls.

Five years elapsed, and Mr. Hardy, having made his pile, moves to the city. He is called upon by H. S. Moore, representing the Pugsley-Dingman Co. Mr. Hardy's first remark on being questioned as to his wants was, "I would like a rubber-tired wagon." Mr. Moore had been selling soap to Mr. Hardy in five-box lots and he wanted the latter to raise it to 25 boxes. His firm gave premiums and stood behind the grocer and helped him sell his goods by giving selling talks to the clerks.

On cutting prices Mr. Moore made the point that "price-cutters will sooner or later cut themselves out of business. There was Smith (naming a one-time well-known Toronto grocer) and he was the biggest man in town in his day. But his day was a winter's day; and a short one. The longest day comes in the middle of the summer, and is enjoyed by the man who does business honestly."

One line of soap handled by Mr. Moore was a twin bar which sold for five cents. He advised cutting the bar in half and selling the two halves for five cents; "it looks more to the customer." Mr. Moore got his 25-box order. As he was leaving Mr. Hardy gave the worn-out cry "there is no money in the grocery business." Prompt was Mr. Moore's reply "Call me up some time when you are busy."

At the conclusion of the demonstration J. F. Wildman, of the Office Specialty Co., expressed his opinion that S. H. Moore made the most of his part, in that he succeeded in building up his order. He also made the point that Mr. Hardy contradicted himself in many particulars. Mr. Pugh held that this latter was the buyer's privilege. The travelers made their sales, but not before a hard bargain was driven by the grocer. The meeting concluded with the singing of the national anthem.

TRAVELERS' TAX IN B.C.

There is no tax on travelers doing business in the cities of British Columbia. There used to be a provincial tax but this is not now in force. Travelers going into unorganized districts are taxed but this is more of a pedlar's tax and varies according to wares. With the exception of a few from Vancouver and Victoria, however, travelers do not go into these unorganized districts. The above only holds good in connection with merchandise other than liquors and cigars. The tax on travelers selling these in British Columbia is $50 for six months.

The Grocer's Encyclopedia From Week to Week

England the Home of Mustard—Discovered by a Woman in Durham Who Made Periodical Journeys to London to Sell Her Goods—Crop Harvested in October

MUSTARD—The English word, mustard, was derived from the Italian mostarda, owing to the ancient custom of having a little must (Latin mustum, unfermented grape juice), mixed with it, in preparing the condiment.

For centuries the English have been great mustard eaters—the greatest in the world. An Englishman may almost be identified by his liberal use of it, although it has been said that perhaps after all there is not so much really eaten, as there is left on the edges of the plates.

The use of mustard powdered in its present form, for making into a paste, originated in Durham, about the year 1720, where it was prepared on a small scale, by an old lady named Mrs. Clements, who kept the secret of its manufacture to herself,—grinding the seed in a mill, and sifting it—for several years. She used to travel twice a year to London and the principal towns in England to take orders, and from this arose the name and fame of "Durham Mustard," but the best and finest qualities now made are the genuine Imperial, and D.S.F., (double superfine). In manufacturing mustards the white, or black or mixed seed, is ground to powder, and then put through an elaborate course of sifting. The product that remains in the first sieve is called dressings and that which passes through is impure mustard flour. This is submitted to a finer sieve, and separated into a finer quality of dressings, and pure mustard flour. Mustard oil is afterwards pressed from the dressings.

It is calculated, that upwards of 7,000 tons of mustard are now manufactured yearly in England, and in no other part of the world is its manufacture carried on so energetically, two or three of the English firms sparing neither trouble nor expense in producing by the aid of most elaborate machinery the best possible article.

The result is, that the best makes of English mustard are popular all the world over, and that more English made mustard is now exported in a single year than there is of foreign manufacturea mustards imported in twenty years.

But although a mustard may be made from ground white seed principally, and even keep good for a fair length of time, also be sold at a low price, yet such mustard is necessarily very deficient in true piquant flavor, because it is the brown or black seed only, which possesses the volatile myronic oil, yielding this esteemed flavor.

Detection of Stale Mustard.

Ground mustard made from dark seed with this oil left in will not keep good long, owing to variations in temperature and exposure to air. It soon causes fermentation, cakes the powder, turns it rancid, bitter, and unfit for use; hence any kegs, tins or other packages, with discolored paper linings or wrappers showing oil stains within or without, should always be rejected as stale or out of condition. The oil is in fact, a source of great trouble to manufacturers, who wish to sell a pure mustard in powder of good flavor, and at the same time one that will keep good. The white seed contains practically none of the volatile myronic oil of the black, but an acrid substance, known as "sinalbin" which again is but slightly present in black seed; but of these two active principles the volatile oil is by far the most important, and the dark seed is therefore the more valued. Hence also, the reason of manufacturers mixing the two kinds of seed, for although the white seed possesses very little pungency, yet it has within it the peculiar ferment which develops the pungent flavor of the black, and therefore the art of producing the best mustards seems to depend on the judicious mixture of the proper proportions. Most of the English makers now sell two classes of mustards, one comprising mustards of different qualities, but all pure, and the other class a set of mixtures, called mustard condiments, or mustard compounds of various strengths. The best mixed mustards, now preferred by consumers are really stronger than many grades of the pure mustards, and are mostly made from brown seed, and in which the oil is neutralized or absorbed by the other ingredients—flour, etc.,—which has in fact been done in the Government Victualling Yard at Deptford, where rice, flour, pepper and capsicums have been always used. The government has now relinquished the manufacture, but they used to make it of about 37 per cent. of brown, and 50 per cent. of white mustard flour, with 10 per cent of rice flour, and 3 per cent of black pepper, and a little Chili pepper. It also contained ginger. Besides its culinary uses, ground mustard is largely employed medicinally, as an emetic in cases of poisoning, in preparing external poultices, making drenches for cattle, and with hot liquids, like milk. It is also a powerful deaphoretic. The fresher the mustard is, the better. The crop is generally harvested in August, and is threshed in October.

Manufacturers Aid Retailers in Selling Goods

By Persistent Magazine, Newspaper and Poster Advertising—Something Which Retail Men Often Overlook—An Example of What One Firm is Doing.

The retail trade very often overlook the work accomplished by many manufacturers in their education to the consumer of their products. Retailers forget sometimes that the public call at their stores for goods which they have seen advertised either by poster, newspaper or magazine at the expense of the manufacturer. They sell the goods and get the profits and consider themselves the getters of new business, whereas in reality it's the men who make them and who advertise them who produce the demand.

Among the leaders in the manufacturing business who are disposing of their goods through such an advertising medium is the Cowan Company. They seem to be persistent in their work of educating the consumers to their goods and produce a demand. This was evidenced in a recent trip of a Grocer representative who observed a large and handsome poster showing a striking ad. for one of the company's products in the firm's establishment and which will soon be shown to the public. It was an advance sheet and when the Toronto Lithographing Company have concluded turning out the required number they will be posted up.

A cut of the poster appears on this page—with the colors, of course, absent. The original of the little girl—the central figure—is in red and the other colors used blend appropriately. The whole picture makes a very striking poster and one that should attract a good deal of attention.

GENERAL PARCEL DELIVERY.

This System in Vogue in the Town of Simcoe as Well as in St. Mary's.

By Geo. O. Werrett.

Some little time ago I noticed a description of the St. Mary's delivery system. If all towns that now have this system would make it known you would find more have it than one would think. It was started here about ten or eleven years ago in a half-hearted way, the merchants wanting to get the delivering done too cheaply and the man running it attempting to meet their idea. Consequently no one got a service. It ran along this way until about one year ago when one of the 'bus men of our town thought he saw something in it as a side line and he became the original starter. Since that time it has given, I might say, perfect satisfaction and the originator is today doing about seven-eighths of the delivering with the other eighth looking his way.

He immediately put on nicely painted and serviceable wagons, good horses and good men. He divides the towns into districts, each driver continually covering the same ground. The merchants use clean wooden boxes of different sizes for their goods. The average cost to each merchant is one dollar a day, which is something less than each merchant could do his own. While there is not a large saving we get a much better service than we could give ourselves. I was the last convert to the general delivery. Having had occasion to employ them temporarily for some ten days I found I was getting the parcels to my customers from one-half to one hour sooner than I could with my own delivery. Instead of having one wagon at my door I now have three or four every hour or hour and a half, ready to deliver to all parts of the town. We are fortunate in having a man at the head of the general delivery who is all business.

The merchants long realized that the expense of delivering was a burden, which it is not now. We have a pretty town and our stores have long been noted for their excellence of equipment and progressiveness. This is also the home of the Simcoe Canning Factory, one of the largest of the Consolidated Canners.

NOTE.—The Canadian Grocer is pleased to give space to the above communication of Mr. Werrett, who is one of Simcoe's live grocers. Our columns are open to our readers for similar articles which we are always glad to receive.—Editor.

TORONTO.

GREEN FRUITS—There is not much change to report on the fruit market this week. Navel oranges are firm and 25ca case higher. The receipts have fallen off on account of continuous rains which interfere with picking. Strawbereries arrive in good shape but are still very high in price. Grape fruit is plentiful, and offers below the regular quotations will not be turned down. A small lot of cranberries have just arrived, but from where was not positively stated. However, they are in very good condition for this time of the year, and sell at $3.50 a case. Apples are scarce and the choicest Spies will sell as high as $7.50.

Almost all our summer vegetables are to be had, these coming from different parts of the Southern States. Even such articles as new carrots, beets, potatoes, etc., are sold at high prices, which are no better than the old, but they sell all the same. FRUIT MEN TO UNITE.

Rochester, March 29.—An organization of growers and handlers of dried fruit will be formed here soon, to be known as the Fruit Association of New York. It will be incorporated, and its main object will be to unify interests and methods of fruit men in this section so that they can compete on even terms with growers of the far west, who have invaded eastern markets successfully.

Richard Schuetze, Rochester, chairman of the committee, having details of the organization in charge, said, in discussing the need of an association in this state that the increased production of fruit in the Hood River Valley, Wenatchee, and in the irrigated orchards of the Yakima Valley, and California, as well as the superior methods of packing and marketing fruit, in those sections are hurting eastern markets. He believes that closer attention to detail in packing by western interests and the evolving of something like a standard in grading are responsible for the loss of the foreign trade and the domestic market in the east by the eastern growers.

A LIFE SENTENCE.

Patent salt some time ago was banished forever from the mess room of the House of Commons, London, Eng. Several doctors of medicine and scientists at the time tested the salt after many had been ill with appendicitis and thev decided to eliminate all patent salt from the culinary department of the House.

Modes of Lobster Living as Seen Beneath the Sea

Carries Its Eggs Attached to Its Body by Means of Tenacious Threads—Food for Larger Fish and Many of the Young Are in This Way Destroyed—Lobster Industry Comes Next to the Salmon in Canada.

The peculiarities of the lobster, its modes of living and the enormity of the lobster fishing industry in Canada were recently very vividly portrayed by Prof. E. E. Prince, Commissioner of Fisheries and General Inspector of Fisheries for Canada before the special Marine and Fisheries Committee of the Dominion Government appointed to investigate the condition of the fishing industry of Canada and to suggest means for its development. Prof. Prince has been with the Department of Marine and Fisheries since 1892, prior to which time he had been in the employ of the Irish Government and the Scottish Fishery Board where he assisted in carrying on an investigation into the fishing grounds.

He stated that during the seventeen years since he had been Commissioner of Fisheries for the Dominion he had felt keenly that this subject of fisheries as a parliamentary subject has been less prominent than some others, for example agriculture, and he was very glad indeed that it was during the regime of Hon. Mr. Brodeur, who had done so much to foster the fishing industries, that this step has been taken and a Fisheries Committee of the House of Commons constituted.

Lobster Fisheries Second.

"There can be little doubt whatever," he said, "that the Fisheries Department has in some cases been hampered by the fact that members of parliament have not had opportunities such as this committee will afford of discussing and ventilating fishery questions. I think it is also a very happy circumstance that the lobster fishery has been taken up first of all because it is one of the most pressing fishery questions in the Dominion of Canada. The lobster fishery, as most of you know, ranks at present second so far as regards value. The salmon fishery stands first with a value of over $5,000,000, according to the latest statistics, the lobster fishery comes next with a value of over $4,000,000, and the cod next, with a value of a little over three and a half million dollars. The lobster is usually called a shell-fish, but it has really nothing in common with other shell fishes such as the oyster and the clam. It is a crustacean like the crab and the shrimp and has certain peculiar habits and modes of life. In the second place the lobster is local in its habitat, that is, it does not move about over great distances. That is an important fact to remember, that each locality has practically its own race or run of lobsters and it only moves about as it is stimulated by the needs of food, of temperature, and of the season such as the approach of the breeding season. In the third place the lobster produces eggs, but does not deposit them in the sand or under rocks as some fishermen have imagined. It carries its eggs about attached to its body and they are carried for a considerable time until the young hatch out. The female lobster, unlike so many marine animals, does not scatter its eggs or deposit them in any particular location but they are glued or attached by tenacious threads to the body and they are not impregnated or fertilized until the female has pressed them out or extruded them. The male lobster places what is called sperm matter on the underside of the body of the female and this sperm matter remains sometimes for months before the eggs are extruded. If a female is not fertilized it is probable that the eggs are not extruded. Then in the fifth place, it is certain that a ten and a half-inch lobster is fully matured and that lobsters under that size produce proportionately fewer eggs though there may be lobsters of even seven and a half to eight inches at times bearing eggs, diminutive specimens though they may be. Years ago in what might be termed the virgin condition of the fisheries, large lobsters prevailed in all districts but the average size has since diminished in almost every locality. In the next place July and August are the main spawning months. Only about 20 per cent. of the females extrude their eggs in other months; but whether the lobster spawns every year or every two years is still a matter of controversy. I have taken myself quite a prominent part in this discussion with Prof. Herrick and others on the question of the annual or biennial spawning of lobsters. That, of course, is a scientific question."

"What are your views?" was asked.

"I am inclined to think," said Prof. Prince, "the lobster spawns annually as most of the marine animals do. Indeed some crustaceans belonging to the same family as the lobster spawn twice every year. Then in the next place as to the number of eggs: the number of eggs increases very much more rapidly as the size of the lobster increases. An 8-inch lobster may have 5,000 eggs, a 10-inch lobster 10,000 eggs, a 12-inch lobster 20,000 eggs. A 16½-inch lobster caught at Wood's Hole, Mass., in 1895, was examined and found to have 85,000 eggs. The eighth point is that when hatching begins it occupies only about a week. The mass of eggs on the female is hatched out in a very short time. That makes the process of lobster hatching in the hatcheries a very short one. The eggs are hatched out very rapidly after the female has carried them for some time.

Form Food of Larger Fish.

"The ninth point is that the lobster on hatching out makes for the open sea. It does not remain on the bottom or inshore but goes out into the open waters and swims about not as the adult lobster tail foremost, but head foremost. It is a very minute creature only about a third of an inch in length. It swims forward near the surface for six or eight weeks in company with a great many other pelagic or surface swimming animals out in the open sea. At that time they are fed upon very largely by other fishes. The mackerel especially feed upon young lobsters and wherever young lobsters are abundant on the surface of the sea the mackerel school there. Consequently we have to face this fact: They form the food of a very large number of fishes in the sea. That destruction means that there must be a very large quantity of young lobsters to keep up the lobster supply at all. Then the next point is that when the lobster has about doubled its length, that is, when it is about three-fifths of an inch in length, it sinks to the bottom of the sea. It then travels shorewards and hides about the rocky ledges, the piles of wharfs and piers and so on. It grows there, close in shore, to a length of 2½ or 3 inches.

Growth is Slow.

"The lobster doubles its length in about 6 or 8 weeks, and within a year it would be three or four inches long. The lobster is fond of living amongst eel grass at this time and it grows at the rate of 1½ to 2 inches every year so that the lobster is a slower growing animal than one would imagine. You can see, therefore, that when the large lobsters of a certain size are all cleaned out of any locality it will be some time before you can have big lobsters to replace them; the average size will be small for some time."

"How long does it take a lobster to reach eight inches?" was asked.

"An eight-inch lobster would be in its third year and the ten-inch lobster in its fourth year so far as observations have gone," Prof. Prince stated.

John Rose, formerly with the Canada Brokerage Co., Toronto, left for Vancouver on Saturday last where he will enter into a brokerage and commission business with H. St. Clair Kirkland, under the style and name of Kirkland & Rose. Previous to his departure for his new home he was presented by the Canada Brokerage Co. and staff was a very fine watch fob and charm as a token of the esteem in which he was held by his employers and co-workers. Mr. Rose was for three and a half years with the Canada Brokerage Co. and leaves with the firm's best wishes for his success.

Protection Wanted for British Columbia Fruit

Member for Yale-Cariboo Says Inferior United States Fruit is Shipped Into the West—Advocates More Fruit Inspectors for the Western Provinces—Reply of Minister of Agriculture.

Martin Burrell, M.P. for Yale-Cariboo, B.C., and a practical fruit grower in the Pacific Coast province, has been advocating in the House of Commons at Ottawa more consideration for British Columbia fruit. The fruit growers there want more protection through the rigid enforcement of the Fruit Marks Act. The market for which they are contending is that of the prairie provinces; they claim that the Fruit Marks Act is applied to Canadian growers, but not to those of the United States who thereby get an advantage in the market. Mr. Burrell estimated the fruit acreage of British Columbia at 75 000 acres, with a value of $15,000,000, and predicted a value of $100,000,000 ten years hence. Incidentally, he stated that of the 75,000 acres of fruit trees, 5,000 acres were of peaches—a fact not generally realized in the east.

The growers of British Columbia, he pointed out, did not want an increase in tariff, though they did ask for a change which would mean an increase. Hon. Sydney Fisher, Minister of Agriculture, said that the Fruit Marks Act applied to the United States growers as well as Canadians and he promised to support the suggestion as to tariff alterations.

Mr. Burrel maintained that the non-enforcement of the Fruit Marks Act against Americans was resulting in the Americans dumping in the Canadian West diseased fruit and culls. This fruit was sold as first grade, and therefore the British Columbian growers, who had to comply with the Canadian regulations, had to meet unfair competition. He cited one American company which controlled five distributing houses in the prairie provinces. The peach market, he stated, is largely held by Americans who last year shipped into Saskatchewan and Alberta 63,000 cases, or 50 carloads.

More Inspectors Needed.

His remedy was the appointment of more inspectors. At present there are one in Manitoba, one for Saskatchewan and Alberta, and one for British Columbia, a force totally inadequate to cope with the situation, and especially when they had to watch not only United States imports, but shipments from Ontario, whence some shippers sent inferior fruit, though half of them packed honestly. He proposed that the inspecting force in the West be brought up to seven; two in Manitoba, one each in Saskatchewan and Alberta, and three in British Columbia.

Mr. Burrell's suggestion regarding the tariff was this: American fruit comes largely in boxes, while the Canadian duty is based on the barrel. At present application is made by four boxes a barrel, whereas they hold more. He asked that the interpretation should be changed, and that three boxes should be called a barrel. This would equal an increase equivalent to one-quarter of the duty.

Wanted in Ontario, Too.

Joseph E. Armstrong, of West Lambton, backed up Mr. Burrell and advocated the increase of the force of inspectors in Ontario, which contains two-thirds of the fruit trees of Canada. The present tax inspection, he said, encouraged dishonest packers.

The Minister of Agriculture welcomed the suggestions made, and the non-partisan spirit in which they were made. But he also pointed out that it was not the design of the Fruit Marks Act, to secure the inspection of all Canadian fruit. The act could be enforced by any person, and it was expected that the Canadian purchaser would make use of it to protect himself. To inspect all fruit would require so large a force of competent men that it would be "impossible" to obtain them for a seervice lasting only for three months.

Mr. Armstrong—"Could not the Government get competent men just as the packers do now?"

Mr. Fisher—"Not for all the fruit."

Mr. Armstrong — "Not necessarily all."

Mr. Fisher—"Well, I am speaking of that."

A further reason against inspecting all fruit was that it would interfere with the forwarding of the fruit. For example, from 500,000 to 1,000,000 barrels of apples were shipped from Montreal in about two months, and it would be impossible to inspect all without seriously impeding shipment.

Careless Packing.

The act was first established, said the Minister, to protect Canada's name in the British and other foreign markets. Careless packing had brought Canadian fruit into disfavor.

Later the act was extended to interprovincial trade, to protect western consumers.

The act applies to imported as well as to Canadian fruit, said Mr. Fisher, and the inspectors had been instructed to so enforce it. The Government inspectors reported that United States fruit was generally well packed. They did not report any bad American fruit. Further western fruit dealers spoke favorably of American fruit.

"Wholesale or retail?" asked Mr. Burrell.

"Both, I think," replied the Minister, "but perhaps more wholesalers."

"They are generally Americans," commented Mr. Burrell.

The Minister paid a compliment to British Columbia fruit. He would prefer it to American. He believed the chief reason why the British Columbians had not captured the prairie market was that they did not produce enough to supply the demand.

He met Mr. Burrell's suggestion in regard to the tariff by promising to bring it before the Minister of Customs. He would represent to him that, if fruit were to be admitted in boxes, and the duty paid on a barrel basis, the basis should be three instead of four boxes to the barrel. The Minister closed by expressing his readiness to give a larger measure of inspection, and pointed out that three inspectors had been added to the Ontario force last season.

FOR MORE THAN FORTY YEARS we have been making our trade-mark a synonym for highest perfection in Stove Polish. Our facilities have been multiplied and improved. There are four million bricks in our present factory. Original devices of our own are almost exclusively used in producing our goods. This spells out successful Stove Polish making and explains why more housekeepers every year ask for Stove Polish with the trade-mark RISING SUN. It pays you to push them.

CEYLON TEA

WHY YOU SHOULD SELL

MATHIEU'S SYRUP
of Tar and Cod Liver Oil

REASON NO. 1

Nine out of every ten people when troubled with a cough or cold call for Mathieu's Syrup.

Hence there is no time wasted in selling it. It almost sells itself. This is the result of its exceptional curative properties in all chest and throat complaints — backed up by good advertising.

This advertising consists of

1. Our newspaper campaign.

2. One person recommending it to another, and probably telling him that he got it at your store.

3. Dealers who know a good article when they see it and gladly recommend it to their customers and friends.

AN ABSOLUTE NECESSITY

The Canadian Grocer recently contained a timely article on "Development of Refrigerators in the Grocery Business."

Heralds for Traveling Salesmen

By A. B. Lever

If you, Mr. Manufacturer or Wholesaler, could at an expenditure of say $15 or $35 a week send a herald into the store and warehouse of several thousand business men announcing the merits of your products and preparing the way for your travelers, would you do so?

I believe you would.

You would be foolish if you would not.

No sane business man would object to someone putting in a good word for him with a customer.

He would probably not hesitate to pay 10 or 15 cents in car fare to every man who would drop into the stores of his customers and give them a little friendly information about what he was making and his travelers were selling.

He would count it as throwing a sprat to catch a mackerel.

Of course this is supposing an impossibility.

No manufacturer could get several thousand men to act as his heralds to go up and down the land proclaiming the coming of his travelers and to sing the merits of the goods they are selling.

But what an army of men cannot do weekly or monthly the trade newspaper can do.

And it can do it at an expenditure of an amount equal to a car fare or two per probable customer.

Did you ever look at it in that way?

If not, sit down at once and figure out the advantages of making the trade paper your herald, issuing through its columns regularly, proclamations that will prepare the way for your traveling salesmen.

Some Testimonials

To whom it may concern— Chicago, Ill., Jan. 4th, 09.

Some time ago I tried the Kaiser Wax Pad and Iron Cleaner and was so pleased with the work it did, that I recommend it highly and advise every woman who wants to make her work easy, to try the Kaiser Wax Pad and Iron Cleaner and be convinced of its good work. Respectfully,

Mrs. T. Ohmen, Deputy Supreme Commander, L.O.T.M.

The Ancker Thiem Co., City;

Dear Sirs,—I have used the Kaiser Wax Pad and Iron Cleaner for some time and found it the best Flat Iron Cleaner and Waxer on the market. Mrs. H. Martin, 108 Miller St., Chicago.

To whom it may concern— Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 2nd, 09.

I certainly think and know through its use that the Kaiser Wax Pad and Iron Cleaner is a great labor-saving device in Ironing, which every Modern Housewife who wants to make Ironing easy, should not be without it, on my part I would not part from the Kaiser Wax Pad and Iron Cleaner if it cost ten times as much.

Mrs. J. H. Suchery, 627 S. Gentryl Ave.

To the Ancker Thiem Co., Chicago, Ill., Norfolk, Va., Feb. 18th, 1909.

Dear Sirs,—I cheerfully recommend the Kaiser Wax Pad and Iron Cleaner to all women who have trouble with starch sticking to the Flat Irons—I am so pleased with it, that I would not be without it for any price—the result I get on Collars, Cuffs, etc., make me feel proud that I am now able to do exactly as high grade work with the glossy finish as any first-class Laundry is able to do I have no trouble now with laces, etc., sticking to the hot iron and burn. Mrs. Sarah Landey.

Dear Sirs,—I always had a nervous dread of ironing day—until a friend of mine told me to get a Kaiser Wax Pad and Iron Cleaner, which I did, and since then I can do my Ironing in less than half the time with good results, and Ironing day is a day of pleasure for me now. Mrs. N. Walsch, 980 W. 12th St., Chicago.

To all it may concern— Chicago, Feb. 19th, 09.

I had a hard time to keep a girl on account of so much Ironing and the Irons sticking to the linen, until I bought a Kaiser Wax Pad and Iron Cleaner from my grocer. Now the girl does the Ironing with pleasure and in half the time. Mrs. K. Wurtaugh, 345 May St.

To who this may interest—

Before with the Beeswax and Sand method I could not do my Ironing in a day. Now with the Kaiser Wax Pad and Iron Cleaner, which Waxes and Cleans the Iron with one stroke—and the iron slips so easy over the linen —I am able to do my regular Ironing in half a day. The results and the glossy finish make me smile every time I finish my Ironing. Mrs. F. Hayland, 880 Springfield Ave., Chicago, Ill.

"The Busy Man's Magazine Policy is as Wide as this Great Dominion"

The offer on the opposite page is the broadest one ever attempted by any publication in Canada. Only a magazine with unbounded faith in its merits, in the people and in the country, backed up by ample resources, could attempt such an offer as this. Without restrictions, anyone living in this wide Dominion, whether in Nova Scotia, British Columbia, or any other place between, can have this trip by First-class regular trains. "No special excursion crowding at second-class rates." These tickets will afford you every comfort that any first-class ticket will or can afford during the Exhibition.

The management of this trip is in the hands of a committee who will handle it carefully, liberally, and to the satisfaction of all who accept it. This great offer is made to popularize Busy Man's Magazine, and every detail will be carried out in a manner to insure this end.

Busy Man's is only two dollars per year; any Man, Woman, Boy or Girl can earn this trip at a very small tax on their time. Send in your acceptance and we will send you sample copy and order forms.

This announcement first appeared a few days ago; already we are receiving acceptances from all parts of Canada. Take this offer at its face value, accept it and win the trip. We'll help you and carry out the offer in its entirety.

Busy Man's is a high-class monthly, in which topics and events of immediate interest are ably treated.

It is easy to sell because it bears the imprint of worth on every point that counts in good magazines.

Read what others say of it, in the letters on the margin. Then make up your list of those you think should subscribe, and see them and others without delay. Don't forget the "others," sometimes they are the best.

UNSOLICITED TESTIMONIALS

I consider The Busy Man's Magazine the best I have yet come in contact with.
HENRY WILSON, Toronto.

We have subscribed to many British and American magazines, but found none to equal yours as a Business or Busy Man's Magazine. The articles are so admirably selected that one can start at the first and read right through to the last page and enjoy superior reading all the way.
AULD & CO., South Dunedin, New Zealand

We would not like to miss the future copies of The Busy Man's Magazine.
INGERSOLL PACKING CO.

The Busy Man's Magazine is the best magazine I have had the pleasure of perusing. If my subscription should lapse, do not stop it; jar me up on remitting.
A. B. BURRETT, Amigari

It is pleasing to record that Canada can boast of such a publication, whereby the man, who can devote only a short time to reading each day, may become thoroughly conversant with all that the brightest minds are producing, and what the world's leaders of thought and research are doing, discovering or planning.
Such a publication is The Busy Man's Magazine, which is replete with the latest contribution of the world's centres in political and commercial affairs, science and invention, labor, business, industry, art, etc. The Busy Man's Magazine is a Canadian publication, and places before its readers the greatest amount of instruction and profit in the handiest form and most attractive manner. It indeed fills a long felt want. — Peterborough Daily Review.

The Busy Man's Magazine takes first position in my opinion. It has more interesting, concentrated, common-sense information in one issue than most periodicals have in a whole year.
C. C. NASH, D.D.S., Bath.

The articles in The Busy Man's Magazine are just what we want, short and so well written that a busy man can afford time to read them and feel benefitted for the short time given to each article.
WM. THOBURN, Almonte

The Busy Man's Magazine is the only publication that I keep a file of; in fact I have to, because practically every article in the various issues has been blue pencilled by me for future reference. You have certainly succeeded in obtaining all of the articles of value from the principle magazines of the world, and as a consequence I have not only been able to save a great deal of time by reading your magazine, but also a good deal of money. For instance, I had subscribed for 32 different publications. I now find that Busy Man's Magazine covers the gist of the majority of them.

Tea Blending for Retailers

An Expert, writing in The Tea & Coffee Trade Journal, "The Blue Book of the Trade," says:—

There is hardly a dealer who has not experienced the difficulty of maintaining the uniformity of his tea supplies and who does not have frequent occasion to bemoan the fact that he is unable to match his standards exactly. He has to undergo the mortification of frequent complaint and is often obliged to see some regular customer leave his counter in search of satisfaction elsewhere.

An expert blend of tea of a given grade approaches far nearer the ideal of what a perfect beverage should be than any straight tea of the same grade, and the object of blending is not, as many people imagine, to reduce the quality or to disguise inferior teas, but to obtain a flavor that is better and more desirable than that yielded by a single variety. Experienced tea planters will tell you that it is almost impossible to reproduce a tea exactly from even the same plants, and by the aid of identically the same machinery and processes. So many factors enter into the gathering, treatment and marketing of the leaf that before finally reaching the consumer the constantly varying conditions have to be discounted and offset by the aid of the science of blending.

There are as many shades of quality and character in tea as in the colors of the spectrum, and it is as much a work of art to combine and harmonize the former by means of the scientific blend as it is for the successful painter to be able to grind his pigments so as to produce a harmonious color scheme.

A perfect blend of tea is the mingling of tea characteristics having an affinity for each other, so that they will pass imperceptibly into one another and unite so harmoniously that there shall be no appreciable line of division and that the qualities so combined cannot easily be separated. How different, therefore, is a blend to a mere mixture? A mixture is generally an incongruity and a clashing of ill-assorted constituents, while a blend is the very opposite. It is this haphazard practice of "mixing" teas and the confusion of the terms "mixing" and "blending" that has led to the popular misconceptions of the subject and has retarded the adoption and practise of the true art of blending.

Estabrooks' blended teas in bulk are the result of scientific blending of teas by the most capable experts in the business, men who have spent their lives blending and testing teas.

The smooth, even combination of strength and flavor excels any straight tea at the price and besides they are guaranteed always uniform in quality. You can order them by number or letter and be absolutely sure of getting an exact match for the previous shipment.

You will find it to your advantage to try a chest of Estabrooks' blended teas in bulk, when next you buy, if you are not already handling them. They are packed in chests and half-chests, black, green and mixed, at all prices. Write to-day for trial order or for prices and samples.

YOU KNOW WHAT IT MEANS

To Keep a Large Stable of Horses, and Work for Only One of Them. The Rest Soon Eat their Heads Off.

The grocer who handles Bulk Teas is in the same position as the owner of the large stable. He carries far more tea in stock than his trade demands. He is selling some, to be sure, but his interest and insurance account, and the deterioration which sets in with age in all kinds of tea, just about eats up the profit he makes. Is it not a very much more sensible idea to carry a well assorted stock of packed as it is in lead packets, for which there is an active and ever increasing demand. You are then in the position of the man who has a pair of horses and plenty of profitable work for them.

This is the position you are in if you handle "SALADA" and "SALADA" only.

Plea for Better Trade Relations With West Indies

Impressions Gained From a Trip of Member of the Campbell Milling Co., West Toronto, to the Sunny Island of Cuba—The Possibilities of Future of the Vast Plateau—Immense Cigar Factory at Havana—Thinks Canadian Government Should Aid in Promoting Trade with British Islands.

By D. A. CAMPBELL.

In these later years when the struggle of commercialism has rolled back the horizon to include most every nook and corner of the civilized and uncivilized world, probably no country has been so sharply drawn into the limelight of the world's attention as Cuba. Other than knowing that from here came the world's best cigars, most of us were content in the knowledge that Cuba geographically was in the south, and agriculturally was a seething hotbed of revolution. But while in the latter instance our impression was correct a few years ago, Cuba to-day has emerged from her period of suffering and war, and now offers to the business man, to the settler, to the investor and to the prospector the greatest possible inducement to come and develop.

Cuba is a larger country than would be imagined. Not unlike Italy in shape the total distance from one end to the other is over 700 miles, while the width is only forty-eight miles across from Havana. Her population, of which Havana and Santiago together comprise nearly a quarter, is something over 2,000,000.

I took the train from Santiago to go to Havana, a distance of 540 miles. The Cuban Railroad Co., which operates this line, furnish almost as satisfactory a service as can be found anywhere at home. With the exception of dining cars, luxury, including first-class observation cars, Pullmans and good roadbed, is complete. The trip occupying about twenty-six hours, of which about four are wasted in stops, is delightful to one from a northern country, in the complete diversion it offers from what one is accustomed to see in the north.

Plateau Like Our Prairie.

Cuba is of peculiar formation. Its low lands are comparatively very limited. An immense flat plateau stretches its unbroken length from one end of the island to the other. Although at an altitude of many hundred feet above the ocean level, this plateau is not unlike our Western prairie land. The country for the greatest part is a wasted land but not a barren waste. Indeed, the luxuriance of its tropical vegetation is very potent.

The stations, around which are a few palm-roofed shanties, are far apart and in between, the stretches of dark forest or rich grass on the wasted plain are wonderful. Trees with giant limbs like the oak stretch for miles, interspersed with royal palms, cocoanut trees, bamboos, palm bushes and ferns, so thick that it would be impossible to pass through them. And trying to force a passage would be further obstructed by thick vines which creep everywhere, even to the tops of the highest trees. Low flowering bushes with thick dark grass complete the impossibility. The whole is a tangled, warped, overgrown mass, struggling for the survival of the fittest.

Orange and Pineapple Patches.

In isolated spots between, the settler has come in, and his work in clearing the land is a herculean task. But when the clearing is accomplished, a rich clay soil is exposed, and soon the chaos and waste of virgin nature resolves itself into serrated orange groves or patches of pineapple, or perhaps in the grazing country herds of cattle browse in nutritious fields. From chaos comes order, and from profligate waste, reward for enterprise.

No one can foretell the future of this vast stretch of table-land that has lain through the centuries high, dry and wasted in the summer sun. Of course, in spots the rock runs to the surface, or perhaps the soil covering the rock is too thin in places to properly sustain cultivated vegetation. But no pot of honey is without its fly, and no land is so rich as to boast of unqualified fertility. And I say that seeing the wonderfully rich natural vegetation on this thinly populated island, it would take a virulent optimist to foretell the development of, say, twenty-five years of unremitting colonization.

Land Must Be Cultivated.

Like the awakening of most virgin countries, Cuba has, and is, suffering some setbacks. American and Canadian speculators have in this case been the instruments, and Cuba's reputation is sustaining a reverse. A colony of American settlers came to land in La Gloria on the northern side of the island, and their success has not been as imminent as was expected from the prospectuses issued by the land speculators who foisted their shark land on the individuals comprising the colony.

But, despite the dissatisfaction of some few, the very fact that the speculation was under way, evidences, even if in a small way, the coming value of Cuba. And then again, most of the colonists were derelicts in health from nature's stormy blast in the north, who came south enthused by the tales of balmy sunny days in a palmy island, where nature heaped her rich blessings on them while they sat under a bamboo tree eating pineapple fritters. But not so with nature here, or anywhere else. The land must be cleared, and that is hard work. Then the settler must cultivate and prepare the soil, and plant, and sow, and work, and then, and not till then, will nature smile and do the rest.

The climate is delightful on this high plateau. The dry season and the wet season come and go with nature's usual precision. The wet season is not disagreeable nor unhealthy in the highlands, nor is the dry season without its comforts, for the nights are cool, and the breeze fresh from the ocean plays in the rustling palms, or sweeps the waving grass, thus ameliorating the sun's hot rays.

Poor Prospects from Cuban Rule.

Railways cover the island, or are being built as the settlers need them, while steamboats ply the shores from end to end. And despite the dissatisfaction of the few, the country during the present invasion of the Americans is going ahead rapidly. But alas, the American troops are leaving now, the assurance of American institutions is disappearing with the evacuation of her soldiers, and probably under Cuban self rule, the country will sleep herself back to oblivion. I was talking to a man on the train, who, while realizing the untold possibilities of the country, wept at the prospect of Cuban rule, and he told me of one instance which exemplified the progress of the few years of American rule. He bought four thousand acres of land in the heart of Cuba for thirty thousand dollars, and to-day he said, and not boastfully, that the same land was worth fully two hundred thousand dollars, and not through speculation, for he has planted and raised oranges and pineapples on the land, and he says he knows its value.

The Americans stepped in and in a few short years made the Cubans adopt hygienic methods of sanitation in their cities, thereby making them habitable and beautiful instead of being pest holes for the ravages of dirty diseases. They also built the railways, started the steamers, built highways, framed the fiscal laws, maintained peace and order where was brigandry and robbery, and in untold ways put the country on her feet.

In Havana, the Capital.

Havana is reached at last after the long ride through the interior, and here I spent nearly a week. I had the pleasure of being shown through Bock & Co.'s cigar and cigarette factories, where 80,000 cigars and over a thousand miles of cigarettes are turned out weekly, giving employment to over twenty-five hundred people. To give a more comprehensive idea of the magnitude of this great industry in Havana, I might say that the big sum of one thousand two hundred and fifty dollars a day is paid in revenue stamps on the cigarette boxes. Then I went through the huge sugar mill at Providencia, where one thousand bags of unrefined sugar are manufactured daily for shipment to the refineries in the States.

Canadian Capital Invested.

But what struck me most forcibly in Havana was the aggressiveness of American institutions already flourishing in this city. Quick to realize the boundless commercial possibilities of this coming country, the Americans during their period of control so framed the fiscal laws as to give great preference to the products of their home industries. But while they largely control the visible evidences of prosperity, they are not alone in sharing all of it. Canadian capital is invested in railways, steamboat lines, ranches, fruit farms and sugar mills, and one Canadian Bank has eleven branches in Cuba (The Royal Bank of Canada) and were offered, I was told, over $1,000,000.00 for their goodwill alone in Cuba.

But while viewing the golden prosperity the United States are enjoying commercially in Cuba, it struck me that just as they through aggressive persistence have carved out for themselves this wonderful market for the output of their factories, so we Canadians could and should do something at once to build up and enhance our interests in the other West India Islands, where we have already some prestige through being sister colonies in the great British Empire. Nearly everything we manufacture in Canada would find a market in the British West Indies, while the fruit, sugar, tobacco, spices and many other products of these rich islands would readily be purchased in Canada.

Whether the fault lies with our own Canadian Government, or with the Island Governments themselves, I do not know, but surely the opportunity is ripe for a reciprocal trade arrangement. For in speaking to representative business men in Nassau (Bahamas), where I visited after leaving Cuba, I gathered that they were willing and waiting for some such measure.

Let me complete this article with a request that the "Canadian Grocer," than whom a more fitting advocate could not be found, assiduously pursue this question and endeavor to awaken our Department of Trade and Commerce to a realization of our opportunity to duplicate the Americans commercial conquest of Cuba.

NEW CANNING COMPANY.

A new company, the Eastern Canning Company, is now doing business in Port Canada, N.B., having engaged in the packing of sardines. The company possesses a large, modern and sanitary factory, complete in every respect, even to the making of their own tins on the spot. While they will devote their chief attention to the production of sardines, the concern will also pack other sea foods, and will endeavor to supply the trade in all parts of Canada. Their sardines are appearing on the market under the brand Balaklava. C. A. Chouillou & Co., Montreal, are agents for the concern in that city, while Green & Co. look after their interests in Toronto.

Goods to be Displayed During the Month of April

Housecleaning Preparations and Utensils Now Required — Maple Products, Canned Goods, Confections and Seeds Among the Other Necessaries Called for by the Purchasing Public— Suggestions for Window and Interior Displays.

April is the month of sunny days, the great changing month of the year. It marks the end of extreme cold, and heralds the approach of warm weather.

It may be called the alteration month, par excellence, of the year. The housewife usually does her spring cleaning some time during this month ; she puts out of sight many things suggestive of winter, and replaces them with more summery things. Double doors and double windows are taken off, the lawn mowers are dug out of the garret and given a preliminary run and put in order. Gas stoves begin to come in for some attention instead of the kitchen range which has served the double function of a heat producer and cooker during the winter months.

Change in Displays.

When all these facts are taken into consideration, it is necessary for the wide awake grocer to take advantage of the prevailing convergence of affairs, and suit his stock and displays to the requirements. In so doing he must strive to keep his stock seasonable and force this fact upon the public's attention. Since April is the house cleaning month, all sorts of tools required in this semi-annual upheaval of the home will be required by the housekeeper. A window display of them can be arranged. Don't make the mistake of thinking that striking displays cannot be made, with these apparently homely materials. Originality and taste will overcome this difficulty. If one of the clerks show special talent along these lines, give him an opportunity to develop these traits and encourage him. Many a business has been made larger, owing to the creative ability of one of the employes.

Begin at Your Own Store.

Just here, however, it might be well to point out a mistake which might be easily made. Don't suggest housecleaning to others unless your own store is clean, and has had its spring ransacking, otherwise the strongest arguments along these lines lose their force. People will think that the grocer is strong on advice to others, but evidently is insincere as he cannot profit by it himself. Too much stress cannot be laid upon this, as women who are largely the grocers' customers, are very susceptible to appearances. It is a trained sub-consciousness with them. They know, more by instinct than observation, whether a store is clean or not. When their prejudices are once aroused they are irretrievable. Tradesmen know only too well that they love well, and hate in a like way.

Maple Products Seasonable.

A nice display of maple goods is always seasonable and attractive at this time of the year. Maple products are put up now in attractive packages, and can be displayed to good advantage. If the goods are pure have a card saying so ; if compound do likewise. Avoid giving people a wrong impression or selling goods under false pretences.

Dried fruits are being used largely at this time of the year, also canned goods. A series of boxes of the former can be opened and placed at the most effective angle, in the window, bearing cards, stating the price. A large card neatly printed can be placed above these with something like this on it : "Fresh Fruits are expensive at this season—Try some of our dried fruits."

A man with originality can make all sorts of attractive windows with canned goods. Their brilliant labels make them specially adaptable to this sort of thing. Flags, names, designs, etc., can be worked with them in the form of bed displays. An enterprising dealer some time ago, reproduced in miniature, a Norman castle, and on the towers he had small flags, with the name of the brand on it. Innumerable are the uses to which they can be put with the aid of a little creative ability.

April is a good month to paint the outside of the store. The dust of the street, which is such a great consideration in an operation of this kind, does not enter into the problem, so largely in this month as it will later. April is a good month to begin active operations in any contemplated additions on new buildings. The days are getting longer, so that workmen can do their full day's work, and can also work in comfort outside.

What about new customers ? In April and May people begin to think of greener pastures, and in a few cases actually move to the country. It is a good plan to put in operation any campaign for securing new trade before they leave.

Once people get in the habit of coming to a certain store or ordering from a certain store, so long as they are well treated they will invariably patronize it when they return in the autumn.

See to Confectionery.

The confectionery department is one which requires more attention during this month than some others. Candies are in good demand. It may be called the sweetmeat season. Some grocers carry candies in a perfunctory way, so as to be like others. They think confectionery is necessary to complete their equipment of stock. So it is, but it is more. They are a source of proportionately greater revenue than many of the time honored lines indispensable to a grocery store. Candy is a luxury and delicacy, consequently it should be taken care of very carefully. Make the surroundings as tempting as the candy. When these two essentials go hand in hand, the results will be gratifying to a large degree.

In April, people are beginning to think of their garden plots. The grocer should anticipate these leanings, and have his seeds on display. Most seed dealers send very attractive advertising matter with their products which can be used to advantage. They brighten the store up and make people think of the approaching summer, which is just what you want them to do.

PUBLISHED EVERY FRIDAY

GOOD WISHES FOR THE FUTURE.

The Canadian Grocer wishes all its readers a happy Easter time. The season which recalls to mind the most important episode in the Christian era has once more rolled around and with it the assurance of the beginning of spring and the revival of trade. The Easter season marks one of the important mile-posts in the cycle of the business year and merchants should make the best of it. They have greater reason this Easter to look forward to a return of those buoyant trade conditions which existed a few years ago.

That this will be so we have the assurance of the manufacturers, who, probably better than any others, are able to gauge the pulse of business. The advances made in the customs receipts in March over the same month of the past year in many towns and cities throughout the Dominion is another evidence of the passing of the depression and the advent of better times.

It is therefore the duty of every merchant to aid in the coming of these better times by instilling in those with whom they come in contact the spirit of enthusiasm and optimism that they may forget the past and live within the present.

HOW TO BOOM YOUR TOWN.

Editorials and double-headed articles have been appearing recently in a number of the newspapers setting forth the slogan of "boom our town." This is a splendid idea. But the merchants must remember that it is chiefly up to them to do the booming of their home towns. They have got to see that the business of their community is done with them and not from mail order houses a hundred or two hundred miles away; and the best method of keeping the trade where it should belong is by advertising in the home newspaper.

All this talk of booming business will be of little avail unless the merchants realize the responsibility placed on them and in order that they may be instrumental in accelerating prominence to their city, town or village they must advertise themselves and see that the money in spent in the community in which it is earned. Otherwise trade is bound to recede, population to decrease and a "dead" place is the ultimate result.

MAPLE SYRUP SEASON OPENS.

The weather has become favorable to a good flow of sap, and sugaring operations have commenced in earnest in Quebec. Some of the leading grocery stores in Montreal are showing genuine maple sugar, and syrup of this season's make. A resident of the Eastern Townships stated that the prospects for a good season are bright. Very frequently when the season opens too early, a protracted run, with serious interruptions, impairs the quality of the make very much. The season, when the proper weather conditions prevail rarely lasts more than one month or five weeks at the longest. The maple for a long time, in common with other Canadian trees, was sacrificed indiscriminately for lumber and various other commercial purposes. The increasing value however, of this tree as a yearly revenue producer, is securing for it a large degree of immunity from the encroachments of the lumberman.

THE LAND OF CUBA.

The Grocer desires to call the attention of its readers to the article in this week's issue written by D. A. Campbell, of the Campbell Milling Co., West Toronto, on his impressions from a trip through the island of Cuba. He lucidly leads one through the luxuriant vegetation, the orange groves and the pineapple patches and tells of the enormity of the cigar industry in the Cuban capital from where comes the world-famed fragrant weed.

Later in his story he points out the foot-hold the United States have on the trade throughout the island and advocates that Canada follow in the steps of the country to the south by promoting better trade relations between the Dominion and the British West Indies. He claims that nearly everything we manufacture here would find ready markets in the British possessions among the group and that Canada could easily reciprocate by purchasing the cigars, tobaccos, fruit, sugar and spices that make these tropical islands known throughout the world.

The story is one that gives a great amount of information, is written in a most facile style and it should be carefully read by everyone connected with the trade.

CANNED GOODS SITUATION.

The season of 1906 was the banner one for canned goods in Canada. Business in all lines during that year was at its best and since that time it seems to have receded somewhat. This condition of affairs, however, is not expected to continue for any length of time as the large canners anticipate a good season in 1909. The pack in 1908 was something under ten per cent. greater than during the previous year so far as one large canning concern was concerned, but while the sales are governed to a great extent by the pack, yet the pack is not necessarily governed by the sales.

Until the autumn of 1907 sales continued to be good from the season before but in 1908 they were less than in either the two years preceding.

In referring to the outlook one large canning company said: "We look forward to a better business this year than last as far as the volume of business goes, but we are afraid that it will be a few years yet before we catch up to 1906 again."

Wholesale dealers and brokers in Toronto say that there is a shortage in peas and that there will possibly be a shortage in corn. Their impressions seem to be that the canned goods pack of 1908 will be pretty well cleaned up before the new goods are manufactured and placed on the market.

GROCERS SHOULD SELL FLOWERS.

On many occasions in the past The Grocer has advocated the carrying of flowers by the retail grocers, and our advice has been taken by a large number. Usually such arrangements can be made with florists whereby it is impossible for the grocers to lose money, as will be observed from correspondence from St. Catharines appearing in this week's issue.

It is there pointed out that two merchants have begun the sale of flowers and that so far the investment—if it can be called an investment—has proven profitable. These firms simply give space for the flowers in their stores and obtain a commission of fifteen per cent. on the sales made. No loss from unsold stock is occasioned because the florist agrees to take back all unsaleable goods.

Besides being profitable the carrying of flowers becomes another asset. The additional attractiveness lent to a store in which some handsome flowers are kept is a positive force towards the popularity of that store even if none of them are sold. Only a few of the patrons of a grocer ever enter the store of a florist so that the former has probably ten opportunities to make flower sales to the one of the florist.

THE CURED MEAT TRADE.

It is interesting to note the changes that have occurred in the hog situation during the past few years and to reflect upon the causes of these changes. It is not very long ago since the English market absolutely governed our prices here, but the rapid increase of our population and the fact that other countries are supplying England with a good deal of bacon has changed the aspect of things.

The prices of cured meats in England during the past winter have been lower than prices here so that there was little occasion for an export trade. Canadian demand has been good, with the supply scarcely sufficient. The fact seems to be that with the prevailing high price of hogs during the past year, the packers have not gone into the industry as extensively as they might have done. Prices of cured meats are therefore high and apparently too high to meet the competition from other countries into Britain.

Considering these conditions, and especially the development of the home market for cured meats it might be well if the Government paid more attention to the trade in Canada. While we are lax in our export trade, nevertheless, the home market is the more important and we should give it the preference.

GIVE TRAVELERS A HEARING.

"My desk is right here in a big open office," said a leading stove manufacturer of Toronto to our representative the other day.

"You may wonder at this, but it has many advantages. I can easily see every one coming into this establishment, and am, therefore, in a position to know if they are getting prompt, polite and proper attention. Every move in the place is under my scrutiny, and the only inconvenience is that there is considerable noise at times owing to so many clerks and typewriters in the office, but one gets used to the buzz. We have only two private or walled-in offices in the whole factory. One is for the auditor and there is another for any one who desires to discuss some private matter. Heads of departments complain at times that they are placed in too open and exposed a position. Now I tell them it is their duty to meet all people who wish to see them and treat them courteously. I do not believe in dodging anybody and resorting to all kinds of subterfuges to get rid of undesirable callers. All traveling representatives and others are accorded a friendly welcome and one remarked to me a few days ago: 'Well, I always like to come and see you. I get a kind greeting even if you do not give me an order. I wish that I could say the same of everybody on whom I call.'"

When one of the heads of this firm expressed a desire for a more private office the other day I promptly told him it was his duty to meet everyone who had any business to transact with him. I brought the lesson home by remarking that we ourselves had twelve or fifteen travelers on the road and he should treat others in the same way as we like to have our own representatives treated. This made the point, and the application of my remarks clear, and he added: "I see things differently now. I certainly would not like to have our own men accorded a gruff, indifferent reception or to be kept waiting an unnecessary length of time on some flimsy excuse."

"I want to tell you," continued the speaker, "that I spent several years on the road and I have at times gone many miles to call on a hardwareman, and then, perhaps, he would not see me or else would give me a churlish reply, intimating by act, if not by word, that my call was not welcomed and the sooner that I took my departure the better pleased he would be. Now, here is a point which I wish The Canadian Grocer would impress upon its subscribers, and it is this, the man who refrains from or neglects seeing a traveler, probably thinking he is saving time, that he has stock enough already or business is too slow to place further orders, is making a grave mistake. The traveler is his best friend, whether he is a customer of the firm or not, and can often give him pointers which are valuable and timely on the way the market on certain classes of goods is shaping, whether there is going to be an advance in price, whether anything new is coming out, and how the future appears generally. The traveler is the best barometer of business and probable changes in prices, and unless the merchant places himself in the closest contact with all avenues of information in his particular line, he is bound to lose money and some other man in the trade not so short-sighted will reap the benefit. It is a narrow, selfish policy for any up-to-date business man to refuse to see a traveler even if he does not require anything. He can often pick up valuable information and trade pointers which will repay him many times over for the few minutes taken up in conversation or in looking over samples, and inquiring prices."

THE VALUE OF ENTHUSIASM.

If there is any one quality we need in order to sustain ourselves at the top notch of business efficiency, it is enthusiasm.

You may know your business thoroughly, you may have everything your own way, but if you lack enthusiasm you lask the one thing that makes for progress.

Enthusiasm keeps a man plugging away at his job when others would quit. It keeps him going at full speed when croakers say that he hasn't a ghost of a chance to make good. It turns defeat into victory when the battle has gone against you. Enthusiasm characterizes the man who never knows when he is licked.

Keep at it, and don't get discouraged. Nothing worth while in this world comes easy, but enthusiasm will land you where you want to be, if you keep hammering away until you get what you want.

BUSINESS MAXIMS.

By Plato, Jr.

¶ It is as easy to go through the eye of a needle as to get credit on a bad reputation.

¶ Business men who always have their eyes open for new ideas never tumble into ruts.

¶ A daylight bill that would let sunshine into dark and musty stores would be an excellent thing.

¶ Merchants who are more anxious to shine in society than in their trade societies are not shedding light where it will do most good.

¶ Merchants who have not time to read their trade paper have not time to think; and an unthinking merchant is like an ox team to a span of trotting horses.

London Wholesalers Predict Good Year — Maple Syrup Appears on Many of the Country Town Markets—Chatham Merchants to Organize Debt-Collecting System — Half-Holiday Question at Guelph.

LONDON.

April 7.—Wholesale trade gives pronounced evidence of improvement, while retailers, both in the city and surrounding country, have a similar story to tell. Brokers report sugars very firm. Advances, they say, in raws in England, are affecting the United States markets. Teas keep very high. If the expected duty on teas fails to go through there may be some "sore" Canadians—i.e., those who sold out all their spot teas to United States buyers. Prices of all staples are firm.

In an interview Col. A. M. Smith, of A. M. Smith & Co., wholesale grocers, said, "Business is good throughout the whole of western Ontario. Orders are coming in well, and collections are in fine shape." T. B. Escott said, "Trade has been quiet since the new year, but there is a noticeable improvement, and we are looking for a good season, as indications point that way." C. R. Somerville reports business fully as good as it was a year ago and that was good. A. E. Silverwood, manager of Flavelles Limited, said, "The shipping season to the West has opened earlier this year than we have ever known it to. Last week we sent a carload of eggs to the western markets. As a rule, we do not begin shipping eggs until the end of April. There is a big demand in the western markets for butter, eggs, cheese and poultry, and reports from all our shipping points are of the most encouraging nature.'

Maple syrup was plentiful on the market Saturday at prices ranging from $1.10 to $1.25 per gallon. Despite the heavy roads and stormy weather a fair market was in evidence. Eggs continue at a purchasable price, 18 and 19 cents buying the best. Butter remains at 25 and 26 cents a pound.

T. A. Rowat & Co., have removed to their new premises, 250 Dundas Street, and now have one of the finest, best-stocked and most attractive grocery stores in London.

The Canadian Packing Co. will not rebuild their burned factory here nor will they go to Chatham. The mayor and Manager Rechnitzer had a conference a day or two ago, after which his worship gave out the following statement: "Mr. Rechnitzer told me that the company were not going to rebuild their plant in Chatham, or London, or anywhere else for the time being. Mr. Wragge, one of the English directors, has been in the city for some time looking over the situation with Mr. Rechnitzer, and they have come to the conclusion that it would be unwise to rebuild now. The reasons given are that the price of hogs is too high, and that the farmers are not raising enough of them at a reasonable price to admit of exporting the finished product at a profit. Under the present conditions of the market, they considered it unwise to build a plant worth $250,000." The company seeks an exclusive franchise to establish an abattoir here, but the council claims it has no power to grant such.

The employes of D. S. Perrin & Co. have organized a baseball club, with these officers: T. McFarland, honorary president; Wm. Evans, president; J. McCormick, manager; A. Gregory, captain; F. Clarke, secretary; J. Saunders, treasurer; J. Orr, mascot. The team challenge any wholesale team in London.

At Monday night's meeting of the city council a petition from the Retail Grocers' Association, asking that tea peddlers be required to pay either a peddlers' license of $30 or a business tax, was referred to the license committee.

J. D. Tytler, broker, has been seriously ill for over two weeks, but is now reported on the mend.

The following changes in the grocery business are announced: J. Bloomfield, corner Kent and Richmond Sts., has sold to a Mr. Lackey formerly with the C.P.R.; Wm. M. Griffin, corner Picadilly and Maitland Sts., has disposed of his business to Mr. Willis, until recently in the insurance business, and G. S. Brock's store will hereafter be conducted by W. Humphries.

CHATHAM.

April 7.—Considerable ice has been imported by boat and rail from other districts, in an effort to meet the situation resulting from the complete ice famine of the past winter. C. E. Lister, of the Maple City Creamery, has brought in a great deal by boat, this being the first boat load of ice to arrive in Chatham for from 20 to 25 years. The prospect is that prices to the general public will be doubled this summer.

G. Jewell, formerly of this city, has started a meat business in Windsor.

The market question is to the fore again, this time in the Legislature at Toronto. It will be remembered that, while the civic by-laws in times past have been effective in excluding grocers and other retailers from buying on the market before 10 o'clock, the local magistrate has refused to convict wholesale buyers under the same by-law, holding that the statute did not specifically authorize their exclusion, merely specifying "grocers, butchers, hucksters and runners." As a result, G. W. Sulman, M.P.P., has brought a bill before the Legislature adding the name "wholesaler" to the list. The bill has been recommended by the municipal committee. It is alleged that the buyers to whom most objection has been taken are those who come from Detroit. Local grocers have in the past been divided on the question of the 10 o'clock restriction; but they think that, if they are excluded, the restriction should be made general.

N. M. Blackburn, who recently left for a holiday trip to Detroit, has, it is reported, accepted a position there. Mr. Blackburn was for 20 years with John McCorvie's staff.

Thos. O'Brien, for some time past associated with the cigar manufacturing business of O'Brien Bros., here, is leaving for Winnipeg, where he will on April 15 take a position with a wholesale tobacco firm.

Tunis W. Roach, until recently a member of E. R. Snook's grocery staff, passed away very suddenly recently, death being due to heart disease. Mr. Roach was in his 54th year, and leaves a wife and family. He was well known as a lover of horses. The funeral on Sunday was largely attended.

Richard Reaume, 72 St. Clair Street, has entered the ranks of the advertising grocers, and is making some attractive announcements through the local press. A year or more ago there were only three or four regular advertisers among the fifty or more local grocers. Since then advertising has gained in popularity, especially among grocers off the main street.

The city board of trade, at a well-attended meeting last week, unanimously decided to petition the Dominion Government in favor of an extension of the present tariff privileges to beet sugar manufacturers, permitting them to import a a preferential rate raw sugar for refining purposes, in the proportion of two pounds for every one pound manufactured from Canadian-grown beets. The importance of the beet industry to this section was strongly felt. It was announced at the meeting that a Michigan beet sugar factory had practically decided to locate in Chatham in the near future. A matter of considerable importance was that of rural telephone connections with the adjoining county. It was decided to appoint a committee to call a conference of representatives of the adjoining townships, with a view to encouraging the building of rural lines centreing in Chatham. A Blenheim rural line comes within four miles of Chatham, and farmers, while able to telephone to Blenheim merchants, 12 miles distant free of charge, they must pay toll to reach their natural market in Chatham. The disadvantage under which Chatham merchants labor is obvious.

The debt collection proposition discussed at the last meeting of the retail merchants is reported to be progressing favorably in the hands of the special committee, comprising Messrs. Cunningham, Hodges and Poile. Mr. Cunningham's view at the last meeting was that, instead of making the scheme a two months' experiment as proposed by Mr.

Murdock, it be placed on a firmer basis. He thought that the experimental nature of the scheme would tend to weaken it, and that it should be extended to cover a full year, or at least the balance of the present year. The committee is working along this line, and has secured propositions from various parties to take charge of the work. Though nothing definite has yet been arranged, a full-fledged proposition will likely be laid before the next meeting of the retail merchants on the second Tuesday in this month. It has been noted here that Brantford merchants are at work along the same line, taking up a scheme similar to the Guelph scheme on which our own arrangements are being modeled. It has been suggested that a representative of the Guelph association be invited to visit Chatham and discuss the practical workings of the scheme with the local merchants.

Mr. Vansickle has opened a new grocery on Gray St.

Dresden grocers are reported to be in the throes of an egg war, and so extreme has the situation there become in their rival efforts to corner the egg market, they are buying as high as 19c. while they have to retail to patrons at 16c, which is the prevailing retail price throughout the county.

Dresden is to have a new grist mill. Clifford Morrison, formerly in the grocery business here on Thames St., is one of the proprietors of the new enterprise.

The first few cars of a shipment of 80 cars of raw sugar for the Wallaceburg Sugar Company arrived last week, and refining operations have now commenced.

Armstrong & Co., of Wallaceburg, have bought the grocery and general business of W. E. Evans, at Whitebread, and will take possession May 1. The property includes store, stock, residence and 31 acres of land. Armstrong & Co. will also erect an elevator. Mr. Evans is leaving for the Northwest.

Duchene & Co., butchers, of Wallaceburg, who recently suffered a loss by fire, will not resume business until September.

Geo. R. Dobson, of Comber, has purchased the general store at Highgate previously conducted by David Logan.

Del Davis, who recently bought the Hargrove Bros. store at Sombra, is putting in a plate glass front.

Wm. J. Cain, of Port Lambton, who recently sold his store to Breise & Huffman of Muskoka, has repurchased it. The former purchasers are remaining in Muskoka.

Forbes & Simons, of Wallaceburg, are engaged in enlarging their store and making a number of improvements, necessitated by the increase of business under the new management.

Simon Garrod, for many years in the butcher business at Blenheim, left last week for Red River. Prior to his departure his friends tendered him a banquet at the Erie House and presented him with a gold locket and chain.

F. C. Peck, the Jeannette's Creek grocer, is starting a joint stock company to handle produce.

The large general firm known as J. S. Richardson & Co., which was Tilbury's first store, has been incorporated as the J. S. Richardson Co., Limited, Mr. Richardson retaining the direction of the business. The business saw its beginning in 1879, and has experienced a steady growth.

The Amherstburg early-closing agreement, which covered the past winter, terminating on March 31, proved very satisfactory to the merchants of the town, and many would have been glad to continue. From now on, however, early-closing will be in practice only on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

The Heinz Pickling Co.'s branch at Leamington has 500 acres under contract, 200 being devoted to cucumbers. This is much more than the company anticipated.

W. T. Gregory, the Essex tobacco man, is introducing a new variety of tobacco known as the "Big Mammoth." It is grown largely in Tennessee, being chiefly used for the manufacture of chewing tobacco.

BARRIE.

April 7.—The store lately vacated by Thos. McEcheran on Bradford Street has been stocked with groceries by G. Guest, who opened up this week.

Harry Wyles, Owen Stret, has sold his stock of groceries to James Crossland, who formerly was with E. J. Armson.

This week sees a brightening up of business, with the fine weather and Easter week. Splendid displays of fancy fruits and vegetables may now be seen in the various stores such as pineapples, tomatoes, cucumbers, strawberries, lettuce, radish and green onions.

Tomatoes are selling exceptionally well just now as the stock is fine and the price is moderate so that the people can afford to buy them at fifteen cents a pound. Berries are retailing at 20c for the pint box and pineapples at from 25c to 35c each as to size.

There is a scarcity of good dairy butter here at present although quite a quantity of held cold-storage stock is around and consequently the price of the same jumped on Saturday last to from 23 to 25c wholesale. Easter eggs are being retailed at present for eighteen cents, although that is a cent to one and a half higher than last week. Chickens are very scarce and dear, selling as high as seventeen cents a pound. Old fowl sold at 12c to 13c a pound.

Stan. Hinds reports everything booming in Gow Ganda and he has already disposed of two cars of goods.

ST. CATHARINES.

April 7.—Bradley & Son and Frank Wilson have recently begun selling cut flowers. This is a new departure for grocers, but one likely to bring additional profits to those adopting it. The above mentioned firms report favorably on results so far. A local florist is the source of supply. He brings the cut and potted flowers as required to the store and stipulates the prices at which each line is to be sold. He guarantees the store against loss, by taking back any unsold flowers. The grocers do the displaying and advertising at their own expense as their part of the bargain. The total amount of flowers delivered to each store is charged at retail prices. The florist at the end of each week deducts the unsold stock from the total delivered and allows a commission of 15 per cent. on sales.

McLean Bros., of James St., made a special window display of Christie Brown & Co.'s fancy biscuits during the past week. A large framed picture of this biscuit factory was used as the center of the display. In front were arranged fancy glass jars containing many of the more expensive lines of biscuits. Both sides and the entire back ground were composed of glass front tins showing at a glance the assortment of fancy biscuits handled by the firm.

Fresh eggs are coming in now in quantities. One store, Sherwood & Son, has a window display of eggs priced at nineteen cents per dozen.

George B. Darker has secured a store on St. Paul St., formerly occupied by Reid & O'Neil, as tailors, and will open a grocery shortly. Mr. Darker, until about three years ago, was one of St. Catharines' successful dry goods merchants. Poor health demanded that he retire from this business and take a holiday. For the past few years he has engaged in fruit farming. With the return of health he again felt the attraction of the retail business and he disposed of his farm and now, as above stated, will try his fortune as a grocer.

GUELPH.

April 7.—Will the retail merchants of Guelph concede to their employes the half-holiday, or will they not? Last year some of the storekeepers closed their stores during the months of July and August, on the Thursday afternoon and other storekeepers did not. Did it prove advantageous to either party? The merchants, or at least some of them, who observed the Thursday afternoon holiday say they lost no trade over the spec. Of course the stores which kept open would do some business and possibly the business which would have been done in the morning had the customers been informed that the store would be closed during the afternoon.

J. A. McCrea had a very fine "Bovril" window display this week and W. H. Fielding is showing a "Biscuit" window.

With the arrival of spring, trade keeps getting busier and things are moving along nicely. Easter is almost upon us and eggs are very cheap, 18c per doz.

Geo. Williams is showing a fine line of spring vegetables of rare quality.

The market on Saturday was large, and prices were generally on the "step up." Eggs sold at 16c to 18c per doz. Butter was firm at 24c and 25c per lb. Prices on potatoes are on the upward move and sold at 60c and 70c per bag. Apples sold at $1.50 to $2 per bag and a few baskets brought 40c to 50c. Chickens sold at $1.50 per pair. Maple syrup, one of the signs of spring, made its first appearance. The prices ran from 30c to 40c per quart.

PETERBORO.

April 7.—White & Gillespie have added a new sign to tfioe front of their store and over the street entrance they have a "golden cow" to signify the special dairy lines which they carry in addition to their complete line of groceries.

From all reports there are going to be quite a number of changes in the ownership of many grocery stores here and already several are in the course of construction.

Herbert Williams, of Havelock, has purchased A. Sinclair's butcher business and also Elias Williams' grocery store. He took possession on Monday.

The citizens are pleased to see the prices of eggs and butter on the ebb tide. The merchants have fallen into line and are giving the farmers a close run.

Easter beef is reported by the cattle men to be plentiful and with everything else of good quality the close of Lent should see a fitting celebration of the Easter season.

Maple syrup made its first appearance on the market on Saturday last selling at $1.50 a gal. The grocers now have a good supply and the farmers report that if the weather is favorable they will have a copious flow of sap during the next few weeks. The citizens did not seem to stop at the increased price.

The grocers are preparing their windows for appropriate Easter effects.

The customs house receipts for March exceed those for the same month last year by $4,000.

Everything points to a good business year. Prospects in the building lines are becoming brighter every week.

A letter received here from Elk Lake, states that the advent of spring will break up the roads and leave the new country cut off from supplies. The men are beginning to fear a scarcity of rations during the five weeks of expected isolation. J. M. Laing, President of the Gow Ganda Board of Trade, states that conditions will not be as alarming as expected. At present flour is $7.50 per cwt., beef 15c. per lb., bacon 20 cts. per lb., beans $5.00 a bush., butter 15c. a lb. and eggs 60 cents a dozen.

BRANTFORD.

April 7.—The committee which was formed at the last meeting of the Grocers' Association, to see if arrangements could be completed to establish a collecting system similar to the one now in operation at Guelph, decided to interview all the merchants in the city, to see how many were favorable to the scheme. If the number is sufficient to guarantee the salary of a collector, a large meeting will be held in the City Hall next week.

A letter which was read at the last meeting of the Brantford Grocers' Association from the ex-president, Henry Moore, who is now in Los Angeles, California, contained some interesting items of the cost of things in that city. These are a few of them : Large white grapes, 5c. per lb.; large navel oranges, 10c. pail ; apples, 5c. per lb ; potatoes, $2.00 per bag ; butter, 40c. per lb ; eggs, 35c. per doz.; oats, 65c. per bushel ; hay, $25 per ton ; bran, $1.75 cwt.; coal, $14 per ton.

The Brantford grocers will soon have to decide whether or not they will have two phones. The Canadian Machine Telephone Company have announced that they will be ready to start by May 1st., after an expenditure of $100,000 in plant and equipment. They would like to hear the merchants' verdict in other places where they have two phones.

The committee appointed to purchase books for the use of the clerks and those interested in salesmanship, have handed over to the public library eight volumes, which they feel confident will prove profitable reading.

J. C. Struthers & Co., the east ward grocers, have purchased the butcher business joining their store, from Mr. Sowden.

R. Cusden, who has been in charge of the Brantford Co-Operative store for the past three or four months received a week's notice that his services were no longer wanted and left last Saturday night.

INGERSOLL.

April 7.—Although the season has not been favorable to a good flow of sap a small quantity of maple syrup was offered for sale at the market recently. While there was some of the genuine, simon-pure maple product there was also some of exceedingly doubtful origin. It so happened that one maker of the delicious fluid has a reputation for turning out the best that the national tree can produce, and his supply was exhausted in short order, while many prospective purchasers were compelled to look elsewhere to gratify their desire for a taste of "new syrup." And right here it might be said that every municipality ought to have one inspector or more if necessary, to inspect the offerings on the market. It is not often that attendants at the Ingersoll market get humbugged, but this is really what happened to some of the purchasers of a certain lot of maple syrup. The syrup in question, which by the way, the maker positively guaranteed as "absolutely first-class in every respect" was either a concoction or of last year's "vintage" and it possessed such a sour flavor that it could hardly be considered edible. There could be no doubt as to the maker not being aware of the quality of the syrup and the pity is that he was not made an example of. It would seem that the incident would furnish scope for a lively discussion by the merchants and others who are interested in the town's welfare. It is surely widely known by this time that the laws in regard to fraud are very stringent. It is to the interest of merchants as a whole that only the best of everything in the way of produce is offered for sale on the market. While in many respects the merchants may be better judges than ordinary people, they, too, are not immune from being bitten in the same manner as were several people on Saturday last. Had a merchant been so unfortunate as to have laid in a supply of the syrup alluded to he would soon have had complaints from his customers and of course it would be up to him to smooth matters over in the best possible way and probably at no small cost, as many merchants now make it a practice of returning the money or exchanging goods in cases of this kind. But further than this, there should be a well defined movement in the direction of a rigid inspection on every market, and vendors who resort to fraud in any form should be hauled into the police court and shown no more sympathy or consideration than is characteristic of their own actions when they gave about fifty cents worth of actual value for a dollar. It is a poor way in which to build up a business and it is needless to say that with several who got "stung" the vendor of the maple syrup in question will no longer have a market, in fact he can consider himself lucky that he got off without proccedings being taken against him.

An important business change took place recently when Mr. F. McDougall, late of McDougall, Brandon & Austin, general merchants, Fenelon Falls, purchased the old established grocery business of Beattie & Co. Mr. McDougall has been in business in Fenelon Falls for thirty-five years. The new business will be conducted under the same management and as Mr. McDougall is energetic and wideawake to the requirements of the people in the line of groceries he will doubtless receive very liberal patronage.

ST. THOMAS.

The regular meeting of the Retail Merchants' Association was held on Tuesday evening, March 24th. It was unanimously decided to continue closing the stores at 1 p.m. on Wednesdays, during July and August, as has been done for several years past. It was also decided to request our representatives in the Dominion Government to urge the continuance of the present tariff on sugar in favor of the home made beet article, instead of booming the German beet to the disadvantage of Canadian industry. The formation of a grocers' section was still further postponed. There was a large attendance and quite a lot of business transacted.

TORONTO.

April 7.—On Thursday, March 25, James S. Clark, East Toronto, passed away. Mr. Clark came from Aberdeenshire, Scotland, over twenty years ago, and started work with Wm. Milligan. He continued with that firm until 13 years ago, when he accepted a position with Swan Bros. He was known to almost everyone around the fruit market and the St. Lawrence market.

The bowling tournament held by the Retail Grocers' Association of Toronto last Monday night at the Minerva alleys, Bathurst Street, was a successful event. Many of the members attended and enjoyed a few hours of pleasant rivalry trundling the bowls along the alley instead of handing out eggs and oranges from behind a counter. The best of good-feeling attended the event and although all couldn't win everybody was delighted with the evening's amusement. Handicaps of from 20 to 100 pins were given by the special committee arranged to look after the tournament. The winners were J. Gilbert, 452 ; D. Radcliffe, 450 ; J. C. Beaumont, 444 ; J. S. Bond, 429 ; A. V. Bradley, 422 ; T. J. Clark, 409 ; Bailey Snow, 397 and D. McLean, 397. The scorers were Chas. Kimpton and J. Oke. The prizes ranged from $3.00 down to 50 cents.

British Columbia Strict in its Desire to Hold its Fruit Reputation — Large Amount of Canned Goods go West From Eastern Provinces—First Potatoes Planted at Edmonton.

VANCOUVER.

April 6.—Potatoes have become a bigger feature than ever in the local market. When the cold snap was on, it was thought that many would be frozen and dealers who bought in at $21 a ton raised the price to $35 for Ashcrofts, the best grade. When the ten days' frost passed, and potatoes began to come in, it was found that there were considerable around, and the price dropped away down. Lately, it has been discovered that the amount frozen was larger than was known and the potatoes now being received are showing it. The result is, that those who have good potatoes on hand have jumped the price to $40, and even locals are bringing $35. This is pretty high, in fact, the highest on record, and one or two dealers are even talking of the price going as high as $50.

With the advance of spring, which is very backward this year, butter is going down in price. A carload of Alberta creamery is on the way to the coast, and it is said this will sell about 30 cents. This being the case, those with Australian butter on hand are trying their hardest to get it cleaned out. It was bought at 29 cents, so that it cannot be sold at a profit to meet the Alberta article, which is very good in quality and fresh. Moreover, the Australian is made with hardly enough salt, which interferes with the keeping.

The Blue Funnel liner Oanfa, which is in port this week, brought in another shipment of sugar from Glasgow. The price quoted on this is "25c lower than the local article."

The very large amount of rain in some of the districts of California has resulted in the early cabbage coming in being rather soft, in short, the early vegetables are not quite up to the mark of former seasons. Reports have reached here from the south, though, that it is anticipated that Californian strawberries will be earlier this year than usual.

Some of the importers of apples from the south are complaining of the stringency of the local regulations. About 400 boxes have been condemned lately, because of codlin moth. The provincial regulations are very strict, and are being carried out to the letter. British Columbia has been kept clear of fruit pests, and it is the intention of the authorities to try and keep it clear. All imported fruit is subjected to the closest scrutiny, and if infected it is destroyed. The provincial inspector and his staff have issued notices that all orchards and trees must be sprayed and those owners found disobedient will be proceeded against. Not only that, but the treatment will be undertaken by the province at the expense of the owners, and where the infection is very bad, the orchards will be destroyed.

Florida tomatoes are on the market, but are pale in color and somewhat shrivelled with the shrinkage consequent upon long delivery. Mexican tomatoes have come north, but have not reached here. They are so far not as good in quality as those from Florida.

Charles Rawlinson who for eighteen months has been running a grocery store in Nanaimo, has accepted the position of manager for the A. R. Johnston Company, of that city.

Percy Richardson, of the Army and Navy cigar store, Victoria, B.C., will open a factory and bonded warehouse for the manufacture of specially blended tobacco for shipment east and to England. Branch offices in Montreal, London and New York are now being established. The enterprise is the outcome of a special blend, for the formula of which Mr. Richardson has declined $5,000. The blend is known as Dudleigh's mixture, and the demand has become steady from England and the east. A large order was shipped a few months ago to Lord Milner, and the manufacturer is daily in receipt of orders ahead of the supply.

A. Hobson and G. Bell, of Hobson & Bell, grocers, Revelstoke, B.C., have dissolved partnership. Mr. Hobson will conduct the business.

The Slocan and Arrow Lakes Farmers' Institute have decided to place the marketing of this year's crop of berries in the hands of the Nakusp Produce Company, a company recently organized of the merchants of Nakusp. Last year, considerable confusion was experienced, and in consequence many crates of berries were spoiled, owing to the lack of a proper organization to handle the product. With the present arrangements, the grower of small fruits will be assured of a ready market, and will be relieved of the inconvenience experienced by individual shippers.

According to the report of the Chilliwack Creamery Association, which is to hand, there was distributed in this snug little valley last year by the two creameries operating there over $100,000. This is a considerable amount from one source. The report shows that for the year 1907, the total output of butter was 257,662 pounds, while for last year it was 264,903. The average selling price was 9-10 of a cent less, being 28.6 cents in 1908, but there was an increase in the total distribution of $722.71, the total in 1908 being $65,881.86. The officers appointed for this year are: President, F. C. Kickbush; vice-president, W. S. Hawkshaw; directors, E. D. Barrow, A. E. Willis, R. Hamilton, J. S. Mercer and A. J. Street; auditor, G. H. Raine.

EDMONTON.

April 6.—Trade in the city has been rather dull for about two weeks past owing to the bad state of the roads. The snow has all disappeared and left the main arteries into town in bad shape on account of the mud making the hauling extremely bad.

Ground is being broken for the excavation for the new butter and cheese factory to be erected by the Edmonton City Dairy Co., Limited, near the Cameron House on the Strathcona side of the river. It will be of a substantial character and will be the largest in the province. The estimated cost will be about $9,000.

The record for early potato planting in Edmonton this year, as far as known is held by Dr. I. J. Lane, Rolland St. On Thursday afternoon, March 25, he put in the ground a number of early potatoes. The doctor has for some years been an adept at raising early vegetables but this year's record is better than any previous one. His plot of land on the side of the hill facing south is especially well suited for early planting.

With the approach of spring the city council will take up once more the question of the erection of a suitable market building in Edmonton. This question was again brought to the attention of the council by the presentation of a resolution passed by the Edmonton local union of United Farmers of Alberta. In this resolution they asked the city council to consider the erection of a suitable market building and to pass a by-law setting aside two days each week as regular market days, the idea being that farmers and others upon payment of a small fee, should be entitled to sell their produce on the market. They suggested that Tuesdays and Saturdays, from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. would be suitable market days.

With the growing importance of Edmonton many new manufacturers are being attracted here. A number of applications have been made recently to the city council for concessions by firms desiring to start business. The Twin City Manufacturing Co., of Strathcona, the Traub Manufacturing Co. and the Watt Manufacturing Co. are some of the firms desiring to open here. The more factories the better, for by giving employment to a large number of men it will help a long way to increase business in our city, which heretofore has been dependent on the surrounding agricultural population.

The retail clerks of the city intend taking steps shortly to consider the question of a weekly half-holiday during the four summer months. A committee for each line of business, including grocers, dry goods, hardware, jewelers and others has been appointed to get the employers interested and while it is not expected that the small stores outside the business section will close, the committees are confident all the stores on the main business streets will fall in line.

The demand for eggs for the Easter trade is becoming pretty strong and they have been coming into town so plentiful lately that there is no fear of a shortage this season. Prices for fresh laids are twenty-five cents and by the case twenty-two.

WINNIPEG.

April 6.—An easterner entering a Winnipeg grocery store would probably note that the stock of canned goods was very heavy as compared to the stock usually carried in the east. This has been true ever since business began in Western Canada. This province cannot grow its own fruit, at least for many years to come, and the eastern packers will always have a good opening here for shipments. It is true that vegetables are grown here to a great extent but as yet few vegetable packing houses are found in Western Canada, the increase in the growth of vegetables has injured the canned goods trade to some extent, but the increase in the production has not exceeded the increase in consumption. The greater mass of people depend upon the grocery to supply vegetables in canned form. Regarding fruit, the trade is more substantial still. Nurserymen tell us that fruits may be grown here in abundance if the proper varieties are used. But this country will have to wait many years before anything but shipped fruit will be used to any great extent. There has been a change, however in the canned goods trade of late. Many consumers have taken to preserving large quantities of goods for their own use. One grocer stated that a certain hotel which for years bought hundreds of dollars worth of canned goods from him every season had preserved enough vegetables and fruits for their winter and spring use. This has been the case with many consumers in the city during the past year or more. It seems that a more economical method has been adopted by consumers in buying the fruits and vegetables than in buying the canned product. The extent to which this will be the case depends upon the prices of the raw materials.

Robert Ward, for a number of years the proprietor of a grocery and confectionery business on Nassau St., has sold to H. T. Stone, of this city.

The Easter trade promises to be good and all retailers are prepared with a large stock of goods. The Easter season means much to the produce trade, which will be lively since butter and eggs have reduced in price considerably.

CALGARY.

April 6.—Spring activity is evident on every side. Business is good, building active, and immigration is of the largest and very best class that has ever come to Alberta. Travelers report hotel accommodation at a premium in some of the towns on the main line east of Calgary. The weather, which is now quite springlike, is still favorable to the fall wheat crop, all reports of which indicate that it has wintered well. Live stock have come through the past winter in splendid condition, and barring spring storms, (which may come), the losses will be almost nil.

There is at present a very vigorous movement on foot among the retail clerks in Calgary to have a by-law passed to cover a weekly half holiday during the summer months. Several meetings have been held but so far nothing definite has been decided upon. The proprietors are not over enthusiastic in the matter, as they feel it is not strictly in their interests to close up half a day each week. It was customary in the early days when Calgary was a small town, to have a half holiday, but in view of the city's present size and importance as a point of supply, not to its citizens only, but for a large part of the province also, it must, in a measure, interfere with business when the retail stores are closed half a day each week. Then, too, there are many strangers constantly coming in who are not familiar with our customs, and who would be inconvenienced to find the retail stores closed. The clerks certainly deserve all the consideration possible, and holidays too, and if the merchants can arrange to give each employe, say a two weeks' holiday during the summer, this, we believe, is far ahead of the weekly half holiday. We believe, also, that it has not proven satisfactory in the majority of places where it has been tried, for reasons which are well known to most retailers. This, we think, would be a good subject for discussion in The Grocer. In our opinion early closing on Saturday night would be a reform which the retail grocery clerks would do well to take up.

Notes From the Maritime Provinces and Quebec

Line of Steamers Between St. John, N.B., and Bermuda Suggested—Views of Halifax Tea Merchants on Prices Since Announcement of Payne's Proposal—Sugar and Molasses Arriving From the South.

HALIFAX.

April 6.—It was reported here early this week that there would be a probable advance in the price of tea, in consequence of the clause in the Payne Bill now before the House of Representatives at Washington, which provides for the placing of a duty of eight cents per pound on tea. This caused quite a flurry among the tea importers of the United States, and sent them seeking supplies of tea at the near markets. A

A large quantity of tea has been bought up in Halifax as well as in other places, but this activity in the tea markets will not make any difference in Halifax so far as prices are concerned. Several of the large wholesalers were asked for their opinions. H. Bryant, of Bryant & McDonald, said that they had shipped some tea to the United States since the announcement had been made about the duty, and that they could easily send five times the amount without being any way short, or in any way affecting the price in Halifax. Montreal, he said, was differently situated, for if they imported any tea at this time before the St. Lawrence opened the freight charges would be higher, and the price likewise affected. O. E. Smith, of J. E. Morse & Co. said that they were prepared to ship almost any quantity of tea to the United States without the local market being affected. This week Morse & Co. shipped six thousand pounds of tea direct to Boston. Shipments have also been made by other firms.

The butter market remains in an unsettled condition. Many of the dealers still have large stocks on hand, and the supply of fresh-made butter continues to come in rapidly. Low prices prevail and are generally expected to continue so.

That there will be no change in the steady condition of the cheese market until the new make comes into the market about the first of May, is the general expectation.

Eggs are in good supply and the demand is heavy. Fresh-laid stock is quoted at 18c.

Some fine apples were marketed this week for the Easter trade, and they are finding a ready sale though the price is high. The varieties are russets and northern spys. The latter were of exceptional quality and they netted five dollars per barrel. Navel oranges are a little lower, but Jamaicas are stationary. The trade is looking for an increase in prices, as the crop is said to be not good this year. They are quoted from $4.50 to $5 per barrel repacked.

The steamer Boston arrived here from the West Indies early this week and landed ten thousand bags of sugar for the Acadia Sugar Refinery.

The new crop of molasses is now coming along, and the imports this season promise to be heavy. The schooner Edyth, from the Barbadoes, arrived here this week, and discharged 419 puncheons, 105 hogsheads and 55 barrels for the Dominion Molasses Company.

Henry G. Bauld, the senior member of the wholesale grocery firm of Bauld Bros., accompanied by his wife and three daughters, will leave shortly on a visit to Scotland. Mr. Bauld will make a brief stay only, but his family will remain in the Old Country for three years.

C. W. Harshman, manager of Harrington's, Limited, grocery, of Sydney is visiting Amherst, Sackville and Halifax for the purpose of making connections for the purchase and supply of oats feed, etc., for this department of the big grocery concern.

ST. JOHN.

April 6.—In the produce line during the past week, pork went off half a cent, and butter and eggs are also cheaper. Tub butter is quoted at eighteen to twenty-two cents a pound and roll butter at twenty to twenty-two. Hennery eggs sell from twenty to twenty-two cents a dozen and case eggs from eighteen to twenty cents. The dealers say the price for Easter will be higher if anything. In the grocery market it is pretty quiet. Yellow eyed beans are dearer, and so is pure lard and the general tone in other lines is firm.

In the fresh fish market there is a scarcity of haddock. Bloaters have advanced and are now held for from eighty-five to ninety cents a box.

The F. E. Williams Company have disposed of their fruit business to Charles Knodell and Brody De Boo and the business will in future be carried on under the name of Knodell & De Boo. The pork packing and general wholesale and retail grocery and meat business will be continued by the Williams Company as heretofore. F. E. Williams said he had disposed of his fruit business so that he might be able to devote more attention to his rapidly growing pork packing business. Both members of the new firm have been in the employ of the Williams concern.

The community suffered a distinct loss last week in the death of William Peters, jr., president of C. H. Peters Sons, Ltd., dealers in feed, flour, grain, etc., and tanners. Mr. Peters had been ill for twenty-two months with Bright's disease. He had all his life been connected with the tannery branch of the business and was regarded as one of the city's best business men. He is survived by his wife, four sons and one daughter, also six brothers, four of whom are in the grocery, feed or tannery business. The funeral on Saturday last was very largely attended.

T. H. Estabrooks, of Red Rose Tea fame, with his wife and daughter; W. C. Cross, manager of Hall & Fairweather, wholesale grocers, and his wife and S. H. White, one of the leading merchants of Sussex, returned home last week after a very pleasant trip to Bermuda. Speaking of business on the island, Mr. Estabrooks said that practically everything used there with the exception of bananas and garden stuff, has to be imported and he is of the opinion that the local merchants could do a very much larger business with the island if there was a direct line of steamers from this port. There is a fortnightly service now, via Halifax, but with direct steamers, Mr. Estabrooks claims the trade would greatly increase. There is a good opening for a market in dairy produce and various lines of manufactured food products. The articles which Canada principally exports to Bermuda just now are hay, grain and other like staples.

The contracts for supplying the county jail for the coming year were awarded last week. The contractors are the same as last year. J. & W. Shaw will supply the bread, M. & H. Gallagher, groceries; F. S. Purdy, meats.

Charles Robinson, baker, is having a new two-storey brick building erected on Celebration Street, and will occupy it with his bakery.

The trouble between the Charlotte county Weir Owners' and Weir Fishermen's Union and the packers at Eastport has been adjusted. The agreement provides that from opening of the fishing season on April 15 to July 31, the price for herring will be $8 a hogshead at the weirs. From August 1 to the end of the season it will be $4 a hogshead. Last year the union price was $6 a hogshead all the year round.

MONTREAL.

April 6.—At the annual meeting of the St. Lawrence Sugar Refining Company, which was held April 2, the following named directors were re-elected: A. Baumgarten, T. Labatt, B. McNally, James Crathern, Robert Hampson and E. A. Reincke, of New York. A satisfactory annual report was presented. At a subsequent meeting A. Baumgarten was elected president.

Fred D. Crosby, of the Crosby Molasses Company, St. John, was in Montreal last week.

D. G. Whidden, of the Sweet Milk Condensing Co., Laurentides, Que., was a visitor to the city last week.

Robert Aderman, representing Maison Otard-Dupy, Cognac, brandies, spent a few days in Montreal recently, interviewing the trade, with A. G. Gardner, manager of J. M. Douglas & Co., Canadian agents.

Henry Mortlake of Cincinnatti, Ohio, passed through Montreal recently, on his way to the Cobalt district, where he goes to personally inspect some mining properties which he owns. Mr. Mortlake has been engaged in the grocery business all his life, first in a retail way, and subsequently in a wholesale connection. He retired from active business five years ago, and has devoted his time to his several interests outside of the grocery business. In discussing the situation of this business, in the United States, he said: "Of course, competition is yearly becoming more and more keen, and the existence of large combinations, who control the foodstuffs, largely of the States, have made the smaller man hustle for his money. I believe though that legislation will be, and is being enacted, which will in a large degree curb the power of these institutions, and give the small retailer a better show." When asked his opinion of Dr. W. H. Wiley, the U. S. analyst, he said: "That man is all right, and good results are coming from his work. He is very much maligned in some quarters, but this is to be expected in every case where a man undertakes great reforms. He certainly has not handled those who have come under his eye with kid gloves. He is a big, forceful man, and those who have been transgressing the law have learned to fear him."

N. B. Smith, of Smith & Proctor, Halifax, is in Montreal this week.

A. P. Tippet, returned Tuesday from a week's stay in Toronto.

A representative of The Grocer, in discussing the meat cutters installed now in many stores, elicited some new and interesting facts concerning these machines. One grocer casually remarked that they were no good but inquiries among other grocers elicited opinions quite the reverse of this. It seems that these machines are like hundreds of other things—they must have a certain amount of attention, and reasonably good care be taken of them to do good work. Under such conditions they never fail. If, however, they are improperly sharpened, and wrongly adjusted, they will not do the best work. This however is the fault of the operator and not of the machine. A man with an ordinary amount of mechanical ability, can operate them satisfactorily and keep them in good condition. The uniformity of their work, and minimum cost of handling, also speed of action, are strong factors in their favor.

Some of the local grocers have been complaining of the action of collection agents, whom they claim are more difficult to get the money from, than the original debtors. The grocers in the United States, have long complained of their operations, but Canada has not suffered to any extent in this way yet. A word to the wise is all that is necessary. It must be understood, however, that all collection agencies are not to be avoided. There are many good men and the services of an honest firm are often invaluable to the grocer in rounding up the delinquents.

Buyers in Montreal during this week included:—

G. Lalonde, Pointe Fortune, Que.
J. R. Menard, Ste. Justin, Que.
G. Daoust, Ste. Anne, Que.
Theo. Bourdon, Chateauguay, Que.

THE HOTEL CECIL.

The recent completion of the new wing to the Hotel Cecil, Ottawa, makes Walter Walby the proprietor of one of the finest hostleries in Canada. It is now an ideal traveling man's home. The Cecil, since its establishment, has catered first, last and all the time to the commercial traveler. Mr. Walby, for seventeen years associated with the best Ottawa hotels, saw the splendid opening there was in that city for a house that would strive to secure and hold the trade of the commercial men. He established the Cecil, and his splendid success is proof of his wise foresight. The new wing is even more up-to-date than the rest of the house, which is quite modern. Comfortable rooms, neither too large nor too small, but just home-size, well ventilated, and above all things clean, make the Cecil a first-class house, when these features are supported by an excellent cuisine.

Running water, numerous toilet rooms, rooms with bath, electric lights, elevator service, sample rooms, all things demanded in a modern hotel by the commercial traveler are found in the Cecil. Another pleasant feature about the Cecil is the courteous attention one receives from the whole staff. There is just that much concern for one's welfare and enjoyment to be appreciated.

It is worth while going to the Cecil one trip, anyway, just to see for one's self if all the nice things said about it are true. One finds there has been no exaggeration.—Advt.

DEATH OF JOSEPH HUDON.

Passing of a Man Interested in the Grocery Trade for Half a Century.

Another pioneer of the grocery trade in Canada has disappeared through the death of Joseph Hudon, president of the Montreal wholesale grocery firm of Hudon, Hebert & Co., Ltd. He died suddenly, from heart failure, early last Saturday morning, April 3, at his home in Montreal.

While for fifteen years past the late Mr. Hudon was not actively associated with his partners in the management of the firm's business, he was, nevertheless, known to all and highly respected in grocery circles, especially among the older business men, with whose interests he was closely identified until the early nineties.

Born at St. Pie, near St. Hyacinthe, Que., seventy-three years ago, Joseph Hudon spent but a few years of his industrious life in his native village. He came to Montreal with his father, Victor Hudon, who established in the old days in Montreal the wholesale grocery known as Victor Hudon & Co.

JOSEPH HUDON.

Victor Hudon practically retired in 1865 and Joseph became associated with the late Charles P. Hebert, and these two, starting the business of Joseph Hudon & Co., took over the interests of Victor Hudon, and this was the beginning of the partnership of two clever business men who made possible the development of the present firm of Hudon, Hebert & Co., Ltd.

In 1883 the firm name changed, and thereafter the business was conducted under the style, Hudon, Hebert & Co., until January 31, 1906, when a joint stock company was formed, and the word "Limited," was added to the firm name.

Mr. Hudon worked hard when he was young. Fifteen years ago he practically retired although he still retained his interest in the business. He left the entire management of it with Charles P. Hebert and the latter's two sons, Albert and Zeph. During the past ten years he travelled extensively, staying in Europe as long as two years on one trip. On the death of Charles P. Hebert, Mr. Hudon, who was then in Europe, was elected president of the company, but the office was, for him, quite nominal.

His partner's death, on July 17, 1906, was a severe blow to Mr. Hudon. Together he and Charles P. Hebert had toiled and slaved; had gone through their apprenticeship, working from early morning until late at night, side by side, one helping the other. There were stronger ties than mere business friendship between these two strong characters. A quiet, hard-working man, of a retiring disposition, Mr. Hudon made, and held, good friends. They may not have been as numerous as those of many another man, because of his distaste for mingling with strangers and participating in public affairs, but those who enjoyed his friendship were ever assured of the strongest admiration and enduring loyalty. He expected and received the same.

The funeral took place on Thursday morning, and was largely attended.

Albert Hebert will probably succeed Mr. Hudon as president of the company. He, his brother Zeph, and L. Brault are the surviving partners of the firm.

ACQUITTED ON FIRST CHARGE.

On Saturday morning of last week, ex-secretary W. A. Coulson, of the Retail Merchants' Association of Western Canada, appeared before Magistrate McMicken in the Winnipeg Police Court, to answer to the charge on which he was arrested a short time ago. Through his counsel, R. A. Bounan, he pleaded "not guilty" and elected for summary trial. The crown announced that there was no evidence to offer and Mr. Coulson was accordingly discharged. Immediately on his discharge Mr. Coulson was served with another summons on the information of A. E Ham. The second charge is that he unlawfully undertook a contract of fire insurance on behalf of the Retail Merchants' Mutual Fire Insurance Company of Western Canada with the E. Penner Co., Gretna, without being licensed or registered under the Manitoba Insurance Act. An investigation of the affairs of the Retail Merchants' Association is in progress in Winnipeg at the present time, a number of country merchants being in attendance at the association offices in Winnipeg for the purpose.

WOMEN BOOM RAISINS.

Representatives from the various women's clubs in Fresno, Cal., says a despatch to the New York Journal of Commerce, have taken a hand in the Raisin Day enterprise at the invitation of the committee.

The plan which seems to please them most is that each club member buy neat little boxes of raisins, fill them with Raisin Day literature and recipes and send them to friends in the East.

Miss Hatch, president of the Parlor Lecture Club, has gotten into communication with the presidents of the State and national federations of women's clubs and they will put the matter before the various clubs. The local clubs will pass resolutions indorsing Raisin Day.

Many Fresno people have endeavored to make raisin pie within the past few weeks, since the raisin agitation was started, but it seems that very few have been able to make a success. A recipe has been received by the Raisin Day committee which, it is claimed, will now accomplish the end desired.

CANADIAN PACKING COMPANY.

Chatham, April 5.—So far as can be learned, there is little if any likelihood of the Canadian Packing Co., recently berned out in London, finally locating in this city.

It was rumored this morning that the company was in negotiation with officials here with a view to locating. Enquiry, however, shows that this rumor is entirely without foundation.

Mayor Westman, who is closely in touch with the local industrial situation was interrogated regarding the matter.

"I have heard nothing from the company since last Wednesday," he replied. "I telegraphed them then with reference to sending a deputation, and they replied that it was no use."

He added that the company had practically decided not to rebuild, from what he could learn.

Negotiation with such industries is now under the ban of the Chatham board of trade. At a meeting last week, the following resolution was passed:

"That hereafter this board of trade leave industries now located in Canada alone."

It was felt that in negotiating with industries such as the Canadian Packing Co., Chatham had injured other cities without helping herself, and that these negotiations were being used as a lever to induce other localities to grant concessions. The resolution was carried unanimously, an indication of the attitude likely to be taken by leading citizens in the future.

Enquiries at London indicate that the stated decision of the company not to rebuild is merely temporary, due to the fact that the present dearth of the proper class of hogs would render an investment of $250,000 unprofitable.

A GIFT FROM THE ORIENT.

The Canadian Grocer acknowledges and highly appreciates a gift from Ceylon, India, sent through the courtesy of Col. R. Wayne Wilson, of New York. It is a box of tea—the finest of hill-grown Ceylon tea—specially selected and packed for presentation to the United States fleet which called at the port of Ceylon a short time ago. The members of the fleet were given the tea by the Thirty Committee of the Planters' Association. The box in which it is packed is truly oriental in its decorations and on the top appear the British and United States flags unfurled above the coat-of-arms of Ceylon.

The little son of David Hill, grocer, of Richmond Hill, Ont., who came to Toronto with his father on Wednesday, was struck by a Metropolitan car and severely injured.

QUEBEC MARKETS

POINTERS—
Sugar—Steady.
Beans—Firm.
Maple Products—Deliveries heavy.
Tea—Stocks Getting Light.
Dried Fruits—Moving Well.

Montreal, April 7, 1909.

The week has been a very brisk one. This is due to the holiday season largely, and the favorable turn the weather has taken. The market has not shown any startling changes during the week. Sugar remains steady, under reduced demand. Dried fruits and canned goods are going into consumption freely. Maple products are arriving in large quantities, and a drop is anticipated. Fish has had a good call, also fruits. Other lines are practically unchanged. Collections are reported fairly good.

A genuine spirit of optimism is observable everywhere. Navigation, it is expected will open two weeks earlier this year than usual. This will be a great factor in better business for the year.

SUGAR—The sugar market is having a quiet time just now. There seems to be nothing which points to any changes in the near future. The primary markets are distinctly tranquil.

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES — The molasses market is very firm, and the demand is much larger than the supply. Offers from Barbadoes are few, and far between. Reports from the primary markets state that the market is very firm. The small shipments which have come forward have been absorbed by Newfoundland. Syrups are steady and unchanged.

TEA—The tea market is about bare of supplies. The anticipated duty in the United States may fail to materialize, so there is not much interest being shown in the market now. If a heavy demand should suddenly spring up some sky high prices would result for what few teas are scattered around the market.

CANNED GOODS

MONTREAL.—Canned fruits are moving well, also canned vegetables. Meats are meeting with a better sale, than for some time. Canned fish have sold well during Holy week. Canned pork and beans are somewhat slow.

TORONTO.—Among the good sellers as reported by the wholesale men are canned fruits and vegetables. Apples and other fruits are moving well. The consumption of canned vegetables in Canada during a year is enormous and just now tomatoes and corn are adding considerably to the list. The season of 1909 is expected to be a good one for canned goods. Last year's pack will be pretty well consumed before new goods arrive.

POINTERS—
Sugar—Market easier.
Molasses—Firm.
Tea—Export to U. S. ceased.
Currants—High prices possible.
Rice—Slight decline.

Toronto, April 8, 1909.

The wholesale houses report business as rather quiet during the past week. They find that merchants in country towns claim trade to be somewhat dull on account of the condition of the roads which are preventing the farmers from making their usual trips. Some lines of goods are, however, moving freely including dried fruits, molasses and canned goods. Prunes, peaches, apricots and raisins are being paid considerable attention.

The sugar market is a shade easier than last week and dealers in raws are more anxious to meet buyers than they were a week ago. The prices however in Canada are likely to remain firm.

A despatch from the currant centre in Greece says that the new crops will be affected by unfavorable weather and that this may possibly cause firmer prices.

There is now no tea crossing the border into the United States. All has gone that Ontario merchants didn't want and none of them are worrying over being short.

Collections are better and although the trade has been somewhat quiet this condition of affairs is not expected to continue for long.

SUGAR—The sugar market is a fraction easier this week but the difference is only slight. Holders of raws are not being so firm in their pretentions and are able to meet the buyers, conceding from a thirty-second to a sixteenth of a cent for April shipment. This resulted in sales of 150,000 bags of Cuban raws at 2 5/8 cost and freight New York. European prices are easier under a small decline. In spite of this it is the opinion of local brokers that the tone of the market will continue firm.

MOLASSES AND SYRUP—There is not much syrup moving from the wholesale houses, but the market in molasses is good. The price of the latter is firm and a shade higher; not due to the demand but to the primary markets. Considerable quantities of Barbadoes are arriving in the east. New maple syrup has made its appearance but not yet in large quantities.

TEA—The passing of tea from Canada into the United States which caused some activity a few weeks ago is now at an end. All the tea that Canadian holders wanted to send has gone across and it was principally the kind that was undesirable for sale here. Tea merchants therefore on this side of the line benefited by the demand from the United States. Some brokers here claim that the kinds of tea wanted in Canada are scarce. The finer grades are in good demand. A cable from London received on Tuesday stated that the market had advanced on the flavory sorts.

Whether or not there will be a duty imposed on tea by the United States government will likely be known within the coming week. The probability is however, that there will be a change from Payne's proposals.

DRIED FRUITS—Prunes are still good sellers. This market has been so unsettled recently that wholesalers scarcely know what the outcome will be. The call for apricots has also been good notwithstanding the prices. Tapnet figs are a minus quantity and bag figs are also almost off the market. There has not been much movement in this market. Currants are a shade firmer. A despatch from Greece to a local broker states that the weather is somewhat unfavorable for the new crop and that there was a possibility of higher prices later on. There is just now considerable call for Valencia raisins, but dates are quiet.

MANITOBA MARKETS

Winnipeg, April 5.—Although the retailer claims he has not been greatly encouraged in business during the past two weeks, the wholesalers have reaped an abundant harvest. The heavy Easter stock laid in by the dealers has kept local wholesalers extremely busy. The "out of town" shipments have been very large, and have surpassed all anticipations and records of previous years in the corresponding season.

The Easter season is very welcome to many retailers since it will relieve the monotony of the rather quiet period of the past few weeks. The weather has been disagreeable for many days and the streets have been in a bad condition. The country roads are almost impassable, and no one can censure the local producers for refusing to plod through the dreaded "Red River Valley mud." The farmers, however, have made an extra endeavor to land the egg supply for the Easter trade. A feature of this week's market is the weakness in the canned goods trade.

SUGAR—Retailers report sales in smaller lots since the recent advance. The market generally is only moderate. Next week will see sugar moving freely and remain so until after the Easter festivities. The prices are quoted as follows:

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS—There has been a noted steadiness on the market this week in these lines. It is expected that currants and prunes will advance, but as yet no changes are quoted. BROOMS—Housecleaning has not begun yet, and when it does many retailers will find that they have not enough in stock. To-day is the first fine day for weeks, and this morning there were brooms on almost every delivery wagon in the city. There is no change in price.

TUBS—It is rumored that a decline will be reported soon. We quote the prevailing prices as follows:

EGGS—The usual drop toward the Easter price is considerable this week. Dealers are paying from 18c to 19c per dozen. It is expected that they will not recede further until after Easter, then the drop will undoubtedly be considerable.

BUTTER—An extra effort is being made to get rid of the superfluous No. 2 butter. It is going out in lots from 10c to 15c per lb. The good creamery is jobbing from 22c to 25c per lb., which is a decline from that quoted last week.

CUT IN SALT PRICES.

An item appeared recently in the New York Journal of Commerce to the effect that the International Salt Company of the United States had made cuts in prices of from 75c to $1.25 per ton in view of the competition between this company and the independent manufacturers. Fixed Prices Not in Restraint of Trade, Says Court

Price-Cutters Judged to be Liable if They do Not Maintain Values Fixed by Maker of Goods—Rights of Manufacturers Sustained by California Supreme Court.

New York Journal of Commerce.

The Supreme Court of California has just rendered a decision in the famous suit of Charles P. Grogan, manufacturer of olive oil, against H. G. Chaffee, the cut-price grocer of Pasadena, who continued to advertise and sell Grogan's olive oil at less than the minimum retail selling price named in the sticker upon the case.

In its effects this decision is one of the most important rendered in grocery circles in many a day. It is a complete justification by the State's highest court of the legality of the "fixed price" principle involved in the so-called "Pacific Coast" plan of marketing goods sold through the retail grocers and recognizes the right of the manufacturer to control the price of his product through all channels of trade down to the consumer. It means the elimination of the piratical price-cutter who, by competition, forces the legitimate grocer of his neighborhood to sell goods at ruinous prices. It gives to every manufacturer the right to protect the legitimate trade against the trader who buys highly-advertised staple commodities upon which the manufacturer has built a reputation, and, by cutting the price almost to cost, seeks to capture all the trade of his neighborhood.

The Plaintiff's Claim.

In its decision the court says in part:

The case stated by the complaint is this: The plaintiff has for ten years been engaged in the manufacture and production of pure olive oil by a process of his own discovery. The oil so produced is sold and used for food, medical and commercial purposes, as plaintiff has extensively advertised to the public the fact that he manufactures a pure olive oil, and that such oil is guaranteed to be pure and wholesome. In his advertising the plaintiff has used certain designs copyrighted by him, and these designs are placed on every bottle or package of oil manufactured and sold by him as a trade-mark. By reason of these methods of advertising and dealing the plaintiff's oil has become well known, and a large quantity thereof is sold throughout the United States, and more particularly in the city of Pasadena, and elsewhere in the county of Los Angeles.

The plaintiff has affixed to every package of his oil a notice stating "that the article is sold upon the condition that the purchaser, if he retails these goods will maintain my fixed retail selling price on them; and that, if he wholesales them, he will sell them subject to the same conditions." This notice specifies the fixed retail selling price at $1.35 per half-gallon can and $2.50 per gallon can. All persons buying said olive oil agree not to sell or deliver any of it at a price less than that provided for in the notice.

Defendant's Allegations.

The defendant is a retail grocer, engaged in business in the city of Pasadena. He has bought of plaintiff olive oil under the express contract and condition that the same should not be sold at a price or prices less than those fixed by plaintiff. He has, however, refused to comply with his contract, and sells and offers for sale said oil at a price of $1.20 per half-gallon, and has advertised such offer by publication in a newspaper, and by posters, and notices posted in the windows of his store. This conduct has been continued by defendant notwithstanding plaintiff's demand that he comply with his contract. The complaint alleges that plaintiff has sustained irreparable damage, that it is impossible to ascertain the damage sustained and to be sustained, and that there is no adequate remedy at law. The prayer is for an injunction restraining defendant from advertising, selling or offering for sale the oil at prices less than those fixed by the contract, and for damages.

In support of the ruling sustaining the demurrer it is urged that the contract relied on by plaintiff is unenforceable as being in restraint of trade.

We have here no question of an attempted monopoly. "A monopoly exists where all, or so nearly all, of an article of trade or commerce within a community or district is brought within the hands of one man or set of men as to practically bring the handling or production of the commodity or thing within such control to the exclusion of competition of free traffic therein."

The Contract Valid.

The contract here relied on does not relate to any olive oil except that manufactured by plaintiff. There is no suggestion that this comprises all, or any large proportion, of the olive oil manufactured or sold in the market, supplied by plaintiff. While plaintiff alleges that he manufactures oil by a process of his own discovery, there is nothing exclusive in the product resulting from this process. All that he claims for his oil is that it is pure and wholesome. The court must assume, as a matter of common knowledge, that others may and do manufacture pure olive oil in considerable quantities.

Under these circumstances we see no reason why the contract alleged by plaintiff should not, as between the parties to it, be held to be valid. It violates no canon of public policy. By its terms the buyer is not precluded from engaging in any lawful trade. He may sell other olive oil at any price and on any conditions satisfactory to him. The producer was, in the first instance, under no obligation to sell his oil, and when he did sell it had the right to exact, as part of the consideration for the sale, a promise by the purchaser that he would not sell it at less than a stipulated price. There is nothing either unreasonable or unlawful in the effort by a manufacturer to maintain a standard price for his goods. It is simply a means of securing the legitimate benefits of the reputation which his product may have attained. Contracts similar to the one under discussion have been considered in a number of cases, and have generally been upheld where, as here, they had no tendency to create a monopoly.

The tendency of the modern decisions has been to view with greater liberality contracts claimed to be in restraint of trade. It is not every limitation on absolute freedom of dealing that is prohibited. As is said by the Supreme Court of the United States in Gibbs vs. Consolidated Gas Co., 130 U.S., 396, 409, "Public welfare is first considered and if it be not involved, and the restraint upon one party is not greater than protection to the other requires, the contract may be sustained. The question is whether, under the particular circumstances of the case, and the nature of the particular contract involved in it, the contract is or is not unreasonable." So, in People's Gas Light Co. vs. Chicago Gas Light Co., 20 Ill. App., 492, the court says: "The tendency of the courts is to regard contracts in partial restraint of competition with less disfavor than formerly, and the strictness of the ancient rule has been greatly modified by the modern decisions."

As the owner of property has the right to withhold it from sale, he can also, at the time of its sale, impose conditions upon its use without violating any rule of public policy.

Violation of Rights.

The necessary result of what we have said is that the complaint must be held sufficient. It is alleged that the defendant bought oil under an express agreement that he would not sell it at less than given prices and that he had sold

THE FARMER LOOSENS UP.

The Canadian Grocer, Toronto, Ont.:

Gentlemen,—In your article in this week's GROCER on "Merchants Suffering from Farmers Hoarding their Money," I feel there is a great deal of truth and might say that this was very forcibly brought home to me to-day in a manner to which I did not at all object. Had just finished reading the article when a well-to-do farmer of the type depicted came into the store and I handed it to him asking him to read it. He came around to me in a little while saying, "Say! I never looked at this thing from the store-keeper's point of view before. How much do I owe you?" Out came the inevitable cheque-book, and he settled then and there. Think it would pay some of our grocer friends to show that article to some of the intelligent "slow but sures."

Enc'osed please find cheque for renewal to GROCER which is nearly expired. Yours truly,

J. P. NAUGHTON,
Naughton Bros.

Elgin Mills, Ont.,

and threatened to sell it at less than such prices. This is a violation of plaintiff's right under his contract. Whether this contract could be enforced against persons who might come into possession of plaintiff's oil, with notice of the restriction imposed by him on its sale but without having made any direct agreement to respect restriction, is a question not here presented.

It is suggested rather than argued by respondent that the agreement relied on by appellant is unlawful under the provisions of the statute of 1907, entitled "An act to define trusts and to provide for criminal penalties and civil damages, and punishment of corporations, persons, firms and associations, or persons connected with them, and to promote free competition in commerce and all classes of business in this State; approved March 23, 1907, commonly known as the Cartwright Act."

It seems clear that the combination denounced by the act is one between persons occupying similar relations to the article in question—between persons, that is to say, each of whom would in the absence of agreement or combination be in a position to sell the article at any price which might seem proper to him. A sale or delivery by A to B on the condition that B shall not sell below a certain price is not a combination of "capital, skill or acts" between A and B. A has sole control of the subject of the agreement and may, as has been pointed out, sell or refuse to sell. There is no question of competition as between the parties. If the act were to be given the sweeping consideration contended for, it would make unlawful a contract whereby a manufacturer or owner appoints an agent to sell his goods and fixes the price at which such agent may sell. To prohibit transactions of this character was certainly not within the intent of the legislature. The agreement here involved is equally beyond the scope of the act.

FINISH WITH BANQUET.

As a wind up to the Retail Grocers' Hockey League of Fort William, Ont., for the season of 1909, a complimentary banquet was tendered the players last week by E. Scannell, the Honorary President and A. Ferguson, the President of the league. A splendid toast list had been arranged and many bright speeches marked the occasion.

The Loyal Toast was received with the singing of the National Anthem, "Canada" was responded to by W. W. Brown, of Owen Sound, and "Our City" by Messrs. Montgomery and Gilker. Captain Bonin of the Centre Grocers' team, and Mr. Aitken spoke for "The Retail Grocers," and J. G. McIntosh and Mr. Montgomery replied for "The Travelers." "The Ladies" were championed by Messrs. Elliott and McIntosh, while the final toast, "Our Host," was responded to by A. Bronfman, of the Mariaggi Hotel. E. Scannell officiated as toastmaster.

The banquet marked a most pleasing and appropriate finish to the Grocers' Hockey League.

TEN BUSINESS COMMANDMENTS.

A Liverpool concern has placed on the desk of each of its clerks the following ten commandments:

First—Thou shalt not wait for something to turn up, but pull off thy coat and set to work.

Second—Thou shalt not go about thy business looking like a "bum," for thy personal appearance is thy best letter of recommendation.

Third—Thou shalt not try to make excuses, and rebuke those who chide thee.

Fourth—Thou shall not wait to be told what to do.

Fifth—Thou shalt not fail to maintain thine own integrity, or do anything which will lessen thine own self-respect.

Sixth—Thou shalt not covet another fellow's job, nor his salary, nor the position which he got through hard work.

Seventh—Thou shalt not fail to live within thine own income.

Eighth—Thou shalt not fail to blow thine own horn on the proper occasion.

Ninth—Thou shalt not hesitate to say "no" when thou meanest "no."

Tenth—Thou shalt give every man a square deal. This is the last and greatest commandment, and there is none like unto it. Upon it hang all the law and the profits of business.

Produce and Provision Situation of the World

Swine Breeders Want to Send Deputation to Denmark — Farmers Apparently After a Trip—Not Enough Hogs Being Produced is the Whole Trouble — The butter and Cheese Markets.

The peculiar condition of our cured meat situation has attracted the attention of the "Swine Breeders' Association" which resulted in sending a deputation to Ottawa, to interview the Hon. Sydney Fisher, Minister of Agriculture, and ask him to appoint a commission to visit Denmark and Ireland for the purpose of investigating their methods, by which they outrival us in the English market. They consider the condition of our export trade is serious, but the arguments they use seem to be more to get a trip at the expense of the government than to raise more hogs. From the straight talk of the minister of agriculture it is evident that he understands the situation.

If the farmers produced the hogs, and they could not find a market for them, and they had to accept very low prices, then their arguments might carry weight. But the fact is that all the hogs raised by the farmers are readily bought up, at unusually high prices, and are all required to supply our own market. They also find fault with the government for not raising the duty from 2c to 4c. on imported hogs from the States, in order to protect the hog industry, although as a fact there are no hogs imported at all to interfere with their prices. They also claim that on account of the high price of feed they cannot raise hogs at a profit, and yet it is a fact that the Danes import a good deal of their feed from Canada, and in spite of this, produce bacon to compete with us in the English market. They also want to look into the co-operative packing system, with a hope of finding out to what extent our packers are bleeding them. A few years ago co-operative packing houses were started in different parts of Ontario, but a number of them, if not all, have failed. It seems that the farmers either want a trip or put the blame on somebody except on themselves—where it belongs. The whole trouble is that the farmers are not satisfied with a reasonable profit, and are continually harping on the idea that the dealers were making too much profit for themselves, and not giving it all to the farmer. Let them raise the hogs and the whole trouble will right itself.

Reports arriving from England state that really fine butter is very scarce there, and that the price of fine butter is unaltered. There is, however, a weakness in the lower grades observable. Some of the stock arriving from the antipodes shows bad condition and is being avoided by the English buyers. As a result of this, they are confining their attention to the Danish and Scandinavian stock, until the Irish creameries begin to augment the Danish shipments, when easier prices are expected. Siberian butter is in small compass. Some Canadian stock, which should have appeared earlier on the British market, is now making its appearance and outside this there is no Canadian stock showing.

The English demand for cheese is good for both Canadian and New Zealand stock. The cheese trade on both sides of the Atlantic has been disappointing this season. Competition is being carried to such lengths, that all profits have practically disappeared. This is regrettable, as it is not resulting to Canada's credit in the English market. New Zealand, Australia and other exporting countries are employing all kinds of measures to promote the trade with the old country, while Canada's is going behind. Higher prices still are expected all over the world, before the new make comes onto the market.

MONTREAL.

PROVISIONS—Prices remain firm, at the advance of a week ago for live hogs. Supplies are fairly large, for which the demand continues exceedingly good, and sales of selected lots were made at $7.90 to $8 and straight lots at $7.75 to $7.85 per 100 lbs. weighed off cars. A fairly active trade, continues to be done in dressed hogs and prices are unchanged. Abattoir fresh killed, sold at $10.50 to $11, and Manitoba dressed at $10 to $10.25 per 100 lbs. The demand for hams and bacon is steadily increasing, and an active trade will be done this week, as buyers are providing for their Easter requirements. No change in lard, pure or compound, has been recorded during the week.

BUTTER—The butter situation is easier. A few factories are opening this week. Fall creamery is still plentiful, and holders are now sacrificing in view of the arrival of the new stock. PROVISIONS—Scarcity of hogs is the troublesome feature of the provision trade, which puts the business on the "bum" as one packer stated. Some of the packing houses are running on short time, which adds to the cost of manufacturing, and consequently reduces the margin of profit to the packer. The demand is good, and prices are firm and well maintained.

BUTTER—"How is the butter market this week?" "Well, it is not altogether sick, but it is tired. It has not fairly recovered yet from its worst condition," was the answer to The Grocer's query. There is any quantity of last summer's creamery in the market, which was held on speculation, and which has now to be sold at whatever it will bring. Much of this butter, although well made is off flavor, and is sold at a loss of from 5 to 7c a lb. A very excellent lot of packed creamery was noticed, which is put up in large packages of over 100 lbs. This, being better than the smaller packages, shows that butter should be put up in larger packages if it is intended to be held for some time.

EGGS—This is the greatest egg week in the year and as the requirements have to depend largely on this week's receipts, there is considerable speculation going on as to how the prices will go. Some are afraid they will not have enough, and yet are afraid to buy. However, one thing is certain: that eggs will not drop enough to cause very heavy losses, if any. Eggs do not now, as they used to do some years ago, drop from 25 and 30c down to 10 and 12c. They are now 19 to 20c and they are not likely to go below 17c to the retailer.

GOOD AND BAD BUTTER.

Another Communication on the Question as to Whether Butter is Improving or Not.

By M. Moyer.

Chief Dairy Commissioner J. A. Ruddick has evidently misunderstood me, according to his letter in The Canadian Grocer last week when he says that he did not agree with me, that the average quality of butter in Ontario is not as good as it was 25 years ago.

I said that about 25 years ago the first special effort was made to improve the quality of our butter, and through the aid of the government the effects were soon felt and the butter was much improved. Yet 25 years after such an experience, we have tons of butter unfit for human food.

On the whole, butter is certainly much better than it was 25 years ago, but it is an undisputed fact that the quality of butter has been gradually growing worse during the last several years, and this is what I am complaining about and what should be looked into. There is no excuse for this, and the cause should be discovered and the trouble remedied.

Some claim that the butter is not worse, but the people's tastes have been developed and a higher quality is required to suit their wishes. This, however, seems to be a weak excuse when the butter is before you in its rankest form and utterly bad. The fact of the matter I claim is carelessness on the parts of the farmers caused through lack of the ever necessary education that must come from the consumer to the producer.

The proposed legislation under which the government will assume supervision over creameries, cheese factories and over their managers, might perhaps be extended to cover all who are handling butter. If the government takes the power to say whether a creamery is in a sanitary condition, or a manager understands his business why not go a step further and in some way have supervision over the many dairies all over the country. This, at once, may be considered impossible, and that the principle is too domineering. What is wanted in the interests of all classes is good butter, and that can only be obtained by paying the maker according to the quality of the butter.

We do not need to send inspectors to see that our tailor shops are properly equipped or whether the tailor holds a certificate of qualification. If he does not do good work the people will not buy his goods. This is the only education he needs, and if the farmer would get this education he would soon become wise. If the clothes of say 100 tailors were all paid for at the same price, and then thrown in one lot and sold at the same price, how long would they all do good work. This is the position the farmer is placed in. All the butter is bought by storekeepers at the same price and the good must help to bear the loss of the bad. If the government will give us a law by which a plan can be devised to give the good butter makers a fair chance, I think the trouble can be overcome.

CANADIAN BACON HOG.

It is of a Leaner Type Than the Hog Which Produces the Best Hams.

A recent issue of the "Daily Consular and Trade Reports" issued by the Department of Commerce and Labor of the United States says :—"Consul W. H. H. Webster, of Niagara Falls, transmits a Canadian press clipping which states that the Dominion hog raisers and packers have been forced, through lack of market facilities for fat hogs, to produce the leaner bacon type, which can be sold to advantage on the British market and is suitable for the export trade."

"This is true," said an authority when interviewed, "but this hog is not only suitable for export trade. It is the hog that produces the bacon, of which Canadians, as well as the Englishmen are so fond so that very little of it can be spared for export. A bacon hog is not a ham hog, and through the introduction of this hog more bacon is used, and the hams are principally boiled and sold that way. This has proven to be the most profitable hog here, although in the States they count more on a hog with better hams."

IMPORT CANADIAN TEA.

New York, April 5.—The very large number of samples of tea being received at the Appraiser's Stores here from Buffalo, Rouse's Point, Charlotte and other ports of entry on the Canadian boundary indicate that tea is being brought into the United States from Canada in considerable quantities.

No importation can be entered, however, until a sample is examined by an expert and pronounced to be equal to the standards of strength and purity as prescribed by a specially appointed Government board.

Tea examiners are stationed at New York, Chicago, San Francisco, Seattle and other important customs points, and since the Ways and Means Committee reported favorably a tax on tea, they have been particularly busy with samples forwarded from the Canadian boundary points.

So far, it is learned, no very large number of rejections have been made by reason of the importations being adjudged below standard, but the examiners are keeping a strict watch and will see to it that the standards as prescribed are rigorously maintained.

In the tea trade it is a disputed point whether or not the importers of Canadian teas are using good business judgment and stand to make or lose money.

The tea trade feel that President Taft's recent pronunciamento against adding to the cost of the necessaries of life has materially strengthened their position. Some of the well informed are beginning to believe that the duty was fixed simply to arouse the public at large to the necessity of increased revenues, and that later the tea provision will be removed from the bill.

News of the Flour, Feed and Cereal Markets

Quiet Business Done in Eastern Canada in Flour But Export Trade is Good—Great Scarcity of Bran in Quebec—Falling Off in Cereal Trade With Approach of Spring.

April 6.—Trade in flour during the week has only been fair. The eastern markets in Canada have not been as good as usual, and in Ontario also trade is quiet. This condition of affairs, however, is not expected to continue, for as soon as the buyers get accustomed to the prices business is likely to revive. Some millers report a splendid export demand while others have had enquiries. No changes have occurred in prices, but another advance would not be a surprise.

As usual at this time of year, the cereal trade is declining somewhat. Cereal goods do not move well in the warm weather, especially rolled oats. The prices are, however, holding their own in view of the firm figures at which wheat and oats are being maintained. The supply of Ontario wheat is reported light, too, and one firm stated it had difficulty in securing what it needed. Collections are said to be improving.

In the feed market bran is represented as being very scarce and the demand is hard to supply.

MONTREAL.

FEED—The scarcity of bran is the chief feature of this market. All the millers are imposing certain restrictions on its sale by way of forcing the dealers to take a certain amount of flour. One firm stated they were selling none outside their own customers for any consideration. No quotable changes have taken place in prices.

TORONTO.

FLOUR—The Manitoba wheat flour has not yet advanced in price on account of the differences of the western millers, and the winter wheat variety is firm since the advance mentioned last week. Locally, the trade has been quiet during the week but the export was good and at advancing prices. The London market is, of course, the objective point. The dull season here just now is to be expected. The Eastern Canadian trade, as one miller remarked, had "collapsed," but as soon as buyers get accustomed to the prices he thought there would be a revival of interest in the flour market.

CEREALS—"People don't eat much rolled oats during the warm weather you know," remarked one of the cereal millers on being asked regarding the trade conditions. There is, therefore, a dullness in the cereal trade due to the opening up of the spring, but this is usual at this time of year. Wheat cereals move better than the others during the summer. On account of the high prices of grains the dull season has yet had no effect on the cereal prices.

SUGAR BEET BUSINESS.

Wallaceburg Sugar Co. Likely to Declare Handsome Dividend—Industry Becomes Profitable.

Advance reports bearing on the forthcoming meeting of the Wallaceburg Sugar Co., to be held in May, indicate that the beet sugar business has in recent years been attended with profits. It seems that the above company under good management has been getting along favorably since they began business and that they have been making improvements to their establishment. During the first five or six years their profits were used for the betterment of their buildings but this year they will be able to pay a handsome dividend. It is true that the present law permits the importation of two pounds of raw beet-sugar for each one pound taken from Canadian soil but outside of that fact the growing of the sugar-beet and the refining of the beet sugar has been of considerable importance to business in Ontario.

The success made by the Wallaceburg Sugar Company illustrates, to a certain extent at least, that the beet-sugar industry is not likely to decline. The company has now a substantial plant and since they have acquired the Ontario Sugar Co.'s factory at Berlin the growing of beets should increase.

A couple of years ago the law regarding the importation of raw beet-sugar was placed on the statutes and it expires at the end of the present calendar year. A continuation of the same tariff will, however, be requested and at the present time a memorandum has been drawn up for the Minister of Finance giving reasons for the continuance.

From a consideration of the situation it seems that the request of the beet-sugar men should be granted by the Dominion Government, leaving the customs tariff the same as established in 1907.

The memorandum points out that the refining of a ton of beet-sugar during 1907-08, including the payment of the grower and the making of the sugar ready for use was found to be, at the factory at Wallaceburg, $74.32. It also states that before the last tariff arrangement, the manufacturers of the beet-sugar could operate the factory and refinery for the short period of 100 days a year, whereas now the privilege given enables him to operate the year round. It keeps the capital and plant at steady earnings and enables the manufacturer to retain the services of his accounting staff, his experts and laborers without the loss or distraction inherent to a short campaign and a long vacation in any kind of human industry; and it maintains for him the conditions which establish a continuity of trade from year to year.

CORN GROWERS MEET.

Chatham, April 7.—Following on the recent corn growers' gathering in Essex, a similar meeting of Kent corn growers was held at Fletcher last week, many farmers being present. The object of the meeting was to discuss the selection and growing of the proper type of the different varieties of seed corn for the eastern market. J. H. Williams, of Fletcher, was chairman, and addresses were given by A. McKenney, B.S.A., of Essex, secretary of the Ontario Corn Growers' Association, and representative local farmers. Unity among the farmers seemed to be the keynote of the various discussions.

A large number of delegates favored holding the next provincial corn exhibition in a location more central than Essex, opinion being chiefly divided between Chatham and Tilbury. The location will be settled by the executive. A series of evening meetings will be held throughout the corn-raising districts of Kent in the course of the next two weeks.

The action of the Ontario Department of Agriculture in aiding the farmers to grow better and more produce is a direct benefit to merchants in villages and country towns and should be endorsed by them.

Why it pays the dealer to concentrate on Christie's Biscuits—

YOU may have the brightest and cleanest store in your town. The first impression people get of it may be most favorable.

That first impression is important, but it won't go far unless backed up by the right goods.

For instance, a woman is attracted to your store by its appearance of cleanliness—by an atmosphere that seems to indicate the best of everything. When she gets inside let her see, prominently displayed, such standard lines as Christie's Biscuits and her confidence is won.

If she's thinking of biscuits, "Christie's" is the first name that comes to her mind. Other brands may be good, but she knows that Christie's are good—and that they cost no more.

By the use of your own personal recommendation you may persuade her to try another brand, on which your profit is slightly larger. What is the result?

This customer figures that you have deliberately deceived her, and unless she's very dull she will see your motive at once. Right here is where your store gets a black eye—and loses trade.

For sound business reasons, it will pay you to always give Christie's Biscuits the preference. In the first place they sell quicker than any others, and in the second place you can always rely on them giving thorough satisfaction.

Concentrate on Christie's and you'll find the volume of your biscuit trade increase to such an extent that the little extra profit per box on other brands will present no temptation.

Besides, Christie's Biscuits help you sell more than biscuits.

The Grocer's Encyclopedia From Week to Week

The History of the Ginger Plant and the Varieties of the Spice Produced—Obtained From the Root of a Tree—How it is Adulterated—The Uses of Ginger.

GINGER.—This well-known spice is obtained from the knotty fibrous roots of Zingiber officinale, a reed-like perennial plant, native of China and the East Indies, but also found growing wild in East Africa and Mexico, and now cultivated in several tropical countries, especially in Jamaica. The sorts commonly met with are Jamaica, Cochin, Bengal, Tellichery, Japanese and African, and these range in value from $450 to $140 per cwt. They may be bought in various conditions, whole, ground, washed, unwashed, spent, scraped and cut.

A number of tea planters in Madras have taken up the culture of ginger. As the movement is yet in its infancy, it is as yet impossible to say if it will be a financial success. It flourishes best on rich well-drained clayey loam, from small pieces of the tuber planted about four inches deep and nine to twelve inches apart. In Jamaica it is planted in March or April, after which the whole ground is soon covered with long green leaves, nearly like maize leaves, and little flowers slightly tinged with green appear in September, when the stems of the plant are three to four feet high. The flowers and leaves rise from separate stems; those of the former are shorter than those of the latter, and only average from six to twelve inches in length. The flowers having withered and seeded, the roots are dug up about the latter end of January. If left too long in the ground, the tubers put forth stems, and then become fibrous, but if taken up earlier they are only about five or six inches long, very succulent and suitable for preserving. The real roots of the ginger plant are the thin fibers which are given off from the knotty tubers, races, or "hands," as these are termed in commerce. The yield per acre is about 4,000 lbs. Ginger may be cured as either bleached or unbleached.

The black or stone brown whole ginger of commerce usually consists of the older, tough or horny roots and have been simply discolored by scalding them in water and then drying in the sun. They are of inferior strength and flavor.

OAK LAKE, MANITOBA

The Bleaching of Gingers.

Whole white ginger is usually of a superior quality, selected and prepared from the best and soundest "hands" and joints, by scraping off the outer dark colored part and then carefully drying without scalding. The bleaching or coating of gingers is usually performed after they reach the first markets, and is effected by burning sulphur or chlorinated lime, and then covering with the sulphate or carbonate of calcium, so as to protect it from the ravages of insects. The chief sorts are Cochin, Jamaica and African. The best Cochin is the unbleached new, dry, plump and heavy and pale buff colored. It is chalky or mealy inside, without worm holes, and cuts softly and evenly. African ginger, while unsuitable for many purposes on account of its coarse appearance, dark color, harsh flavor and inferior aroma, it really yields the highest percentage of oleoresin, viz., 6 to 9 per cent.. and the most pungent essence.

Varieties of the Spice.

Whole ginger, especially coarse African, is largely employed in making ginger beer, ginger essences, extracts, etc.

Washed ginger is or should be ginger which has been cleaned in acidulated water to protect it from worms.

Green ginger is ginger which has been sliced up into thin flakes.

Spent ginger often sold to grocers as washed ginger, consists of whole ginger, which has been boiled and steamed, or otherwise exhausted in making cordials, ginger beer, etc. Frequently the best ginger is treated with a solvent, generally an alcohol, whereby the extractive matters capable of being extracted are obtained, leaving only the woody fibre and starchy matters. The extract is largely used by extract manufacturers and confectioners. It generally falls into the hands of parties who either bleach it, and dry it, or grind it up into powder. This is finally palmed off on the retailers either as genuine whole ginger, or mixed with pickling spice. If ground it is either sold separately or mixed with other ground ginger, but, of course, these uses are illegal, and subject the retailer to a fine. Sometimes it is ground up and mixed in ground pepper.

Spent ginger, of course, lacks the more valuable properties of the vital constituent, namely, the essential oil, and has little taste or smell of ginger, but it may contain certain ill-defined resinous bodies and have a slightly pungent taste. When whole, a hard, horny shell of dark color may be noticed on cutting ginger, that has been boiled and redried, while if it has undergone alcoholic extraction, usually weak spirit of wine, it will probably have a light, crumbly, disintegrated appearance.

Ginger Adulterants.

All the authorities are agreed that the percentage of soluble ash is the all-important factor for determining the proportion of exhausted or spent ginger in a suspected sample. Ginger cannot be extracted by water, or by weak spirit

Quit Taking the Other Man's Dust

IN EVERY race there's but one first. The others must take his dust. Running your business, are you content to plod along in the wake of "the other fellow" without striving to forge ahead or lessen the distance between? Who wants to be an "also ran?"

¶ There is no better way to increase your profits than to increase your patrons, and there's no better way to increase your patrons than to sell better flour. When you talk FIVE ROSES, you will notice a responsive flutter of the purse strings; the trade worth having cannot overlook FIVE ROSES. You'll notice also that they come back a little sooner for they eat more, and they always come back without it—you're never asked to refund on ROSES!

¶ The Keewatin millers are not novices. As a matter of business-building fact, they have made an art of flour-making and practise it along the lines which have made FIVE ROSES the model for a host of imitations and the expressions "just as good as ROSES" the highest praise that "near-good" flourmen have yet discovered for their product.

¶ To sell FIVE ROSES is evidence that you are building on the solid foundation of meritorious goods, that there is no attempt to build up a clientele upon the flimsy basis of shoddy goods and loud promises never fulfilled. Invariably to sell good flour is to eventually corner the good trade.

¶ Good goods make you dissatisfied with the other fellow's leavings—the trade he doesn't care to keep. FIVE ROSES means you are headed for the front—that you don't propose to take any man's dust. You can't exaggerate the merits of good goods, and that' all we claim for FIVE ROSES—that it is good flour, so good that it has no second. In flourdom there's but one FIVE ROSES—the others are "followers," they take our dust. Make them take yours!

¶ Not only the best, but the best known. Better than what you are now selling. You wouldn't want your customers to know that, would you?

of wine without removing a corresponding proportion of this substance, and the normal proportion of this substance never falls below a certain figure. The lowest on record is 1.41 per cent., and it is the only one. The next lowest are 1.70 and 1.71, so that 1.70 is a very low standard indeed to base upon. The average is 2.18, and the maximum 3.05 per cent. of soluble ash. The common adulterants to be expected in ground ginger are tumeric, wheat flour, husk of mustard seed, sago, etc.

The coloring compounds used consist of equal parts of potato flour, and wheat flour, to which finely ground tumeric, of best quality, is added. The chief use of ginger is as a condiment or spice, but it is also used as an aromatic and stomachic medicine. The stimulant aromatic and carminative properties render it of much value in atonic dyspepsia, especially if accompanied with much flatulence, and as an adjunct to purgative medicines to correct griping. Externally applied as a rubefacient, it has been found to relieve headache and toothache. The rhizomes collected in a green state, washed, scraped and preserved in syrup form a delicious preserve. Cut up into pieces like a lozenge, and preserved in sugar, ginger also forms a very agreeable sweetmeat.

WILL THEY WIN OR LOSE?

Results of Speculation on Supposition That Coffee Would be Taxed.

The failure of the Payne Tariff Bill to propose a duty on coffee and to endorse one on tea, has been keeping dealers in these lines in the United States and in other countries guessing as to the results attending the announcement. As originally drawn the bill had a schedule imposing a heavy tariff on coffee, and it was estimated that the coffee speculators who were rushing shiploads of the fragrant bean to the United States would make $25,000,000 to $40,000,000. But after the conference in Washington the night before the terms of the bill were made known the coffee clause had been knocked out. It then looked as if the great coffee coup had been transformed at one blow into a gigantic fiasco.

Now it has been discovered that the Payne bill has a little joker bearing on the coffee question. Perhaps the speculators will still be able to make millions under the new tariff law.

Syndicate Behind Movement.

A despatch from St. Louis, Mo., to the New York Commercial states that Cyrus F. Blanke, head of the C. F. Blanke Tea and Coffee Company, one of the biggest importing firms in the Middle West, has declared that if coffee is taken from the free list and a tariff placed on it it will enable two of the three largest coffee syndicates in the United States to clean up from $20,000,000 to $30,000,000 within sixty days after the schedule, as proposed, becomes effective.

The ultimate consumer will have to pay for this "killing," Mr. Blanke declares. He says these coffee syndicates are behind the movement to have Congress impose a four per cent. tariff and through their efforts misleading information has been placed in the hands of representatives.

"A New York syndicate, composed of three of the greatest importing corporations, is active for a tariff because it will gain them millions," he said. "Between them they now have in New York or en route from their warehouses in Europe nearly four million bags of coffee. With a strong movement on foot to put a tariff on coffee the supply the syndicate owns in Europe is being shipped to New York to get it into the country before such a tax goes on.

"The result of a tariff will be that other United States importers cannot get coffee from Brazil without paying the regular export tariff, the special tax and the tariff for entrance to this country. Opposed to them is this vast supply in New York in the hands of these syndicates."

It therefore seems that the people are very much puzzled over this coffee tax and as to whether the speculators will win $25,000,000 or lose it is just now a live question across the line.

AN IMPORTANT CHANGE.

The announcement that the American Can Company has acquired the Norton Can Company has been confirmed by the heads of the company in Hamilton. An official statement from the firm says the plant and business has been sold to the American Can Company, of New Jersey, and that the owners would take posession on Thursday of last week. Kenneth Bethune and H. P. Nichols, formerly with the Norton Company, will be retained as local representatives of the new owners, and W. C. Breckenridge the president of the old company, will shortly retire. Large additions to the plant are contemplated.

The Board of Trade of Port Hope, Ont., at its last meeting decided on an aggressive advertising campaign with a view to obtaining more industries. The Publicity Committee reported having taken initial steps for the proposed invasion of the United States.

Canadian Fruit, Vegetable and Fish Markets

Holiday Times Brighten up the Fruit Market—Steamers Expected at Montreal—Canadian Vegetables Increase in Value—Splendid Week for Fish.

MONTREAL.

GREEN FRUITS—The holiday season has brightened business up very much. All the fruit men report good business. Apples have strengthened 50c, and all varieties are very scarce. Strawberries are arriving more freely, and are selling at 40c. Lemons are 25c cheaper this week. California and Florida oranges are from 10 to 30c higher. Other lines are unchanged.

VEGETABLES—Trade in vegetables is getting more brisk. Many of the local jobbers have gone to New York, for the purpose of making better arrangement for bringing shipment of goods to this market. In some cases prices have shaded off considerably, while in others, they have gone forward. Stock arriving from the south has been fairly free, consequently a shading off has taken place, while Canadian stock has appreciated in value. This is about the logical state of affairs at this time of the year. Marrows and squash have practically disappeared from the market. Spanish onions are scarce. Florida celery at $3.25 to $3.50 a crate has made its appearance.

TORONTO.

GREEN FRUITS—There is considerable activity in the market this week, prices are firm and in some cases higher, especially California navel oranges which are scarce on account of the rainy weather interfering with picking, and are about 25c dearer. Louisiana strawberries made there first appearance in good shape and are sold at 15c a box. This box is called a pint, but for some reason the bottom does not seem to be where it should be to hold good measure. The steamship "A Ciampa" is due in Montreal soon with 4,600 boxes of lemons and 3,800 boxes of oranges. The steamship "Fremona" has also left the Mediterranean ports for Montreal, but what she has on, is not reported. All fruits from southern Europe arrive in good condition and keep our market well supplied.

VEGETABLES—All kinds of new vegetables are coming in freely and the demand increases with the summer like appearance of the weather. The market is fairly active, and a happy feeling prevails among the dealers. While they are almost too busy to give attention to so unprofitable a customer as the "Grocer" representative, they show a cheerfulness which is at least encouraging, if they do not give just what he wants as an exact report of the state of the market. Cabbage is scarce, but celery is more plentiful. This may be a little against the Dutchman, but his time comes later when he can buy three FISH—This is the great fish week of the year and all dealers are hard at work—scarcely taking time to look at the fisher for prices. Venturing, however, to ask amidst the rush and hustle "How is the fish market this morning?" the reply comes prompt and quick without the least slackening up in his work: "Better than ever—never been so booming before—make enough money to last us a year." "Are you still selling frozen fish?" "Some houses may, but that is not us." Fresh caught white fish and trout are still scarce, although more are expected every day. Prices on the whole are about the same. The held stock is sold out very well and not much more will be offered this season.

Too Many Lobster Canneries, Says Commissioner

About 700 in Canada and 217 in Nova Scotia — Evidence Heard Before Special Committee on Marine and Fisheries—Appointment of a Special Administrator of Fisheries Alone is Advocated—Possibilities of Canadian Trade With Europe in Live Lobsters.

That the Dominion government is desirous of probing into the fishing industry of Canada is seen by the appointment recently of the special committee on Marine and Fisheries and the evidence taken before it during its sitting last month. The particular industry considered was that pertaining to the lobster and Prof. Prince, Commissioner of Fisheries, was called upon to answer numerous questions relating to peculiarities of the lobster and the best methods for its propagation.

It appears that the lobster fishing on the Atlantic coast has been carried on too extensively. Prof. Prince believed there should be some kind of a permit issued to fishermen so that fishing might be kept under control and thought that there should be restrictions to the number of packing licenses. He would restrict the number of traps as in all other fisheries. There was a marked decline in the number of lobsters during the past two or three years which he attributed to temporary fluctuation. In some places the number had increased due to the same fluctuations occurring in all fisheries.

One of the members of the committee stated that the fishermen were going further out to sea and really striking at the mother home of the lobster and wanted to know the effect of their going outside the old limits in which they used to fish.

To Preserve the Supply.

Prof. Prince answered that if the lobster fishing could be kept out a little distance—but not so far as to cause the capture of too many of the full grown females—it would enable the schools of small immature lobsters, which came in shore to be better protected. This would tend to enhance the supply.

The discussion next followed into the channel as to the necessity or otherwise of appointing a man to look after the administrative work of the fisheries department, independent of marine affairs.

"The fisheries of this country have been growing in complexity and extending in every direction," replied the Professor. "Fisheries that did not exist 15 or 20 years ago are now large industries. On the Pacific Coast and in the Northwest the fisheries are coming to the front and it seems to me it is absolutely essential that there should be some division between Marine and Fisheries."

The marine affairs, being more important, had overshadowed the fisheries in the administrative work and both branches, thought Prof. Prince, had grown so that they were almost unwieldy in the hands of one deputy minister. In the United States there was a head official who looks after the fisheries and has no other work to do.

Restricting Packing Licenses.

"Will you tell us what the purpose is in restricting the number of licenses granted to pack lobsters?" was asked.

"The restriction of licenses for canning lobsters is in line with that of the issue of all fishery licenses, and implies that the authority which issues these licenses exercises a certain amount of discretion based on knowledge of the possibilities of the fisheries in the locality concerned. Every license issued by a fisheries department, in this country or in any other country, implies that the department is exercising a certain amount of control and discretion and can grant or refuse licenses."

He thought the number of lobster canneries had reached the maximum in almost every locality and that to discourage the building of new canneries or the operation of new canneries was a good step in regard to the preservation of lobsters.

Lobster Canneries in Nova Scotia.

There are now more than 700 lobster canneries in Canada of which number there are 217 in Nova Scotia. Five or six years ago there were about 20 more than that.

In view of the fact that so many lobsters are shipped alive now to the United States, it was asked as to whether it would make any difference in the number of lobsters actually caught if greater facilities for canning were available. This was answered by stating that the canning of lobsters had been a paying industry and that there is such a very large demand for lobsters that everyone who has gone into it has been able to make money and the tendency is therefore for more to enter the occupation. Instead of the live lobster trade taking away from the canning industry, the latter has grown alongside of the former which was really going to end the lobster supply. Personally he was of the opinion that ultimately the live lobster trade will entirely do away with canning altogether and in a few years. It was the tendency in all food product industries to ship the product in what might be termed the nearest to the natural condition instead of in its manufactured condition.

"That being the case, do you not think that your argument in respect to the increase of these canneries is weak?"

"No," replied Prof. Prince, "that is not the case because the live lobster trade requires large lobsters and the canneries will pack all the small ones, so that you have them destroyed in increased numbers on that account."

Europe Demands Live Lobsters.

He thought that 8 or 10 cents a lb. would be the outside price of lobsters for canning whereas a live lobster would bring two or three times that amount sold by weight. As much as 40 cents each have been paid for live lobsters in some years, which is exceptional of course. There is far more money in the live lobster trade because, of course, in the weight of the live lobster the shell and everything else is counted in. There is an immense demand in Europe for live lobsters which has really not been developed and I anticipate that within a very few years it will increase. Norway is shipping practically every lobster it produces to London, and realizes five times the amount per lobster that our men earn. There is no reason in the world, he thought, bearing in mind the improved transportation facilities contemplated by the government such as a direct line to France—we already have direct lines to London—why live lobsters should not be shipped from Canada to those markets where better prices are got. The market of France cannot be glutted, for example, because there is a demand for all the lobsters that can be shipped to that country.

"The Boston market," he said, "is easily glutted because Massachusetts and Maine are its sources of lobster supply and they ship a very large amount of lobsters into their own markets. In Maine and Massachusetts there is no canning now. I think there is not a single lobster cannery in the United States at the present moment, I think I am right in that, and they find it pays better and preserves the lobster better to adopt the live lobster trade rather than the canning business. There is, of course, the method of boiling lobsters first and shipping them in cold storage. That method has been introduced latterly. The lobsters have been boiled and chilled and shipped in that way and it seems to me there is a great field open for shipping lobsters in that form to our own cities and the Old Country, where the lobster is quite a rarity. The same thing, I anticipate, will take place in the case of lobsters which was witnessed with respect to salmon. A few years ago salmon in England was a luxury which very few could enjoy. Now immense quantities are being shipped from British Columbia, of chilled or frozen salmon. I think the same thing can be done with lobsters, that you can create a demand for lobsters which does not at present exist to the full extent. I think that if lobsters were sent into those European markets a great many people would buy them who do not do so at present because they are too costly.

"Lobsters are more expensive in Canada than in the United States, but some canners and dealers in Nova Scotia, and indeed other provinces, have been selling direct to French and English buyers and are doing far better than they did when shipping them through United States buyers. There are certain big lobster combinations in the United States that sometimes get control of a large number of canneries, for instance such as the Portland Packing Company, but it would be difficult to dislodge them. The Portland Packing Company has control of a large number of our canneries but that company has acted very wisely in some ways by helping the department in lobster protection. My own feeling is that if our canners could deal directly with the buyers in Europe they would reap far larger results. Of course, I known the difficulties in the way. Some lobster men have asked my advice and I have advised them to take a trip to London to study the conditions of the market for themselves. Some of them have done so and it has proved a beneficial trip for them. But there is one primary necessity: they must ship a good article and I am afraid that some of the lobsters packed in Canada would not stand the test if sold in London."

SOUTH AFRICAN FRUIT.

Obstacles in Shipping to Canada Now Successfully Overcome.

At a time when green fruits are entirely off the market on the Northern Hemisphere Southern Africa promises to fill that space, so that fresh peaches, pears, plums, etc., may be eaten in Canada all the year round.

Only a few years ago, the possibility of accomplishing this was, even in the minds of the most sanguine, very doubtful. Three years ago the first attempt to bring fruit here was made, but it was not encouraging. Many difficulties have since been overcome and this year, for the first time, they have been landed in Toronto in first-class condition. The time required to bring them this great distance is about 30 days, and it took a great deal of experimenting to find out just at what stage of ripeness to take them from the trees, and also how, and in what kind of cases to pack them. It was even found that the wood of that country was not suitable for boxes to pack them in. The wood there is pitchy, and has an aroma which is absorbed by the fruit and causes a taint.

These difficulties are, however, all overcome and as that country is admirably adapted for the cultivation of fruit, and rapidly developed through the aid of the Government, South Africa will, in the near future, be one of the greatest fruit producing countries of the world. The transportation from such a distant country is unavoidably heavy, but this also will be largely reduced through shipping arrangements which are partly completed.

The rapid development of this industry in South Africa is remarkable, and much credit has been given to the late Cicil Rhodes, who may be considered as the pioneer in stimulating this industry to its rapid and remarkable growth.

NEW MANITOBA STRAWBERRY.

This year Manitoba will probably see the production of the first strawberry which that province can call its own. The new fruit was originated by W. Buchanan of the Buchanan Nursery Co., Winnipeg. This berry is described as being of large size and quality and a prolific fruiter. The plant is vigorous and hardy. The "Dakota," another new strawberry originated by crossing the wild Manitoba berry with a large cultivated variety, is also being offered this season. It is said to retain the hardiness of the wild berry, while giving fruit much larger.

Fruit Traveler is Held Up by the Regina Police

Represented British Columbia Firm and is Asked to Pay Transient Traders' License of $100—Finally Convinces Officer of the Law That He Does Not Need a License—Cause of Interference Said to be Due to Tactics of United States Fruit Agents.

Regina, April 3.—J. S. Fee, the traveling salesman for the Vernon Fruit Co. of B. C., who sells Canadian fruit throughout the province of Saskatchewan, had an encounter with the city police on Monday which first of all annoyed him excessively, and afterwards moved him to great mirth.

Mr. Fee received a car of apples from his firm Monday morning and proceeded forthwith to sell them to the local wholesale firms. He had hardly commenced upon his business as a commercial traveler before a city constable called upon him at his hotel and informed him that he could not begin to sell his goods unless he paid the $100 license which the city by-law requires from those who peddle goods within the city limits. After a considerable amount of explanation, the city police intimated to him that he could continue his business, and that he was not considered to be a peddler within the meaning of the by-law.

The incident of itself would not be worthy of very much comment as it might have been an error on the part of the police or the city authorities, but J. S. Fee claims that it happened as the outcome of an organized policy on the part of some fruit firms who deal, for the most part, in United States fruit. He stated that the persons who were at the back of the attempt to take $100 away from him are the same people who endeavored recently to get the city council of Saskatoon to place a tax of $300 upon all travelers who dealt with merchants in the city in the fruit line. The application was refused.

Fruit Prices Lessened.

Independent of the fact that if each of the cities of the west levied a fine of $100 upon each commercial traveler, the majority of travelers would be compelled to go out of business, J. S. Fee commented upon the curious state of affairs which made it possible for the representative of a firm which sold Canadian produce to be held up in this manner; while no attention of the same nature was given to United States firms, whose goods were almost entirely imported, also, he stated, that the opposition which the Canadian firms have brought to bear upon their rivals had brought down the price of oranges almost two dollars a box within two years, and that without such competition, the price of fruit would be considerably higher throughout the entire west.

Arousing Interest.

The matter of the tentative interference by the city police with J. S. Fee, while Mr. Fee was engaged in the pursuance of his mission as a commercial traveler, seems to have caused more interest among the wholesale shippers of the city than it appears to warrant at first sight.

On Monday afternoon, J. S. Fee interviewed the chief of police and the city clerk. He convinced them that he was not a person who was liable under the transient by-law and that he should not be mulcted in the sum of $100, the license which the city imposes upon transient traders, A transient trader is a person, who does not have a regular place of business in the city, but who sells goods, in either large or small quantities to the wholesale merchants of the city.

The episode is at an end as far as the present time is concerned, or, to be more accurate, as far as the present shipment brought in by J. S. Fee is concerned.

FRUIT AND EGG PRESERVATION.

refrigeration ; his method being simply to pluck the fruit at height of sun, to avoid all adhering dampness, and immediately pack in prepared cases containing granulated sugar. Care must be taken that the sugar utilized for the purpose is also quite devoid of moisture, and the cases should be so constructed as to be as nearly as possible impervious to atmospheric vapors. Both the sugar and the cases, as may be inferred, should be designed for and admit of constant re-use. My informant promises that successful results will follow the adoption of this method, although his experiments have been on such a small scale that he is unable to supply me with the fuller details of relative cost and exact structure of case.

The great fluctuation in the price of fresh eggs in Great Britain, ranging from 15 cents per dozen in summer to 60 to 75 cents per dozen in winter—and procured with difficulty even then—gives popularity to the economical practice of artificially preserving them during the cheap season ; the most successful method employed by the householder being as follows :

"Mix together in an earthenware jar 9 parts of boiled water, which has been thoroughly cooled, and 1 part of glass water. Glass water is obtained by fusing 2 parts of quartz sand with 1 of sodium carbonate, adding one-tenth part of small coal. Place the cool cleaned eggs into a jar and cover well with the liquid, continually adding sufficient liquid to keep the eggs entirely covered as others are added. Water glass can be purchased in this country of chemists, and generally bears on the labels the exact proportion to be used, varying from 3 to 10 per cent. Eggs preserved in this way are less brittle in the shell than those preserved in lime water, and will sometimes boil without cracking if a small pin-point aperture is made in them."

The proportions used for the lime preservative in Scotland are 20 gallons of water, 4 of lime, and 1 of salt. Allow to stand for a few hours, then pour it over the eggs in the same way as the water glass. A little lime should be added from time to time, during the period of preservation ; otherwise, the solution will lose its strength. The eggs preserved in this way become rough and brittle and must be handled carefully when taken out for use.

When eggs are only required to be preserved for two or three months they keep very well packed in dry salt or bran. The meat of the egg may shrink and rattle within the shell when shaken, but its edibility is not impaired. Coating the egg with vaseline or butter will also keep it for a short time, or any application which effectively seals the pores of the shell and excludes air will prolong the freshness of eggs. If it is even momentarily submerged in boiling water, the albumen thereby becomes sufficiently coagulated to prevent the entrance of air. In some of the rural parts of this country eggs for home consumption are smutted over with a mixture of sulphur and lampblack, a cheap and effective preservative.

If you've done a good business in a dirty store, don't think it has been on account of the dirt.

Revival Among the Western Retail Merchants

Meeting Held to Discuss the Tangled Affairs of the Association and a Receiver Appointed—Country Merchants Dissatisfied With Way Business Has Been Carried on—Reorganization Likely to be Effected.

Winnipeg, April 3.—The Retail Merchants of Western Canada met in the rooms of the association on Tuesday, March 30th, for the purpose of disentangling the affairs of the association. The feeling was quite strong that some misuse had been made of the funds, but no specific instance could immediately be shown whereby a case of criminal negligence could be laid.

Lawyer Carper, of Potts, Carper & Thompson, went carefully over the affairs of the association to show as clearly as possible the condition of things as they had been left. The story was a long one showing how the funds of the association had been used. It pointed out that an elaborate pure food show had been held in Winnipeg in 1908, the expense of which had been charged to the association. The cost of this show was about $2,200 to the association.

It was of extreme interest to most of those present to hear such startling things, as the Ottawa Old Boys being royally entertained at their expense and the "Western Retailer," their organ, being sold for $500. It also appeared that no bank books had ever been in possession of the association, and if any bank books were used they were not in the name of the association. The attempts of the members to straighten the affairs were absolutely futile, and it was moved and carried that the association call for a permanent receiver. This being done no action could be taken by the merchants, and it was verbally agreed that the National Trust Co., into whose hands the matter will go, shall sift all the evidence, and then with one or more specific cases, the matter may be laid to the charge of some person.

Another feature of the proceedings was the investigation of the Retail Merchants' Mutual Fire Insurance policies. Policies had been issued to the extent of $70,000 and were stated to be absolutely worthless since the so-called insurance company was operating without a government licence. Premiums had been taken in year after year on policies that were not worth their own paper. The Winnipeg Fire Insurance Co. had been carrying the Merchants Mutual Co. until the government granted the charter of incorporation. The government, however, refused to incorporate the company, and they continued to operate under the charter of the Winnipeg Fire Insurance Co., but distinct from it.

Merchants May Reorganize.

The matter of re-organization was discussed by those present. In this connection acting-secretary A. T. Connell read a letter from past-president Paynter signifying his willingness to accept, if desired, the presidency of the future organization. Mr. Paynter is not a Winnipeg man, but is much esteemed here, and such an action on his part called forth many eulogistic remarks from those present.

A lengthy discussion took place as to whether the new association should be a western board of the Dominion Retailers' association. Some of those present favored this proposal, while others looked askance at the idea of the headquarters being in the east, fearing that the western board would not possess sufficient autonomy and independence. The latter favored the formation of a western association intact in itself and with its headquarters in the west.

The method of reorganization was discussed briefly. A, R. Leonard, the temporary receiver of the association spoke very severely of the past method of organization. W. A. Coulson, he said, was paid a salary as secretary and in addition received 50 p.c. commission as organizer and canvasser for members. The expense from the earliest beginning was altogether too heavy and in the opinion of Mr. Leonard quite unnecessary. It was suggested that the leading merchants in the various centres throughout the west be notified of the intention to reorganize and if possible to effect a local organization, in order that a general organization at some convenient time, might be the more easily brought about. Such a movement would be void of expense and apparently effective.

Some Dissatisfied.

A. G. Munro of Morden said that the country merchants were so dissatisfied with the past organization that it would be a difficult matter to bring them in again. Something must be done, however, he said, in the matter of organization to save the country merchant from the catalogue houses which were fast undermining the small retailers and forcing not a few out of business.

The last item of business was the discussion of George Lowman's motion to the effect that the presidents of the different retail sections be requested to meet, looking toward an organization of all the western retail merchants. The following men from the country were selected to meet with the presidents : Messrs. Paynter, Hiebert, Hunter, McLaren, Bain, Munro and Brown. The motion was carried and it was verbally agreed that a mass meeting of merchants be held in Winnipeg during the exhibition week.

TWO MORE $15,000 DAMAGE SUITS.

The daily papers in March, 1909, report two suits of $15,000 damages each, brought by women; one in Port Jervis, N.Y., and the other in Schenectady, N.Y.

The plaintiffs alleged that their injuries resulted from the use of dangerous, inflammable stove polishes. The suits were brought to recover damages for frightful injuries which resulted in dreadful disfigurements.

Remember there is no liability to suits when you sell Rising Sun Stove Polish in cakes and Sun Paste Stove Polish in tins. Both are absolutely safe in the hands of the user.

CEYLON TEA

IS SO

Rapidly Displacing the Thin Light Teas, Here, in America?

(Two and Three-Quarter Millions Increase in Direct Shipments Alone in 1908 over 1907.)

First: Because it Makes a Strong, Full-Bodied Tea to Satisfy the Coffee-Educated Palate;

Second: Because of Its Piquant Flavor;

Third: Because of Its Unvarying Excellence;

and

Fourth: Because of Its Cheapness Regardless of Cost.

WHY YOU SHOULD SELL

MATHIEU'S SYRUP

of Tar and Cod Liver Oil

REASON NO. 2

It gives you a decent margin of profit. This profit is all profit. There is nothing to be subtracted from it at the end of the season. No bad or unsalable stock. No time and trouble spent in persuading people to have it.

Mathieu's Syrup sells all the year round. It is always on the move from off your shelves into your customer's hands.

Mathieu's Nervine Powder is another good Seller. Both are necessities in your business.

"CHOCOLATE BORDEAUX"

Once tried, Always used, Never condemned.

There is nothing that will boost your sales and profits more than a careful selection of new goods. It will put new life into your whole line.

When you are offering the same lines that you did last year and the year before, or the same goods that your Competitors are offering, there is no incentive for people to keep coming to your store.

It takes "No time" to sell our justly famous specialty "Chocolate Bordeaux" and customers are gratified.

Time, energy and ability are alike wasted in foisting cheap imitations upon your customer, your standing with him is injured, your profit is diminished.

If you have nothing better to do, well and good; but if you are an up-to-date Twentieth Century Sweet-handler, you cannot afford to do it.

As Pure as Windsor Salt

$1.00 Sold $25 Worth of Groceries

It was a thirty-mile trip to town and the instructions of Mrs. Smith to husband John were to get a dollar's worth of Windsor Salt at the grocer's—naturally husband John secured his entire list of groceries at the store that was stocked with "Windsor." He spent twenty-five dollars in that particular store.

The reason why Mrs. Smith was determined to have Windsor Salt was and is plainly evident—its uniform excellence, purity, whiteness and dryness. It pays to sell the salt that helps to sell other goods in the store.

ST. LAWRENCE Granulated Sugar

Maintains its high standard of excellence. This is proved by the following recent Government analysis:

Laboratory of Provincial Government Analyst,

Montreal, February 22nd, 1909

I HEREBY CERTIFY that I have drawn by my own hand ten samples of the St. Lawrence Sugar Refining Co.'s Extra STANDARD GRANULATED SUGAR, indiscriminately taken from four lots of about 150 barrels each and six lots of about 450 bags each. I have analyzed same and find them uniformly to contain 99-99/100 to 100 per cent. of pure cane sugar, with no impurities whatever.

Write plainly; this will insure immediate acknowledgment of your communications and safe and prompt delivery of your tickets.

On the opposite page will be found the most liberal offer ever made to the Canadian Public.

It may strike you as being impossible to carry out such an undertaking, but we have figured all the cost and details, and have made due preparations for carrying it through; so don't worry about that; just send in the subscriptions called for in the schedule and leave the rest to us.

This is not a competition, there is no element of risk, chance or luck connected with it; just a straight offer of ample reward for your enterprise, intended to boom the circulation of Busy Man's, and every detail will be carried out in a manner insuring that result.

We are determined to place the merits of Busy Man's before every magazine reader in Canada, and this is one of the means devised for so doing.

The undertaking on your part becomes trifling when the quality of the magazine is understood. It contains each month reproductions of the best articles to be found in scores of other periodicals, together with many original articles by able Canadian writers. It is Cosmopolitan rather than strictly Canadian, discussing subjects of greatest present-day interest without geographical limitations.

Upon request we will send you copies of the schedule on the opposite side for the convenience of yourself or your friends, together with sample copy of Busy Man's and order book.

If you have energy and desire to see the Exhibition at our expense, gratify both by combining them into subscriptions to the greatest of Canadian Periodicals.

UNSOLICITED TESTIMONIALS

I consider The Busy Man's Magazine the best I have yet come in contact with.
HENRY WILSON, Toronto.

We have subscribed to many British and American magazines, but found none to equal yours as a Business or Busy Man's Magazine. The articles are so admirably selected that one can start at the first and read right through to the last page and enjoy superior reading all the way.
AULD & CO., South Dunedin, New Zealand

We would not like to miss the future copies of The Busy Man's Magazine.
INGERSOLL PACKING CO.

The Busy Man's Magazine is the best magazine I have had the pleasure of perusing. If my subscription should lapse, do not stop it; jar me up on remitting.
A. B. BURRETT, Amigari

It is pleasing to record that Canada can boast of such a publication, whereby the man, who can devote only a short time to reading each day, may become thoroughly conversant with all that the brightest minds are producing, and what the world's leaders of thought and research are doing, discovering or planning.
Such a publication is The Busy Man's Magazine, which is replete with the latest contribution of the world's centres in political and commercial affairs, science and invention, labor, business, industry, art, etc. The Busy Man's Magazine is a Canadian publication, and places before its readers the greatest amount of instruction and profit in the handiest form and most attractive manner. It indeed fills a long felt want. — Peterborough Daily Review.

The Busy Man's Magazine takes first position in my opinion. It has more interesting, concentrated, common-sense information in one issue than most periodicals have in a whole year.
C. C. NASH, D.D.S., Bath.

The articles in The Busy Man's Magazine are just what we want, short and so well written that a busy man can afford time to read them and feel benefitted for the short time given to each article.
WM. THOBURN, Almonte

The Busy Man's Magazine is the only publication that I keep a file of; in fact I have to, because practically every article in the various issues has been blue pencilled by me for future reference. You have certainly succeeded in obtaining all of the articles of value from the principle magazines of the world, and as a consequence I have not only been able to save a great deal of time by reading your magazine, but also a good deal of money. For instance, I had subscribed for 32 different publications. I now find that Busy Man's Magazine covers the gist of the majority of them.

Perplexing Trade Questions in Grocers' Conference

Manufacturers, Wholesalers and Retailers Consider the Proper Channels Through which Trade Should Flow — Many Barriers Opposing Better Relationship Among the Three Interests are Broken Down — Manufacturers Fixing Prices to Consumers on Specialties Endorsed — Trading Stamps and Premiums Discouraged—Trade Press to be Supported by all Interests.

New York, April 13.—One of the most significant and, probably, influential conferences ever held in the grocery trade, assembled for a two-days' session at the Waldorf-Astoria last week. It officially represented the National Wholesale, Retail and Manufacturing Grocery Associations and its aim was to reach by amicable discussion some basis which may promote trade harmony.

It will be remembered that at the last annual conferences of the National Wholesalers and National Retailers, the preliminary steps toward such a conference were taken and committees appointed. That was last summer. But nothing tangible could come of it till the formation, three or four months ago, of the American Specialty Manufacturers' Association. This provided the missing link in the harmony chain. Recently Secretary J. T. Austin, of the Manufacturers, acting in concert with Secretary Beckmann, of the Wholesalers, and Secretary Green, of the Retailers, took the matter up definitely and yesterday's session was the result.

The Channels of Trade.

Some of the most perplexing questions in the grocery trade have to do with the relative rights of wholesalers and retailers toward the manufacturer, and vice versa. They cause constant friction. The general trend of manufacturers, just now, is in the direction of selling through "legitimate channels," that is, selling only through the wholesalers. This has roused a protest from certain large retail buyers—notably chain stores, department stores and buying exchanges. Only Monday a session was held in this city by large retailers who were protesting against being cut off from direct purchases on jobbers' terms. In the hope that a discussion might result in a better mutual understanding and, possibly, pave the way for a solution of the trouble, yesterday's conference was held.

After the preliminary explanations of the purpose of the meeting and the filing of the personnel of the conference by the stenographer, the meeting organized with the choice of Mr. Porter as permanent chairman and Mr. Austin as permanent secretary.

Mr. Austin submitted a tentative programme for the guidance of the meeting, and suggested that it be adopted if it met with the approval of the delegates. Copies were passed and after a short deliberation it was unanimously adopted as the outline for the proceedings and discussions. The conference then took a recess till 2 o'clock, when the discussion commenced. The general programme adopted provided the following subjects:

1. Who is a consumer?
   - a From whom should they purchase their goods?
   - b Should volume of goods purchased regulate the price?

   Hotels and restaurants.
   Steamship lines and railroad companies.
   Government.
   Institutions.
2. Who is a retailer?
   - a What is a retailer's fair profit?
   - b Are department stores retailers?
   - c When is a retailer a manufacturing retailer?
   - d What value is a manufacturing retailer to specialty manufacturers?
3. Who is a wholesaler?
   - a What is a wholesaler's fair profit?
   - b When is a wholesaler a manufacturing jobber?
   - c Is the exclusive jobber entitled to a larger margin of profit on specialties than the manufacturing jobber?
4. Should manufacturers fix consumers' prices on specialties?
   - a Should the price be placed on the package?
   - b Are fixed minimum prices without having prices on packages desirable?
5. What is the manufacturers' best selling plan?
   - a Is factory to family plan desirable?
   - b Is the exclusive jobber the ideal distributor?
   - c Should manufacturers sell retailers direct?
   - d Should manufacturers sell chain stores direct?
   - e Should manufacturers sell buying exchanges direct?
6. Should quantity or classification regulate manufacturer's price?
7. Why should not the trade be classified, viz:

   Class A. Exclusive wholesale grocers.
   Class B. Manufacturing jobbers.
   Class C. Wholesale retailers.
   Class D. Chain stores with wholesale headquarters.
   Class E. Retailers' buying associations.
   Class F. Department stores.
   Class G. Retail grocers.
   Class H. Hotels, restaurants, steamships, railroads, institutions, government.
8. Is an association such as the "American Specialty Manufacturing Association" desired by the trade?
9. Should wholesale grocers sign the agreement of the American Specialty Manufacturers' Association?
   - a Is the agreement fair and equitable?
   - b Should the wholesalers send out the notices to their customers furnished by the A.S.M.A.?
   - c Will conformity to the terms of this agreement bring about a betterment of conditions in the grocery trade?
10. Should wholesalers and retailers make staples pay a profit?
    - a Should the A.S.M.A. assist them in making a profit on all specialties?
11. Should the three associations here represented co-operate in securing and enforcing laws and ordinances for the benefit of manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers?
    - a Food legislation.
    - b Net weight bills.
    - c Dating laws.
    - d Anti-trust laws.
    - e Trade agreements.
12. Proprietary brands versus private brands.
13. Terms and discounts.
    - a Should long term credits be discouraged?
    - b Is strict conformity to terms desirable?
    - c What are reasonable terms on canned goods, staples, specialties?
    - d Should cash discounts enter into the cost of goods?
14. Should wholesalers make exclusive contracts with manufacturers that will prevent fair and square trade relations with other manufacturers?
15. Are schemes and dealers desirable?
    - a Trading stamps.
    - b Free deals?
    - c Rebates to retailers from manufacturers?
    - d Subsidizing salesmen?
16. Should the trade in general support the trade press?
    - a Trade papers?
    - b House organs?
17. Should the jobber discourage the establishing of irresponsible retailers in business?
18. Should these associations assist in educating retailers as to the true cost of doing business?

a Advise limited credits?
b Advise keep stock moving?
c The importance of making a profit?
d How can we improve conditions?

Breaking of the Barriers.

While the actual decisions arrived at by the conferees are not such as will probably work immediate solution of the numerous tender spots in intertrade relation, it is probable that the two days of discussion will result in incalculable good for all concerned. It was a frank, face-to-face talk, in which elements of trade, usually scarcely on speaking terms, met and in friendliness and mutual respect sought to arrive at the truth of each other's contentions. At the close all factions agreed that the proceedings had been extremely illuminating, had done a great deal to break down the barriers of selfishness and misunderstanding and would pave the way for future conferences when greater achievements may result.

The three great questions: Who is a consumer—a retailer—a wholesaler? furnished the great main thread of the discussion. Naturally it was impossible to arrive at a conclusion which all would assent to. In the main, there was evidently little difference of opinion where the classification was clearly defined, but it appeared again and again that there were mixed classes which were the basis of much controversy, and as to which neither side appeared to be entirely in the right. It also appeared in the discussion that local conditions vary and tradition and practice in certain localities, to which all elements in those localities assent harmoniously, would cause the utmost hostility and controversy in other sections.

Those Who Are Consumers.

The outcome of the whole question was a vote that it was "the sense of the conference that hotels, restaurants, steamship lines, railroad companies and public institutions are consumers," but —and this was on the amendment of one of the wholesalers—"without regard to their source of supply." This latter was to stamp the classes named academically as "consumers," without jeopardizing the other issues, of where they should buy their goods, a somewhat emasculated definition. Even at that one of the leading jobbers declined to vote for the definition and it turned out afterwards that he did so because such a vote would have placed him under a unique position of inconsistency under the constitution of the National Wholesale Grocers' Association.

This definition of "What is a wholesaler?" as adopted by the National Association, reads: "Any person, firm or corporation, which distributes goods to retailers and wholesalers, but which does not sell to consumers."

Because many of the largest wholesalers do openly sell institutions, hotels, etc., it was manifest why some of the wholesalers declined to vote to designate them as "consumers."

It was decided that the question "From whom should hotels, restaurants, etc., buy their goods," be voted to be a local question, to be settled by the agreement of "interested parties" in their several localities. The direct question of whether quantity on such goods should regulate the price was eliminated from the programme. So was the question of what is a jobber's or a retailer's fair profit.

It was settled that a retailer is one who buys in original quantities and makes a business of subdividing into small quantities; a grocer one who buys to sell to the consumer.

The determination of what is a department store was eliminated. So was the warmly debated question as to when a retailer is a manufacturing retailer and what value a manufacturing retailer is to the manufacturer.

A manufacturing jobber was finally agreed to be "a person, firm or corporation who manufactures from raw material a finished product and markets it under his own label."

On the question of whether the "exclusive jobber" is entitled to further consideration than the "manufacturing jobber," there was a strong disposition to vote in the affirmative, but so many refused to commit themselves that it was finally eliminated without determination.

Fixing of Prices.

The conference expressed its opinion that specialty manufacturers should fix the consumers' prices on specialties, but that the price should not be placed upon the package.

There was much discussion regarding the best selling price plan. There was a strong sentiment that the factory-to-family plan was demoralizing and in that connection the following resolution was adopted:

> Resolved That it is the sense of this conference that we are opposed to the "factory-to-family" plan, because it is a trade demoralizer and, in itself, is degrading;
> That the conferees representing various interests here acquaint their members with the danger of this movement and that they urge them to instruct their employes to do what they can to educate the public as to the fallacy of the theory that the "factory-to-family" plan means an economy to the family and that the regular channel of distribution is from the retailer to the consumer and the same is the most economical means of delivering goods to the consumer; and is, in that manner, a protection to the consumer.

Premiums Discouraged.

Trading stamps, premiums, free deals, secret rebates to retailers by manufacturers on goods bought through the jobber, were all discouraged.

The following resolution expressed the views of the conference on the "Trade Press":

> Resolved, That it is the sentiment of this conference that the Trade Press should be loyally supported by the associations represented and by the individual members; also that the Trade Press be looked up to as a guide and counsellor in the many important questions which are constantly agitating the grocery trade.

The conference voted to discourage the establishment of irresponsible retailers in business by the jobbers. A vote was also passed recommending that these associations assist in educating the retailers as to the true cost of doing business, especially in limiting credits, keeping stock moving and making a profit.

The conference dissolved in a general spirit of mutual congratulation and expression of cordial good fellowship, and the hope that other sessions may be held.

FINISH OF BIG FINE.

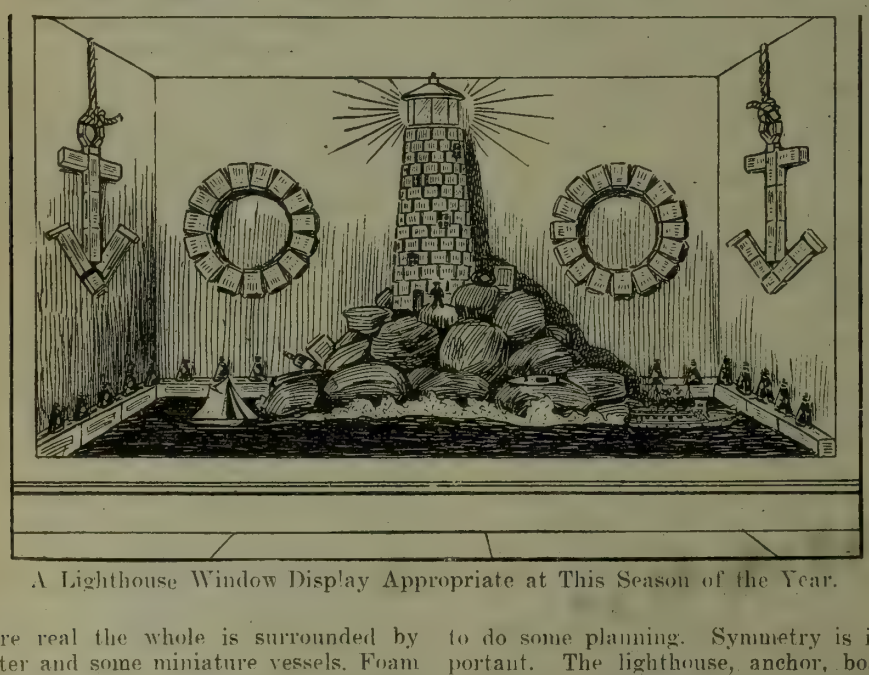
American Sugar Refining Co. Pay Over Remainder of Amount They Are Alleged to Have Defrauded the Government.

By the payment of the sum of $342,960.89 on April 9, the American Sugar Refining Co., of New York, completed the payment to a collector of customs of the United States Government of $1,239,088.38 in reliquidation of duties on sugar entries in consequence of the recent decision of the United States Circuit Court.

Added to the $134,000 fine for conviction of fraud in weighing cases, the Government has thus far recovered from the American Sugar Refining Company the sum of $1,373,088.38. The prosecutions against the sugar trust now pending will, it is believed, result in the additional collection of about $2,000,000.

Parsons, Closson & McIlvaine, counsel for the American Sugar Refining Company, state that the payments were made under protest and that an appeal will be taken. In order to have the privilege of appealing, it is required that the amount assessed by the collector be paid in full.

The United States Government also claims that it has been defrauded out of about $500 000 in duties on importations of sugar weighed at the Jersey City refinery and has also been defrauded of about $500,000 on importations weighed at the refinery of Havemeyer & Elder prior to December, 1901. Legal steps are now being taken by Messrs. Stimson and Denison on behalf of the Government to enforce the collection of these duties, which aggregate upwards of $1,000,000 without including the additional penalties, which would increase the liability by a large amount.



Construction of a Lighthouse Window Display

Anchors, Life-buoys, Boats and Lighthouse the Features—Appropriate at This Season in View of Opening of Navigation—May be Easily Constructed From Cartons.

For a grocery store, and particularly one located in a village, town or city near a lake or river, a "lighthouse" window would be appropriate at this season of the year. Such a display opens a wide avenue of thought for the window-dresser and gives splendid opportunities for him to show his originality and constructive ability.

The ice is now clearing in the rivers and lakes and the boats are getting on their new spring coats of paint in preparation for the opening of navigation. Therefore, now is the time to arrange a lighthouse window display.

The accompanying illustration should serve to present a few good ideas. The display is simple, easily constructed and one that should hold attention. The central feature is, of course, the lighthouse itself, which can be erected out of cartons of almost any package goods sold It rises from the strong, rocky foundation which can be constructed of real stones with little difficulty or with bags of coffee, and to make the situation look more real the whole is surrounded by water and some miniature vessels. Foam at the base of the rocks can be made with the use of a small quantity of cotton-batting.

A Lighthouse Window Display Appropriate at This Season of the Year.

Anchors and Life-buoys.

The anchors on either side, also made of cartons, are suggestive of a lighthouse scene and serve to lend additional effect. At the rear of the window are the life-buoys, which, of course also form an appropriate portion of the scheme.

At night an electric light placed in the cabin on the summit of the lighthouse finishes a display which is bound to attract attention.

Almost any grocer or grocery clerk can construct such a window with comparative ease. It is one seldom used and therefore would present a novelty in any town or city where it has not previously been seen.

Package teas, cereals or soap could be easily worked into a display of this nature. The effect will be all the more striking, however, if only one article is used in a window. It must be simply constructed so that the attention of the intending purchaser will be fixed upon a single article. Where attention is divided it is always more difficult to concentrate. The window-dressing artist should always take this into consideration. It is often desirable, of course, to work in something in a display for the sake of relief or as a background, but that should not necessarily mean an article for sale.

Make Preliminary Plans.

Before beginning the work of constructing a display it is always wise to do some planning. Symmetry is important. The lighthouse, anchor, boats and life-buoys suggest a story in themselves, as every display of this nature should.

CANADA-MEXICO ROUTE.

Elder-Dempster Co. Decide to Run Steamers Between the Two Countries.

That phenomenal ruler, Porfirio Diaz, of Mexico, has in his dreams of empire, pictured a railroad across the narrowest part of his country which would unite the Pacific and Atlantic Oceans. To do this, a railroad would be at least 170 miles long, as the crow flies. His dream has come true and an iron belt now spans this narrow neck of land between these two great oceans. If a map of the western hemisphere is consulted, it will be seen that, if a line be drawn from the eastern and western limit of Canada to a point on the eastern coast of Mexico, at the narrowest part, we have roughly an inverted equilateral triangle. This short railroad represents the apex of the triangle, and the base is indicated by the distance across Canada. Eastern shippers and western consumers find this long railway journey across Canada enhances in an inordinate way the price of goods shipped either west or east. The Canadian Manufacturers' Association discovered that the freight rates charged on English goods shipped from English ports to Vancouver, and other Pacific coast points, via Mexico, were about one-half less than was paid on goods shipped to the same destinations from Eastern Canada, via an all-rail route. These conditions have determined the action of the Elder-Dempster Co. to place steamers on the route.

Although freight will be much longer in transit, the rates will be practically cut in two. It is significent, in showing the great difference there exists in water and rail routes, that before the construction of this railway in Mexico, freight from England in some cases, was sent east by the Orient to Pacific ocean points in America, in preference to sending it straight across the Atlantic and Canada to its destination.

The New York raw sugar importers have been using this route for months past to secure the product of their possessions in the Southern Pacific in preference to the San Francisco route. The Elder-Dempster Co. are now drawing up their schedule of rates for this new service.

From Victoria, B.C., as well as in Montreal, there is a rumor that the Blue Funnel Line is preparing to enter the same field. There is, however, no official confirmation of this report yet. They will put passenger boats into the trans-Pacific service, during the coming season. Heretofore they have confined their attention to the carriage of freight principally.

NEW COMPANIES.

The J. S. Richardson Company, Tilbury, Ont., has been formed to carry on the business of wholesale and retail merchants.

A company known as the Farmers' Feed Company, of Toronto, has been formed to manufacture foodstuffs, fertilizers, proprietary medicines, etc.

An Ontario license has been granted to R. V. Delapenha & Co., incorporated under the laws of the State of New Jersey to grow, import and can food products including their ingredients, in Ontario. Herbert G. Wookey, Toronto is the company's attorney.

Horse Show and Cattle Sale at Calgary — Winnipeg Grocers Criticize Modern Day Clerks—Condensed Milk Manufacturing Co. in British Columbia Sues Company for Selling Under Fixed Prices.

CALGARY.

April 13.—The first of what is to be an annual horse show is being held here this week, favored with warm, bright weather and a large attendance which assures a successful result financially. The quality of horse flesh on exhibition is quite in keeping with the Calgary district. The breeds most in evidence are Clydes, Percheron, Suffolk and Hackneys. The latter are favorites with a number here since the famous Robin Adair, a hackney of renown, was raised by Messrs. Rawlinson Bros., just west of Calgary. This same horse secured the honors at the New York horse show and has since been sold for a handsome figure to an eastern admirer.

The annual spring show and sale of pure-bred cattle is also being held this week. The offerings were not so numerous as in past seasons but the quality is fine. The sale took place yesterday afternoon, and with a good attendance bidding was brisk, and the prices realized were quite satisfactory to all concerned. Forty-four shorthorn bulls averaged $107 per head. Buyers were here from all parts, and the presence of one from the Peace River district would indicate that settlement is steadily pushing into the north country and that quality is appreciated there.

Business has been stimulated by the large influx of visitors from outside points, many of whom are coming from the Middle States.

There are few changes to note in grocery lines. Prices are firm on most commodities, and reports are of a steadily increasing trade with an excellent outlook for a big summer's business. In fresh fruits, bananas and strawberries are coming in freely. The latter are, however, rather too high in price to induce large consumption as they are retailing 25c and 30c for a very small box. California celery is still being offered but the season is now about over.

F. Skinner, of the Charlottetown Condensing Co. is in the city at present booking up business for his company's brands.

WINNIPEG.

April 13.—There is one particular point upon which almost every retail merchant in Winnipeg will agree. At any rate the grocers are quite unanimous in their opinion. It is this—that it is an exceedingly difficult matter to get good clerks. In the average store, said a retailer recently, 60 per cent. of the trade is done by telephone service, and frequently dissatisfaction is expressed by the customer at the method in which the order is taken and filled. When asked what was the cause of this lack of expert clerks, the same dealer said they are not of the same calibre to-day as they used to be. They are not willing to serve apprenticeship, he said, at a moderate wage, but ask top wages from the beginning and then all they endeavor to do is to come as late in the morning as they dare, and leave as early in the evening as they can, and draw their pay on Saturday. Not long ago a young man who came out from Ireland applied for a position as clerk in a grocery store representing himself as a first class clerk. When asked of his experience in the business, he said he had driven a delivery waggon for the past nine months. One of the oldest retailers in the city said it was simply remarkable the change in the nature of clerks in the past twenty-five years. To-day a clerk feels as though he could manage the business after being in service about one year. A few years ago a clerk was willing to serve three years in learning to open the door for a lady customer. There seems, he said, to be that uneasiness in the lives of men to-day to plunge into the business arena by a single bound rather than taking the safer and saner method of mounting the ladder round by round. "It can be taken as a fact," he remarked, "that when inexperienced men enter places of trust, the line of business which they are to serve will deteriorate.

This is an age in which the world is advancing along lines of scientific specialization. Laboratory science is only a phase of the greater and more general science that is required in all branches of life." It would be interesting to hear the opinions of the clerks on these observations.

A considerable quantity of commercial paper fell due on April 4, and as the fourth this year fell on a Sunday the paper did not actually come due until the fifth. Wholesalers, therefore, do not yet know just how the paper was taken care of, as advices from country points have not yet reached them. One of the bankers said that the first of the month paper had been fairly well met. "Normal" was the term used.

Collections have been just fair with the majority of merchants. Those who trade with mechanics, who work only a part of their time, are somewhat unfortunate in this regard. Those who have accounts against spasmodic toilers are quite hopeful however. According to the amount of building and other civic contracts to be done this season there will be little excuse for any unemployed, and many whom the grocer has been carrying for a year or more will have an opportunity of helping the trade by paying their debts. Those who depend upon their day's work to supply food for the next day do not, as a rule, deal in the larger stores.— They reside in certain sections of the city where little grocery stores are numerous. We are inclined to despise these small stores, but they reflect exactly the conditions with which they have to cope. Many of them have amazingly heavy accounts on their books, and they are heroic in the service. They are rendering the city their assistance in feeding those who cannot pay for bread.

VANCOUVER.

April 13.—E. C. Stark, of the B. C. Milk Condensing Co., of New Westminster, was in the city to-day, and stated that his firm has entered action against Dixie, Ross & Co., of Victoria, for cutting the price of their product. This is a question which has agitated retailers and manufacturers for a considerable time, and the outcome of this case will be watched with interest. The regular selling price of the product is two cans for 25c, and Dixie, Ross & Co. sold it for ten cents. The B. C. Milk Condensing Company has entered suit for $2,500 damages, and is applying for an injunction to prevent the firm selling this brand below the regular fixed price.

Competition is keen in this market among the manufacturers of soda biscuits. Christie's used to be 35c, but it was reduced to 30c to keep alongside of Mooney's, Perrin's and others, which were getting a portion of the local trade. Ramsay's also sold at 30c. They were jobbed at a little less than the eastern article, but not enough to make them so they could be sold at 25c. However, some time ago, a cut to 25c was announced, as it was found that the eastern biscuits were beating out.

The commission man has been on more than one occasion the cause of the retailer getting an advantage on certain lines of goods, avoiding the middle wholesaler's price. This is at present evidenced in the Pure Gold goods, which are supplied through a local commission man, and the saving of a few cents per package makes it worth while to the grocer.

Potatoes are climbing up, and locals to-day are worth $40, with the best quality at $45. It is stated by those who hold stocks that the price will go up to $50, because of the scarcity.

The store of Cashion Brothers, grocers, at Cedar Cottage, was destroyed by fire, the loss being over $3,000, mostly covered by insurance.

There was a rumor in the city early last week that because of the story that eight cents per pound import was to be charged on tea entering the United States, large buying was taking place in Vancouver, and that local stocks were being sold out and even cornered. Chas. J. Peter, manager of the G. F. & J. Galt Company, says the rumors are unfounded and he does not see what gave rise to them.

Whether or not there is any truth in the story that the Swift Company and P. Burns & Company are striving for the command of the meat trade in the West, the fact remains that both sides are strengthening up. The latest move is the purchase of the four meat markets, two in Victoria and two in Vancouver, of R. Porter & Sons, by P. Burns & Co., the price being stated at $300,000. This will mean the advent of the Burns Company to Victoria, which will give them a foothold in all the large centres of the province. The Porter Co. was in existence 37 years.

The farmers of the Duncan district, on Vancouver Island, held a meeting last week and discussed co-operation in egg selling, along similar lines to those of the co-operative creamery, which has been a success on the lower mainland and on the island. Mr. Marker, of Calgary, who assisted in the formation of the creamery ten years ago, addressed the meeting. It was decided to have an egg collecting station in Duncan in connection with the creamery. Among the rules proposed, so as to ensure the eggs being as fresh as possible to the consumer, was: That eggs sold must be clean, that they must be gathered every day, and that each farmer's eggs shall be designated by a number; the eggs are to be tested and to be guaranteed by a man in charge.

The Okanagan Preserving Company is getting ahead with its fruit cannery at Kelowna. It will be two storeys in height, and at the outset will be able to handle 25 tons of tomatoes per day. The specialty of the factory, however, will be the preserving of fruit in syrup in glass jars.

Lieut. Hallett, R.N., of Procter, Kootenay, has returned from a trip to the Old Country, and while in London studied the apple question thoroughly. He interviewed the Covent Garden wholesalers and commission agents and the retailers in fruit shops in different parts and everywhere heard golden opinions concerning the first-class quality of the product of British Columbia. Apples from this province retailed at threepence each for cooking purposes, Baldwins and Jonathans, threepence each, and Spitzbergens at sixpence each. He paid these prices himself. Covent Garden dealers stated that there was a large and increasing demand for certain varieties of apples, such as Cox's Orange Pippins, the yellow Newton Pippin, the Jonathan, and a scarce, but remarkably good cooking variety, the Wellington. The B.C. Gravenstein was in active competition with the product of Nova Scotia, but Lieut. Hallett was told that the competition was on an even basis.

Nova Scotia Gets Beef From Ontario—Question of Carrying Freight by Street Railway Under Consideration in Montreal—Seed Inspector Visits St. John.

HALIFAX.

April 13.—The Easter trade was good this season, most of the dealers reporting business brisk in all lines. Canned goods were in quite heavy demand, but sales of these goods earlier in the season were slow. It is stated here that several of the dealers still have large stocks on hand, and that there will be no shortage of this class of goods this season. The market is well supplied with fruit, the apples and oranges now offered for sale being of very fine quality. Bananas are fairly good for the season of the year.

The local victuallers imported large quantities of beef from Ontario for the Easter trade this year. Heretofore it has been the custom to buy Nova Scotia beef, but the stock this year was scarce and the price so high that the local men preferred to import beef from Ontario. Outside of a few fowls, all the poultry offered for sale came from Ontario. This stock is costly to the consumer, but the dealers have to handle it as no othere is available. Halifax is now a good customer of Ontario in the meat line, the dealers importing it fresh, corned and smoked, and some of it from as far west as Hamilton.

Vegetables wintered well this year, and the stocks on hand are of good quality. Several vessels have been chartered to bring cargoes of potatoes from Charlottetown to Halifax at the earliest opportunity. Cabbage are scarce and high. Dealers are asking from 15c to 18c per head, and then the quality is only fair.

Better conditions prevail in the fish markets now than at the same time last year. There is an increasing demand due to the lower prices and the market shows general improvement. Inquiries for bank fish have been much better recently, the sale has been good on the whole and the greater part of last season's catch has now been sold. The West India markets have shown a marked improvement recently. The local market is well supplied with fresh fish of all kinds. There is some scarcity of halibut and lobsters. Most of the latter are being sent to Boston, the shipments totalling about one thousand crates per week.

Eggs were in heavy demand last week and all the fresh Nova Scotia stock was quickly bought up. Not as many eggs were marketed as during the previous week and in consequence the price held firm at 18c per dozen. After the rush is over it is expected that the price will go lower, but the commission men are doing their best to keep the price up. Butter is in good supply and the price continues low. Good fresh-made butter can be bought for 21c. There appears to be an abundance of old butter on the market for which there is no sale.

MONTREAL.

April 13.—The death occurred on Saturday, April 10, of J. Alfred Dupuis, of Dupuis Freres. Mr. Dupuis was in his 49th year, and leaves a widow, two sons and two daughters. He was a brother of Recorder Dupuis. He was a native of St. Jacques de l'Achijan, Que. Coming to Montreal when he was eight years old he was educated at the Catholic Commercial College, and commenced his business career with Dupuis Freres. In 1888 he left the firm to take up the duties of a customs official, returning in 1896 as a partner. The late Mr. Dupuis has been in failing health for the last six years, suffering from asthma and internal complications.

L. Lorne Stewart, the agent of John Taylor & Co., Toronto, has moved from 32 Renouf building, St. Catherine St., West, to larger and more commodious quarters, Room 514, in the Coristine building. This move will make Mr. Stewart better able to get around among his customers down town.

A. H. Brittain has been spending a few days in Toronto lately.

Andrews, Gillespie & Co., Coristine building, have opened an office at Room 22, 8 Colborne St., Toronto. H. H. Ridd, late of the Montreal staff, is in charge.

The old question of moving freight by the Montreal Street Railway is again on the tapis. The city council are about to consider this proposition in conjunction with the removal of snow from the streets next winter. As before stated in The Grocer, a number of Montreal merchants have drafted a petition to the city council showing that there are times when it is impossible for them to get freight moved promptly, and asking that an arrangement be made with the Street Railway Company so that it will take up a portion of this work. In regard to the freight matter the company is prepared to take up the work, but the aldermen fear that the company will not pay the city a sufficient percentage for the privilege. On the other hand, officials of the company state that they do not want to drive a hard bargain with the city, and that if the problem is approached in a proper spirit it can be solved in a few weeks' time.

R. J. Sharpe, with W. P. Downey, 23 St. Peter Street, has left for an extended trip to Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Quebec and Ontario, in the interests of his firm.

Liptons have closed their demonstration at Dupuis Freres, St. Catherine St. East, and will move to Dionnes, Westmount.

W. J. Wilson, with S, H. Ewing & Sons, Montreal, has returned to Montreal from a trip to the Maritime Provinces.

So great a success have become the tea rooms of the Castle Blend Tea Co. that they have opened a new wing to their establishment on the property recently secured by them at the corner of Stanley and St. Catherine Sts. Not only has this establishment achieved distinction among the feminine portion of Montreal, but gentlemen on their way uptown have patronized it largely for the refreshing beverages which it is noted for. Charles Fuller, manager of the Castle Blend Tea Co., who has had much experience in this connection in England, speaking of the growing custom of afternoon tea among the business men, said recently that it was a natural outcome of the English habit, strengthened by a real demand produced by modern business and social conditions. It was to meet this demand, he said, that the Castle Blend Tea Rooms had been established, and the fact that within a short time the premises had to be enlarged to accommodate patrons was the best proof needed that a real want was being supplied.

Albert W. Bullock, grocer, of Georgeville, and wife, spent the Easter holidays in Montreal.

During the past week the following buyers were noticed in the city: M. J. St. Laurent, St. Ours, Que.; A. E. Dubuc, of Cote, Boivin & Co., Chicoutimi, Que.; J. A. Forest, St. Jacques l'Achigan, Que.; M. Raymond, St. Hyacinthe, Que.; J. Dufour, Chateauquay, Que.; A. Brunet, St. Lazare, Que.; J. D. Rene, St. Jean Baptiste de Rouville, Que.; A. Brossard, Laprairie, Que.; Francois Lamarche, Mascouche, Que.; D. Bougie, of Pointe Clairs, Que.; J. A. Tremblay, St. Lambert, Que.; C. D. Gervais, St. Constant, Que.; J. Brunet, St. Julie, Que.; C. O. Gervais, St. Constant, Que.; Aug. Beausoliel, Terrebonne, Que.; J. P. Rocheleau, Pauline, Que.

ST. JOHN.

April 13.—Manitoba flours have again advanced and are now quoted at $6.95. On Monday the price was raised 35 cents a barrel. Ontario's, which jumped 10 cents last week are selling at $6.10 and it is expected will go still higher. Since the 1st of January Ontario's have advanced 50 cents and Manitoba's have gone up 60 cents.

Business generally, both wholesale and retail is reported good. The schooner trade with Bay of Fundy ports is opening up and the river is expected to be clear of ice and open for navigation in a week or two at the latest.

Easter business was reported very good. Eggs were quoted at 21 to 23 cents and there was a good supply of butter, bacon, poultry, meats and vegetables of all kinds. Some carcasses of spring lamb sold at $3 to $6 according to weight.

The seed business has opened up and sales are reported brisk. The retailers have arranged their stock in racks specially constructed or in pails, tubs, etc., and though the frost is not all out of the ground sales are being made of considerable quantities. The government inspector of seeds was here from Ottawa last week and examined the stocks and reported that the seed shown was exceptionally good.

In the death of Jacob D. Underhill which occurred on April 7, St. John lost a respected citizen. Mr. Underhill was a lieutenant-colonel in the artillery and some years ago was in the grocery business. He was a son of the late B. J. Underhill who was a member of the old grocery firm of Hannah & Underhill. Col. Underhill was formerly in the wholesale grocery and flour business on the south wharf.

For the month of March, the receipts of Canadian potatoes at the Bangor customs house totalled 106,128 bushels. The U. S. government received $26,532 in tariff charges.

Some Interesting Ontario Grocery Correspondence

Brantford Grocers Establish Collecting System Similar to One in Guelph—Many Flowers Sold by Chatham Grocers—Trouble Over the Licensing of Peddlers in St. Thomas—Half Holiday in London Again—Splendid Easter Trade in Ontario.

BRANTFORD.

April 14.—Brantford is to have a collecting system similar to the one now in operation at Guelph—at least that was the decision of those present at a most enthusiastic and representative meeting of the merchants of the city in the K. of P. Hall last evening. F. C. Harp was chosen chairman and in a few brief remarks stated the nature of the gathering and introduced D. A. Scroggie, of Guelph, the ocial collector of the Guelph Retail Merchants' Association, who addressed the meeting. Mr. Scroggie, in his opening remarks, referred to the progressiveness of their association which, he said, was the result of definite plans and hard work. Because they had been successful in one particular field of the work—that of collecting—their fame had spread from ocean to ocean, shown by extracts the speaker read from letters he had received from New Brunswick, New York State and Vancouver. Mr. Scroggie explained in detail their plan of keeping the accounts and that of the monthly reports, which showed accounts received during the month, the amount collected during each month and those who had paid their accounts in full during the month. These reports are typewritten and sent to each member. The collector banks all moneys collected and pays by cheque pro ratio amount collected. Mr. Scroggie related a number of very amusing experiences he has had on his rounds, but stated, the people as a whole are delighted with the opportunity of paying their accounts on the instalment plan, with no extra cost to the people. The most of the merchants seemed to regard the protection as the main feature. They would all like to do business on a cash basis, but when they cannot, they would like to be reasonably sure whom they are trusting, so that they will get their money without trouble. The merchants seem to be the most benevolent people in the city, for they keep hundreds of men when they are not working in order that they may be here when the manufacturers want them. The working man when he is out of work never thinks of going to the manufacturer and asking him to advance his pay, but he does not hesitate going to the merchants and asking for credit until they get to work. It was rather a different matter to finance the scheme for the first year in regard to the amount to assess each member.

In order to get the thing going in Brantford this year an equal assessment will be used—$10 per member—and there were enough willing to join at the meeting to assure it a success. It was moved by Messrs. Thompson and Willitts that a vote of thanks be tendered Mr. Scroggie for his kindness in coming to address them. An executive committee was appointed and it was left in their hands to complete the details and secure the collector.

KINGSTON.

April 14.—The Easter displays of meats in Kingston were about the average. Many fine windows however, were in evidence. Anderson Bros. have built up a phenomenal trade for meats and they may in the near future sell meats exclusively. They claim there is not the percentage in groceries there ought to be, owing to the trade being over run with shops. Anderson Bros. have just completed a cold storage plant.

Lou Glover who has been doing the "Marathon" for about 20 years has sold about a ton of cream of tartar here. When Lou makes his effort to sell an article he seldom takes out his little book and pencil in vain.

Harold Buck has opened a grocery on Earl Street with a bright new stock of groceries. He is in "hot company" and will gain experience.

James Crawford has secured the contract for supplying the penitentiary. It seems to be simply a lottery tendering to supply ten thousand dollars worth of goods and running chances of rises or declines in prices. A good many learn this by experience.

Mayor Dan Couper has placed in his window an electric coffee mill.

James Ridden secured the contract for the supplying of the Battery. James, it is said, has been offered some good political jobs, but James would not be happy if he wasn't smelling tea or coffee He has spent 98 per cent of his time in the grocery business.

Andrew Maclean, wholesale grocer, is a proud man these days. He has another heir added to the list.

B. McCarey after a sojourn in the North West has settled down again and opened a large grocery on Ontario St. He expects to do a big boot business also.

Mrs. Webster is still demonstrating cocoa here and is doing good work for her firm.

A. Boyd has engaged with J. Gilbert as clerk. There were over thirty applicants and it was a hard matter to choose from the many good ones who sent in applications.

B. W. Robertson is spending Easter with his son George at St. Catharines. George is a graduate of the Guelph Agricultural College and owns a large fruit farm.

W. G. Craig is enjoying the California climate around Pasadena. It is indeed a grand place to spend a few weeks of our winter in the south and come back to meet our spring. The pleasure of snuffing the zephyrs that play through the orange and lemon groves, of feasting the eyes on apricot and peach blossoms, and of rubbing up against eucalyptus, cactus and calla lilies is one not soon to be forgotten. We expect to see a few columns in The Grocer from Mr. Craig's pen shortly.

Samples of coffees from a few merchants were bought by government officials some time ago and analyzed. The result was that a percentage of chicory was found with some and recorded against them on the blue books.

Some merchants make a specialty of good coffee, but do a jobbing trade with small stores when a cheaper grade is demanded and thus get caught. If a grocer gives the consumer a high grade blend of coffee with two ounces of English chicory costing 28c and retailing at 35 or 40c, is he not doing the consumer a greater favor than the merchant who sells a pure coffee mixed with cheaper stuff which costs him 22c. Governments can peg away with their laboratory and analyses all they like but if the man behind the counter is crooked they are wasting time stamping scales, sampling his goods, etc. They should stop the manufacture of compounds if they wish to get rid of them.

This season's maple syrup is coming in freely—good, bad and indifferent. Some looks like and tastes sweetened rain-water. The best comes from Elgin, Delta, Athens and near by villages.

INGERSOLL.

April 14.—W. M. Scanlon who engaged in the bakery and confectionery business here about a year ago, and sold out a few months ago, has purchased a business in Fergus. In his new stand it is understood Mr. Scanlon will carry a general line of confectionery, fruits, tobaccos, etc. Many friends here will wish him success.

A business change of interest took place last week when the Pickard Co., of Niagara Falls, acquired the confectionery business formerly conducted by L. Tanner. The new firm took possession on Saturday.

Considerable judicious window-dressing was noticeable in the grocery stores during the past week. Although always up-to-date in their window displays, the grocers showed exceptional care in arranging their windows for the Easter trade, and they were very attractive and appropriate to the season. This is certainly good advertising as the passer-by will invariably stop to look at an attractive window and many sales are doubtless made as a result.

The maple syrup season has been much shorter than usual, and the output considerably below former years in the territory surrounding Ingersoll. The season was late in opening and it was brought to an abrupt termination by the several frostless nights last week. The drop in the temperature during Saturday and Sunday started the sap flowing again the early part of this week, but the makers predict that the season is practically at an end. The quality of the syrup was never better than this season, but the supply has been altogether too small for the demand. The bulk of the sales have been made at $1.25 per gallon.

Fifteen-cent eggs for Easter are but an echo of bygone days. At the market Saturday hundreds of dozens were offered but the price did not get below sixteen cents, and many sales were made at 18 cents.

HAMILTON.

April 14.—General regret is felt by the grocers' association here that the amendments proposed to the Division Court Act, relative to an easier mode of collection of small accounts, was not considered seriously by the legislature this session. The cost now of suing for an account is high, both for debtor and creditor. In some cases for small sums the cost runs up to three or four dollars, where fifty cents ought to be ample. It seems a pity that a more general expression of opinion in regard to this matter from all Ontario merchants should not be placed before the legislature. The Retail Merchants' Association took the matter up and proposed to look after it, but the grocers here think that the movement lacked energy. No opinion on the matter has been expressed by the Retail Merchants' Association here. They hold only annual meetings, and if the interest in the work is as dead in other places as here, we cannot expect much help from those in power. The Hamilton Grocers' Association have been discussing this question for a long time, and fully intended to send a deputation to the Attorney-General's department to press their cause, but were assured by E. M. Trowern, the secretary of the Retail Merchants' Association, that being on the spot he would let them know when to go down. But alas! the message never came, and they now find that they made a mistake in not following up the job themselves. Better luck await them next session.

At their next meeting Mr. McIntosh will offer a paper on the subject of Canned Goods to the grocers' association. This fact having been announced through the press, Mr. McIntosh has received a large number of suggestions and enquiries from canners, wholesalers and others which have aroused considerable interest, and as he is expected to give an exhaustive opinion on the question, particularly on points that affect the retailer, all the grocers are keeping an open date for that night.

Maple syrup and sugar are coming in very slowly and the price is ruling high. One firm is reported to be selling at $2 per gallon, which is pretty high for this market.

H. P. Boyd, vice-president of the retail grocers' association, has sold his business to Gordon McInnes, late manager for Peebles-Hobson & Co.

Robt. Horton, also of Peebles-Hobson & Co. has opened a fine new store in the west end.

John Lampman, grocer, South Queen St., has purchased a 40 h.p. automobile. This purchase is probably why new stores are starting up in his section. Well, "Jack" worked hard for it and deserves it all right.

PERTH.

April 14.—A representative of one of the large condensed milk companies was in Perth this week. He says, as far as he knows, there is less condensed milk and cream sold in this town than in any town he has visited.

Maple syrup is bringing 75c to $1 gallon. Though the supply is just about the average or below, there is much more for sale than can easily be disposed of. Some farmers unable to sell have had to take syrup home again. A great deal of last year's syrup was carried over. This probably accounts for the "lack of appetite" of Perth people for the maple product. Maple sugar brings 8c to 10c a pound.

H. M. Shaw held a demonstration of some particular lines of jellies and coffee in his grocery department last week.

Bread is 6c per 1½-lb. loaf in Perth. In most surrounding towns we are told it is 5c per loaf.

In considering the cash system of doing business a local merchant looks at it this way: "If at present my bad accounts amount to, roughly, one-half of one per cent. of the business I do, and when I open an account with a customer, I usually get the biggest part of his business, then the question to me is, Will I lose more or less than that one-half per cent. by adopting a cash system and cutting out my present credit accounts, for these credit customers can get credit somewhere else?''

Croft & Son, of Middleville, advertise that they are going out of business.

Grocers here are complaining about the poor quality of the navel oranges they have received this winter. Many of them arrive lacking the juice. They are spongy and dry and have not their usual sweetness. Some loss is experienced because of this.

J. V. Watson, for some years a clerk with G. E. Armstrong, has given up his position. He has received the appointment of customs officer for Perth district.

LONDON.

April 14.—Retail grocers report business very good during the past week. In the surrounding country, according to travelers' reports, trade was fair.

Brokers state that sugar is still very firm, though there has been no change in prices. Teas of all grades also continue very firm. There is very little Japan in the country, nor will there be before the arrival of the new crop in July. The canned goods market is in a demoralized condition here. There seems to be so much in the hands of canners and wholesalers that they are evidently willing to sell at any price they can get. Currants at the point of growth are reported higher.

The highest honor to which the average London Irishman aspires is that of president of the Irish Benovelent Society, the leading organization of the kind in the city, and one noted for its great charitable work and the splendid picnics which it annually holds. This week the society holds its annual meeting, when the presidential prize falls into the lap of E. J. Ryan, of Ryan & Russell, grocers, an ex-president and now treasurer of the Retail Merchants' Association. Mr. Ryan has filled the office of vice-president of the I.B.S. during the past year and the presidency comes to him by right of succession. That he will fill his new position acceptably to the members as a whole no one who knows Mr. Ryan has the slightest doubt.

John Rennie, for some time traveler for R. C. Struthers & Co., has taken possession of Goodge's grocery, corner of Dundas and Maitland Streets, which business he recently purchased. One of Mr. Rennie's first acts on engaging in his new line was to join the Retail Grocers' Association.

For some years past the grocers of London have closed their places of business every Wednesday afternoon during the months of June, July, August and September. A more is on foot to make the weekly half holiday season begin with the first Wednesday in May. Whatever is done as to this, it is certain the weekly half holiday will be continued by the London grocers during the coming summer.

''Does the handling of daily newspapers and postage stamps pay?'' was asked of a north end grocer to-day. And the answer was: ''Not in themselves, for the profit in both cases is very small. But for the convenience of our customers we carry both stanps and papers, and the benefit to us is that people who come for them, buy other things in the store. These, under different circumstances, might go elsewhere to buy.''

Londoners paid 18c to 19c per dozen for their Easter eggs, which is about 3c lower than a year ago. Best butter sold on the market for 25c to 26c per lb., and poultry brought 12c to 16c per pound.

GUELPH.

April 14.—The week before Easter was marked by special and elaborate preparations by consumers and merchants. Commencing Monday trade became brisker until Thursday and Saturday. The latter day was apparently a record one. Business was fast all day until after 10 p.m., there being no break or slackness. Although it was very cold, there was a large contingent of people from the country, and Wyndham St. showed a very ''animated picture'' to the ''looker-on.''

A. J. Groom is showing some ''good quality'' maple syrup in jars, which is having a good sale.

Geo. Williams had a splendid display of spring vegetables on Thursday and Saturday which had a ready sale. The display reflected great credit upon the responsible party.

Saturday was ''egg day'' on the market and there was a big rush for the Easter supply. There was a large supply of eggs, but it was not equal to the demand, consequently the result was a stiffening in the prices. The market throughout was on the same basis, and there was an upward tendency in the prices all along the line. Eggs went up to 17c and 18c, and butter, in good demand, remained firm at 24c and 25c. Poultry was scarce and high in price. Potatoes sold at 70c and 75c per bag. Maple syrup was offered at $1.40 per gallon and 40c per quart.

ST. THOMAS.

April 14.—Both markets were small on Saturday considering the fact of its being Easter and the produce offered was all disposed of. Eggs were the principal feature and opened at 18c per doz. but the tardy buyers were lucky as they dropped to 15c per dozen before the close. Butter sold readily at from 25c to 28c per lb. Maple syrup sold from $1.25 to $1.40 per gallon, according to quality. One farmer had a large quantity for sale and a neighbor stated that he did not have a maple tree on his place. If a grocer were to offer for sale that kind of stuff he would be fined. There was no change of price in other produce. The millers paid $1.07 per bushel for wheat—the highest price reached here in years. Flour has advanced 10c per 100 lbs.

The by-law depriving the grocers from buying on the markets until ten a.m. has been evaded, it is said, by one firm of grocers. It is stated that another party buys for them and that their wagon has been seen to call and get the load of produce from a man whose duty it ought to be to see that the by-law is enforced. Some of the grocers have interviewed the chairman of the market committee and he stated that an information should be laid before the magistrate. If this is done it is an injustice to the grocers who observe the law and it should not be tolerated.

Our police magistrate has dismissed two more cases brought before him of ''peddling without a license'' and as the Ontario Legislature has, it is understood, put off till next session the amendment of the act, although passed by the committee, no relief is likely and the local merchants who pay their business tax have to suffer from this injustice till next session. If the grocers of Ontario were properly organized and their case fairly presented no doubt action to remedy this condition of affairs would hav met with immediate success and the delay would have been avoided.

There are many good reasons why grocers should have an organization of their own and one of them is to study their relationship with jobber and manufacturer. Other grievances are the paying of cartage at the point of shipment as well as at destination; church tickets, price-cutters, Christmas presents, etc.

The grocers report that Saturday's business was ahead of last year and the local customs receipts for March were also ahead, which spells encouragement.

CHATHAM.

April 14.—Grocers unite in declaring that the Easter business this year was the best on record, Easter week, and particularly the Saturday before Easter Sunday, being far in advance of the corresponding days last year. Grocers are anticipating a big summer, all the signs pointing that way.

Flowers were features of most of the grocery offerings this Easter, and floral window displays proved very attractive. In most cases the flowers were taken on commission for local floral firms, and, though as a consequence of the competition, the floral trade was pretty well divided, most of those handling flowers found that they fairly paid for their trouble. Hitherto, Wm. Anderson has been practically the only grocer to carry a regular line of potted plants.

Fred Ward, of Harry Andrews' grocery staff will be in Petrolia this Thursday, April 15, attending the wedding of his son, Fred J. Ward, to Miss Maude Tanton, formerly manager of Parsons' Fair here.

Saturday saw a busy and crowded market here, with most prices high.

Poultry is expensive just now, chickens ranging as high as 60c each and a few turkeys offering for $2.50. Eggs sold at 16c, and butter at 24c and 25c. Potatoes brought 85c a bag. Live hogs went up to $7.10 per cwt., deliveries being considerable. Fresh vegetables, home-grown, are making their appearance on the market, lettuce, radishes and rhubarb being in evidence.

Reports from the country indicate that the farmers are well advanced with their spring work. Plowing is pretty well completed, and seeding on clay lands is nearly finished in most sections, though on sand it is coming on slowly, being held back by cold weather. Much corn ground has been already plowed. The recent warm spells have had a very beneficial effect upon the wheat which has picked up wonderfully, while one Raleigh farmer reports oats already up. This last is a record breaker.

That, as a consequence of the failure of the ice crop this winter, ice this summer will cost twice as much as last year, was the prophecy made last week by a local ice dealer. All Chatham's ice this year has to be imported.

A movement looking to the establishment of a government experimental cold storage station here for the handling of apples is in progress, and is being actively championed by D. A. Gordon, M.P., in the Dominion House. One grower declared to a Grocer representative that the encouragement of cold storage would probably mean the salvation of the industry, adding that, although Kent had probably more apple trees than any other county, owing to the insufficient means of taking care of the product the county is this spring unable to supply her own demands, let alone to export.

The big gale last Wednesday did quite a bit of damage in this section. In addition to tossing delivery rigs in all directions, it pretty well wrecked the roof of the Tilbury canning factory, and the west wall of the main building, the damage being estimated at $1,000. The fire wall of J. S. Richardson's general store at Tilbury was also damaged to the extent of about $350.

Mitton & Campbell have opened their new grocery and general store at Ridgetown, in the premises formerly occupied by the Northway Company.

The proprietors of the St. Thomas Canning Company purpose establishing a branch at Ridgetown this summer. business men of the town having subscribed money to rent the Harrison building near the Pere Marquette for their machinery. While they expect to put up only tomatoes this year, they will handle peaches if the crop warrants the move.

C. L. Robertson, of Rutherford, has disposed of his grocery and general store to Mr. Talbot, of London.

John Grass, of Ridgetown, advertises that he is giving up the handling of crockery in connection with his grocery business, and is disposing of that line by bargain sale.

The Dresden Basket Factory, which has been carrying on business in the Hicks Block, has been compelled by rush of orders to move to larger premises in connection with the Mahler evaporating factory. A New Idea egg basket, designed to hold 18 dozen eggs and fit benath a buggy seat, has had considerable to do with the rush, though the company manufactures baskets of all kinds.

R. Heyland's grocery, at Dresden, was the scene of a small chimney fire last week, the damage being slight.

Dresden's new flour mill will have a capacity of 250 barrels. The company is capitalized at $50,000, and $20 000 worth of machinery is being installed. The town subscribed $3,000. C. C. Morrison, of Guelph; Leslie Morrison, of Hensall; Jas. Morrison, of Wheatley; John Dodd, of Alton; and Melvin Hunt, of Barrie, are the men behind.

E. H. Ruttan, Wallaceburg, has erected a handsome new awning in front of his grocery.

S. J. Helmer has purchased the Sombra bakery from Geo. W. Meyers, who is leaving for the Northwest.

Wm. Piggott, the South Side, Wallaceburg, grocer, is able to be out again after several weeks' illness.

The Merlin Creamery, conducted by Wm. Parker, opens for business on April 15th.

A milk route is being inaugurated at Wheatley by Geo. R. Robertson.

Snuff tobacco promises to be the next novel product of the south-western counties. A Tennesseean named Wall is now experimenting in the growing in Essex county of a grade of tobacco suitable for the purpose, 20 acres being under cultivation this year.

The Dominion Government has taken a wise and important step in establishing an experimental tobacco station on the farm of A. R. Ferriss, near Harrow. W. A. Barnet, B.S.A., will be in charge. What the Canadian tobacco growers need most is expert instruction on growing and curing the weed—especially the latter—and the experimental farm should have a good effect in improving the quality of the Canadian-grown weed.

That the Tilbury canning factory will operate this year was the statement handed out by Manager H. H. Shaver last week, in contradiction of many widespread rumors. Mr. Shaver says the 1908 output will be doubled this year.

D. M. Edmonds, of Tilbury, recently sold his grocery business to W. A. Johnson, of the same place. Irvine Wallace, formerly manager of the grocery department of the W. C. Crawford store, who recently relinquished that post to accept a position in Amherstburg has been secured by Mr. Johnson to manage his new venture, and will remain in Tilbury.

The Pease evaporating factory at Wallaceburg will henceforth use natural gas as fuel, arrangements for its instalation having been completed.

Wm. McIntosh, a Wallaceburg baker, has left to take a position in Barrie.

Bruce Gonyou has resumed his position in Ruttan's grocery at Wallaceburg, after an extended illness.

Mitton & Campbell, who are this week opening a new grocery in Ridgetown, have made big improvements in the store front.

The old-established grocery and general business of J. S. Richardson, at Tilbury, has been incorporated as a joint stock company, under the name of the J. S. Richardson Co., Limited. Mr. Richardson retains active control of the business, which is the oldest business concern in Tilbury, having been started in an unpretentious fashion in 1879, and since grown to very large proportions.

Henry Everest, who formerly conducted a small grocery in Chatham, on Grand Ave. West, passed away recently, in Pontiac, Mich, aged 73 years.

The news that the committee of the Legislature had approved the bill introduced by P. H. Bowyer, M.P.P., to permit the sale by grocers and general merchants of ordinary household remedies, has undoubtedly proven a source of much gratification to merchants in this vicinity. It was in this county that most of the original prosecutions took place, and many a country merchant who had to cash up $20 and costs for selling five cents' worth of quinine will be glad to learn that the obnoxious restrictions are practically down and out. Incidentally, the stand taken by Secretary Trowern of the Retail Merchants' Association, will hardly meet with the approval of many of the active members of the local branch. Though the restrictions fell most heavily on country merchants, they were deeply resented by members of the grocery trade in this city—and grocers have always comprised about fifty per cent. of the active membership of the local association. Prior to the passage of the act in question—and possibly since—Chatham druggists did a considerable jobbing business in drugs and "patents" with country merchants, and it is doubtful if the measure, originally designed, it is understood, to hit the departmental stores, was much appreciated by the local men who were supposed to benefit. The incident may lend impetus to a certain underlying movement to make the local branch of the R.M.A. a purely city affair.

ST. CATHARINES.

April 14.—Mrs. Jno. Kilroy has disposed of her grocery stock and given up business.

J. T. Petrie is having the Simpson store in Thorold, which he recently purchased, refitted. The store will be thoroughly up-to-date. The grocery section will be fitted with Walker bins and counters. A handsome plate glass front is also being put in. Mr. Petrie expects to have this store opened as a branch store about May 1.

G. G. Gamble, general merchant, of Fenwick, has assigned.

TORONTO.

April 14.—J. Patterson, 19 Howard St. is constantly re-arranging his store, which gives it always a new and attractive appearance.

A. L. Thurston has bought out Mr. Swain, 1232 College St. His bright young daughter is taking an active part in the management of the business.

A grocer was seen the other day waiting on a customer with his pipe in his mouth—he ought to know better.

Geo. Rutledge, a successful young clerk for years in Parkdale, has started a store of his own with entirely new goods. Everything looks cheerful in the store and he is bound to be a winner.

P. D. Dunn opened a new store at 1646 Queen west two months ago and is doing a good business.

J. P. Cowan, from Dundalk, has purchased the business of Mrs. Maybee, 1362 College St., and has prospects of a good business.

A College St. grocer is actually the limit. He has come to the conclusion that The Canadian Grocer is not worth the two dollars and the only reason he gives is that he does not read it.

A west-end grocer recently kindly supplied a customer with goods on credit. In course of time he asked for some money, but instead he claims he received abuse. He then wrote her a letter and demanded payment for his goods, but in answer to this she appeared in the store with vengeance in her eyes and threatened to bring him up in the police court. Getting abuse for his kindness was more than he could stand, and he helped her out of his store. For this he had to pay ten dollars and costs. The sympathy of those who know something about the affair is with the grocer, who feels that he deserved better treatment.

W. J. Sawyers & Son, 429 Yonge St., has arranged a very attractive window with canned milk. The rivalry in the city now is not who can sell the cheapest, but who can have the cleanest and most attractive store and give the best service.

Teasdale Grocery Co. are making a great display of canned apples. This is a good business move as green apples are very scarce and dear, and now, before the fresh berries come in canned apples are in season.

Brittain L. Hill, 668 Bloor St. West, is doing a good business, much better than he expected when he started last June.

OTTAWA.

F. W. Forde took over the store of Forde Bros. on Bank St. on the first of the month.

The Hull Electric Company is being prosecuted under the Meat and Canned Foods Act for unlawfully transporting one dressed hog from Ottawa into Quebec. These Hull people seem to be getting fussy. In Ottawa there is a dressed hog on nearly every end seat of the cars in summer.

Miller & Watson, grocers and butchers, have opened on the corner of Bay and Gladstone Ave.

The store of R. Baird, Somerset St., is closed, the owner having gone west. It will be remembered this store was very badly damaged by fire and water some three weeks ago, and the manager, A. Nellin, has been reducing the stock since that time.

PETERBORO.

April 14.—One of the city's influential grocers states that there has been a great deal of last year's butter sold during the past winter by grocers who have either had it in storage or who have bought it from those who have thus kept it. This butter was purchased last autumn and not a little is reported to have been bought in the early summer, a June make being found. As a result the quality of the butter was not what it should be but sctill a number of the grocers are said to have had no scruples in selling it. The informant states that if the grocers want to build up their butter trade and cut in on the market business they should draw the line at selling an inferior grade.

The time has at last arrived for the show windows of our grocers to give a good place to seeds and many of the grocers have already done so. A few more weeks and the demand will be at its height. Flower seeds, as well as vegetable, are kept in stock.

White & Gillespie being the centre of the dairy supply trade for this city, report a good business so far. The cheese factories are getting ready to open up for the summer and are laying in a stock of requisites for the work. They are selling many cream separators throughout the country, Mr. Gillespie being well known and the firm's integrity being a good advertisement.

The small stores in the outlying parts of the city had their annual sale of hot-cross buns on Good Friday. They objected to the keeping of their stores open on Friday and in vain endeavored to get all their deliveries of orders made on Thursday evening.

The merchants state that the farmers of this section are asking the highest price for maple syrup in the province. The price is 40c a quart or $1.50 a gallon, and the quality is said to be nothing out of the ordinary. The weather has not been of the right kind thus far for a bountiful flow of sap, but there is a chance yet of the season redeeming itself.

It has been learned that Ald. Geo. Gillespie, of White & Gillespie, recently made a secret journey to New York on an important municipal matter.

John T. Donoghue, corner Sherbrooke and Rubidge Sts., has begun to make an addition to his grocery store.

Market prices of butter and eggs last Saturday were 27c and 18c respectively. Butter is expected to remain about these figures, as the supply will just about meet the demand.

Will Grady, a young man who is occupying his own store in the south end of the city, and who was recently married, states that his business is coming along nicely and although practically new in the grocery business he is pleased with his experience so far.

The brightening prospects of the spring have brought increased business to the merchants in general and the grocers report that they have been affected and are looking out for bills being paid better in the near future on account of the building boom that is expected and which is already being realized.

The local flour mills are doing a good business judging from the fact that the Central Milling Company are doubling their capacity and adding the machinery to meet the demand of their increased business. The Peterboro Cereal Co. have also added to their flour department.

R. C. Braund and Mrs. Braund celebrated their crystal wedding on Monday evening, April 12. They received a large number of presents and the congratulations of a host of friends. About 70 people were present at the affair and Mr. Braund and his wife proved themselves most delightful hosts. Mr. Braund conducts a large general store in the south end of the city which he started at about the same time as his marriage and he attributes his success to the help and inspiration received from his wife.

Bert Hunter, who opened a store of his own some months ago, is disposing of it this week and will leave on an extended trip to the West.

Henry Cross proprietor of a small store near the C. G. E. works, has sold his business.

Jas. R. Bell, grocer, was in Toronto on Wednesday on a buying trip.

BRACEBRIDGE.

April 14.—Easter decorations among the different merchants this year were excellent. Among the neat grocery windows noticed were Armstrong & Gillespie, showing a large display of fruits and flowers; Hutchison Bros., an Easter window of bacon, hams, cheese and eggs, making an effective display; Kirk Bros.', windows were pretty with flowers and fruits, and Jos. G. Meyers had a large display of eggs and meats.

All day Saturday the streets were thronged with people. Merchants and clerks were kept on the jump till late at night.

"The best Easter trade ever," they all exclaim.

Some, at least, eat macaroni in this town. We noticed 130 cases of this toothsome foodstuff unloading at Hutchison Bros.' store on Thursday.

Some of us hope for the starting of the movement in Ontario "for more daylight." Your correspondent questioned the merchants, clerks, and other men of this town and all speak greatly in favor of the clock advancing one hour during the summer. It will give the man behind the counter daylight to enjoy the numerous sports and other

A SUBSTITUTION.

The claim is made by the Schram Automatic Sealer Co., of Canada, that their product, the Schram sealer, which was introduced into this country last year is being misrepresented by other firms selling fruit jars. It is stated that some parties are selling what they claim to be Schram jars but which in reality are entirely different. The above mentioned company did a considerable trade in Canada during their first year doing business here and it is probable that it is just another case of a good thing being imitated.

PARTNERSHIP FORMED.

A change has been made in the brokerage business of J. Walter Snowdon, Montreal, he having taken into partnership W. George Borland. The firm will in future be known as Snowdon & Borland and will maintain offices in the Guardian Building.

Mr. Snowdon has been connected with the grocery trade in Montreal for many years, having been for some time sales representative in Montreal of the Quaker Oats Company, and latterly having conducted a brokerage business of his own. He has a fine connection with both wholesale and retail trade.

Mr. Borland began his business experience with the Royal Bank, by whom he was engaged for some years. While there employed he met many influential business men, with many of whom he has had dealings later on in his business career. He resigned from the responsible position of purchasing agent for one of the largest industrial concerns in Montreal, in order to go into the brokerage.

Both young men are progressive, and the partnership will enable them to look after the interests of their principles most satisfactorily. They have several first-class agencies.

PURE FOOD SHOW AT COLISEUM.

A pure food show will be held at the Coliseum, Montreal, beginning May 17 and continuing until May 29. The site selected is an admirable one, being in the heart of the town. The building contains 36,000 square feet of floor space, with no posts. Duquette & Robertson are carrying out the interior arrangements. Somewhat of an innovation will be provided in the shape of a vaudeville performance. A first-class orchestra will also be in attendance. The proceeds of the show will be devoted to charity and in this connection a rather novel scheme has been adopted. One thousand tickets will be sent to each charitable institution, and they are to sell them at 10c each, and keep the proceeds.

Many manufacturers in Toronto and elsewhere displayed an Easter spirit by allowing their employes a holiday from Thursday until Monday. Among the leaders in this regard was E. W. Gillett Company, Limited.

The Grocer's Encyclopedia From Week to Week

The Preparation of Prunes From Plums — How They Are Gathered, Dried and Made Ready for the Market—The Sources of Supply and Differences in the Fruit—France a Great Prune Country.

PRUNES—The word prune, is derived from the latin word prunum, a plum, and may be more specifically defined as the fleshy varieties of the common plum, of firm texture, which are easily dried whole either in the sun or by artificial heat without fermenting at the pit. In fact the common English name, for dried plums is "prunes" but in French "pruneaux." Prunelloes is a name generally applied to the larger, lighter colored and finer flavored of the ordinary prunes, and mostly come from Tours.

Prepared From Plums.

In preparing prunes and prunelloes, the fresh gathered ripe and thick skinned plums are dried first in the sun till soft. Sometimes they are spread on hurdles and then left about twenty-four hours in a slow brick oven. After cooling they are put in a warmer oven and again a third or fourth time till sufficiently dried. Great care has to be exercised that the skin be not broken, and that the fruit be not packed until all surplus moisture between the fruit has entirely disappeared ; for if packed while damp it will mould in the package.

A skilled packer can tell by the touch just when the fruit is fit for packing, and when it is not. Some prunes may be noticed to have a smoky flavor, from having been dried over wood fires, especially those from Servia, Hungary and Bohemia. The Italian or Fallenberg prune is a well-known sort. It has a rich acid flavor, and dark color, with blue tint and is nearly round. Bosnia and Herzegovina prepare 40,000 or 50,000 tons of prunes yearly. They resemble the Italian product, but are not quite so large, and are generally highly cooked.

Prunes are also extensively prepared in Germany, from the Quetsch plum, which is best known as the German prune. These contain considerable acidity, but the most widely celebrated prunes of all are the Catharine variety of French or "Imperial plums," which reach England from Bordeaux. The tree thrives best in clayey and calcareous soils, and does not require loam of profound depth. The finest flavored are prepared around the little town of Brignoles in Provence. They are known commercially as Pistoles, and Pruneaux de Brignoles, and comprise the Pendrigon blanc, and Pendrigon violette. The Pistoles variety is a superior grade to the Brignoles. The centre of the French prune industry, however, is at Agen in the Southwest. Immense quantities are put up in the fertile departments of Lot-et-Garonne, Dordogne and Lot.

The prune d'Agen or d'Ente (date grafted plum) grown in the valley of the Lot, has long been highly esteemed. "Ente" means grafted by a special method. In travelling from Avignon to Furnel through the valley of Lot whole plains are seen covered with these grafted plum trees which furnish the famous Prunes d'Ente and Robe Sergent. They are sun dried, and are exported to the remotest corners of the earth. Other well known varieties are the Reine Claude, Mirabelle, Petit Damas or French St. Julien chiefly used in medicine and used in the valley of the Loire, whence also come the "Tours Prunes" above referred to. Lorraine produces an immense quantity of the kind known as Quetschs, which are one of the best for ordinary preserving, but their flavor is very inferior to their appearance.

Of late years, large quantities of prunes from Servia have been imported into France, and re-exported as French at considerably higher prices.

Differences in Prunes.

The processes employed for curing are very primitive, although plums are one of the chief resources of that country. Every grower cures them at his own orchard. Spain and Portugal also prepare prunes. California raises over 60,000 tons a year, a great number of which are packed and exported in boxes of 10, 25 and 50 lbs. each. The Californian are said to contain a less proportion of stone and skin than French prunes, while the meat and saccharin matter is much greater. They are also said to be superior in flavor, and to keep better and longer without sugaring.

Oregon prunes are large and acid of the Italian type. The Dosch prune is also large and acid but as a rule people prefer the sweeter kinds.

Fruit Gathered at Mid-day.

In France, at Agen, when the prune is rich, full and thoroughly ripe, it is covered with a sort of glaucous powder, called "flower" which greatly adds to its value as a table fruit. The fruit is usually gathered in the middle of the day after the sun has dissipated the humidity of the night, and straw is generally spread under the trees to prevent the fruit from getting bruised or dirty through coming in contact with the soil. Sometimes a canvas cloth is held or suspended under the tree. Only such fruit as readily falls when the tree is shaken, is gathered ; as soon as it is harvested the fruit is taken to a building where it remains a day or two to mature.

In Europe, Bordeaux is the principal export centre of the prune industry. America is now a strong competitor with Europe in this product. The system of drying the fruit, in the latter country has the best results, and several French firms have adopted the American method and found it to answer admirably.

Prunes are a favorite fruit in manufacturing districts both for culinary purposes and dessert. They are considered very nutritious and slightly laxative. Stewed in water they form a good remedy for costiveness and feverishness, as does also the liquor as a drink.

The new season's pack begins to arrive in England toward the latter end of September. The qualities are mostly inferior after a wet summer and the best of them high in price.

THE "SHORTS" AND THE MILLERS.

The situation in the wheat and flour trade is rather unique at present. At any rate it is most interesting.

As those who are conversant with the market are well aware, prices of wheat are unusually high and strong, with little or no indication at present of a lower market, as the high prices which are being quoted for next year's crops indicate.

Shorts are being particularly hard hit by the wheat market. Many have sold May wheat at $1.03, and on Tuesday of this week, prices for that option touched $1.27½, or 24½c. above the price for which they had sold. Consequently, they are feeling uncomfortable and are praying for "night or Blucher."

Naturally, in view of these conditions, the situation of the millers is by no means comfortable. The smaller millers are feeling decidedly uncomfortable. To buy wheat to turn into flour with prices now ruling is not at all inviting. Most of the millers are what might be termed "lying low."

Then to make matters still worse for the average miller, there has been a good deal of price cutting during the last few months by the large milling companies. With their large equipment, the large mills are naturally able to manufacture at a lower cost, and taking advantage of this, they are quoting lower prices than the smaller millers can quote. This has so handicapped the latter, that some of them at any rate have been buying flour from the larger millers rather than manufacture their own flour at a loss.

It is evident, therefore, that whatever may be the outlook for high prices for the farmer, for the miller it is not at all bright, for plus the high price of wheat, there is the demoralizing influence of price-cutting.

ILLEGAL LABELLING.

The action of some companies in labelling their products in such a manner as to deceive buyers in the country of their production is something to be strongly condemned. It has been brought to our notice that at least one such case exists in Canada in which a Canadian manufacturer represents part of his goods as coming from a foreign country. Their particular product has a tax imposed on it coming into Canada so that their scheme is readily seen. They seek to enhance the quality and value of their goods by an illegal label and at the same time to create a demand for goods purporting to be manufactured in a superior manner to their own.

From a national standpoint such a scheme should be emphatically opposed. We have Canadian manufactured goods, which may be just as good as any imported, sold as foreign. Such manufacturers are almost bound to lose in the end. Jobbers knowing such goods are being misrepresented will not pay the price and ultimately the consumer will find it out. Why cannot Canadian manufacturers who have the facilities for turning out a good article not let that fact be known? It is more to their credit to do so and to the country's advantage as well. Morally, too, the action is wrong and contrary to the fundamental principles of an honest business.

We are not aware as to the exact nature of the law and the penalties that may be incurred but it appears that each province looks after its own offenders. As such a condition of affairs affects the business of manufacturers of similar products in the various sections of the country it seems advisable that a general law should be enacted to protect home manufacturers as well as importers who pay their legitimate dues. It is an unfair competition and dishonest business.

THE CLERK'S ROAD TO SUCCESS.

There are few men who have served the greater portion of their lives in the grocery trade who will not admit that the various demands upon the clerk are stringent, but absolutely necessary. It almost invariably takes years of work and concentration to develop a good clerk. As one man said a few days ago, "I have been in business for 35 years and I am still learning."

Any who overlook the necessary qualifications are, from the nature of the case, going to lower the standard which the industry has set up by means of its continual progress during the years that have passed.

To refer more particularly to the grocery trade it is not a too sweeping statement to say that a grocery business will probably depend upon the clerk above all else. The business will rise or fall according to the ability of the man behind the counter, who meets or who doesn't meet, the highly specialized requirements of the patrons. He must start at the bottom and work up—the trade demands it. Some may be more fitted to bring about a speedy development, according to the nature of their lives, prior to entering their vocation, but the quicker a clerk grasps the opportunities to show his mettle the more rapidly will he rise towards the summit.

CLEANLINESS IN THE STORE.

There isn't anything in connection with food products that appeals so much to the consumer as "Cleanliness" in the store she visits.

It impresses her at once with the idea that what she buys is clean and good.

There is the comforting feeling that her grocer is paying tribute to her own taste and habits.

Time was when any kind of a grocery store would suit her. There was little or no attention paid to the proper arrangement and display of goods.

With the improved conditions and requirements of modern life and the elevation of taste, things have changed and now the best arranged, best equipped and cleanest store gets her custom.

This elevation is due to the modern grocery store with its bright shelves, clean counters, handsome show cases, silent salesmen, practical refrigerators, computing scales, cash registers, clean windows and bright fixtures.

The inventive genius of the present day store outfitter is seen in the furnishing of the modern grocery store.

The Canadian Grocer since its inception twenty-one years ago has been a strong factor in bringing about these improved conditions in Canada. It has advocated the installation of every kind of practical, useful and cleanly fixture and equipment.

It has pointed out to the grocers the value of such improvements and it is largely due to its educational campaign in this direction that Canadian grocery stores are to-day the equal of any similar stores in the world.

ADVANCE IN FLOUR PRICES.

The bonds binding the price of flour during the past few weeks have been broken, and on Monday there was a general advance in nearly all the large centres in Canada. This has been the feature of the past week's markets and was directly due to the high figure at which wheat has been selling. This advance was not unexpected, but was rather late in arriving, the time having been prolonged on account of a war among some of the stronger western millers.

It is now to be expected that the bakers will raise the price of bread, and the advance in flour warrants a change of two cents in a six-pound loaf. Bread, however, has not yet been advanced, but if the present price of flour is maintained there is every likelihood that it will.

HOTEL INSPECTOR IN QUEBEC.

It is now almost certain that the government of the Province of Quebec will take definite action in the matter of appointing an inspector of hotels. The executive of the Dominion Commercial Travelers' Association has been in close touch with the officials at Quebec, and, to be of further possible assistance to the government, on Saturday morning last formed a special and a strong committee to offer to act with the authorities in any way deemed advisable.

This committee is composed of the men who look after the interests of the association, which is composed of 6,500 men—commercial travelers who are on the road eight to eleven months a year—and as every member of the committee has traveled himself in the past, or is traveling now, their co-operation will enable the government to select a first-class man to fill the new position, and to properly instruct him in his duties.

Great interest in the project is being evinced by both the government and the opposition, both parties seeing that the appointment of a really good inspector, a man who would know his business, would be for the benefit of the public as well as the commercial traveler.

BROOM CORN PRICES UP.

The three advances of twenty-five cents each in the prices of brooms since December, have not, according to prices quoted this week, covered the advance in the price of the broom corn, the material used in the manufacture of brooms.

One manufacturer, for instance, bought two cars of broom corn this week, paying $130 and $135 per ton for the material, whereas, last fall the same stock could be secured for $60 to $65, the advance being over one hundred per cent.

In a standard line of maderate-priced brooms it requires at least 23 pounds of corn to make a dozen brooms and this at present prices of 3½c. per pound would equal about 81c. per dozen, or six cents over the advance made by manufacturers, lines which formerly sold at $2.75 having advanced to $3.50. The manufacturers, therefore, are being hit by the advance as well as the consumers, and as the market is cornered in strong hands, no relief is in sight until a new crop is marketed next fall.

THE EFFECT OF UNITY.

When men associated with any particular line of business get together, they have presented to them the only opportunity of satisfactorily attending to their differences. What hope is there for the manufacturer to work alone and settle his business so that it will meet with the entire approval of the wholesaler and retailer? What hope has the wholesaler to form rules and regulations that manufacturer and retailer will be satisfied with? And a similar question may be asked as to the retailer. The course he decides to pursue will necessarily cross the paths of the others and instead of having business run smoothly along there exists a feeling of distrust among the three.

On another page of this issue there appears a report of the conference held last week in New York, at which were officially represented the National Retail Grocers' Association, the National Wholesale Grocers' Association, and the American Specialty Manufacturers' Association. Men of these three associations met to discuss together the things that could be made beneficial to all concerned. Permeating the debate there was the spirit that the different interests were much in common, that such a conference had the tendency of bringing the various factors into a closer relationship and of clearing the way to a better understanding.

Apart from the business benefits to be derived, the social aspect of such a gathering of men is worthy of consideration. How often are our prejudices against the men we meet on the street changed to admiration for them when we are privileged to come into closer contract! Such an instance has come within the experience of almost every business man, who learns to know how little foundation he has had for many of his secretly formed dislikes.

A conference of men similar to the one referred to cannot fail to be attended with good results. It brings forth in free discussion the grievances of them all, thus presenting the only chance to adjust matters satisfactorily. The manufacturer, wholesaler and retailer, when they unite, do not do so with any idea of formulating plans to practice extortion methods on consumers. They come together to consider what shall constitute the proper channels through which trade shall flow and other problems of general interest. They rub against each other and get new ideas, all of which tend to their private advantage as well as to the advantage of the association to which they belong.

KEEP THE STORE WELL LIGHTED.

The lighting of a store is always a problem. Both daylight and artificial light should be supplied in an ample degree. In the congested quarters of the cities it is not always possible to get sufficient daylight, but it is always possible to have a good quantity of artificial light. When the days get short, the well-lighted store is the one that commands attention, and beginning at the front door, which should always be well lighted, the window should be resplendent, of course, taking for granted the dressing is attractive, otherwise the lights ought to be as dim and few as possible. The efficacy of good lighting in the store itself is obvious. First, there is the psychological effect on the customer when he comes into a flood of light where everything seems to speak a welcome full of warmth. Secondly, in ill-lighted stores dirt and rubbish are more likely to collect and lead to an unsanitary condition. Thirdly, there is the general satisfaction to be derived from working in a well-lighted store, as compared with work anywhere in a dim and insufficient light. Electricity is undoubtedly the best form of light, as it is the cleanest, least cumbersome and most easily taken care of, requiring very little attention Gas and acetylene come next, and coal oil last. There are many kinds of acetylene plants, and some of them give a very brilliant light, but they require considerable attention.

BUSINESS MAXIMS.

By Plato, Jr.

¶ He who is always late to business usually ends up a lap behind at the close of his commercial career.

¶ He who is in love with laziness can never expect to win the approving smile of success.

¶ Time has his eye on the loafer who is eternally watching the clock.

¶ The onus for failure in life is usually charged by the lazy man to the discrimination of opportunity.

QUEBEC MARKETS

POINTERS—
Dried Fruits—Firm under good demand.
Canned Goods—Moving well.
Sugar—Market quiet.
Molasses—Decline in prices.

Montreal, April 15, 1909.

Business in the country is slack owing to the bad condition of the roads and many of the farmers are devoting their attention to sugar-making rather than patronizing the stores. A comparatively quiet time may be expected for some time now until the opening of navigation, which will be two weeks earlier than usual, as the ice is nearly clear of the river. Dried fruits and canned goods have been moving well. The demand for fish has been better sustained since Easter than for some seasons past. Beans, peas, molasses, syrups and maple products are going into consumption fairly freely. The paper under discount at the banks has not been met as well as expected, as some good customers who never asked favors before, have had to obtain renewals. This is usually a quiet time for remittances and collections, but after the opening of navigation, and the new dairy season, an improvement may be safely expected,

SPICES—In discussing the spice situation with a dealer, he stated trade was quiet, owing to the fact that buyers were waiting for better transportation facilities—that is, water, and an improved state of the roads in the country. CANNED GOODS

MONTREAL.—Canned fruits, with the exception of peaches and pears, are going into consumption rapidly. Vegetables are meeting with only a fair demand. Canned fish, with the exception of sardines, are dead. Meats are very quiet just now.

TORONTO. — Business in canned goods, generally speaking, has been brisk. There is reported a scarcity in two-pound red raspberries, and 2's and 3's in peaches. Gallon apples are moving freely with no change in prices. The scarcity of peas is one of the features of this market, but tomatoes are apparently in large stocks. A local broker disposed of two cars of the latter goods during the week, and also 1,200 cases of canned pumpkin, which, he stated, was selling better than a short time ago. He attributed this to the lowering of the price of eggs, there being more consumed.

The warm weather will bring a better demand for fish. The market in the better grades of salmon in the United States is very firm, and stocks are reported light, there being very little in first hands. Some Toronto wholesalers have difficulty in getting the better classes. With the pink salmon, however, it is different.

ONTARIO MARKETS

POINTERS—
SUGAR—Raws easier.
CANNED PUMPKIN—Selling freely.
DRIED FRUITS—Good demand.
PEPPERS—Firmer in price.
RICE AND TAPIOCA—Quiet.

Toronto, April 14, 1909.

Some disappointments were experienced among wholesale grocers here regarding the extent of their Easter trade. They were expecting a better business than they realized, and attribute the cause to the poor roads in many sections, and to the fact that the farmers in many of the country districts have been too busy to make frequent visits to their town. The cold spell with Saturday as its centre had a great deal to do with disappointments among some retail men. Collections are reported to be only fair.

Very few changes have occurred in the grocery prices during the week. The feature of all markets was the advance in flour. Raw sugar is a little easier than it was last week, but brokers here do not anticipate any lower prices for refined in the near future. Prior to the last couple of advances, many secured heavy stocks of sugar, so that the demand is not great at the present time.

The announcement that there would be no duty on teas and coffees coming into the United States, does not excite local dealers much. They got rid of some surplus teas and have still plenty to supply the trade. Of course, this elimination of the duties does not become law till the president puts his pen to the bill as amended, and other changes have time to occur.

The strong market in prunes, apricots and dried peaches may be considered a minor feature this week. This is probably due to the low prices of these goods. Canned goods are moving fairly well so far as fruits are concerned. The canned fish season comes strong with the warmer weather in May and June.

SUGAR—The market is a little weaker than a week ago. The raw market is reported steady, at a decline of one-thirty-second, and advices state there has been no pressure on the holders to sell. Heavy rains have occurred in Cuba, which may seriously interfere with the balance of the crop. The visible production to date, is estimated at 1,068,000 tons, as against 1,110,000 tons in 1907—the year of the last heavy crop. Prices in Europe are reported a fraction easier since the holidays, at a decline of three farthings per cwt. in beet sugar. The demand for refined sugar is unusually light, and locally, the recent heavy purchases have not been disposed of.

TEA—The situation in tea this week presents few new phases. It does not now appear that there will be a duty on tea going into the United States. To-day, however, a local broker received a communication from a New York correspondent, which stated that this was not entirely settled. The senate will, he stated, have the revision of the amendments in their hands and that it would be probably six weeks before a final decision was reached. There was, he said, a belief among some that there would still be a duty on coffee, and if so, a duty on tea was inevitable. United States buyers who come to Canada for tea are not likely to lose, whether the duty stays off or goes on.

DRIED FRUITS—There must be an immense amount of dried fruits consumed in Canada, considering the steady demand. Prunes are still moving freely, although the northern construction camps and general merchants laid in large stocks some time ago. Dried peaches and apricots are also good sellers. Currant prices are firm with the primary markets a shade higher. The raisin market is quiet, although there has been a large sale of valencias. Few dates are moving.

MANITOBA MARKETS

Winnipeg, April 10.—The past week was not a remarkable one in the retail trade here. Monday and Tuesday being Jewish holidays, and Wednesday and Thursday being prior to the close of Lent, the holiday business was restricted. Thursday developed well along some lines. The Easter trade is always more or less limited to eggs, bacon, hams and fruit and such products. That tendency was quite marked this year, and it is on that account that no particular boom can be recorded. To-day is looked to as the great day of the season and if the weather is fine, the volume of business done will surpass any other day's trade for several weeks.

The streets and rural roads have taken on a differeent aspect within the past week, much to the gratification of all particularly concerned. The drivers have discarded their rubber boots, and are better able to keep the conveyances clean, and better still, they do not have to bear those "scoldings" from customers who were often annoyed over "late deliveries." It has been noted also that the city was visited by many farmers and their wives during the past few days, some of them driving in a distance of thirty miles with their produce. Among the more noticeable changes in the market this week are advances in cereals and brooms.

SUGAR—Brown sugar has been the heavy selling product this week for cooking purposes. The prices remain unchanged, but the market is very firm and wholesalers have heard rumors of advances in the near future. If this advance is made it will be the fourth within six weeks.

SYRUP AND MOLASSES—Syrup is selling well. This is a bachelor's table commodity, consequently there is a large demand for it all over western Canada. The trade in molasses has been good during the week, as was expected. The prices are firm as follows:

MAPLE PRODUCTS — Probably the greatest surprise in the local market this spring is the lack of demand for maple syrup and sugar. A mother may buy a little sugar for her child if she happens to have one with her in the store, and occasionally she will buy a pint of syrup for tea. These are about the size of the lots sold by retail.

HOUSE CLEANING TIME

Suggests

The Ideal Duster

THIS SUGGESTION is not because the article depends upon any particular season for its uses, nevertheless the approaching cleaning time creates a profound interest in more useful appliances than have been.

THE IDEAL DUSTER

AS { a high reaching duster
an outside Window Washer
a Polished Floor Duster

has a principle excelled only by the human hand.

It Is a MECHANICAL HAND, closing automatically, opened by a wire pulling cord. The user may change wiping cloths with practically the same facility as in hand cleaning—without stooping or climbing. THE HAND AND WRIST SHAPE gives the hand action, to wipe tops of doors, mouldings etc., and gives 11 square inches like the hand on top the cloth for surface rubbing—WHEREAS ALL MOPS HAVE ONLY A STRAIGHT LINE RUBBING SURFACE.

The wholesale trade will supply you at prices right to enable you to sell with a proper profit at 50 cents for the Duster complete in the two parts, or with a proper a very proper, Dust Cloth at 60 cents.

The consumption of these Dusters in some towns, where introduced the past year, has been enormous and this demand shows no abatement. Retail Price:

1st section, 5 ft., carrying the head, 35c. 2nd section, 5½ ft. Extension Handle, 15c. Ideal Dust Cloths, 10c. Sold separate or ensemble.

Any dealer can obtain this line with the same facility as

The Tarbox Self Wringing Mop and The Tarbox Pillow-Sham Holder

CORNMEAL—The cereal market as reported last week was very good. An advance is quoted in cornmeal this week of 10c per sack.

Cornmeal, per sack	2 0
" per ½ sack	1 00
" per bale (10, 10's)	2 25

BEANS—The recent advance has caused a dull trade in this commodity. Hand-picked are quoted at $2.25 per bushel.

POT AND PEARL BARLEY—A still further advance is quoted on these cereals. Pot barley is quoted at $2.70; pearl barley at $3.90 and half sacks at $2.05. The advance is about 5c per sack.

BROOMS—The expected rise has taken place and these prices will likely remain until the new corn comes in. They are quoted at from $3 to $4.25 per doz., making a total advance of 75c.

TUBS—The following prices remain unchanged. The market is weak.

CANNED FRUITS AND VEGETABLES — Retailers have decreased their old stock and are buying carefully. These goods will move more freely from now on, it is expected. We quote the following unchanged prices:

GREEN FRUITS AND VEGETABLES — Vegetables are coming in slowly. Oranges and bananas are moving satisfactorily, and the trade in these will remain good. The last barrel of apples in the city in the hands of produce men went to a retailer this morning for $5.50. More will arrive soon.

MEATS—Since the disturbance in last week's prices there has been no change. Although the trade is not good, some dealers are making a few cents to get rid of old stock and this has stimulated the trade somewhat.

EGGS—The heavy Easter demand for eggs has had a tendency to raise the price. To-day they are firm at 19c and there is little or no difference in quality.

BUTTER—The poorer lot of butter is going slowly at 13c. Few want it for cooking, not to mention it for table use. No. 1 butter, including good dairy and creamery, is quite firm at 25c to-day.

A FACTORY IN CANADA.

The McCaskey Account Register Co., of Hamilton, Ont., is one of the latest additions to the Canadian industrial arena. This concern began the manufacture of registers at Alliance, Ohio, about six years ago, with a force of six employes. To-day they are employing about 650 people.

Their register system was originally intended for handling the accounts of the retail merchant and they have over 50,000 of these registers in use in the United States. The simplicity and ease with which accounts are handled has attracted people in different lines of business so that to-day their registers are in use in nearly all kinds of retail business, also among the professions and in manufacturing establishments.

The McCaskey is known as the original one-writing, total-forwarding system. It eliminates errors and disputes, stops all forgetting to charge goods, saves the merchant hours of labor in the copying and posting of accounts, thus giving him time to look after important details of his business where he can be earning money.

Owing to the demand for these registers from Canadian merchants and in order to save merchants the duty, this company have opened a Canadian factory in Hamilton and are engaging competent salesmen at this time to represent them in all parts of the Dominion.

Strasburg, Silver & Co., of Aberdeen, Md., U.S., say in their weekly review of the tomato situation that the contract prices of packers for tomatoes this year with the growers will range from $8 to $10 per ton.

The Robitaille vinegar factory, situated in Bijouville, just outside the limits of St. Malo, Quebec, was totally destroyed by a fire which broke out on Sunday morning and which raged with more or less violence during the entire day.

Two of Winnipeg's leading wholesale grocery brokerage houses are about to open branches in Regina. Nicholson & Bain and Tees & Persse have come to the conclusion that the growing importance of the Saskatchewan capital as a wholesale centre makes this step necessary.

Produce and Provision Situation of the World

Provision Prices at Present Time as Compared With Those of the Last Decade of the Nineteenth Century—Calm in the English Butter Market—Cheese in Demand at Rising Prices.

In considering the provision situation it will be interesting to compare the present prices of hogs with what was paid some years ago. To-day dressed hogs are selling at 9¾c and 10c a lb. In 1894 they sold at 4½c; in 1895 at 5c; in 1897 at 6c; in 1898 at 5½; in 1899 at 5¼c, and in 1900 at 7c a lb. Then when farmers, as a rule, were not as well fixed financially and had debts to pay they raised more hogs than they do at the present time. With about double the price now, they are not satisfied and have interviewed the Minister of Agriculture to give them a free trip to Denmark to find out whether the Danes have discovered a process by which they can raise hogs and at the same time sell their grain, which they claim is too dear to feed to hogs and at the same time dispose of them at the "low" price of 10c a lb. It is not only for hogs that the farmer gets far more than he did some years ago. In 1897 the following prices appeared in The Grocer: Potatoes, 35 to 40c a bag; onions $2.50 a barrel; eggs, active at 9½ to 10c a dozen; apples $1.75 a barrel; lard 6 to 6½c a lb.; bacon 10½ to 11c a lb.; creamery butter 19½c a lb., and store packed butter from 8 to 13c a lb. In succeeding issues we shall look further into the condition of the retail grocers and see how much better or how much worse they are off than they were years ago.

Reports from England state that there is an unwonted calm about the butter market which it is not easy to explain. Supplies are not generous and the demand is not much disturbed thereby. For the last six weeks imports have been steadily declining, yet buyers do not seem the least bit inclined to lay in stocks to provide against the time when the market must advance, if the same state of things prevails much longer. The reason is, that they do not believe in the scarcity cry, and they are inclined to buy from hand to mouth, in consequence of the sun having been shining a bit warmly this week with its promise of flush pastures and big milk flow. It is no use talking to butter buyers and telling them that the season is backward and that the home supply will not begin to swell for some time yet. They are indifferent to prophecies and simply wont be quick enough to make the market lively. It may be that the cold-storage has not yet been emptied, though it is currently believed that the supplies in refregerators must have been long since exhausted. If that is the case, it would explain to a large extent the phenomenon of falling imports being accompanied by falling prices—certainly a most unusual thing to contemplate.

Advices from England state that Canadian cheese has at last reached the 70s. quotation. It however is only for the brick red sorts, which are few in number, that this price is plaid. The rest of the cheese offering is in good demand at rising prices, as stocks are getting into very small compass and the new make is a decent way off yet. Finest white, is bringing 63s, to 64s, colored 66s, and deep red 70s.

MONTREAL.

PROVISIONS—There is no change in the condition of live hogs, prices being firmly maintained under a good demand and light supplies. Sales of selected lots were made at $7.90 to $8, and straight lots at $7.80 to $7.85 per 100 lbs., weighed off cars. A fair trade continues to be done in dressed hogs, and prices rule firm, with sales of abattoir fresh-killed at $10.50 to $11, and Manitoba dressed at $10 to $10.25 per 100 lbs. The cured meats and lard business is quiet and prices are unchanged.

BUTTER—Several new factories are opening and new butter is arriving fairly freely. The demand for fall creamery is good at unchanged prices. Rolls are scarce, but demand is light, as there is plenty of old dairy tub on the market. BUTTER — The butter market is steady, with a fair demand for good stuff, and looking for buyers for the inferior. With the excellent facilities of holding butter in cold storage a good deal of the surplus has gone out of sight but not out of mind and it is supposed to make its appearance again, when it will be in better demand. Quite a number of cheese factories have started operations, and will take a large portion of the milk which otherwise would be made into butter, and therefore it is not likely that much change in price will take place.

CHEESE—New cheese is coming in now and as the stock of old cheese is light very fair prices will be paid, at least for several weeks for the new. Although not considered by cheese men to be compared with good old cheese in quality, it is remarkable how many people like a mild soft cheese. New cheese sells at about 13c a lb.

HONEY AND MAPLE SYRUP—It will now be in season to cut honey entirely out and put maple syrup in its place. The honey season is over and maple syrup is in its full swing. The yield this year is somewhat above the average, and of good quality, if you are fortunate enough to get the right kind. The prices run from $1.05 to $1.10 per imperial gallon in tins, and in bulk about 95c.

Maple syrup, in bulk, imperial gallon	0 90	1 00
" " in tins, " "	1 05	1 10

POULTRY—Even with eggs at 20c a dozen, a poultry dealer claims that a hen at from 16c to 20c a lb. is worth more dead than alive. This accounts for the fact that farmers are selling them when it is the duty of every hen to lay eggs.

Spring chicken, dressed	0 16	0 20
" " alive	0 13	0 17
Hens, per lb., dressed	0 12	0 14
Turkeys, per lb., dressed	0 25	0 30

EGGS—This year the usual slump immediately after Easter did not take place, and eggs are quoted the same as last week. This is owing to several causes. The dealers, as a rule, are all financially strong and are not forced to sell them to get the money to pay for them, and they have also the cold storage facilities to hold them. This being the case they can largely regulate the market and avoid those disastrous drops which used to occur and which often crippled many of the dealers. The egg market is in a healthy condition and prices are not likely to get much lower. The farmer seems to have everybody "by the neck." If eggs are not the price to suit him, he kills off his hens at 20c a lb. and his more unfortunate town friends can do without them or pay the price he demands.

A SUCCESS IN ROSSLAND.

Manager of Co-operative Store Writes From the Pacific Province.

Editor Canadian Grocer,—Being a constant reader of The Grocer, I have noticed that for several weeks past you have given considerable space to the subject of Co-operative Stores, and when I read your editorial in The Grocer received recently, under the heading "Inference to be Drawn," I felt as if I must reply. First any person reading the account of the attempt to form a co-operative association at Picton appearing in a previous issue of your paper, would conclude that the English co-operative movement was a comparatively small concern, and not much of a success at that. There are a few facts in connection with the English movement for fiscal year ending June, 1908.

Membership, 2,500,000; sales, over one billion dollars; profits, over one hundred million dollars; capital, nearly two hundred million dollars. So much for English, now for Canada.

In your article referred to above, "Inference to be Drawn," you say it does not appear that they can thrive in Canada, and the idea of placing money in these concerns should be discouraged whenever possible. Now, Mr. Editor, I would like to know why co-operative associations cannot be successful in Canada? I will own there have been failures—but why? In nearly every case it could be accounted for in two words, "bad management." I do not mean altogether bad management of the actual store business; it may have arisen in different forms such as commencing with insufficient capital, imperfect organizing, bad buying, dishonest employes, managers who did not know the first thing about handling merchandise, and trustees who thought they knew it all. These, and many more causes, could be summed up in the two words mentioned, "bad management."

You apparently know of a number of associations that have failed, but I would like to say a few words about two successful ones; namely, at Trail, B.C., and Rossland, B.C.

The association at Trail has been started some eighteen months and has paid ten per cent. dividend to shareholders on purchases and three per cent. to non-shareholders, besides 5 per cent. per annum on share capital. Some person may think higher prices are charged; not at all. The prices are practically the same as charged by the Trail merchants. This association has, as manager, an up-to-the-minute grocer.

But it is the Rossland association that I am most familiar with, having been manager and secretary since its incorporation. We started business last May with a capital of a little over $3 000 and our first month's sales were a little over $800. To-day our capital is nearly $8,000 and we are doing a grocery business of over $4,000 monthly. We have paid on an average 8 per cent. dividend on purchases to shareholders and 3 per cent. to non-shareholders, besides 5 per cent. per annum on share capital. We try to make an average profit of from 20 to 25 per cent. and run our business on a 10 per cent. to 12 per cent. working basis. We are proof against bad debts. Some person may think Rossland is an outlandish place beyond the reach of competition. I would refer any such person to the issue of The Grocer of March 26, page 34, and last portion of the middle column, where I think they will be convinced we are not here alone. Mr. Editor, can you tell me why our business should not continue to increase, and our association become even more successful?

I. H. STEPHENS.

Rossland, B.C., April 7, 1909.

WHEN TO STOP ADVERTISING.

Will a merchant who is wise
Ever cease to advertise?
Yes—when the trees grow upside down;
When the beggar wears a crown;
When ice forms on the sun;
When the sparrow weighs a ton;
When gold dollars get too cheap;
When women, secrets keep;
When a fish forgets to swim;
When Satan sings a hymn;
When girls go back on gum;
When the small boy hates a drum;
When no politician schemes;
When mince pie makes pleasant dreams;
When it's fun to break a tooth;
When all lawyers tell the truth;
When cold water makes you drunk;
When you love to smell a skunk;
When the drummer has no brass—
When these things all come to pass,
Then man that's wise
Will neglect to advertise.

News of the Flour, Feed and Cereal Markets

Advance Takes Place in Canada in the Flour Market—Differences Among Western Millers Apparently Settled — Demand From Eastern Provinces, Newfoundland and England—Some Excitement Prevailing—Feed Reported Scarce.

April 13.—As forecasted in The Grocer during the past few weeks, the price of flour has advanced. This condition of affairs was somewhat slow in arriving on account of the war among some of the strong millers of the West, but at last the advance has occurred—due to the increasing price of wheat. The change occurred yesterday and was of a general character. so far as Canada was concerned. In Newfoundland, from where several inquiries have come during the week the prices have gone up about half a dollar a barrel and advices from Winnipeg say that the advance there is 30 cents. Montreal and Toronto prices are also higher from about 30 to 40 cents. Inquiries arrive from London, Bristol and Leeds and orders are being filled at the increased prices. An advance of this nature has generally the tendency to curtail the demand but as yet bakers have not raised the price of bread. "They ought to," said one miller, "and likely will." The dealers in flour throughout the country are now thoroughly stirred up and are taking active interest in the market.

The cereal market is quiet but there is still a shortage observed in shorts and bran.

FLOUR—Owing to the strength of the European situation, the flour markets have advanced. One of the large milling companies have put up prices 35c per bbl. and others are contemplating an advance soon.

ROLLED OATS—The rolled oat market is firm, under a good demand. A local jobber stated that the immediate future was hard to forecast. Prices have not changed since last quotation.

FLOUR—The expected happened on Monday of this week. Flour advanced in price from 10c to 40c per bbl., and the western war has apparently subsided. This upward movement in prices seems to be general in Canada. In Newfoundland they advanced 50c a barrel from what they were a week ago. The firm wheat market has been the cause as wheat now is about as high as it ever was. The prices since the change are firm and one miller stated, "We would not shave them a cent." So far as is known, the bakers have not yet advanced the price of bread but it is expected they soon will. Notwithstanding the advance the demand is good, as dealers have been somewhat short.

CANADA AND THE WEST INDIES.

Good Trade Likely to be Worked up Between These Two Countries, Says Milling Man.

"Trade between Canada and the West Indies is a very live question at present, and one that deserves the consideration of business men in both countries."

So spoke F. W. Thompson, vice-president and managing director of the Ogilvie Flour Mills Company, Limited, Montreal, to The Canadian Grocer, on his return to Canada after a three months' trip to the West Indies.

The greater part of the time he was away Mr. Thompson spent in Nassau. He stated that it was surprising the amount of interest displayed by business men in the Bahamas in the matter of better trade relations between Canada and the West Indies. Sir William Grey Wilson, governor of the Bahama Islands, and a very progressive man, is earnestly endeavoring to promote better commercial relations between the two countries.

That something definite will be done in the near future appears now to be certain, for it is understood that the governors of the different colonies will meet in London next June, when it is likely that a committee will be formed for the purpose of approaching the Canadian Government to discuss the matter.

Mr. Thompson stated that a primary step to facilitate trade would be the establishment of perfectly satisfactory steamship connections between the various islands and the St. Lawrence and Atlantic ports. As to the possibilities of trade development, he thought these were unlimited. The necessities in foodstuffs could be supplied the West Indies by Canada without a doubt, while fruits and other products of the islands, not produced in Canada, would load returning vessels. Of flour alone, not less than 52,000 barrels a year was sent into the islands, and this business was transacted chiefly by American business men because of the better transportation arrangements between the United States and Nassau, as compared to those existing between Canadian ports and the Bahamas.

Wm. E. Nims has purchased the Maple Leaf grocery at Brandon recently managed by B. C. Neil. Mr. Nims contemplates an entire re-arrangement of the interior of the business premises, which will make them more commodious and up-to-date. He will also add largely to the stock heretofore carried, making the grocery one of the most efficient and up-to-date in the city.

Use of Benzoate in Jams and Jellies Condemned

Winona Manufacturer Endorses Views of Government Analyst —Thinks Sugar is Good Enough as a Preservative—Benzoate of Soda Might be Used for Catsup But Amount Should be Stated on Bottle, He Says.

By E. D. Smith.

I was very much pleased, indeed, with a letter in The Canadian Grocer from Mr. McGill, government analyst and chemist at Ottawa, in your issue of the first week in April. It seems to me that Mr. McGill has stated the case very fairly. There can be no question, it seems to me, in the face of his statement, and that of Prof. Wylie, probably the best authority on preservatives in the United States, that benzoate of soda is injurious to health—and benzoate of soda is regarded as the least injurious of all preservatives that are used to preserve pulps, jams, jellies, or other food products.

There are food products in which it is used in very small quantities, such as catsup and sauces, and it may well be that the small quantity of benzoate of soda that would be consumed by an individual in using these, would not affect the health to any appreciable extent, and there are things where some preservative is really needed, perhaps in nothing more than catsup. It is an article that stands on the table or around the house in the bottle exposed to the air, perhaps for several days, and no pure fruits or vegetables that are not preserved by something will stand exposure for several days in a warm atmosphere without fermenting.

This is why it may be necessary to use benzoate of soda in catsup, but I maintain that since this is injurious to health if used in considerable quantities, the quantity put in the catsup or whatever article it is used in, should be stated on the label, and a statute providing for this should be put on our statute books. But when we come to jams and jellies and fruit preserves, there is no earthly excuse whatever for the use of benzoate of soda except to cover up negligence or carelessness, and I think it should be made prohibitive to use any preservative or coloring matter in jams or jellies unless the exact quantity and varieties of these that are used, are stated on the label.

The sugar in jam preserves it if it is pure sugar, and it will keep on the

When writing advertisers kindly mention having seen the advertisement in this paper.

The Quality of Christie's Biscuits and what it means to you—

IN buying goods there are three cardinal points that you consider carefully. They are:

1. How quickly can I turn these goods over and get my money out of them?

2. Are they the best that I can buy?

3. Do I get a fair margin of profit?

The merit of the goods very properly takes precedence over the matter of price, although, of course, the latter is important.

However, quality has more to do with profits than some merchants think.

Fundamentally, quality determines the success of any article, just as the success of every merchant depends upon the quality of the goods he handles.

Christie's Biscuits measure up to the very highest quality standard. There is no acceptable substitute for them on the market. Therefore, Christie's Biscuits are as staple as sugar and salt in the grocery stores that cater to particular trade.

The thousands of merchants, from ocean to ocean, who push Christie's in preference to all other brands of biscuits, have come to realize, through experience, just what Christie Quality means to them.

These merchants have proved that Christie's give them a larger turn-over, and greater aggregate profit in their biscuit departments; also that they build up the paying trade and hold it.

They have proved, too, that Christie's Biscuits sell more than biscuits.

table and around the house without spoiling or fermenting, so there is no excuse whatever for the use of any kind of preservative. Some jam makers load their pulp up with benzoate of soda—that is the pulp out of which the jam is made—in order to keep it from month to month in anticipation of the time when they require it for making jam, but as I said before this is absolutely unnecessary, and is only resorted to because of lack of skill or lack of knowledge on the part of the jam manufacturer, and in all fairness to the consuming public when any of these articles injurious to health are used the quantities should be stated and the manufacturer should be held responsible that the quantities are correct as stated on the label.

I hope The Canadian Grocer will use its best endeavors to bring about these improvements, and have things as they are in the United States.

A REPLY TO F. C. HIGGINS.

A London Grocer Advocates Formation of an Ontario Grocers' Association.

Editor Canadian Grocer,—I read with much interest the letter from F. C. Higgins in your paper of March 25 in which he gives the Retail Merchants' Association the exclusive credit for accomplishing so many reforms.

He speaks of the many dead and buried one-line associations, of the past. Let him name some of them. What does he think of the following list of very much alive one-line associations in existence at the present time:

1. The National Retail Grocers' Association of the United States.
2. The National Wholesale Grocers' Association of the United States.
3. The United Master Butchers' Association of the United States.
4. The Retail Implement Dealers' Association of Western Canada.
5. The Retail Hardware Dealers' Association of Ontario.
6. The Wholesale Grocers' Guild of Canada.
7. The Wholesale Grocers' Guild of Ontario.

At the last meeting of the National Retail Grocers' Association, held last May in Boston, nearly every state was represented by delegates from State associations. Surely this is ample proof that there are a few live one-line associations who have organized to look after their own special interests.

I know, Mr. Editor, that you are voicing the sentiments of hundreds of Ontario grocers, when you advocate the forming of an association of retail grocers to further our own special interests. We certainly cannot expect this overworked retail merchants' association to take up our burdens, as they will have their hands full to look after the rest of the retail merchants of Canada.

What do some of our manufacturers care for a grievance sent by a single city or town association?

It is promptly filed and never considered; but if the same request was sent by an Ontario association it would not take them long to send a reply.

Much good also could be done by discussions in open convention.

In conclusion I must say that I think the stand you have taken is the proper one and can assure you that Mr. Higgins' views are not endorsed by many retail grocers who are alive to their own interests.

Hoping that other Ontario grocers will express their views on this important subject, I am,

A LONDON GROCER.

You Couldn't Sell us Soft Wheat

THE LABOURER is worthy of his hire. No man can deliver a dollar's worth of goods and charge fifty cents and make money. Half a barrel of flour is worth only half the money, half the quality only half the price.

¶ A flour cannot be good without good materials—and good materials cost money. Quality can be shaved at a dozen points, and cheap wheat means a saving—but not for your customer.

¶ You couldn't sell us cheap wheat; you couldn't sell us soft wheat, rusty wheat, musty wheat, or smutty wheat. There's only one class of wheat fit for FIVE ROSES—the flinty, plump, ripe, red, spring berry so wondrously transparent, with a thin, transparent skin, proclaiming its surpassing strength and purity, only the cream of the Manitoba crop.

¶ We could have mixed just a little soft wheat, white wheat, at 20 cents a bushel under our self-imposed standard. That's one way to check competition—not the FIVE ROSES way. A little that is pure is worth more than much that is mixed, and FIVE ROSES is all pure. If there's anything grown better than our ripe, red wheat—our immense facilities, skilled knowledge and money have failed to locate it—and we began searching twenty years since!

¶ No matter how seeming strong, any statement you can make about FIVE ROSES the flour can back by proof. Using FIVE ROSES the housewife has acquired a habit she does not want to break—it is all she likes in flour. Do you know a man selling ROSES that wants to give it up? The fellow who sells it will be a formidable competitor of yours; if you sell it, you will be a formidable competitor of the man who doesn't.

¶ What are you going to do about it?

IDEAS ARE WANTED.

Jas. Roy, the New Secretary of Retail Grocers' Association in Vancouver, Issues Request for Aid.

Vancouver, April 13.—Secretaries of retail grocers' associations in Canada, who have ideas to exchange, or who can give a hint to make an association better, are invited to correspond with James Roy, the new secretary of the Vancouver, B.C., Retail Grocers' Association. Mr. Roy has recently taken over this work and his ambition is to make the Vancouver association second to none. With this object in view he seeks the co-operation of those who have been successful in the maintenance of similar organizations in the Dominion.

Mr. Roy is a Scotchman by birth, and has been in Vancouver for two years. Previous to that time, he spent thirty years in the South of England. Since coming to this city, he has been with the B. C. Telephone Company. His work there was highly appreciated by the management, and his resignation was received with regret with the assurance of the good wishes of the general manager for success in his new position. His duties with the Telephone Company brought him into contact with the business men, not only of Vancouver but of other cities of British Columbia, and was an excellent preliminary for the work he has now undertaken.

That he has been successful since March 1, when he started in, is demonstrated in that he added a dozen new members to the list before the end of that month. He is taking the initiative in many lines, and has the hearty support of the executive. For instance, despite the extra expense he has added a male clerk to the staff so that the office would at all times have some one in to attend to visitors and extend the hand of welcome to any who might call. This has proven very successful. To get in touch with other secretaries, Mr. Roy issues the following friendly appeal through The Grocer:

"I want to get in touch with you, and to learn about your work. I want to know about your difficulties and how you get over them. Do you suffer from cut prices? How do you fix the matter? Can the members of your association secure a legitimate profit on the goods they sell? How have you been able to beat the deadbeat? Have you a system of account collection? Have you had any trouble with the wholesaler selling to the consumer? Tell me about your work, about your troubles and worries. It will help you to do so and help me also. If you will, I will tell you all I know, what I am doing and what I intend to do."

This is the glad hand that Mr. Roy holds out, and sympathizing secretaries of other associations will meet him in friendship.

DAMAGE DONE BY RATS.

According to a despatch from London, Eng., rats are more numerous and aggressive in England than ever before. This is the opinion of Sir James Crichton Browne, who spoke on this subject at the first annual meeting of the Society for the Extermination of Vermin. He calculates that there is one rat to every acre of land in England and Wales, each rat doing damage at the rate of a farthing a day, making a total loss of $75,000,000, and that this figure is probably short of the mark.

Sir Charles McLaren told the members of the society that at their request he introduced a bill in Parliament last week for the extermination of rats.

It was received with ironical cheers, but whether it was dealt with seriously or not, he believed the publicity given it would be helpful to the society.

GREEN FRUITS—The fruit men are all well satisfied with their holiday trade and although the usual lull has followed the market shows a firm feeling with an improved tendency. Apples are getting pretty well sold out and are still creeping up higher. Navel oranges are also dearer and receipts lighter. The large quantities of pineapples on the market show that the pineapple season has arrived. For the first heavy shipment, they turn out in excellent condition. Grape fruit is in abundance. Louisiana strawberries are now sold at 12½c a pint box.

In the January 22nd number of The Grocer a description was given of the abogato pear, but very few people have yet ever seen or heard of it. On Tuesday a sample was shown to a representative of The Grocer by a commission company in Toronto to whom a small box was shipped to find out what could be done with them on this market. From its appearance, it being the size of a large pear, with a large seed inside, and considering that it will cost from 30c to 50c apiece, it is not likely that it will find ready sale for a time, or create for itself a large demand in this country. However, it will be remembered that not more than ten years ago the first grape fruit were seen on the Toronto market, and now they are almost as common as oranges. So far it has not found any special favor, and some are speculating in their own minds, as to whether it might not be the nut or seed which is the eatable part of it. After tasting both, the idea occurred that either one or the other might be poisonous, and further experimenting was not deemed advisable until more was discovered about them.

VEGETABLES—Potatoes are higher and the market is active. A sharp export demand has developed from the States, which causes a hustle among potato men. The price has gone up about 20c a bag. Cabbage is also scarce and high. Florida tomatoes are plentiful, but last week's prices are well maintained. Rumor has it that on account of a very heavy rain storm the tomato crop in Florida has been seriously damaged. A quantity of red peppers has just arrived from Italy and are sold at 25c a lb.

FISH—After a long spell of great activity in the fish market, the rush is over, and the fish men are squaring up the winter trade and are getting ready to handle the fresh-caught stock which is the only kind now in demand. As both the demand and supply are light, the dealers are rather enjoying the quietness of their business after the continuous rush for many weeks. Frozen stock is practically all sold.

The Method in France of Preparing Glace Fruits

Their Manufacture Becoming Extensive in that Country—The Glacage Makes Them Dry and Easy to Eat—Sulphuring Process Described—The Use of Sugar and Glucose.

Over in France a great deal of attention is paid to the manufacture of what is known as "glace" fruits. The glacage of fruits is done so as to make them dry, agreeable to the eye and easy to eat, and the process is one that has proven interesting to all who have had the opportunity of seeing it. There are, of course, different methods used in the manufacture of these fruits, but the preliminary preparations are usually the same.

The fruits must be just ripe; if they are too ripe they cannot be well prepared on account of their softness, and if they are green they have a bad appearance. The manufacturers buy fruit throughout the whole of Southern France; they sometimes buy cherries even as far north as Dijon. Cherries, apricots, figs, greengages, pears and almonds are the fruits principally used.

The Sulphur Treatment.

When the fruit is received their first care is to treat it with sulphur. This is in order to improve its appearance and to destroy any microbes possibly lurking in it. There are two processes employed for this purpose. The one commonly used is to expose the fruits in cases or small baskets in a small room about six feet high. They then insert in a jar from four to ten pounds of sulphur, according to the quantity of the fruit. For a room containing three or four tons about eleven pounds of sulphur would be required. If there has been much rain and the fruit consequently is soft, less sulphur must be used and more in the case of hard fruit. The idea is to secure complete impregnation of the fruit by the sulphur, which has also the effect of bleaching the fruit.

The second method is not often used. It consists of treating the fruit with a solution of about seven ounces of pure sulphurous liquified acid to 220 pounds of water. The water thus strongly impregnated with the acid is used for bleaching the fruit, which is placed for that purpose in jars, into which the solution is then poured. According to the quality of the fruit, they leave it exposed for two to ten hours to the action of the liquid. They leave apricots one or two hours only, but cherries would remain from night to morning. The same results are obtained in the United States with sulphate of lime. The fruit is then placed in clear water for two or three days, the water being frequently changed during that time, after which it is considered sufficiently bleached. They then place it in steam kettles and boil it for ten minutes to one hour, according to the hardness of the fruit; it must be brought to such a state that the sugar syrup about to be applied may penetrate readily into it.

Application of Syrup.

After the fruit has been boiled, they begin the sugar process. The fruit is removed from the water and drained for ten to twenty minutes, then placed in earthenware jars containing a certain quantity of sugar syrup. Some manufacturers use sugar at 20 degrees Baume concentration, some at 25 degrees, and others at 28 degrees. This is a question of personal appreciation and depends also on the condition of the fruit. If the cherries appear soft, they make the syrup more concentrated; if they are hard, they use it at 15 to 20 degrees concentration. The contents of the jars are emptied after a few hours into steam kettles containing sugar syrup. By boiling, part of the syrup evaporates and is replaced by an equal quantity of syrup in order to preserve the percentage of syrup and fruit. The fruit is left in the jars for one day, and is again boiled in the kettles on the second day, then remaining in the jars for two days.

After the second operation the fruit remains in the jars three days, and so on for five, six, or eight boiling operations, the interval between them being longer each time, the fruit sometimes remaining from six to eight days before the final boiling. At each addition of syrup the concentration is made greater. The application of the sugar should not be done hurriedly, otherwise the fruit, instead of absorbing the greatest possible amount of sugar, will shrink and become corded in the interior, thus spoiling its appearance. It is to the manufacturer's interest to apply the largest possible quantity of sugar, as the more syrup the fruit contains the greater the profit.

Six Weeks' Duration.

They boil the fruit at least six or eight times, according to the size, the operation covering a period of at least six weeks, during which time it absorbs the largest possible quantity of syrup. At the final boiling the syrup is concentrated to 35 degrees Baume, and after this operation the fruit is regarded as capable of being kept for a long period. It has been known to remain in good condition for two or three years. However, if kept too long the appearance suffers, though the eating qualities remain unaltered. After the final boiling the fruit is allowed to remain in the highly concentrated syrup, in a cool place, not too dry nor too damp, and of even temperature. At this stage the fruit is known to manufacturers as "fruit confit."

When Orders Come In.

On receipt of an order from a client, a sufficient quantity of the fruit is removed from the jars and drained of its syrup. This is done by placing it in willow baskets and allowing the syrup to drain through the openings of the baskets. They then proceed to the operation of glacage, which is the final stage of the preparation of the article for the market.

For this operation the fruit, drained of its syrup, is placed in a solution of pure concentrated sugar, at about 45 degrees Baume concentration. While it is in this solution the nature of the liquid is changed by an operation known as the "masse." This consists in rubbing one side only of the inside of the kettle with a piece of wood about 2 feet long by 1½ inches thick, as a result of which the syrup at that point becomes chemically changed and turns white. The fruit is then brought into this white liquid, where it remains for a few minutes only. It is then removed and placed on iron grills. The coat of sugar remaining on the fruit dries rapidly in the air. The fruit thus prepared is known as "fruit glace," and

When the fruits are intended for shipment to points beyond the equator, it is necessary, in order to render them more durable, to submit them to a further treatment known as "crystallization." The fruits are taken and placed in a dry oven at 60 degrees centrigrade, and at the end of one or two days are placed in receptacles of iron, known to us as "candissoirs." While here a syrup at 35 degrees centigrade is poured on them and the "candissoirs" placed in a hot oven where they remain for about twelve hours. At the end of that time, under the action of the heat, the sugar syrup forms small crystals on the fruit, and then, when the operator sees that the crystallization is sufficient, he empties the syrup, and after a few hours the fruits are dry and ready for shipment, being then known as "fruits crystallises."

Glucose Necessary.

Manufacturers have found it very difficult, if not impossible, to make these fruits without a certain proportion of glucose, as the exclusive use of sugar, which is cheaper than glucose in France, would render the fruit too hard or candied, and therefore unsalable. The use of glucose prevents this.

The percentage of glucose used is about 20 per cent. with 80 per cent. sugar, but this varies according to the manufacturer.

PROVINCE WANTS CONTROL.

Vancouver, April 12.—The question of the right of the Province of British Columbia to regulate the salmon fisheries in its tidal and non-tidal waters, authority which is disputed by the Dominion Government, is to be carried before the Privy Council in June for ultimate decision.

That such action has been determined on by the Provincial Government is made manifest by the receipt by the supreme court registrar of a series of questions propounded by the Attorney-General, and to be presented to the full court for decision. Should that court answer the questions in a manner favorable to the case of the Provincial Government, the Federal authorities are sure to appeal. On the other hand, should the opinions of the court be against the Provincial Government the latter is certain to carry the appeal to London. Under these circumstances an appeal to the Privy Council is certain to occur, and argument on the matter will in all probability take place in London in June.

Briefly, the Provincial Government is asking the full court whether the fisheries of British Columbia are not the property of the province, and has not the province the sole right to authorize fishing?

Legitimate Premiums and Those that are Lotteries

The General Public Must Know Exactly What They Are Paying for—Cases That Have Come Under the Observation of a Police Inspector—Chance Element Must be Eliminated in All Cases—Fine Lines Exist Sometimes.

The chance element in the giving of premiums as inducements to prospective buyers was at one time extensively used by manufacturers, wholesalers and retail business men. The law existing at the present time, however, eliminates the lottery phase in doing such a business, but it may be interesting to many to know just exactly when the giving of premiums becomes a lottery and when it is legitimate. The line is not always firmly drawn and probably there still exists the chance element in the carrying on of many businesses of which the proprietors are unaware.

It is yet within the memory of almost everyone, the manner in which the "grab-bags" and "popcorn bags" were sold so that every purchaser was sure of a prize. These premiums, which often had a great deal to do with inducing buyers to invest, are now against the law. This is true with one exception—if all the premiums are the same the sales come within the law and are legitimate.

The enforcement of the law in this regard becomes the duty of the police departments of municipalities and in the city of Toronto the attention of James M. Stephen, staff inspector of police, has been called to conditions once existing which had to be righted.

Must Know What They Buy.

In an interview with Mr. Stephen a few days ago he explained to The Grocer what was illegal in respect to the giving of premiums and what constituted legitimate business.

"About a year ago," he said, "I was told of a firm doing a package business (the name of which The Grocer withholds) which gave premiums in the form of money. They advertised that in each package there was a cash rebate and this extended all the way from one cent to a quarter of a dollar. It was just a chance that a customer buying a package secured the rebate of twenty-five cents or one cent. The purchaser therefore did not know what he was going to get and that made it illegal. I spoke to them about the matter and of course they corrected it."

Inspector Stephen did not believe the company knew they were doing something against the law—it was merely a case of not knowing what was legal. If the firm placed the same amount of money in every package as a rebate their business then became within the meaning of the law. If they always placed, for instance, one cent in a twenty-five cent package and always two cents in a 50-cent package, they would also be doing a legitimate business—the same rebate for the amount of money expended.

"This," he explained, "would eliminate the chance element; people would know exactly what they were getting—it simply would mean a rebate of one cent on twenty-five or two cents on fifty cents.

Different Prizes Illegal.

Another example was cited by Inspector Stephen. There was a company doing business in Toronto, but located elsewhere, which advertised a prize in every package of its goods.

"Sometimes the purchaser might get a string of beads or a stick-pin, etc., but there also existed the chance element. You never knew what was coming next. This was brought to my notice and by quietly informing the company that they were not exactly complying with the law they immediately changed their plans and now they have the same premium in every package."

"Of course, you know," continued the inspector, "that I am not supposed to meddle unnecessarily with trade affairs and only when such a matter has been brought to my observation can I act. If, however, there is a fraud worked openly upon the public; why, then we get right after it."

Ignorant of the Law.

In many cases where premiums are given illegally, the inspector thought that those responsible for them were not familiar with the law. This was true sometimes even when legal advice was secured.

"You have no jurisdiction outside of Toronto," was suggested.

"Oh, no," he explained, "but it is not likely any company will change its course to suit Toronto alone. When they find they cannot sell their goods here if the law is not complied with, they will make the necessary arrangements to be allowed to dispose of them anywhere."

He emphasized the point that the consuming public must know exactly what they were getting and in a reminiscent mood recalled the days when everybody was "done" in their purchasing when they purchased something on the premium plan.

The minute a clerk gets superior to waiting on the man in overalls and jumper, set him to breaking up packing cases in the cellar. Pride is a bad thing in anyone if it's false pride.

The pinnacle of mercantile success is not reached through managing the baseball team, playing in the band or becoming the champion billiard player in town. The champion merchant will be champion in naught else.—Printers' Ink.

Scarcity of French Sardines

French catch has been so short and prices so high in past years and the goods usually quite unobtainable after season's pack completed (the packers having advance orders for much larger quantities than the total pack), that many grocers have ceased to stock French Sardines and supply smoked Sprats, dubbed "Norwegian Sardines," which may be some relief from the rank class of Portuguese bought to retail at 10c., but can never be acceptable to people accustomed to French Sardines.

HAVE YOU AN

EUREKA Refrigerator

IN YOUR STORE?

Orders are coming in rapidly from grocers, restaurants, florists, meat merchants, etc. The style shown here is No. 014, 14 and 15.

The EUREKA patent dry air circulation is unequalled.

Perishable goods are bound to spoil in a refrigerator when the air is stagnant.

The EUREKA patented system is the result of twenty-five years devoted exclusively to building refrigerators and in an EUREKA there is not a square inch of stagnant air. The EUREKA is extremely easy on ice and will preserve all kinds of foodstuffs so that they retain their freshness and purity until sold. Our catalogue will tell you much more of the superiority of our product—yours for the asking.

ST. LAWRENCE Granulated Sugar

Maintains its high standard of excellence. This is proved by the following recent Government analysis:

Laboratory of Provincial Government Analyst,

Montreal, February 22nd, 1909

I HEREBY CERTIFY that I have drawn by my own hand ten samples of the St. Lawrence Sugar Refining Co.'s Extra STANDARD GRANULATED SUGAR, indiscriminately taken from four lots of about 150 barrels each and six lots of about 450 bags each. I have analyzed same and find them uniformly to contain 99-99/100 to 100 per cent. of pure cane sugar, with no impurities whatever.

Pointers to be Procured from Grocers of St. Mary's

Some Well-Equipped and Attractive Stores—One Carries Largest Stock of Crockery East of Toronto—General Parcel Delivery a Great Benefit—Unique Display Windows—Beginning of a Successful Business in a Log Shack—A new Grocer in Trade

Some few weeks ago The Grocer referred at length to the general parcel delivery system in vogue in the town of St. Mary's in western Ontario. The progressive spirit of the merchants of the Stone Town as shown by their fearlessness in undertaking this venture is certainly possessed by the majority of the grocers there if the general appearance of their stores and the interior arrangements count for anything. A handsome store is one of the valuable assets of any merchant who desires to cater to the best class of trade and St. Mary's has some fine grocery establishments for a country town of its size.

The Adam Store.

For a roomy, bright, clean and handsome interior, the store of J. M. Adam could scarcely be improved upon.

Interior of The Grocery Store of J. M. Adam, St. Mary's, Ont.

The windows are not like those of the ordinary store. They are closed at the rear so that the interior cannot be seen by looking in the window. This arrangement prevents dust from the store settling on the display goods. This does not mean that light is excluded. Mr. Adam has the top so arranged that the light comes from above the closed-in window through corrugated glass.

The shelving and spice drawers are neatly arranged. The grocery proper is located on the right hand upon entering and on the left are two show-cases, one for high-class confectionery and the other for cigars. At the rear is Mr. Adam's private office where his business is transacted. Palms are used to brighten the interior and they certainly lend an additional attractiveness. Mr. Adam has been some twenty-five years in the same stand, but of course the establishment has been improved to keep apace with the spirit of the advancing times. John Gray, the clerk, is a valuable assistant in the business, having been with Mr. Adam for the past two years.

Fenwick & Co.

The store of Fenwick & Co. is another of St. Mary's up-to-date groceries. It is large and roomy—an important feature in any store—and well lighted during the day by the rays of "old Sol" and at night by electricity. It has double counters, one on either side. Mr. Fenwick has only been in the grocery business a couple of years in St. Mary's having come from Oswego where he obtained his early experience with his parents. He is one of those grocers who carries confectionery and tobaccos and finds both profitable. Being a country town plug tobacco has a splendid call.

Pickard & Fleming.

A strong advocate of the general parcel delivery system is J. F. Pickard of this firm. In fact he has many advanced ideas in doing business and the fault cannot be credited to him that there is not a live merchants' association in the town. He believes in lessening the expense to merchants by any legitimate means and has a strong aversion to the price cutter. An association was once formed in St. Mary's but Mr. Fenwick claims that price cutting among some of the merchants brought its downfall.

Mr. Pickard has been in business—but not the same—for fifteen years and Mr. Fleming, his partner, grew up with the present business.

An Optimistic Grocer.

Although W. R. Butcher has only been in the grocery business a few months he speaks highly of his vocation and expects to be successful. He succeeded J. D. Smith towards the end of last year and is already working up a good trade. For a while trade was a little quiet but he predicts a good season and with his optimism and other qualifications he will see that the season is good for him.

Followed His Brother.

Forty years ago the grocery business now looked after by John Walsh of St. Mary's, was in its infancy. It was begun by his brother, but some eight years ago the eye-sight of the latter became affected so that he was forced to discontinue. Mr. Walsh at the time was living in Toronto and decided to try his fortune in the Stone Town. His business rapidly increased so that now he has a good trade and a splendidly stocked store. He carries confectionery and finds it profitable, particularly at Christmas times. In the grocery department he has four extra large show windows which are used to advantage in displaying goods in addition to their effect upon the lighting of the store interior. He carries a varied stock including fish, provisions of all kinds, cigars and tobaccos. He also has a liquor store under the same roof but separate—according to law—from the grocery department.

Business in a Log Shack.

Twice in his business career has J. P. Rogers, another St. Mary's grocer, started at the bottom round of the ladder and worked himself upward. At first he was a clerk in the store of H. E. Wilson, but he soon secured a business place of his own by purchasing an old log shack. Later when Mr. Wilson quit business he got into his large store, but his health began to fail him and he was forced to withdraw. That was about thirteen years ago. Six years later he again began at the bottom and by his energy and progressiveness has been able to make something more than his actual living expenses.

Mr. Rogers is one of the many grocers who favors the formation of an Ontario Grocers' Association.

A Large Crockery Stock.

The grocery store of F. W. Hutton, still another progressive St. Mary's merchant, is noted chiefly for its crockery department. It is claimed to have the largest crockery stock of any town store west of Toronto. These goods are stored principally upstairs, though a considerable quantity is displayed below. One of the show windows is always reserved for crockery too. Mr.

Hutton finds the crockery to be a profitable line—and this is no doubt due to the attention he pays to it. Few goods are going to be sold anyway unless the merchant booms them in some manner.

Mr. Hutton's father and mother were among the pioneers of St. Mary's, having been in business half a century ago. Their son succeeded them and has made many improvements. Among these was the erecting of a new store about four years ago when crockery and dry goods were added. The store now is a hundred feet long with a seventy foot store-room.

A specialty in window-dressing is made in this store and the successes of the artist and his praises have often been told and sung by commercial travelers who visit there. The manager is S. C. Bartlett, whose record of twelve years with his employer is certainly commendable.

A CLERK'S ADVANCE.

R. R. Bothwell, Eleven Years in His Father's Store, to Travel for John Sloan & Co.

On May 1st a change will be made in the traveling staff of John Sloan & Co. R. R. Bothwell, of Barrie, takes the place of C. S. Parsons, who, with P. H. Brown, is becoming a wholesale grocer after that date. Mr. Bothwell is the son of J. M. Bothwell, one of Barrie's leading grocers who has been in business there for the past forty years. His son "Bob," as he is familiarly known, has worked behind his father's counter for the past eleven years and should therefore have an intimate acquaintance with the grocery trade.

R. R. BOTHWELL,

A Barrie Grocery Clerk Who Becomes a Traveler on May 1st.

His territory lies between Toronto and Gravenhurst, and with this he is already familiar. Mr. Bothwell has proven himself a good salesman in the grocery store as the success of the business he has been connected with will demonstrate.

MacLean Company's New Offices in Montreal

Change Takes Place This Week to the Eastern Townships Bank Building, a Handsome Ten-Storey Structure—A Description of the Interior—Keeping Pace With the Progress of the Times.

The Montreal offices of The MacLean Publishing Company, which for several years have been located at 232 McGill Street, have during the past week been removed to the handsome office structure erected by the Eastern Townships Bank. The new building is one of the finest in Montreal, standing ten storeys high. It occupies a commanding position at the corner of Victoria Square and St. James Street. It has been especially designed for commercial purposes and is one of the most costly and capacious in the Canadian metropolis. The edifice is of absolute fire proof construction and is built of granite and Ohio sand-stone. Some idea of its character and importance may be gauged from the fact that the Builder's Exchange of Montreal have taken the whole tenth floor where they will have a permanent exhibit of building materials.

The corridors throughout the building are finished with Mosaic floors and marble wainscotting. The offices are finished in mahogany and possess an abundance of light. From every quarter the out-look is delightful one and from the suite of apartments for business and editorial purposes, which have been leased for a term of years by The MacLean Publishing Company, a fine perspective of the harbor and the new piers is obtained, while from the front the beautiful green sward, splendid trees and stately monuments of Victoria Square are in full view.

Commodious Quarters.

The new offices of The MacLean Publishing Company have been specially fitted up for their convenience with every degree of comfort and facility for the transaction of business. The ceilings are high while there is an abundance of floor space for the members of the large staff, the business and editorial rooms being separate yet within easy reach of each other. There is a special elevator accommodation, three high speed traction elevators being installed. This is the only installation of its kind in Montreal, a feature of which is the rapidity and ease with which they can be operated. The cars can be reversed at top speed without any noticeable discomfort to the passengers.

Each floor of the magnificent new building has its own vaults. There are mail chutes, electric light, telephones, electric bells and other modern features on every floor which make the new premises of The MacLean Publishing Company, which are within a few yards of the late offices, ideal and central from every standpoint.

Other Firms There.

Some of the most influential and oldest established commercial, insurance and manufacturing firms in Canada have secured quarters in the new Eastern Townships Bank building. Among them may be mentioned, the North American Life Insurance Company, The Prudential Life Insurance Co., The Canadian Light & Power Co., The Montreal Cotton Co., The Mount Royal Spinning Co., The Clinton Fire Proofing Co., The Montreal Printers' Board of Trade, The Canadian Consolidated Rubber Co., Stinson-Raeb Builders' Supply Co., The Builders' Exchange, The United States Consul Offices, and many others.

In its removal to brighter and more modern premises the Montreal office of The MacLean Company is only keeping step with the constant developments and expansion, which has been characteristic of the greatest publishing house in Canada since its inception.

The members of the large staff will be pleased to meet all their old friends in their new quarters or any visitors who may be in Montreal on business or pleasure. They will find a warm welcome at the MacLean offices in the new and handsome Eastern Townships Bank building.

BEET SUGAR TARIFF.

Finance Minister Fielding introduced his budget statement to the House of Commons on Tuesday of this week and no announcements as to fiscal changes were made. Regarding the beet sugar manufacturers' request, the government decided to continue for three years the concession to them by allowing them to import two tons of foreign raw sugar to every ton of Canadian beet sugar manufactured on the preferential tariff basis, and for two years in the proportion of one to one.

COMMISSIONER TO CUBA.

Ernest S. Kirkpatrick, of Woodstock, N.B., has received the appointment of Canadian Trade Commissioner to Cuba for a period of six months, with permission to visit the other British and foreign islands in the vicinity if deemed advisable. The service in that quarter, therefore, will be temporarily increased to two trade commissioners and five commercial agents.

AN INTELLIGENT SPIDER.

Mark Twain says: "When I was editing the Virginia City Enterprise, writing copy one day and mining the next, a superstitious subscriber once wrote and said he had found a spider in his paper. Was this good or bad luck? I replied to him in our 'Answers to Correspondents' column as follows: 'Old Subscriber.—The finding of a spider in your copy of the Enterprise was neither good luck nor bad. The spider was merely looking over our pages to find out what merchant was not advertising, so that it could spin its web across his door, and lead a free and undisturbed existence forever after.'"

MERCHANTS WAKING UP.

The problem of the collection of accounts is one that is being carefully studied by grocers all over the Dominion wherever the credit system prevails. Up to the present few plans have been formulated that have proven satisfactory. Probably the system in vogue in Guelph is the most perfect known, if we may be permitted to use the adjective in its superlative degree. At any rate Guelph merchants are satisfied with what they have done for themselves and they no doubt take considerable pride in opening the way to their fellow merchants in the various parts of the country. Their experiences are just beginning to pave the way for others and their example will be followed by many.

In Brantford the grocers have practically decided to institute a collection system similar to the one in Guelph. The merchants of Chatham have discussed the question on several occasions and have now a committee working to formulate a proposition.

The collection subject is not confined alone to western Ontario. Cornwall in the east is interested, At the last meeting of the Board of Trade the subject was introduced by J. E. Chevier and before the meeting closed a committee was named to get the necessary information from Guelph.

In a letter Mr. Chevier points out that the recent articles in The Grocer led to the matter being taken up there where he believes a collection system along modern lines is necessary.

Merchants everywhere are "up against it" in collecting satisfactorily their accounts and now is the time for them to think about the bettering of their conditions.

PUTRID MEAT IN MONTREAL.

A big haul was made in Montreal on April 17, by the health officers, Dr. Lesperance, Dr. McCarrey, and O. Legault, the city's meat experts, of a consignment of canned meat which came from Hammond, Ind., and was put up by the G. H. Hammond Packing Co.

The shipment was first sent to Halifax, where for obvious reasons it was not wanted and from there it came to Montreal and was being handled in that city by the Fowler Canadian Company, Limited, of Hamilton, through their representative, J. Beard, 107 St. James St. When these goods reached Montreal they were offered at a much reduced figure.

Fortunately the putrid state of the meat was discovered before only three cases were sold to the retailers, one of whom immediately communicated with the Health Department, and a seizure was at once made of the entire amount consisting of 210 cases containing 2,085 doz.

An action will result from the seizure.

SHORTER CREDIT TERMS.

Circulars have been issued by the Toronto Fruit and Produce Association announcing that after the first of May, terms of credit to their customers will be curtailed to one week. While this may not meet with the approval of all retailers, in many respects it is to their interests and especially to the interests of those who try to carry on their businesses by methods that are fair to their competitors and systematic.

Very often it is observed that men enter the arena of retail merchandise without their share of knowledge as to how they should conduct a profitable business. To break in on the trade they at once begin to slash prices. They do this probably for one or two years without remitting regularly to the wholesalers and finally discover their profits have not been large enough to enable them to continue business. They become bankrupt through credit.

Had they settled their accounts systematically they would have always steered ahead of the storm and remained above the surface. They forgot that it costs money to carry on a business and discovered when it was too late that a cent made on an outlay of a hundred did not always mean a cent gain. They not only injured themselves but their competitors as well.

Therefore, though the action of the fruit dealers may not be endorsed by all their customers at first sight, it may be a "blessing in disguise" for many of them in their business of the future.

HAND IN GLOVE WITH EATON.

In giving a practical monopoly of the school book business of the Province of Ontario to the T. Eaton Company of Toronto, the Whitney Government have dealt a smashing blow at the retail trade of the province.

The department store octopus, having secured the contract for publishing the new Ontario readers at a ridiculously low price, will now proceed to corner the distribution of the books. The contract entered into with the government calls for the sale of the books to any one at twenty per cent. discount.

Retailers are on precisely the same footing as the public and it is easy to see that the public will buy where it can get the books cheapest.

The government boast that they have broken up the school book ring. They have practically created a worse monopoly than ever, ignoring the just claims of the retailers and depriving thousands of merchants throughout the province of a legitimate source of income.

When the government ranges itself on the side of department stores and mail-order houses and openly attacks the retail merchants, it is time something was doing.

Every book that goes out will bear the name of the T. Eaton Co. By charging a portion of the cost of printing to the advertising account it is no wonder that such a company could do the work cheaply. This, however, does not aid the general merchants all over the province of Ontario.

EGYPTIAN ONIONS.

Reports from the primary markets state that owing to suitable dry weather during the principal growing month, that is February, the crops promise to be of good quality provided, of course, nothing occurs in the meantime to affect the same.

The quantity is difficult to gauge at the present time while the first indications were that it would be about the same as last season—nearly 1,500,000 bags. News of the expected early exhaustion, of European supplies reached Egypt, and caused a lot of late seed to be planted, though against this, the highly favorable present prospects have induced growers to put the onions on the market before being fully grown thereby decreasing the weight somewhat. Still, according to the opinion of the best authorities, the total output is not expected to exceed 1,600,000 bags.

Prices opened very high in Alexandria—higher than ever remembered—and have continued so all along. Judging by the keen demand, it will take an enormous quantity to lower the price. The first onions, which are expected to be in good condition for transshipment, are 11,060 bags in the S. S. Britannia due in Liverpool on the 25th inst.

THE RACE FOR RICHES.

There is scarcely a grocer or grocer's clerk but wishes that he was rich. He thinks that he is not making money fast enough and wonders whether the wheel of good luck will ever let fall a fortune at his feet. All fortunes have been started and developed by thrift; even the foundations for the wealth of the multi-millionaires in America were laid that way. There is more truth than sarcasm in the old axiom about not being able to have your cake and eat it too. In plain words its tranlation is you cannot spend all you make or earn and have money in your pocket or to your credit in the bank. A safe, inviolable rule to guide the ambitious clerk on the road to a competency is to remember that it is only attained by saving—by building little by little—the process may be slow and at times tedious, but the structure will be reared in time. There are only three other ways to get wealthy in a short time. One is by misappropriation or graft—which no honest, self-respecting person countenances. Another means is by speculation which may make of you an opulent individual or it may restore you to primitive poverty, after you have put all the money you have in about-which-you-know-nothing scheme or proposition. The mere speculator simply takes his chance. The extreme is very much like a wager—it may result successfully or it may render you so much worse off.

Another way to acquire riches is by judicious, careful and well planned investment, which is widely different from speculation. To one who makes a study of bonds, real estate, industrial concerns, growing towns, promising farming districts or excellent business openings, a few hundred dollars invested at the opportune time—the psychological moment—will yield handsome returns. Outside of the good, old-fashioned way of building a fortune—dollar by dollar—comparatively few men have the knack, the genius or the unerring judgment to make money quickly and easily, even in investments. It would be well for the man of moderate means to leave pure speculation alone. Investment should be well considered by the one about to embark in that field; if rightly understood there there is generally a liberal return made. Investments are after all like other things—their success depends to a large extent in knowing and doing the proper thing at the proper time. This is why one man prospers and another fails. No. 1 bought or sold or entered into business at the proper time and in the proper place. The other chap acted an hour, a week or a month too late, did not locate on the right spot or misjudged conditions. Life after all is a complex and peculiar problem and for the majority of us our chief business here is the business of making a living. The next time you hear so much about the good luck, the unparalleled success, the big income or the large dividends that the other fellow has, do not become restless or grow melancholy. Your turn is likely to come, but remember it will never arrive as long as you spend every dollar of your weekly wage or fail to lay aside something whether you are in business or not. It takes a little money to make money, but the prime necessity, the fundamental, underlying, principle is first to have that "little." You get that only by thrift which is the basis of all prosperity.

BRIGHTEN UP.

It is good policy to occasionally repaint the front of the store, and have the old signs re-written. An air of brightness takes the place of the old dull hues, and the effect is not merely pleasing to the passer-by, but causes favorable comment on the enterprise of the shopkeeper. "Smith must be doing well; I see he is having the whole of the shop-front re-painted," somebody will say.

Now, it may be that Smith is not doing very well. His business may be causing him a little anxiety, because his expenses continue high, and there are too many dull days for his liking. But Smith is wise enough to know that if he wishes his business to prosper, he must let it be seen that he has confidence in the public and himself. It is useless for anyone to stay in business unless he has confidence.

TRIMMING A PRICE CUTTER.

A year ago when competition was quite stiff for a certain line of goods one manufacturing concern quoted a price of $1 a dozen on an article, a competitor going him a shade better by quoting 90c per dozen. An astute buyer used the second quotation to get the first company down to 85 cents, then getting a bid at 80 and finally placing the order with the first company on a 75 cent basis, the manufacturers soon finding that they were losing 15 cents a dozen, notwithstanding they could produce goods cheaper than their competitors.

When the year was nearly over the same buyer notified the salesman that they would soon be in the market for the year's requirements. The salesman went up and asked how many dozen they wanted, but before giving the figure the buyer said he would have to bid lower than last year. The increase would be several thousand dozen. The salesman replied: "We will quote you 65 cents per dozen, but you must sign a note right now that we won't get the order." It was simply a bid to get their competitors to fall into the trap which they did.

Now when the salesman for the first company gets an inquiry for cheap goods along that line he refers them cheerfully to the competing concern, knowing they are making the goods at a loss, and it is only a question of time before they must go out of business

SUCCESS DEPENDS ON PATIENCE.

The hasty man seldom wins. He sets a fast pace at the start but he usually lacks the stamina to last until the finish.

This applies to business as much as to athletics.

How often we hear of men failing to make a success of a new department they have established in connection with their business. They bought a stock or hired a man to look after the work. They put a small announcement in the local paper and then because a good trade did not develop at once they concluded that the department was not a success and closed it up.

Patience and stamina are required if the merchant is to succeed. A demand for a new article or a new department must be created, must be built up by steady plodding.

BUSINESS MAXIMS.

By Plato, Jr.

¶ Develop ideas while you are waiting for customers.

¶ One must search for ideas before one can find customers.

¶ There is no excuse for business men to wait for spring to plant the seed of good ideas.

¶ Prosperity dwells with the business man who closely "follows up" new customers.

¶ A waiting customer soon becomes a wrathy customer; and a few wrathy customers may be sufficient to kill a business.

Cargo of Molasses in Steamship Wreck—Halifax Grocer Selling Much Confectionery—Fishermen of the East are Busy—News of Halibut Company Organizing.

ST. JOHN.

April 20.—The price of flour continues to be the most interesting topic in grocery circles and the dealers, both wholesale and retail, are impatiently awaiting future developments. Flour is now selling at a price which has seldom, if ever been equalled since the famous Leiter deal in Chicago. Dealers say the indications point to still higher prices. Some of the more conservative merchants, however, say that it is not safe to predict anything too confidently. Manitoba high grade is now quoted at $6.95 to $7 ; Ontario medium patents at $6.15 to $6.20 and Ontario full patents at $6.35 to $6.40.

Contrary to the general expectation the price of sugar has declined ten cents a hundred. This, dealers say, is in face of the fact that all the United States dealers have advanced their prices. Fancy Barbadoes molasses is dearer and is now quoted at 34 to 35 cents.

The harbor fishermen are making some good catches of gaspereaux. One night last week in two weirs over 20,000 fish were taken in each.

The sardine season opened last week in western New Brunswick and eastern Maine and the packers are reported to be busy handling the catches which have been pretty heavy.

The first direct cargo of Barbadoes molasses arrived last week from that port on the schooner Tobiatic, consigned to Jones & Schofield, north wharf. The schooner Daisy Linden is reported wrecked at Bermuda, on the passage from Barbadoes for St. John with a cargo of molasses for the Crossby Molasses Co. The cargo was insured.

David W. Puddington, commercial traveler, Allan H. Wetmore, insurance manager, both of St. John ; Daniel A. Morrison, merchant, Amherst ; Archer C. Puddington, lumber merchant, New York, and William F. Holmes, commercial traveler, of Amherst, have been incorporated as Puddington, Westmore, Morrison, with a capital stock of $35,000. The company proposes to carry on a wholesale grocery and provision business, with headquarters in St. John.

The ice is all out of the St. John river and navigation has opened up. The first river steamer left here on Saturday and is expected to bring down a large cargo of produce. All the steamship lines have advanced their freight rates about 50 per cent. and it is feared this will affect trade with St. John to some extent.

A number of the leading merchants and manufacturers in the south end of the city are petitioning the I.C.R. to erect a billing office on their line in that section so that shipments of less than a carload can be sent from there and thus save cartage across the city to the freight sheds on Pond Street and also to relieve the congestion there.

Harold J. Dobson, who has been employed for some years with T. H. Estabrooks in the St. John office has gone to Winnipeg where he will take a position in the western branch of the Red Rose Tea concern. Mr. Dobson has been in the local militia and in athletics and will be greatly missed.

Up to Saturday last, 97 steamships had made returns at the customs house, showing that the value of export cargoes has passed the $21,000,000 mark. It is expected that before the season closes the $25,000,000 mark will be reached.

Following is a summary of the goods gone forward :—

Value of Canadian goods	$15,031,130
Value of foreign goods	6,087,380
Total value to date 1909	$21,118,510
Total value same date 1908	20,592,396
Gain for 1909 to date	$ 526,114

The following are some of the shipments of exports by the steamers :

Grain (bushels)	6,589,474
Flour (sacks)	441,765
Cheese (boxes)	69,187
Cattle (head)	19,907
Apples (bbls.)	38,266
Apples (boxes)	3,730

St. John's trade with the United States for the quarter ending March 31, 1909, shows a big increase. The total value of exports for March quarter 1909, was $858,716.39 and in the corresponding period last year was $280,700.21, a gain for 1909 of $578,016.18.

HALIFAX.

April 20.—The feature of the local markets this week is the rapid advance of the price of flour and feeds. Flour has gone up with a jump, Ontarios being increased from 25 to 30 cents, and Manitobas from 30 to 40 cents, and even higher prices are predicted by some. There is a scarcity of feeds and prices for these will probably advance in sympathy with flour, etc. The dealers here have only fair stocks on hand. So far there has been no increase in the price of bread, but the bakers will probably send up the prices if there is no decrease in flour in the near future. The latter part of last week there was talk of an advance, but as yet it has not gone into effect.

The Easter trade in the grocery lines was fully up to expectations. There was also a heavy demand for confectionery, one of the largest firms in the city doing more business in this line during Easter Saturday than ever before. The firm in question on that day took in $1.100 for confectionery and pastry. Chocolates were the heaviest sellers.

In the provision market many lines show considerable advances over the previous week. Smoked meats have been active, and both hams and bacon show a slight advance. Canned, barrelled goods have recently been advanced, while American pork is also firm. Peas show a slight upward tendency and the offerings are very slack. Stocks of produce on the local market are being cleaned up rapidly. The stock now offered for sale wintered well. There is a fairly good demand for potatoes and large shipments are now being made to the American market. The Plant Line steamer A. St. Perry, that sailed from here for Boston this week, took sixteen cars of potatoes.

Since the close of the Lenten season the demand for fish has fallen off greatly. Trout are now on the market, but they are small and of poor quality. There is a marked scarcity of fresh halibut, and the fishermen have no difficulty in disposing of their catches at good prices. Lobsters are also very scarce on the local market, but this is not due to any shortage in the catch. The fishermen are making good hauls along the coast, but United States buyers are on the spot, and all the lobsters are sent to the United States. It is estimated that so far this month 300,000 live lobsters have been exported from Nova Scotia to the American markets.

Large quantities of produce are now being shipped from Prince Edward Island. The steamer Stanley, which crossed to the mainland this week, had among other articles, three cars of potatoes for Boston, five hundred and fifty cases of condensed milk for Winnipeg, and eight hundred cases of eggs for Quebec.

The directors of the Cherry Valley Dairying Company, of P. E. Island, are going largely into the manufacture of butter this year, and have engaged William Brown, an expert butter maker.

Benjamin Vigirs has purchased the grocery business of Isaiah Mosher, which he has conducted in this city for several years.

William Curtis and William Rattle, of the grocery department of R. T. Holman, Ltd., of Summerside, P.E.I., have resigned their positions with that firm. They have formed a co-partnership and will engage in the meat business in the public market.

MONTREAL.

April 20.—Sylvester Swetenham passed through Montreal recently on his way to the Pacific Coast. He stated that a company of influential capitalists is being formed in London to develop a new halibut fishing industry between Prince Rupert and Queen Charlotte Islands, where the finest halibut fisheries in the world lie, and for the opening of extensive new canneries near the mouth of the Skeena River. The capitalists associated are influential men and they are prepared to put into the venture, two million dollars. Mr. Swetenham added that it was anticipated the new halibut fisheries would prove most profitable. Experts had already been over the ground, and had reported upon the prospects, and there could be no doubt as to the quantity and quality of the salmon on the Skeena River. It was believed that from both sources profitable traffic would be developed particularly as regards the halibut, which would find the G. T. P. the most direct route to the large consuming centres, whither they are to be conveyed in large iced cars of special construction. Mr. Swetenham who is a member of the Carlton Club, said a good many London clubmen come out to Canada to have a little sport ostensibly, but they have other and more serious purposes in view. The majority are looking out for favorable opportunities for investment—not the kind of thing that is likely to be unloaded on them by the ordinary promoters, but enterprises that are likely to give immediate returns, and that will prove a permanent source of profit. "The fact is" he said, "a large number of wealthy men just now are profoundly uneasy at some of the recent developments,—the spread of socialism at home, the heavy burden of taxation and the increasing difficulty in getting anything like an adequate return for capital with the requisite guarantee of unquestioned security. Many who come out to Canada and other parts of the Empire for sport, mean really to buy land."

S. H. Ewing & Sons, manufacturers of spices and coffee roasters, have installed new coffee roasting machinery which places their equipment for this purpose among the most modern in the world. By its use a great saving in time is effected, and the quality of the output is much improved. The old fashioned machines require much longer to act, therefore the coffee has to be submitted to the roasting longer. After the coffee leaves the roasting oven, it is placed in a steel receptacle, and this is rolled onto a platform. A small trap at the end is opened and the entire contents is drawn by pneumatic pressure up through a chute, and deposited in another steel receptacle from whence it can be directed into bags. During the course of the coffee up through the flue, the beans are cleaned, that is, the chaff is removed and this falls into a special drawer. Altogether the plant is a most perfect one, and redounds to the credit of this firm, which is numbered among the oldest spice and coffee houses of Canada.

H. G. Smith, corner of Fairmount and St. Urbain Sts., also corner of Villeneuve and Esplanade Sts., will open a new store at 63 Beaubien St. on May 1. Mr. Smith is a good example of the fact, that a man can successfully run branch stores, when he does business on the principle of "honest ways and good goods."

E. H. Bowen, Sun Life Building, Sherbrooke, Que., has taken an agency for Lipton's goods, and is also representing Bordens Condensed Milk, Caillers' Chocolate, and Macintoshes Toffee. With this formidable array of lines "Ned" should do a good business.

The factory of the Dusault Company, Joliette, is undergoing a complete renovation, and in a short time the company will be equipped with all the latest biscuit machinery, and the most modern ideas in biscuit making will be employed. Confectionery and the cheaper lines of biscuits will no longer be turned out, but the firm will put up special goods for the trade. J. E. Lalonde, who has been with the company for four years, and who was joint manager with J. H. Dusault, is now sole manager. Mr. Dusault will manage the Royal Bank in Joliette, which will open May 1.

E. Thouin is a new traveler who has been put on the north shore route between Joliette and Quebec, by Chevalier, Pouliot & Co., wholesale grocers in the former town. Mr. Thouin is anticipating some good business on his initial trip.

All the business men in Montreal have been watching with considerable interest the progress of the government steamers, "Montcalm" and "Lady Grey," both of which reached Montreal last Monday, the honor of being the first boat, to reach this port falling to the "Montcalm," with the "Lady Grey" closely following her. The "Montcalm" returned to Quebec in order to place the buoys in the channel on the way down and perform other work before the channel is fully prepared for the ocean liners now on their way to this city. The "Lady Grey" stayed here to break up the ice in the various basins. This operation has been watched by large crowds each day, as the sight of a comparatively large vessel ploughing her way through large ice floes proved to be an interesting and novel one. Navigation will in all probability open at least 10 days earlier this year than last.

L. S. Peppard, of the firm of Storer & Co., Calle Bolivar 292, Buenos Ayres, Argentine, S.A., visited the Montreal office of The Grocer last month. Mr. Peppard is arranging with Canadian firms in various lines, to extend their business into South America. His firm covers Argentine, Paraguay, Uruguay and Chili, with offices at Monte Video, Valparaiso and Santiago, besides the headquarters at Buenos Ayres.

Some of the buyers in Montreal during the week were :

A. Labelle, Rosemere, Que.
A. Lanciault, St. Phillipe, Que.
C. Decoste, St. Justin, Que.
A. Brossard, Laprairie, Que.
A. Meloche, St. Genevieve, Que.
J. B. Lefebvre, St. Therese, Que.
P. W. Sequin, St. Paul l'Ermite.
A. Filiatrault, St. Martin, Que.
D. Bougie, Pointe Claire, Que.
O. Carignan, Trois Rivieres, Que.
A. St. Amour, Coteau Station, Que.

PICTOU, N.S.

April 20—Trade in this town has been rather dull during the winter, but is now improving as the spring opens up.

J. W. Priest has moved to the store of Hogg, Craig & Co., until he has his new store ready for occupancy.

J. B. Harty is receiving more orders for Buda flour this spring than he did last. He is the eastern representative of Shirk & Snider, Bridgeport, Ont.

Picton would make an ideal manufacturing town. It has every facility for shipments and distribution by rail and steamer.

THE TRAVELERS' HOTEL.

A fine room will make up for a whole lot of deficiencies in other departments of an hotel, but when, besides, a splendid room, one gets excellent service in every respect, then, that hotel is well worthy of patronage. Walter Walby's hotel, the Cecil, in Ottawa, is one of the most modern in Canada. The bedrooms are all most modern. The beds are equipped with Astoria box springs and Ostermoor mattresses, and each and every room has running water, while a large proportion of the rooms are provided with bath as well, and such a room may be had for the asking. The newly arranged dining-room is certainly one of the best in Canada, the food being substantial, well cooked, and offering a variety that does not get monotonous. As it stands to-day the hotel has cost a quarter of a million dollars. It is Mr. Walby's aim to make it the finest commercial hotel in Canada. The traveling salesmen who patronize him think he is succeeding.—Advt.

British Columbia Government Aiding the Fruit Industry—Winnipeg Grocer Makes Success on Account of His Location—Cash System in Calgary—More Onions Arrive From Australia.

VANCOUVER.

April 20.—The rise in the price of wheat has been the cause of flour being increased in price, and the figure here is higher than ever before. One advance of 20c a barrel has been made.

Potatoes are undoubtedly scarce, and high prices will be paid until the new ones come in from California in a month or six weeks. Even then, they will be so dear that they will be a luxury, and it will not be before the middle of June that the new article will descend to the price plane that ordinary people will be able to each them.

California commission men have had buyers in the city to secure a portion of the shipment of six thousand cases of Australian onions that arrived on the Aorangi. The bulk of them will go south. Onions are almost a famine in California. The ones from Australia this year are not quite up to the mark, being rather small, though the quality is good. The Indravelli, which is about due from New Zealand, will bring in some more onions and potatoes from that country.

Vancouver and Victoria people who have concessions in Mexico are preparing for colonizing the land, and Wm. L. Bond, of Victoria, has gone south with a party of ten men to make surveys. It is stated that arrangements have already been completed to take 100 families when the land is ready. Shipments north from these areas will consist of fruits, fibre suitable for making the best of rope, cordage, etc., and other products, and it is anticipated that a large trade will be worked up.

Frank Fox, editor of the "Lone Hand," of Sydney, Australia, was here this week, and he expressed surprise that the shippers of that country should have been so short sighted as to send poor butter to this market, when the demand was so good and the price fairly high. It was pointed out to Mr. Fox, who by the way is acting as a royal commission to report on conditions in Canada, that the Australian butter, when it first came here had a flavor that secured it instant demand, but ever since it has been poor. It reaches here in the latter end of winter, when the local butter is not from the fresh grass, and when imported butter is not of the best. Hence it has every chance for the best trade.

John Cunningham and wife, of Port Essington, have come to Vancouver to live. Mr. Cunningham was a resident of Essington for 35 years, and is the best known merchant of the northern coast.

The Hunter-Kendrick Company, of Greenwood, have disposed of their retail stock of groceries to other firms in that city, and in future their grocery department will be conducted on wholesale lines.

Fire again broke out in Eagle's grocery store, at Summerland, B.C., and it would have been destroyed but for the prompt action of the brigade. The store had been closed awaiting adjustment by the fire insurance companies.

Clerks in Kamloops, B.C., are striving for a half holiday from May 1st to Sept. 1st. They had a meeting last week, and Thos. Munn, A. Dalgleigh and L. Barker were appointed a committee to interview the employers, and arrange a meeting, when both employers and clerks will attend and discuss the matter.

W. J. Toye, of Nelson, B.C., is forming a company to manufacture a baking powder that will be known as Coledyke. A factory has already been opened in Portland, Oregon.

H. Hincks, a progressive young rancher at Howser, near Kaslo, B.C., is about to try the breeding of angora sheep. He spent last winter in Dulverton, Somersetshire, England, and while there purchased five angoras, which are now being transported to British Columbia.

Harry Beach, of the English firm of T. W. Beach & Company, jam manufacturers, who has acted for many years as superintendent of the concern, is expected to arrive in Nelson this week to take charge of the operations of the Kootenay Jam Factory, which has its headquarters in that city. He will see to the erection of the plant.

The government is lending additional assistance to the fruit growing industry this year. Some of the districts, notably the fruit growers near Nelson, wanted the provincial administration to take entire charge of the handling and marketing of their fruit. This, of course, was out of the question, but in all feasible ways the government is showing an increased practical interest in the welfare of the industry. Last session it agreed to aid in the establishment of cold storage plants at various shipping points, by lending money on mortgage. Several applications for this aid have been received. Not content with that the agricultural department of the government will have a representative in the Northwest during the fruit season, to keep the department fully advised on all phases of the situation as they develop, particular notice being taken of the competitive shipments from the United States. Another encouraging feature of the situation, which was marked during the recent conference between the government, the transportation companies and the growers, is the recognition of community of interest which exists between those companies and the fruit growers of the province. It was then made abundantly clear that, apart from the general interest that the C. P. R. has in building up the territory tributary to its lines, there is a direct incentive towards developing the fruit industry. It was then proved that the C.P.R. carries the British Columbia fruit from the orchard to the consumer, while in the case of American fruit, the company carries the shipment only part of the way. Consequently, the C. P. R. is doing all it can to help the industry and special arrangements are being made to handle the output. Organizations for handling and placing the fruit crops are already being formed by the various districts. The Vancouver Island Association is being organized, while in the Okanagan a fruit union is in process of formation. In other sections a similar movement is expected to be under way shortly, with the result that this year the growers generally should have greater reason to be pleased with their season's work. Last year many of the growers of the Nelson district incurred losses, but the fact that some of the Creston growers, with the same conditions and tributary to the same market, made good money, shows that it was simply the result of business mismanagement, which is not likely to be repeated. The government has appointed a commissioner to enquire into the affairs of the B. C. Fruit Exchange so that it may be ascertained what pitfalls there were, and how these may be avoided. That this concern was unprofitable last year, as has been shown, was only through mistakes having been made.

EDMONTON.

April 21.—There has been a lull in trade all over town this last week, owing to the unsettled weather and poor conditions of the roads into the city. The backward weather is keeping the farmers from getting their spring work under way.

Edmonton's march of progress among western cities is never more clearly depicted from month to month than in the monthly statistics of the city. In every branch of activities there is an increase over last year, showing that Edmonton is making continued advances along financial, commercial and building lines. Among the most pleasing returns are those of the clearing house and the building inspector. The former shows the second largest total in the history of the city, and the latter records permits three times as large as March of last year.

Long before the frost was all out of the ground building operations were beginning to show great activity in all parts of the city. Dwellings and business blocks of all sizes and descriptions are under contemplation and some are already under way. The building trades are enlisting their men for the work of this season, which will be three times in excess of what it was last year. This will mean work for scores of men now idle, which has been the chief influence in keeping trade so quiet, and will go a long way towards making trade in general brisk again. Two business blocks are now under way on the north side of Jasper Ave., between 5th and 6th Streets, directly east of the Wellington block. The excavation for one of these is about completed. It is to be a three-storey brick block of fifty-foot frontage by one hundred feet in depth. It is expected to be completed and open for offices, stores and rooms in about four months. The other block is to be also three storeys. The ground floor will be adapted for stores and the second and third floors for offices and rooms. The cost of this block will be about $30,000, and is expected to be completed about the 1st of July. Hallier & Aldridge, bakers and confectioners, have started operations on their large block on Rice Street, just back of the new post office, and facing the market square. The lower floor will be devoted to stores and the upper two storeys will be laid out in suites for light housekeeping or offices. Dr. J. D. McLean has just begun work on a three-storey store and office building—brick with stone facings—which will be erected on the northwest corner of Jasper Avenue and Seventh Street. On the ground floor will be stores; on the second, offices, and the third will be used for rooming apartments. The cost will be in the neighborhood of $35,000.

Announcement has been made of the dissolution of partnership existing between J. H. Gariepy and P. E. Lessard, who have done business in this city for a number of years as general merchants, under the name of Gariepy & Lessard. The dissolution of partnership took place on March 26th. It has not been decided whether one of the partners will take over the whole business or whether it will be sold.

In the course of a week or two a regular freight business will be inaugurated by the street railway department between Edmonton and Strathcona, and in all probability all the freight now handled between Edmonton and the C. P.R. warehouses in Strathcona will be moved by electric car. It is expected that two trips a day will handle all the freight, A trial run was made on Friday morning, April 2nd, when a carload of meat was taken to Strathcona for distribution among the merchants there. The meat was from the J. Y. Griffin porg packing plant and was loaded at the Edmonton terminus of the line on Alberta Ave.

The city commissioners were. at the last sitting of the city council. instructed to secure an option on the D. W. McDonald property on the northwest corner of the market block and to submit same to the council at the next meeting. The purpose of the city in securing this property is to provide a suitable site for a new city hall, which will be required in the near future. The balance of the block will then be laid out as a market site and a modern market building will be erected. As the market square is within the fire limits the new market will be commodious enough to meet the present requirements and will be substantially built. The hay and coal market will be moved towards the outskirts of the city and the present market site and the new market building will be used only for the marketing of farm and garden produce.

Evaporated fruits are being quoted at very cheap prices, but the demand for them has not shown much activity as yet. Sugar still remains steady at $5.69 per cwt., wholesale. Butter is not very plentiful, as yet very little dairy butter is being offered and what can be obtained is not of a very high quality. The best dairy is being sold at 30c, and No. 1 creamery at 35c.

There seemed to be a goodly supply of fruit in the market here last week, with the exception of apples. About the only apples to be had in any quantity are Ben Davis', which are selling at four pounds for a quarter. California navel oranges are being quoted from 25c to 50c, and lemons at 25c. Bananas sell for 50c a dozen. Florida tomatoes are selling well and are very reasonable at 20c lb.

Lovatt Bros., 1019 Jasper Ave. East, have recently opened a meat market in connection with their grocery store by taking out the partition between their original store and the adjoining half of the building.

The J. Y. Griffin Co., operating here one of the largest pork packing plants in western Canada, came to the assistance of several of the merchants in the city, and gave them the suggestion of a display of hams for the Easter season. The windows of the Acme Co., J. H. Morris & Co., and Hudson's Bay Co. show what a splendid effect has been secured. Easter hams are a specialty which the packing plant has been working on for some time and in order to get the citizens of Edmonton to know their product, the company was offering an almost inexhaustible supply of whole hams at 16c a pound, which is as low as these have heretofore been wholesaled at.

The first effect of the Patten corner in wheat as far as Edmonton is concerned was felt at the end of last week when all the local mills and agencies of eastern mills here raised the wholesale price of flour. The reason given was the dizzy height which wheat prices had reached and the scarcity of the cereal in the hands of the farmers of the western provinces. Hamilton & Son, representing the Ogilvie Milling Co., in Edmonton, advanced on April 12th the price of a brand ten cents a sack of 98 lbs. and the head office wired another advance of ten cents on Tuesday, making a jump from $3.15 to $3.35. Potter & McDougall, who represent the Lake of the Woods Milling Co., have advanced the price of a brand from $3.15 to $3.25 per sack. A. B. Campbell, of Campbell & Ottewell Milling Co., Edmonton, when asked as to the flour situation in Edmonton from the standpoint of a local miller, said that there was a great scarcity of wheat in the province and any wheat bought now was at a price 18 cents in advance of the February price and very little could be had at that. The consequence of this was that it costs 40 cents more to produce a 98 lb. sack of flour. For this reason they have advanced the price 20 cents a sack and Mr. Campbell said that he would not be surprised to see the price go higher. Robt. Ritchie, of the Edmonton Milling Co., Strathcona, says that his firm has considerable quantity of wheat in store and will not be compelled to buy at the present high prices. He says the stores generally were low, however, and it would not be long before outside wheat would have to be secured if the mills were to be kept running. Mr. Ritchie last week advanced his flour 10 cents a sack which was his first advance since February. The same condition of affairs applies to the Alberta Milling Co. An increase of 10 cents a sack about the first of the month and a second increase of 10 cents per sack was made this week. This firm reckons that it costs nearly 75 cents more to manufacture a sack of flour from two bushels of wheat at the present prices and if the prices do not fall the flour quotations will probably go still higher.

Most of the retail grocers of the city that handle flour report that the retail price has not been disturbed due to the fact that the grocers have not been required to make any purchases of flour for several weeks and are not justified in selling at more than the ordinary scale of profit. If they have to purchase before any falling off in the wholesale price they will naturally raise the retail price in sympathy with the market which controls them.

The first biscuit factory to be established in Edmonton will be started this summer by R. McLaren, who has been in the city for a short time. Mr. McLaren has purchased a site for his factory on 21st Street, south of Jasper Ave., on the E. Y. & P. tracks. He will commence building operations at once.

W. H. White, who some time ago severed his connections with C. W. Campbell & Co., of which he was a partner, is to open up in a few days for himself. He will conduct an up-to-date fruit, grocery and confectionery business at the stand just vacated by C. C. Thompson, which he is having remodelled and thoroughly renovated.

Another proof of the increasing business in Edmonton and the surrounding country is shown in the fact that the A. Macdonald Co., wholesale grocers, have had to add another storey to their warehouse here. Work on same was commenced recently.

WINNIPEG.

April 21.—J. G. Hargrave commenced the renovating of the interior of his store immediately after the Easter rush. The walls and ceiling are being kalsomined and painted and all the fixtures varnished. Mr. Hargrave believes in keeping his store wholesome and attractive, and a little retouching every spring at a small expense always gives the store that new, clear appearance which is so pleasing to customers.

One remarkable characteristic of Winnipeg is that it possesses a very large suburban population. The reason for this is quite clear. There are thousands of poor people flocking into the city every year from almost every corner of the earth and these people cannot immediately accommodate themselves to residential property in convenient sections of the city. Indeed a person need not be poor to be deprived of a building lot within two miles of the city hall, for there is no city on the continent today where real estate prices are so ridiculously inflated. As a consequence many are forced out even beyond the limits of the city boundary to acquire enough ground upon which to build a house. To-day perhaps, one-sixth of the population of the city reside in these suburban sections; indeed they are little towns by themselves. One of these sections is very well known as St.

James, and it is building up rapidly. There are two grocery stores each doing a large business and another one under construction.

The general store of Gregory & Co., was opened only two months ago and A. J. Bond, the manager, who has had experience in the "up-town" trade, is very much encouraged with the manner in which the trade has opened up. The stock in both groceries and hardware is very complete, and without a doubt it is the best equipped and most active and promising suburban store the writer has ever seen.

In every city there are invariably certain stores located conveniently to the market square. It is not generally known just what advantage such stores have over others in the matter of trade. Possibly the store in Winnipeg which is doing the largest counter business today is situated on a lively corner opposite the public market house and square. When the weather is fine it is in this quarter of the city that the farmers congregate with their produce for sale and trade, and it is not a difficult matter for J. Paterson, the proprietor of the store in question to keep up his weekly stock of farm products. Apart from the matter of convenience the grocer happily located in such a place buys his goods at a rather low rate often robbing the jobber of a profit. The farmer usually prefers doing business direct with the grocery where he may unload his eggs, butter, vegetables and such produce and at the same time load up with the necessary household groceries. Mr. Paterson has been in business on this stand for only three years and prides himself on having the best stand and the best business, comparatively, in the city. At the present time the farmers are driving in from all parts of the country, this being a period of leisure just prior to the busy seeding season. From the extent of the business done in this store Mr. Paterson has been able to open two others in the city both in the suburbs—one in the north the other in the west. The stocks in all three stores are kept up substantially by the large amount of goods bought direct from the producer. This to some extent is the secret of Mr. Paterson's success. All three stores are doing a very encouraging business. The year ending on April 1, 1909, shows an increase of $4,000 in the three stores combined, over the profits of the year ending April 1, 1908.

C. W. Hagen, for the past twelve years the leading clerk in A. Hendry's retail store has accepted a position as traveler for the Codville & Co., wholesale house of this city. Mr. Hagen leaves the counter with perhaps the highest recommendation that any grocery clerk could wish to have. He was known in the trade as an excellent clerk possessing those qualifications in a marked degree which tend to make the grocery business a success. Referring to the excellent standing of Mr. Hagen, one who worked side by side with him for some time said, "yes, Hagen is a gentleman and a hustler."

Adam Hunter, for the past three years a clerk in the store of E. B. Nixon, has opened a grocery business on his own account, in the north end of the city on Main Street.

CALGARY.

April 20.—Not since the early part of 1907 has business with the retailers been so good as it is at present. The grocers, one and all, say that business is very satisfactory. Cash sales are gaining month by month, and if the good work, that is, credit curtailment, now so well begun will but continue we think the grocery business will be on a saner basis than for many a day. And why not? The people have the money, and are willing in most cases to pay cash if the merchants would more urgently point out the advantages of doing business in this way. There can be no two opinions as to the advantage to the consumer, as cash stores can, and almost invariably do, sell more reasonably than credit stores. The service, too, is usually better because there is, or should be, an incentive to cater to and be particular to satisfy in every way the person who always pays cash. Grocers are everywhere unanimous in opinion that the cash system is the correct one, and they are working to that end. One of the largest grocery houses in this city has for many years done a cash business with entire success, and it is freely admitted by competitors that the store referred to is attaining a standing in the community that is enviable. The proprietor does not hesitate to refuse credit to thoroughly responsible parties, always assuring them that his business is strictly cash. The cash buyers come to his store in throngs Other merchants could do the same; the field is a good one in which to make the change from credit to cash. One of the Dominion Immigration officials estimates that the new comers this year from the U.S. alone will bring into the country cash and effects to the value of not less than $70,000,000—a huge sum. The grocer should see that he gets his share of cash for his goods.

Grocery prices are steady, with few changes of importance. In produce local lettuce, onions, and radishes are plentiful New rhubarb from British Columbia is on the market and the quality is, as usual, the best. Potatoes are still scarce locally. Quantities are being brought in from the east, several cars having been purchased for shipment from Prince Edward Island. The price will necessarily be high and doubtless a good many of these will be used for seed. Butter and eggs are plentiful and prices are easier. Local poultry is in fair supply, quality good, but prices rather too high to induce large buying. Fancy Alberta turkeys retail at 25c. per lb., chickens 22c. to 25c., and fowl 16c. to 18c.

GALT.

Ald. T. G. Robinson, the Brant Road grocer, advertises his business for sale. He is removing from Galt.

Sloan's had a demonstration of jellies last week.

The Easter market in Galt was exceptionally large, and farmers took advantage of the occasion to boost prices. Eggs jumped from 14 to 17 cents a dozen and butter was up to 28 cents a pound.

"Yes, the housecleaning season is on," remarked a Main Street grocer as he wrapped up half a dozen cakes of yellow soap.

For the second time, where is the Galt Retail Merchants' Association?

A buyers' excursion inaugurated by a Hamilton department store fell flat as far as Galt was concerned. The return fare was 25 cents instead of the usual $1, but not more than three people went from Galt. Galt's stores are just as well stocked and prices are no higher than those in Hamilton. The Brantford merchants have been attempting to coax trade from Galt, but it is understood that they too have had their fingers burned. Galt is quite able to live within itself.

"There was a great deal of truth in that article in a recent number of The Grocer about merchants suffering from farmers hoarding their money," said Allan Deans, of the Red Front. "The Grocer is filling a long felt want in bringing these matters to the front. It is hoped that the article will in some way be brought to the attention of the farmers."

OTTAWA.

April 21.—Ottawa reports in Bradstreets' say that general business is showing a better tone here. Retail trade is not heavy but wholesalers in all lines report good prospects for the future. Collections continue on the slow side.

Saturday's Ottawa market sprang up to unusual proportions, both sides of the market square as far as York Street—and on that street as well—being lined with rows of vehicles of all descriptions, heaped with produce of every variety. It was a busy and a picturesque scene—a real spring market. The attendance of purchasers was as large as that of the vendors and trade was brisk. It was the little daily drama of buy and sell, which on the market assumes its most interesting form.

The unfailing novelty supplied by the presence on the market of an offering of gay spring flowers, was in evidence for the first time. Vegetables too, were in abundance, and lettuce at 40c doz., green onions at 25c doz, form a welcome change in April diet.

Pork was valued at $10.75 and $11, and there were very few carcasses of beef on sale at 7 and 7 1-2 cents. Frozen turkeys brought 20c lb., while the fresh killed birds were snapped up at 25c lb. Chickens sold for $1.25 to $1.75 a pair according to size. Eggs, wholesale were stiff at 20c. Parsnips just dug out of the ground were $1.50 per bag and artichokes were very scarce at $1.50 per bag.

The maple sugar and maple syrup harvest this spring is considerably less than that of last year. The run of sap is not so good nor so steady which is very much the fault of the weather man. Owing to the cold, stormy days and nights the sap did not begin to run as early as in 1908 and the delay of the season was the cause of many hundreds of gallons of syrup being left unmade. During the cold weather sap trickled during brief periods of warm sunshine, but the flow was not sufficient to warrant the tapping of the trees. Then, too, the farmers have their spring work to attend to, and cannot spend so much of their time at sugar making as they would have done had the run been earlier. However, the slump in the quantity of the product has in no way yet increased the price of either sugar or maple syrup. The pure product is selling from 95c to $1.00 a gallon for syrup and 9c to 10c a pound for sugar—almost the same as last year. The decrease in the quantity will not be felt in Ottawa until next fall or winter. Most of the syrup and sugar delivered in Ottawa is made in the townships adjoining the city. This product usually comes in small quantities. Large amounts are brought from the producers in Quebec, chiefly around Sherbrooke and the Gatineau. Local store keepers say there is a marked shortage in the large manufacturing regions.

The Walter Cunningham Company, Ottawa has been incorporated with a capital stock of $20,000 to purchase and carry on the business of wholesale and retail grocers and liquor dealers, formerly carried on by Walter Cunningham, in Ottawa. Those to whom the charter is granted are: Walter Cunningham, George A. Little, A. N. Bedard, W. C. Revels and Frank Bedard.

Work will commence on May 1st, to pave a portion of the market square, which the people of Ottawa voted for at the last municipal elections.

Albert E. Forde, formerly with Forde Bros., grocers, has accepted a position with Thomas Bros., Limited, of St. Thomas, Ont., to represent that firm on the road.

R. Baird's grocery stock was sold by auction on April 17. Everything sold in detail. Perhaps it wasn't fun to hear the woman bidding on food stuffs in the hopes of saving a few cents.

The bakers think that they will have to advance the price of bread, owing to the recent jump in flour. Talk about advancing the poor man's bread, but what is the matter with the wheat corner man who causes the bread of a continent to jump a cent a loaf and collars the proceeds?

WOODSTOCK.

April 21.—Poole & Co., Woodstock, report the grocery business very brisk. Their neatly dressed window during the past week has been the source of great curiosity. Everything eatable is placed on a fancy table with two little colored chaps sitting down to a meal.

Forbes & Son have sold their grocery business to Alf. Rapson, for many years connected with Fred Millman.

J. Lewis has opened a fine new grocery on the corner of Victoria and Dundas Streets. The building is a fine red brick structure.

LONDON.

April 21.—Not in years has there been such a scarcity of hogs in Middlesex county as exists at present. Buyers have scoured the county from end to end, but have failed to locate even an average number of live hogs. The fact is that most farmers hereabouts have quit raising hogs, owing to the high price of fodder.

Herbert Summers, who for the past fifteen years has been connected with the D. S. Perrin Co., is about to leave the city, and on Thursday he was surprised by the staff giving him a most pleasant send-off. A large number of his associates for years past assembled in the shipping room, when Norman Graham read a kindly worded address, expressing the esteem in which he was held by all who had been associated with him. The address was accompanied with a purse of gold, and reference was made to the many happy days in pleasurable pastime on the ball field, also that the name of ,"Silver," as he was familiarly called, would not soon be forgotten, and wished Mr. Summers every success in his new field of labor. Mr. Summers thanked them all for the kind words contained in the address and also for the handsome gift extended to him.

The Canadian Packing Company will not rebuild on their present site, and it is quite possible that they will not rebuild at all. All their property in Pottersburg is being offered for sale, and will be disposed of at once. At the time of the visit of the English director of the company, Mr. Wraggle, it was announced that the company would not rebuild anywhere until there was a more plentiful supply of hogs at lower prices. Mayor Stevely states that it would be some time before the company rebuilt. "They are disposing of their property here," said his worship "They will not rebuild on that site in any event, and the property may as well be sold." "Will the company rebuild at all?" was asked. "I do not know," he answered. "They will not rebuild for some time anyway."

A game of bowls between north and south side grocers, (Dundas Street being the dividing line) was won by the latter by the following score:

North Grocers—Ranahan, 456; Collins, 482; McCorqundale, 360; Hayes, 498; Nopper, 468. Total—2,264. Majority for north grocers, 122 pins.

PETERBORO.

April 21.—The Examiner of this city had a note in a recent issue to the effect that in The Canadian Grocer's correspondence maple syrup was quoted at from $1.00 to $1.20 a gallon in Western Ontario towns. On Saturday last the price of syrup on the market here was about $1.15 a gallon and good quality was procurable at $1.00 where a fairly large quantity was purchased. This was a drop from $1.50 a gallon of previous weeks and it has been said that the newspaper item very likely had the influence of dropping the price to what is considered a fair figure. The grocers are quoting good syrup at $1.20.

Practically all the leading grocers are displaying garden seeds and already are reporting rather heavy sales. They have the opposition of the drug and feed stores.

The recent advance in the price of flour has been received rather quietly in Peterboro. At least there has not been very much said about it among the people generally. The grocers and bakers seem to be more concerned as a class than the people who will in the end have to bear the brunt of the increase.

The Retail Merchants' Association have made good progress in their efforts to have the local stores close as early as possible on Saturday nights. Last Saturday the dry goods and millinery sections closed at 9.30 o'clock and it is understood that an effort will be made to have the other sections come to a similar agreement at least for the summer.

Navigation on the Otonabee opened on Saturday, which is considered almost a record. This is one of the things which the grocers like to see, as the farmers all along the river will do their trading in Peterboro and groceries are one of the commodities which make the largest hole in the farmers' pockets.

R. A. Dutton has been offering his customers a choice line of early vegetables, tomatoes, onions, lettuce, and the other delectable early "greens" have been selling well. In this department Mr. Dutton maintains a tempting line of goods, as good in quality as the standard of his groceries.

Harry Ball, formerly a hardware merchant in New York, has opened a general store in the premises formerly occupied by Wesley Bros. at the corner of Alymer St. and McDonel St. He has obtained a lease from J. J. Turner & Sons. Not only does he intend to carry groceries, but will also have departments for boots and shoes, meat, fruit and dry goods. The store is now being refitted and will be opened shortly.

TORONTO.

April 21.—The April meeting of the Toronto Retail Grocers' Association was held on Monday night in the Temple Building, the most important portion of the evening's programme being a presentation to David Bell. This was the result of the efficient services Mr. Bell rendered the Association during the past two years during which he was secretary. The presentation consisted of a handsome gold open-faced watch with the initials of the recipient engraved on the back. It was made by J. S. Bond, who in a brief informal address expressed, on behalf of the Association, his appreciation of Mr. Bell's services in the past. He had proven faithful and true in the work given him, which he had never resented, and which he had always deligently performed. The gift was presented to him not on account of its value but as a memento of the pleasant associations he had had with the members. "We hope you will always remember our association," he concluded, "and that when you cross the bar you will hand it down to your son who we also hope will follow in his father's footsteps." In reply Mr. Bell thanked his friends for their present and past kindness. He had tried to do the best he could and would continue to be faithful to the association as best he could. The meeting was an enthusiastic one, the question of the annual excursion again coming up. The plans will likely be completed in a few days' time and the members intend to have one of the best excursions in their history. Several new names were reported for membership and the Association is gradually growing.

DAVID BELL,

Presented With a Gold Watch by Toronto Grocers' Association.

O. E. Sheets, 207 Brock Ave., bought out Mrs. Hayes and is putting new life in the business, and there is a decidedly better appearance to the store.

C. Schlemmer, grocer, 467 Dundas St., is wearing more than his usual smile over the fact that his baby boy was one of the fortunate prize winners in Borden's milk baby contest. This is the third time this little "shaver" took prizes for his good looks, and still "puddles" round in the healthy mud and sand like other little folks.

A Snyder, 262 Dundas St., sold his business to J. W. Island and intends to build a new store on Roncesvalles Ave. where he has secured a lot.

Wm. C. Miller has moved from 624 to 632 Yonge St., where he has a larger store to accommodate his rapidly increasing trade. With new fixtures, a good deal of new stock, and his natural business tact, he will soon be one of the leading Yonge St. grocers.

Teasdall Grocery Co., Yonge St., made a hit, when they filled their windows with canned apples just at the right time. This resulted in the clearing out of over 100 cases. A trick in trade is to do a right thing at the right time.

CHATHAM.

April 21.—The debt collecting scheme for some time past under consideration by the local retail merchants has not yet been worked into satisfactory shape, though some progress has been made, while the fact that so vital a matter is under consideration has done much to stimulate interest in the association. At last week's meeting Peter Cunningham, a member of the special committee, reported that they had taken the matter up with some professional collectors, none of whom seemed to be in a position to take up the work at the present time. One or two had expressed a willingness to take the matter up later on, their opinion being that the merchants themselves should formulate a definite proposition with a fixed salary and lay this before the collector. The matter was pretty thoroughly discussed, several members considering that the collector should, while bearing the title of official collector for the association, make his arrangements as to salary with individual merchants, the amount in each case being based on the amount of collections handled. It was urged that merchants might now have their own collectors, from whom they would not be anxious to take their business. Wm Anderson agreed that the proposition should emanate from the association and not from the collector. He explained in outline the Guelph scheme, and urged that with a view to securing information on the subject the Guelph collector, Mr. Scroggie, be invited to address the Chatham merchants, or to furnish information as to the workings of the system there. This suggestion was unanimously adopted. In the meantime, the committee was continued in office.

"Sweet oranges, 50c. a peck," is now a sign frequently seen in many grocery windows. The scheme of selling oranges by the peck instead of by the dozen was inaugurated a few weeks ago by Harry Andrew, and made quite a hit with the public, the novelty proving very attractive. Quite a few grocers have followed suit.

From all accounts the carp, locally despised as an edible fish, is in great demand in New York among the epicures. Large shipments of carp are reported from Erie and other fishing grounds to the "American" metropolis.

INDEPENDENT CANNERS' ASSOCIATION MEETING.

A meeting of the Independent Canners' Association was held on Tuesday, the 20th inst., at the King Edward Hotel, Toronto. There was a fair attendance of the members and under the chairmanship of Mr. Eckert, and Secretary Ball, a number of interesting matters were gone into. The principal question was the question of arriving at some working arrangement among the members whereby the canning industry could be placed on a paying basis, and to eliminate the cutting of prices. Another matter was the amalgamation of all the canning factories though not on the lines erroneously reported in some of the Toronto dailies. That some sort of an arrangement will likely be closed in this direction is the expressed opinion of almost every member of the association, and a committee was appointed to confer with the other canning interests to this end. This committee held a meeting last night but nothing was given out to The Grocer. It was learned, however, that satisfactory progress was made by the committee, who will report at a special meeting shortly to be called.

A NEW COFFEE MILL.

A new design of coffee mill is being put on the market by the A. D. Fisher Co., Limited, Toronto. For a number of years the Fisher Co. have been turning out a good machine and many are in use throughout the Dominion, but progressiveness has led them to excel any of their previous efforts. One improvement is the manner in which the coffee, while being ground, is conveyed from the grinders to the receiver, without allowing finely ground coffee or chaff to fly around or get spilled on the counter. This is accomplished by a new style base upon which the model is mounted, the head, containing the grinders, being extended into the top of the base and the receiver, which fits snugly into the base, through the top of which there is an opening allowing the freshly ground coffee to go directly from the head into the receiver which is entirely closed up with the exception of the opening in the top registering with the shoot of the coffee mill head. This obviates any possibility of the coffee flying around. Another improvement is the hardening of or converting the grinding teeth into practically hardened cast steel, by a special process. These grinders are directly connected on to the motor shaft, the same as their mill has always been made, but this new hardening process prolongs the life of the grinders for years.

NO TAX IN QUEBEC.

In answer to an inquiry from one of our subscribers, The Grocer desires to state that there is no tax placed on commercial travelers in the Province of Quebec, except those representing liquor houses.

PERSONAL NOTES.

Geo. O'Neill, of J. Bruce Payne, of Granby, Que., cigar manufacturers, was calling on the trade in Toronto during the week.

Geo. H. Campbell, manager of Red Rose Tea, Toronto, has entirely recovered from his recent illness and this week is on a trip through eastern Ontario.

F. C. Maciver, the representative north of Gravenhurst and west to Port Arthur for White Swan Spices and Cereals, Limited, was among the visitors at the Toronto office of The Grocer on Monday.

Eby-Blain, Limited, have notified Thos. Kinnear, president of the Ontario Wholesale Grocers' Exchange, that they are withdrawing from that body.

QUEBEC MARKETS

POINTERS—

Maple Products — Unchanged, weak undertone.

Molasses—Steady.

Beans—Firm.

Rice and Tapioca—Market dull.

Montreal, April 22, 1909.

Travelers returning from the country state that the condition of the roads is frightful. This undoubtedly is responsible for the slackness of business in wholesale circles, which is very marked. This condition, however, has not produced any pessimistic feeling, as it is regarded as only a temporary condition. The opening of navigation, and the commencement of the dairying season, it is thought, will produce a good effect on business in general. The flour market has been the chief topic of conversation among business men during the week. There is a feeling expressed in some quarters that the prevailing high prices will not be maintained long as it is felt the condition is too artifical to be enduring. Other lines of groceries have been wonderfully quiet during the week in fact, decidedly dull, and there have been no changes worth mentoning. City collections are reported to be fair, but country paper is being met slowly.

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES — Barbadoes is selling well, but supplies are not yet coming forward freely. The price has been fully maintained and is firm at the figures last quoted. Syrups are more active this week. One dealer stated that this was a reflection of the maple syrup market as people who could not afford the latter thought they must have syrup of some kind. Prices are unchanged.

EVAPORATED APPLES — There is a small demand for evaporated apples, but stocks are very low. One dealer stated that they were entirely cleaned out. The price has not altered but undertone of the market is strong.

CANNED GOODS

MONTREAL—The demand for canned fish is very dull. Canned fruits are moving freely, also vegetables. Canned meats are meeting with only a fair sale. Pork and beans are also declining in demand.

TORONTO—Fruits are reported rather quiet this week with no changes in price. The decreasing of the housewife's stock of preserves is, of course, causing a fair demand, gallon apples being among the best sellers. Great Britain imports a considerable quantity of cour canned apples and the prices are regulated by that market. They are now firm over there and at home as well. Stocks are being reduced considerably.

There is no doubt a large stock of tomatoes yet in existence, but how much is difficult to say. Tomatoes of course have been and are moving quite freely.

In connection with the shortage in the canned peas market a local broker states that their absence does not switch a demand for any other vegetable. When people want canned peas they want them and nothing else, so that their consumption from year to year remains pretty much the same.

New lobsters are being offered just now. Salman is in fairly good demand, particularly for the choice goods.

ONTARIO MARKETS

POINTERS—
Sugar—Easier.
Coffee—Good demand.
Valencia Raisins—Selling well.
Beans—Scarcity reported.
Currants—Primary market firmer.

Toronto, April 22, 1909.

Few features in the grocery markets this week are to be recorded. There have been practically no changes in price and the trade from the wholesaler's point of view has been fair. The present seems to be a sort of "between seasons," there being no special occasion or event to aid in gingering up business. Collections are fair, but above this there is the general feeling that brighter times lie in the no-distant future.

No change has occurred in Ontario during the week in the sugar market. In the United States two large refiners have reduced their prices 10c per cwt., but this was merely to arrange themselves on an even footing with the others, whose prices had not been up to the top notch. There is nothing just now to justify any immediate change in prices. The tariff on beet sugar coming into the country is endorsed for another term.

Dried fruits are good sellers and an extra good demand is reported for Valencia raisins, which is inexplainable. The demand nevertheless exists.

In speaking of the coffee market one wholesale house referred to the splendid market existing for coffee in the northern silver districts. During the week they had sold over a ton to go north.

Beans are firm in price, the cause being attributed to the low stocks in the hands of farmers.

SUGAR—There is a somewhat easier tone to the sugar market this week but no change in refined prices. In fact, it is difficult to forecast what the next change will be. During the past week the Federal and Warner refiners of the United States reduced their prices 10c per cwt., but they had previously been quoting at a premium of 10c over the rest of the list. They simply reduced their prices to make them uniform with the others. Locally there is no change, the demand being of the "hand-to-mouth" variety, and there is nothing to indicate either a decline or advance in the near future. While there may be a reduction in the nearby raws the prices for distant sugars are likely to be firmly maintained. May shipment from Cuba is quoted at 1-32c over April, the probable reason given being on account of heavy rains, causing the sugar-making campaign to come to an end sooner than anticipated. A local broker states that any weakness in nearby sugars would most likely be on account of the inability of holdes to carry them and to the fact that recent heavy deliveries to refiners make them naturally independent to offerings for the time being. The European market which receded from the recent prices, has since recovered.

MOLASSES AND SYRUPS—Just at this season of the year the market in molasses and syrups is quiet, the latter being particularly so. There is some syrup in tins selling, but little bulk. No changes in prices have occurred since a week ago.

TEA AND COFFEE—At the present time the tea market is quiet. The demand locally is not of the best, but the the coffee trade it is different. There is a good demand, according to a local firm, it having sold a ton of coffee for the Cobalt district during the week. That includes to a great extent the cheaper grades.

DRIED FRUITS—One of the features of this market is the big demand for Valencia raisins. Stocks of wholesalers are getting low and demands are made on the brokers. No person seems to be able to account for this, it being better than at any time during the past year. Prunes, currants, peaches and apricots are also selling well, but the dried apple season is practically over. Currant prices are a little firmer in the primary markets, but no changes are reported here.

MANITOBA MARKETS

Winnipeg, April 17.—Friday, April 16, introduced a new feature into the spectacular wheat market. The abnormal prices broke and dropped 5c. Never before in the history of the Winnipeg exchange was there such a swift decline, and never before in so short a period did the re-action come so swiftly when apparently everything indicated strong markets. A grain man, speaking of the situation this morning stated that while the drop was considerable, yet in most instances recovery was quite possible, especially when the prices present a firm aspect to-day, Speaking as to the cause of the break he stated that the rumor of Patten selling May wheat had made many local men nervous and when a number of holdings were placed on the market the onslaught came with a rush.

On the evening of April 16, the master bakers met at the Fleischmann yeast warehouse to discuss the price of bread. There was a representative gathering, twenty-five bakers being present. The question of raising the price of bread was debated at considerable length. In the end it was decided to raise the price of loaves from four to five cents to the wholesale trade, and from five to six cents to the retailer. The new prices will go into effect to-day. The bakers were of the opinion that the present advances should have taken place many months ago owing to the state of the wheat and flour markets. They claim that even with the rise of one cent a loaf the price of bread in Winnipeg is still away below the price in many cities of Canada and the States. They state further that if the price of flour does not ease off in the near future another rise in the price of bread may prove inevitable.

The volume of business done for two or three days during the Easter rush was very great in comparison to what the trade has been for several weeks. Some features were rather disappointing, however. It was expected that eggs and meats would be the heaviest selling goods, but the demand ran largely in the line of fresh fruits and vegetables. Several stores were sold out completely and many jobbing houses were drained. Of course, the business generally was active in all lines, but it was certainly a surprise that eggs did not move better. Many stores have large baskets filled with last week's eggs, and although the price has not yet been reduced to any extent, they will be much cheaper very soon.

One grocer remarked that his Easter trade on the whole was greater than his last Christmas trade, and that he felt guilty in making too large demands upon his clerks, as he was compelled to do on Saturday last.

A feature of the week is the strong cereal market. We also quote advances in foreign dried fruits.

SUGAR—It would not be a surprise if some declines were made in sugars. The B.C. Refinery are increasing their warehouse stock in different parts of the country, and are selling some brands at a reduced price. No reductions can be quoted, but a general decline may come soon.

SYRUP AND MOLASSES—Syrup is the bachelor's reliable, and it is moving freely at present. Seeding time makes some strenuous demands on the farmer, and he often makes his noon-day meal of bread and syrup.

Molasses is only selling moderately. We quote last week's prices.

MAPLE PRODUCTS—The cold weather in eastern Canada has delayed the incoming of these goods. Little of the strictly new has come in yet, but yesterday it was rumored a large shipment left Montreal for Winnipeg. There has been poor sale for what has come in and it may be that a decline will take place when new products arrive.

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS — There has been a very heavy movement in dried fruits for some time past, with every indication that this demand will continue, in which event there must be a marking up of prices on practically the whole line. Nearly all varieties are now down below cost of production, and as the time of the largest consumption is at hand, it is expected that retailers will buy good sized quantities. In California the supply of apricots and prunes is small. There is a fair stock of peaches, but prices are so low and the demand so good that firmer quotations are looked for. We quote a few slight advances over last week.

EGGS—Yesterday and to-day eggs are jobbing from 17½c to 18c per dozen. A car lot was shipped this morning to the coast and the market is consequently a little bare. A drop will come next week as a certainty. The Easter eggs went quite uniformly at 19c.

BUTTER—The No. 2 variety is going out freely now at 12c ped pound; a car-lot was shipped to-day for that price. Locally it is jobbing at the same figure. The choice dairy is quoted at from 17c to 18½c per pound. The poor stuff is almost cleaned off now and prices generally will go up soon until grass butter comes in. Creamery is firm at 25c to-day.

THE FLOUR WAS BLAMED.

"I want to complain about the flour you sent me the other day," said Mrs. Newliwed, severely. The grocer assumed an anxious expression and inquired what was the matter with it.

"It was tough," replied the housekeeper, accusingly. "My husband simply could not eat the biscuits I made with it"—From the Philadelphia Ledger.

A Stairway Window from Cartons and Bottles

A Display Idea That Can be Easily and Effectively Used by Grocers and Clerks—The Construction Simple — Show and Price Cards Would be Valuable Additions To Assist the Salesman.

Many grocers and clerks expressed their pleasure with the "lighthouse window" which appeared in last week's issue of the Grocer and it has formed the nucleus for several windows throughout Canada. This week is presented a stairway window which can be used to advantage in displaying package and bottle goods. It is a window that leaves an impression with the passerby and should produce better results than if the goods were placed in a promiscuous manner not conveying any particular idea.

Almost any kind of a grocery window will be suitable for a stairway display. Like the lighthouse it is simple and easily constructed. The framework may first be made of small wooden boxes placed in circular tiers. The cartons could then be arranged on the frame so as to form three stairways—one in the centre and the others on either side—leading to the top.

As shown by the accompanying illustration a low column is erected at the top and a post erected at the bottom of each of the four bannisters. The construction of the cartons in their proper places is of course a simple matter to the clerk or grocer who has any idea of carpentering. On the bannisters and posts are glass jars and bottles which may also be placed on the floor at the foot. Of course any other goods might be arranged artistically in place of the bottles.

A couple of showcards in the window calling attention in brief, spicy talks to the superiority of the goods and their prices would be valuable assistants to selling. Show-cards are coming more and more into use and are found valuable. A good spot for cards in the stairway window is on the front surface of the column at the head of the stairway.

For relief, the rear of the window on either side the centre column, is dressed with cartons arranged in a circular form.

One of the important requisites in the dressing of the window is the keeping of it free from dust and dirt. The glass should be glistening and the goods clean and frequently changed.

WANTS AN ASSOCIATION.

Hamilton Grocer Gives His Reasons for an Ontario Grocers' Association.

Editor The Canadian Grocer :—In last week's issue of your paper I was pleased to see the article from the London grocer advocating the formation of a Provincial Retail Grocers' Association, and I believe the time will not be long before one is organized. In his letter the London grocer presents some reasons why we should all be united in a common association, and points out the successes of many of the one-line associations.

But I think the greatest reason why we should have an association of our own is on account of the predominance in number of the grocers over any other single line of trade. If I remember rightly The Canadian Grocer took up this question some two or three years ago and pointed out that at the convention in Hamilton of the Grocers' Section of the Retail Merchants' Association of Canada only about a score of grocers attended. This in the face of the fact that grocers comprised about 80 p.c. of the total membership list furnishes us something to think about and I believe the only way to create an interest in our work is to form a provincial organization. Some good work no doubt has been accomplished by the Retail Merchants' Association in the matter of legislation, but it does not promote a great many other interests the way it should.

We want a grocers' association that will look after the betterment of the conditions from the inside—one that will leave its influence from personal association. There has always been, it seems to me, too much petty jealousy among the grocers of every town or city and it is only within the past few years that this is being eliminated. An association would tend to promote a spirit of brotherly love among men who have hitherto concentrated all their energies upon self. It would raise the standard of trade ethics and present the opportunity of bettering the methods in the grocery store.

The grocer should be more interested in his own trade than in any other and I think that the sooner we get together the better it will be for the trade.

I would like very much to hear the opinions of others on this important subject.

CHANGE IN COMPANY.

H. D. Desloges has entered the Montreal firm of the Dominion Wafer Company, 44 St. Vincent Street, and will in future look after the sales end of the concern. Mr. Desloges will be associated with P. Auclair, the founder of the enterprise, which is rather unique in Canada. The company, which was established three years ago, has worked up quite a trade in the specialties handled. The goods are wafers, which are used by the hundred thousand every summer for containing ice cream. They are made up in all sorts of fancy shapes such as coronets and thin slices for making ice cream sandwiches. The Dominion Wafer Company make the goods themselves, and, besides. import from the largest factories throughout the world. The specialties have taken quite a hold upon the trade, being novel and quick sellers.

TO CULTIVATE CASSAVA.

From a despatch from Washington, D.C., a movement is on foot in Jamaica to experiment in the growing of cassava. It is proposed by the men behind the movement to have the cassava rival the banana and in order to do this to plant nearly the whole of three parishes on the south side of the island and to erect factories for the manufacture of cassava, starch and cattle feed. The capital of the company runs into millions.

Cassava, or cassado, according to the dictionary, is the roots of the manihot and other plants made into a kind of bread, which are sometimes roasted and eaten like potatoes. They yield also a great quantity of starch, exported from Brazil in small lumps as tapioca.

In this case it is not likely the cassava will rival the banana only as a food in the country in which it is produced.

London Grocers Discuss Provincial Organization

Executive to Take up the Question—Annual Meeting Held Last Week—E. J. Ryan Succeeds Thos. Shaw as President—Wednesday Half Holiday to be Again Adopted—Advance in Flour and Potatoes.

London, April 21.—The annual meeting of the Retail Grocers' Association held last week was well attended, those present including: R. J. Donaghy, J. A. McFarlane, H. Marshall, J. M. Duncan, E. Charlton, Geo. Tupholme, E, B. Hargreaves, Harry Ranahan, J. H. Wilkey, E. F. Reed, J. Dobbin, C. W. Summers, T. W. Vincent, Fred H. Traver, W. A. Young, M. Fowler, M. Geach, R. A. Ross, James Jupp, Wm. O'Loughlin, W. T. Mullins, Wm. Hayes, O. Boug, A. W. Rennie, J. J. Haskett, N. McLeod, sen., John Diprose, W. E. Humphries, A. R. Boug, Jas. McLeod, F. W. Paull, E. J. Ryan, Thomas Shaw, Cyril Hayes.

The most important item of business was the election of officers. E. J. Ryan, who ever since the organization of the association has made a most efficient treasurer, was unanimously chosen president. Mr. Ryan is one of the enthusiastic members of the association, and to him is due probably more than any other man, its success. The entire list of officers is:

President—E. J. Ryan.
First Vice-president—N. McLeod, Sr.
Second Vice-president—Jas. Haskett.
Treasurer—Harry Ranahan.
Secretary—Cyril Hayes.

E. J. RYAN,

The New President of the London Retail Grocers' Association.

Executive Committee—Thomas Shaw, C. W. Summers, R. J. Donaghy, Fred Travers, E. Reid and F. W. Paull.

The question of the organization of a provincial association was brought up. Both the Toronto and Hamilton grocers are in favor of such a step, but being not so well organized as the trade here, they have asked the London Association to take the initiative.

The matter was the subject of brief discussion.

Ex-President Ranahan spoke strongly in favor of the project. London, he said, should take the initiative. With such organization, he thought that the retailers could have brought the wholesalers to time when they took away discounts recently.

CYRIL HAYES,

Re-elected Secretary of the Association for the Coming Year.

R. J. Donaghy spoke along similar lines as at the recent banquet, and said London should get in with Toronto, Hamilton and other cities. He also spoke of the benefits derived from such organization in some of the states of the American Union, and could see no reason why it could not be of equal advantage here.

John Diprose was also in favor of provincial organization, but feared the question of funds might prove an obstacle.

President Ryan, while fully admitting the value of such organization, said that unless all the cities joined in it the matter of finance would be difficult to deal with. A good man would be needed in the first place, as organizer, and we would have to pay him a good salary. Then, eventually, it would be necessary to employ a solicitor to watch legislation at Ottawa in order that the interests of the trade might be fully protected.

The meeting seemed to be unanimous as to the benefits to be derived from provincial organization, and finally the question was referred to the executive to report at the next meeting.

Holiday Question Settled.

The question of closing on Wednesday afternoons during the months of June, July and August came up, and it was unanimously decided to have a half holiday on Wednesday afternoons during the months mentioned. Several of the members wanted the half holiday to last from May to September, but this did not find favor. One member only favored making July and August the only holiday months.

The meeting resolved to raise the prices of flour and potatoes. In future bags of flour that have been selling for 40 cents will sell at 45 cents, and the 80-cent bags will now be 85 cents. This, it is pointed out, is a necessity, as the prices of wheat have advanced three times recently. Potatoes will advance in price 3 cents a peck or 5 cents a half-bushel. They have been selling at 15 cents a peck or 30 cents a half-bushel, but in future will sell at 18 cents a peck or 35 cents a half-bushel. This advance has been made because the price of potatoes is advancing rapidly as a result of 100 cars a day being sent to the United States.

Owing to the amount of routine business that had to be discussed it was decided to leave the question of the annual excursion over until the next meeting.

A resolution was unanimously adopted expressing hearty endorsation of the sentiments contained in an editorial in The Canadian Grocer of April 2, headed, "Mr. Trowern and The Grocer," and the secretary was instructed to write the editor accordingly.

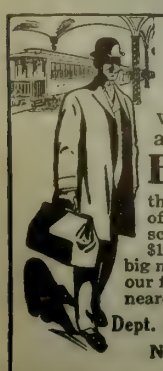
WHOLESALER AND RETAILER.

The Jobber Desirous of Protecting the Legitimate Retailer, He Says.

At the banquet of the New York Retail Grocers' Association held during the past week, more than 400 grocers were in attendance. Among the speakers was Geo. Gennerich, vice-president of the New York Wholesale Grocers' Association, who in the course of his remarks on the "Wholesaler and Retailer," said:



"It has been ever the most earnest and sincere desire of every honest jobber to protect the legitimate retailer against the tremendous onslaught of unfair competition from the department stores and large chain stores to the detriment of the honest and legitimate retailer.

"We, as wholesale grocers, do not mean to be understood that we intend to force the manufacturer to distribute his goods in accordance with our ideas; it is up to him to select the channel through which he wishes to do his business, but we are happy, nevertheless, to see that he, the manufacturer, is beginning to recognize the manner of distribution which is bound to prove honest and equal to every retailer. To the furtherance of this we, the jobbers, ask the most hearty co-operation of all retailers.

"On April 6 and 7 a joint conference of the executive committee of the National Wholesale Grocers and the executive national committee of the Retail Grocers was held at the Waldorf-Astoria. At that meeting was present the entire national executive committee of Retail Grocers. including C. J. Kramer, president, of Arkansas. A number of matters of interest and benefit to the grocery trade were taken up and the pure food law in all its branches was very much encouraged by both the wholesaler and retailer, as every good merchant feels that such a law is essential for the betterment of general conditions. It eliminates a great many of former existing evils which deteriorate the standard of both the wholesale and retail grocer."

Produce and Provision Situation of the World

The Farmer After Top-Notch Price for Hogs—Egg Receipts Increasing—English Butter Market in Peculiar Condition—Stocks of Cheese Low.

A Canadian daily newspaper in a recent issue contains a letter from "a subscriber," presumably a farmer, who complains that the papers have not been quoting the prices of hogs correctly. He thinks they are favoring the buyers, by not quoting the highest prices that are paid. He claims that as high as $7.35 is paid for live hogs at country points. This, however, has not been paid by Toronto packers but all are complaining that there are not enough hogs in the country to keep the packing houses going, and in order to do this, they are outbidding each other until they have no margin for themselves. "A subscriber" however claims that the one who is paying $7.35 is not paying any more than they are worth. No doubt his idea of the value of an article is what you can get for it, and while the packers are figuring on how to keep their men employed and to meet expenses, the farmer is having a good time.

The receipts of eggs are daily increasing, but any surplus which is not required for immediate use, is easily taken care of by putting them down for next winter's supply.

Reports arriving from England, state that the English butter market is in a peculiar state. Things are decidedly pessimistic and what is most peculiar about the whole situation is the fact that there seems to be no reason for this. In spite of the fact, that stocks are very low, prices have been reduced, and all around, people are showing a wonderful preference for milk blended butter, and margarine is also popular. All sorts of tactics are being adopted by the men pushing the sales of these lines. Overweight and other such like attractions are freely advertised to catch the public. There is nothing extraordinary in the receipts from foreign parts and the home output is yet very small owing to the backwardness of the season. Values have gone down in varying degrees, but Australian, next to Danish, has suffered the most severely, notwithstanding the fact that supplies from both these countries are arriving in greatly lessened quantities. Canadian and Siberian, have also suffered considerably.

Stocks of cheese, in the old country have run very low. It is estimated that the stock in London docks, is not more than 44,000 boxes, and as the new make is a long way ahead yet there is ample time, for the ordinary demand, to swallow the visible supply, before any more makes its appearance. New Zealand has had a fair sale and tends to pacify the market for Canadian a trifle, but it is only a trifle, as holders do not fear any declension in prices with the small arrivals from the Antipodes.

MONTREAL.

PROVISIONS—The supplies of live hogs arriving is fairly large but demand for them is good, as packers and dealers stocks have been reduced to a low point, consequently the undertone to the market is strong. A stronger feeling also developed in the market for dressed stock, and prices have advanced from twenty-five to fifty cents per 100 lbs. with a good demand for abattoir fresh.

Twenty-four Years a Grocer in an Ontario Town

Success Follows Efforts of Geo. La Motte, of Strathroy — A Window-Dresser Who Understands His Business—No Barrels and Boxes on the Floor of His Store — High-Grade Crockery and China Profitable—Strict Attention to Detail.

An experienced grocery traveler, a man calling constantly on stores large and small, told the writer he never entered the store of Geo. La Motte, of Strathroy, without being impressed by its neatness and cleanliness. It is the principal grocery store he stated in a thriving town of 3,500 people. The barrels and boxes that encumber the floor space of so many groceries are not in evidence.

"Where does he put them?" was asked of the traveler.

"I don't know, but they're not there" was the reply.

Mr. La Motte is a grocer who has made a specialty of high grade crockery. He has two fine windows, one of which he reserves for crockery and he makes some fine displays.

Speaking of windows, Mr. La Motte is just as particular about them as about his store. He has the artistic ability to conceive an attractive window and he has the industry to work it out according to his plan. He is one of those men who would sit up nights to have things as he thinks they ought to be.

Mr. La Motte has been twenty-four years in business in Strathroy and is just in the prime of his business activity. He has two stores and employs four clerks. His capacity for detail and his attention to system enables him to do a large business with a comparatively small staff.

The taste and carefulness that characterizes the store extends to the delivery system and there is nothing nattier on the streets of Strathroy than Mr. La Motte's waggon.

The illustration herewith shows the grocery side of the store. Mr. La Motte is behind the counter. It is encouraging to find a grocer who is enthusiastically particular. Such a man lights the pathway of progress in the handling of food stuffs. As a grocer the practice of cleanliness and neatness is to be accounted to him for righteousness.

THE BLEACHING OF FLOUR.

In connection with the bleaching of flour, Special Agent Davis in Europe has written the Bureau of Manufactures of the United States as follows:

"I am now in position to state that there is no law in France, Germany, or Great Britain prohibiting or regulating the bleaching of flour by chemical or electrical process. As in the United States, some millers in all the countries named oppose bleaching, or find no need for it, while others employ it.

"Recently the Alsop Company (electrical process) was sued by the Andrews Company (chemical process) before the Lille (France) tribunal. The case went to the court of appeals, which has rendered its decision incidentally affirming that the bleaching of flour was an improvement, and that it was not injurious to public health."

Armand Chaput, of L. Chaput, Fils & Cie., Montreal, was in Quebec this week with a delegation which was looking after liquor interests during the time the amendment of the liquor license law was under discussion in the Legislature.

GILLETT'S PERFUMED LYE

CAUTION.

Put a strong glass on the label and examine it closely every time. Always look for the name "Gillett's."

Like all good articles, which are extensively advertised, Gillett's Lye is frequently and very closely imitated. In some instances the imitators have actually copied directions and other printed matter from our label word for word. Be wise, and refuse to purchase imitation articles for they are never satisfactory.

Insist On Getting Gillett's Lye

and decline to accept anything that looks to be an imitation or that is represented to be "just as good" or "better," or "the same thing." In our experience of over fifty years in business we have never known of an imitation article that has been a success, for imitators are not reliable people. At the best the "just as good" kinds are only trashy imitations, so decline them with thanks every time.

The Grocer's Encyclopedia From Week to Week

Sago is Manufactured From the Pith of Barious Kinds of Trees —Produced Extensively in India and Singapore — Laundry Starch Sometimes Made From It—Inferior to Rice for Building up the Body, But is Easily Digested.

SAGO.—This is obtained from India, China, Borneo, Sumatra, Singapore, etc., from the mealy trunk-pith of various kinds of low trees, such as sagus rumphii and S'loene, which are cultivated in the island of Ceram, and at Sarawak, in Borneo. Immense quantities are prepared by the Malays in the Malacca and Phillipine Islands, also in New Guinea.

In India, it is obtained from Phoenix farinifera. The ordinary sago palm grows twenty to thirty feet high, but only flowers once and that when about fifteen years old, after which it soon dies.

The Manufacture of Sago.

When fully matured, and just ready to flower, the tree is felled, the hollow trunk eighteen to twenty-two inches in diameter, is split or sawn, into pieces, and all the soft white and spongy pith found inside is scraped out. This pith is then bruised in a mortar to a coarse powder like sawdust, washed in cold water and strained in a cloth until all the white fecula or starchy matter separates and settles to the bottom of the tank, leaving the water almost clear, but with the woody fibre floating on the top, This water, and the fibry refuse, are then removed and the starchy sediment may either be caked right off for native use as bread, or dried and pounded up into "sago flour," or meal.

Made Into Laundry Starch.

This meal is very cheap, the yield being 300 to 1,200 lbs. a tree, and some of the widely advertised laundry starches are made up wholly from it, as it yields a transparent paste. It has quite superseded potato starch as a glaze.

The sago bread used by the inhabitants of the Malaccas is made by simply throwing caked lumps of sago meal into heated earthenware molds, where it soon bakes in a hard mass, and one pound of it suffices as the daily diet of a native, when engaged in hard bodily work.

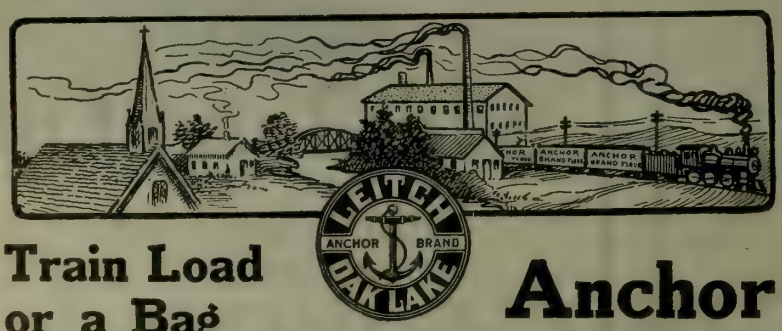
But a large quantity of the starchy sediment above referred to, after being dried, assumes a granulated form by the addition of water and pressing it through a colander, and it is thus converted, partly into small pearly grains called pearl sago, and partly into larger and browner grains, known as brown sago. These brown grains are often bleached to improve their appearance.

The Industry in India.

The sago industry is carried on chiefly in India and at Singapore, where some forty million pounds are made yearly by Chinese manufacturers. Purified or washed sago starch is made chiefly in Malacca.

The annual import of sago into England is about 35 million pounds, and London is the chief market. Inferior kinds of sago are derived from the Gomuti palm of the Malay Archipelago, bastard sago or kitool, from the kitool palm of Ceylon, the cabbage palm from Ceylon, and other varieties from South America. Japan sago is a kind obtained from four different species of cycas. Portland sago, sometimes called "Portland arrowroot," is a kind which used to be made in the Island of Portland, England, from the tubers of the wake robin, but this manufacture died out several years ago. German sago—a good deal of so-called sago—used to be made in Germany from potato flour and colored yellowish with oxide of iron, or burnt sugar, but not so much now, since potato flour has gone up in price.

Wild sago is a kind produced in Florida and the West Indies, from the stems of the zamida pumila.



Less Nutritive Than Rice.

Sago is considered inferior to rice in its nutritive qualities, and consists almost exclusively of starch, but is very easily digested and hence of great value to invalids and children. It possesses very little flavor of itself, but is generally used with other suitable adjuncts. It reaches England chiefly via Singapore.

The best quality has a slightly reddish hue, and readily dissolves into a jelly with hot water. Sago is often meanly colored red by certain confectioners, and acidified, to represent fruit jam in cheap tarts for the poorest children in the most crowded neighborhoods of larger towns and cities.

Some Grocers Fined.

Granulated sago often comes into commerce as tapioca sago, which is of reddish color and contains soluble starch; also as granulated sago, which does not yield a paste. On the other hand, many grocers have been fined for serving granulated or seed tapioca, when small white tapioca has been asked for. It should be easy to remember that sago is always brown, and that the small white seed-like pearls are really tapioca.

News of the Flour, Feed and Cereal Markets

Another Advance in Flour Prices—Millers Say Top Price has Now Been Reached—Price of Feed Goes up and Also Rolled Wheat—Export Demand for Canadian Flour—Newfoundland a Good Market.

April 20.—The talk of the commercial week in Canada has been the unsettled conditions of the wheat market, the advance in the price of flour and the probable advance in bread. In last week's issue of The Grocer a raise in flour prices was announced and yesterday another advance took place of from ten to twenty cents per barrel. Flour is now from between 30 to 40 cents higher than it was at the beginning of the year.

The excitement seems now to have quieted somewhat, wheat during the past few days having declined over four cents. Whether there will be another advance or a decline in flour in the near future is only a speculation. One miller stated to The Grocer to-day that he considered the top notch was reached. The turn had been passed and he looked for easier prices.

There is little local demand for flour although export is good, several inquiries having been received during the week. Newfoundland is a good market for Ontario flour and with the moving of the boats from Montreal next week there will be a large quantity leave for its shores.

The bleaching of flour is done to some extent in Canada for the purpose of giving it the proper color. Time will work out this change but sometimes it is desired more rapidly and the bleaching process is used. It is not an adulteration and is not against the law in Canada, but nevertheless the people who use flour do not like it.

An advance in rolled wheat was made last week in view of the high price of wheat.

MONTREAL.

FLOUR—The market seems to have settled down temporarily, but has left the big millers far apart, so far as prices are concerned. This action of the market, has been the result of the upward movement of the wheat markets, and the fancy prices that the European buyers are offering.

TORONTO.

FLOUR—On the Toronto market flour took another advance on Monday of this week. What the next move will be is a conjecture. Some millers think the summit has been reached and that no further advances will occur. Wheat is somewhat easier than it was at any rate. The demand locally is only fair as dealers will not purchase extensively in such an unsettled market. The millers are not buying very much wheat either.

OATS FROM ARGENTINA.

New York, April 20.—A cargo of oats from Argentina is being unloaded in this port.

It is certainly curious that the importers can bring oats eight thousand miles and pay a duty of fifteen cents a bushel to be sold in this market.

In the calendar year 1906 we exported oats to the value of more than $9,000,000, but the following year our exports dropped below one million and in the last calendar year to little more than half a million. And now we are importing them.

Heretofore small quantities of grains have been imported across the border from Canada, but importation of seaborne grain is a novelty. Oats are selling in this market at 56½ cents a bushel, which is only two or three cents higher than a year ago.

With the displacing of horses by mechanical power it might be thought that consumption of oats would dwindle to meet our decreased production. Can it be that increased use of "breakfast foods" is responsible for this Argentine invasion?

The Court of Last Resort

SEEMS simple, this: "When is flour really sold?" Off-hand, many manufacturers might say, when invoice is receipted. Our views are that FIVE ROSES is not really sold until actually used by the consumer. As long as a brand is on the shelves of the retailer, it is an effective bar to further purchases. A consumer, therefore, is not a consumer until the last purchase is used up.

¶ If all expectations are fulfilled, the mere fact that her culinary efforts are successful and duly appreciated by the pastry fiends at home is sufficient incentive to the busy housewife to covet fresh triumphs—which means a larger consumption of your flour as well as such other goods as are required to fill her recipes, such as baking powders, butter, eggs, salt, yeast, cinnamon. In short, everything the cookbook prescribes.

¶ Just here lies the truest test of quality, whether your flour is good or mediocre. The court of last resort is the housewife's hungry family, and keen judges they are where their own palates are concerned—it's through the palate that you capture the purse.

¶ If the flour be faultful, besides making the customer discontented with her dealer and herself, it makes her flour last longer. The dealer not only loses the "repeat" order, but also the otherwise increased consumption of other goods. Don't you agree now that "near-good" flour is an awful profit thief?

¶ If you want to hasten the customer's return and make it inevitable. let's talk FIVE ROSES together. If your trade is as good as our flour, why not make a perfect combination?

TORONTO.

GREEN FRUITS—Owing to the very high price of apples, which is beyond the reach of the general public, sales are very slow, and those who have them are looking for buyers. With the slow sale, and the waste, even if they are retailed at from 50 to 75 cents a peck, they will not leave any profit. As was expected after the delay caused in picking on account of the continuous rains in the south, oranges are now coming in with a rush and are easier with a decline of about 25c a case.

Pineapples are more plentiful, and as the season is just opening, larger shipments are expected and prices will be lower. Strawberries are still arriving in boxes, with the bottoms so fixed that it won't take so long for the pickers to fill them. It, of course, makes no difference to the consumer, for he only pays for what he gets.

VEGETABLES—The vegetable market is very much the same as last week with the exception of tomatoes and cabbages. The heavy and continuous rain has damaged the tomato crop in Florida to the extent of about 35 to 40 per cent., which will cause a sharp advance in the price here. In some districts they are almost entirely destroyed. Cabbage is very scarce, with very little on the market. The sharp demand for potatoes last week, which caused some stir in our market, has again disappeared. Uncle Sam thinks he can do without our potatoes for a while. New potatoes are about $2 a barrel cheaper.

FISH—While the fish business is not very active it is all the dealers expect, just at this time. There is still frozen stock on hand which helps to meet the requirements, when fresh caught stock is not sufficient. Seeing several large boxes of small fish in one jobber's store, The Grocer exposed his ignorance by asking what kind they were, "They are perch," was the reply. "Well, where do they come from?" "From down east," he said. "Down east is a large country," persisted The Grocer. "They are not caught in the country at all, they are caught in the water," and the questions ceased.

TO KEEP POTATOES.

Consul-General Richard Guenther, of Frankfort, reports that a German publication, the "Practical Adviser in Fruit Raising and Gardening," states that a new method for keeping potatoes and preventing sprouting consists in placing them on a layer of coke. Doctor Schiller, of Brunswick, who has published the method, is of the opinion that the improved ventilation by means of coke is not alone responsible for the result, but believes that it is due to the oxidation of the coke, which, however, is a very slow one. Coke always contains sulphur, and it is very possible that the minute quantities of oxides of carbon and sulphur, which result from the oxidation, mixing with the air and penetrating among the potatoes are sufficient to greatly retard sprouting. Potatoes so treated are said to keep in good condition until the following July.

Cannibalistic Qualities of the Lobster Fish

They Prey on Each Other and Produce Death by Piercing the Shell—Fed Upon by Other Fish in Their Younger Days—Do Not Always Travel Forwards—The Licensing of Lobster Canneries and Fishermen Discussed.

In the investigation into the lobster fishing industry carried on by the Select Standing Committee on Marine and Fisheries at Ottawa some interesting additional information on this peculiar deep-water creature was brought to light. The government of Canada is going thoroughly into the existing conditions with a view of promoting the industry to as great an extent as possible. H. E. Baker, who for 26 years was engaged in the fish canning business in Cape Breton, was the witness at the last session of the Committee, of which a report has been published.

One of the statements, startling from a commercial point of view, made by Mr. Baker was that the young lobsters are cannibalistic in their habits and they even destroy one another. This combined with the fact that when they are first hatched they immediately become swimmers and dart forward through the water head first and continue in that way until about four moulting—that is until after they shed four coverings. This becomes really the critical parts of the lives of the lobsters because at this stage they are liable during the period of moult to all kinds of germs in the water as well as parasites and the food problem becomes a difficult one with them.

Devour One Another.

There is a sensitive little sac or shell on the back of the lobster and one young lobster will jump on the back of another and pierce the sac resulting in instant death. Mr. Baker had seen one young lobster eat another and made the statement that the mortality was recognized to be so heavy that not more than two per cent. survive during this critical portion of existence.

After the lobster becomes shaped—that will happen in about two or three months—it becomes a scavenger on the bottom of the sea and then it begins to crawl backwards. Among the fish that prey on the lobster are the cod, sculpins and eels. Crabs have been seen in the pound but they could not interfere with the young lobsters on account of the latter's tendency to dart through the water while the crabs are bottom scavengers.

The License Limit.

The question of determining the restriction to the number of canning licenses was an important issue discussed. Mr. Baker was in favor of a limit as he thought that if everybody were allowed to can lobsters it would only be a question of a very short time before the market would be glutted by inferior lobsters that would give the whole industry a black eye, as it were, on account of the poor qualities.

There were now as many canners around the Nova Scotian coast as are necessary. For instance no cannery is overburdened with lobsters, and every cannery has a certain fixed expenditure. Take for instance, that cannery has a fixed expenditure of $1,000, say. That cannery under existing conditions packs a thousand cases; therefore the fixed expenditure per case is $1. Let somebody else come in and locate right alongside that cannery, taking 50 per cent. of that catch, that cannery still has a fixed expenditure of $1,000, but it is only able to pack 500 cases so that instead of being under a fixed expenditure of $1 per case, the fixed charges amount to $2 per case, just doubling what it was formerly.

Mr. Baker thought there was no danger of any monopoly coming about by reason of the restrictions, because he did not know of any district in Nova Scotia in which competition was not carried on to such an extent as to prevent it. He did not believe the lobster industry in Nova Scotia last year benefited the lobster packers 3 per cent. He thought this was a question which should be looked into. There has been a feeling along the coast among fishermen that the lobster packers are growing rich out of the lobster business. He ventured to say that last year the business did not return the packers 3 per cent. He knew of some instances where a great many thousands of dollars loss was incurred; the prices became exceedingly high in consequence of reckless competition and the result of that was that no packer knew how many lobsters he was going to get because of that competition, and there was demoralization of the whole industry. Uniformity in size would be another benefit if there were limits to the number of canners.

Last year the live lobster business was not remunerative, said Mr. Baker. It was very precarious always and last year owing to the adoption of a 9-inch limit in the State of Massachusetts, which he considered was a bid for cheap lobsters in Nova Scotia, the American market was glutted all the time by the 9-inch lobsters coming into the United States so that, in May the price of lobsters dropped to $7 and $8 per crate; the dealers took advantage of the situation.

The Law Broken.

The present limit to the size of the lobster is eight inches but it was estimated there are 40 per cent. caugfit which are undersized and therefore against the provisions of the law. It is difficult to enforce the law against the fishermen and it may be found necessary to enforce it against the canners as was suggested by Hon. Mr. Brodeur.

Mr. Baker considered that every packer and fisherman should be licensed. If the packer violates the lobster law he should lose his license. If the fisherman violates the lobster law he shoulf lose his license. The officers of the government as they go around now should have a book of numbered forms or licenses. Each fisherman should take one of these which will enable him to catch lobsters just so long as he observes the regulations. Every one would be an inspecting officer when he received a license to catch lobsters. There would be perhaps 20 men going off a beach in the morning to catch lobsters. Each one of these men has a license but perhaps out of that number there are one or two or three men not wanting to observe the law. Some one of his fellows reports him and he loses his license. This was Mr. Baker's suggestion.

Get In the Shade

The sunny side of the street is great in winter time. But in dog days you'll notice the fellow whose store is cool and inviting, in the shade, is the chap who gets the business.

Customers are attracted to a store nicely shaded in the hot weather.

Talking to the Point

CLASSIFIED WANT ADS get right down to the point at issue. If you want something, say so in a few well-chosen words. Readers like that sort of straight-from-the-shoulder-talk, and that is the reason why condensed ads are so productive of the best kind of results.

CLASSIFIED WANT ADS are always noticed. They are read by wide-awake, intelligent grocers, who are on the look-out for favorable opportunities to fill their requirements.

However many "little helps" a grocer may have, Great Helps are a necessity to establish and round out successful trade; and to the latter belong

Do you know that UPTON operates the finest and largest Marmalade and Jam factory in Canada?

Quality is the first consideration at Upton's, but the enormous output enables Upton to offer the best values in Jams, Jellies and Orange Marmalade in Canada.

Upton's absolutely pure Orange Marmalade is put up in neat attractive packages in many sizes in glass, tin and wood and sold at prices that are rock bottom.

Order Upton's Season 1909 Orange Marmalade. You may as well handle the best when you can get it at the lowest prices.

Upton's factory is rated A1 by government inspectors from the Pure Food Department.

Fish From Scotland

The "Tyne" Brand of canned Scotch fish has all the delicacy and richness of flavor of the freshly caught fish. It is a satisfactory brand to buy because it is always the same—you can judge the quality of the entire year's output by a single can.

The Shields Ice and Storage Company

are specialists in the packing of Scotch Fish—nothing can possibly be finer than their product "The Tyne Brand." Their reputation has been made entirely on this one thing. It is their hobby to offer only the "best"—and they do it.

The French Macaroni

The germ of the best wheat— the gluten—is the foundation on which the high quality of "CODOU" Macaroni rests. But added to that is the skill acquired by a life time of service in its manufacture. It is

Made By Felix Codou

It is very delicate and tender—never "rubbery." And there is a richness of flavor that makes it very toothsome. Monsieur Codou is so proud of his famous brand that he permits no package to leave his factory without having his name.

PURE FRUIT PRESERVES

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

It's worth in many cases millions and, when a catchy, snappy, euphonious title has been secured, how many firms and competitors like to trench upon it?

The Old Homestead Brand

is a name that stands for something. It at once brings to mind the place on the old farm and the fruit and vegetables that mother was accustomed to place before us. This is one reason why grocers find our goods so easy to sell.

The name, combined with the quality, flavor and purity, do the trick every time.

ST. LAWRENCE Granulated Sugar

Maintains its high standard of excellence. This is proved by the following recent Government analysis:

Laboratory of Provincial Government Analyst,

Montreal, February 22nd, 1909

I HEREBY CERTIFY that I have drawn by my own hand ten samples of the St. Lawrence Sugar Refining Co.'s Extra STANDARD GRANULATED SUGAR, indiscriminately taken from four lots of about 150 barrels each and six lots of about 450 bags each. I have analyzed same and find them uniformly to contain 99-99/100 to 100 per cent. of pure cane sugar, with no impurities whatever.

General Offices of the A. J. Deer Company to be moved from Buffalo to Hornell, N.Y.

Home of the "ROYAL," showing new addition

For several years the general offices of our business have been maintained at Buffalo, but on May 1 they will be moved to Hornell, N.Y., where our factory is located.

We decided to make this change in order to facilitate the handling of our rapidly increasing business in the manufacture and sale of the "ROYAL" line of electric coffee mills and meat choppers.

The first "ROYAL" mill made its appearance in 1905. We made but one style then—the No. 2 shown in our catalog. The unquestionable merit of "The Mill that Cuts the Coffee" soon proved itself, and our business has grown accordingly.

To-day we make 72 different styles of machines, suited to every phase of the coffee business, and ranging in capacity from ½ pound per minute up to 10 pounds per minute. "The best mill in the world at the least cost to you" is our motto.

Our new plant is one of the most modern equipped institutions in the industrial world, and we shall be pleased at all times to welcome you there and show you how "ROYAL" machines are made. Write for a copy of our latest catalog, telling all about the "ROYAL" line. Sent free on request.

Necessity of Purpose and Method in the Selling Game

How Brewster Overcame an Early Handicap and Gained Promotion in the Firm—The "Old Man" Always Remembered His Lack of Interest in the Factory — Rounding Up the Merchants of a Country Town.

BEN WEST IN "SYSTEM."

Brewster had come into the sales force via the stock room. As he sat watching the telegraph poles whiz by, with the train drawing nearer headquarters he had about made up his mind that this must be the reason why he was discriminated against. He mentally listed the men on the force who had outranked him in the push for promotion. As he checked them off one by one it seemed as though but a small number had come from inside the organibation.

That was the difficulty then; only an outside man stood any chance. On this trip in, he planned to see the Old Man, state his case, and demand recognition or seek a new job. With all the instincts of a trained salesman he began arranging his data so as to make a correct approach. The most he had to guide him was hearsay. The only time the orbit of the Old Man touched the orbit of the business was on one of his customary visits through the house. These visits were usually unexpected—sometimes casual—sometimes thorough.

It was on one of these inspection tours that Brewster first saw the Old Man. It was in the stock room. An elderly, somewhat dapper, well-groomed gentleman quietly asked some casual question regarding the arrangement of the stock. He followed it up by others, each getting a little more pertinent and searching. Brewster—then a young man of seventeen—had replied to each one of the questions, "Don't know, I'm sure." With a somewhat kindly manner the visitor had shown him how to assort his stock in shorter time, then how to load it on the truck with less work and and had gone on. Brewster had seen the Old Man several times since and had always been greeted with a friendly nod of recognition.

After thinking it over, Brewster decided to feel out the sales manager before he tackled the Old Man, though he knew the latter was really the court of last resort.

Talks to the Sales Manager.

"I want to be perfectly fair," Brewster was saying to the sales manager, "but it certainly does seem as though I was worth more money and a more important position. I have been with the company now nearly ten years, and have seen—without a murmur—men who I believe are no better, advanced in important positions. More than that, these men have, for the most part, been brought in from outside organizations and put over my head. It's a selling proposition, this disposition of one's services, and while I have not made any overtures to any of the other companies, yet I am satisfied that I could do better with another firm. Yet a kind of loyalty binds me to the old house that I have been with since a boy.

"Now I want your disinterested advice. You know the whole question and you know me. You have been sales manager of this company for eight of the ten years I have been with it and know my work intimately. Tell me freely and candidly what you advise."

The sales manager studied the calendar on his desk intently before replying. He was plainly weighing on his mind whether he would be justified in giving out confidential information. The circumstances certainly did seem to warrant it.

"Brewster," he said, "as one salesman speaking to another, my advice is to stick. Your sales record is not only above the average; better than that, it is a clean one. You are to be trusted. There is but one reason why you have not a better position. Here we all want to see you advanced; but there are overhead orders. You are held back by a notation, a few words penciled on the back of your employment card while you were yet in the stock room."

The sales manager studied the calennet and drew out Brewster's record card. This showed in concise summary the sales Brewster had made during the time he had been on the road—sales continually increasing in volume. The "percentage of collections" column also showed up well. "New business" was adequate. It was an excellent card on the whole. But on the back the Old Man's notation still remained, summarizing his interview with the young man in the stock room some ten years before. "Lacks interest. Didn't know answers to simple questions," the penciling ran.

An Early Handicap.

"Now, understand me as simply giving you facts," said the sales manager. "I am not going into the question of the right or wrong of such a handicap. Like all men who have built a business from nothing to millions, through the sheer force of their own personality, the Old Man firmly believes that every employe should have the same white hot intensity of purpose that he himself has. He tests out all men by their standard, early asking them some simple questions. If the employe then fails, he is used for the more ordinary work. The big things go to the man who is interested and enthusiastic in his work. That's the Old Man's hobby—he wants to get about him men who are strong with the same intensity of purpose that inspires him.

"Now, try the house for another year or two and put the same enthusiasm into the business as though it were your own; your opportunity should come. When it does, make the most of it. I believe that this will win for you—I am sure it will."

Brewster went back to his territory with the one idea—that of redeeming his past record. How to do it—how to make his sales of more value to the house than the mere orders turned in—was what puzzled him. He turned to the map of his territory and looked at each town. It did seem as though there should be ways of getting more business. Perhaps his lack of intensity—his negative method of getting business—had been at fault. He would try positive methods and see. But how — where to start—kept puzzling him. The man who really wants to, will find a way and for the first time in his road experience Brewster wanted — with intensity—to sell goods.

His first stop was Alden. The company had had a little business there—as he thought the situation over it had struck him that it had not been enough to pay him to make the town. There were five dealers that should handle his line, yet he had only one customer there. How should he get at the others? "If I had these men together—if I could get them to see what a line we really have—if I could only get it before them in proper shape—I believe I could sell four out of five of the bunch," he kept thinking.

The more he thought it over the more the idea grew on him. It was eleven o'clock when he got into Alden. He went to his regular hotel and looked up the proprietor.

"Frank," said he, "there are five men in town that ought to carry my line. You know them; they are all good friends of yours. Here is what I want you to do: call up this list of dealers on the 'phone and tell them that I want to meet each one of them here at lunch. Tell them that it is important—that I have an important message for each one of them—something that they cannot afford to miss."

"That looks like good business to me," said the hotel man. "I'll just do that and I'll have the chef fix you up something extra nice—make a little banquet of this." And he took the list of dealers and started to the 'phone booth.

In ten minutes the proprietor emerged from the booth, smiling. "Say, you've stirred up some excitement already. They are all coming except old man Higgins. Curiosity will probably get the better of him—he'll show up, all right."

Brewster's New Method.

That lunch at the Merchants' Hotel at Alden was an event. It was the first time that five rival dealers in the city had sat down together in years. Each one accused the other of not daring to stay away; and even before they sat down together, a friendly footing was established. When dinner had reached the cigar stage, Brewster launched at once, heart and soul, into an enthusiastic description of what the house was doing for the coming season's trade. He spoke of the better quality of the goods secured by new processing methods, of the heavy advertising campaign that was being inaugurated, of the instructions being given the salesmen that they might act as expert sales counsel to their friends in the country.

Before he got through he found himself addressing his small audience in the convincing terms of a practised salesman who had found his field. The different conditions in which he found himself—the new surroundings under which he was laboring, incited him to his best. It was not all easy sailing, however, With the true instinct of buyers trained in long years of expert objection-making, objection after objection was hurled at him. As he answered these, one by one, he still felt that he was not getting at the real reason why these men did not buy his line. Why, it was Opportunity itself that he was offering them. Finally he turned to Griggs—the department store man Griggs—who, if anyone, could tell him just how the land lay.

"Griggs," said he, "here is a little association of hard-headed business men. You men lose when you don't buy from my house—and you know it. What's the reason that your orders are placed somewhere else?"

Griggs turned in his chair with that uncertainty of movement which betrays the man who is not accustomed to speaking in company. "Well, Mr. Brewster, since you have asked me an out-and-out question, I will tell you. Your 'triple extra' line we handled for four years. Then one of my oldest customers went into the city for a visit and came back lugging a line of that stuff. Bought every bit of it, too, at a catalogue house there. You know what that means. I passed the word around among my friends here and you've practically been boycotted as far as this town is concerned, ever since."

His Opportunity Arrives.

Brewster thought rapidly—"So that is the reason why I have been practically shut out of this town. If I had only been a real salesman—and found this out years before, what a difference in trade it would have meant to the house." He was beginning to see what intensity of purpose would do.

Brewster answered diplomatically—half-sorrowfully. "I should think you would know our policy too well to have let that influence you. We sell only to dealers. Ninety-five per cent. of our sales are to country dealers like yourself. The other five per cent. of our sales is made to the city trade. But every catalogue house in the city sends out its 'pick-up wagons.' They buy the standard brands in extremely limited quantities, perhaps, in some cases, only to be able to say that they handle those lines. The customer of yours who bought any of our goods from a catalogue house bought them after we had sold them to some city dealer. They came to that customer via the pick-up wagon.

The effect of this information was electrical. One of the other dealers was on his feet immediately. "If that's the case—it's something that we have not thought of—and it puts the matter in an entirely different light. But now—" and then he, and in succession all the rest, came out with their real but hitherto unspoken objections. Explanations followed. Then when the flow of questions ceased, Griggs rose formally.

"As a vote of confidence in one of the oldest and best houses," he said, "I move we adjourn immediately to the sample room and voice our return to a good house, by filling a few order blanks."

The Promotion Followed.

Brewster was at the long distance 'phone. "I have an order from every dealer in Alden, and I want you to know just how I turned the trick. Didn't use a hackneyed method in the whole sale." He rapidly sketched the story of the dinner, the hidden objection and the final vote of confidence which his old customers had accorded him. Then he added: "This trade revival is exactly what I am going to do for every town in this territory. I've got a bunch of new schemes figured out for every town I have ever made. Where one plan won't work, I'll try another that will. We'll get the business from now on in this territory."

The sales manager heard him out, thanked him, then said significantly: "We are expecting a visit from the Old Man in a week or so. He likes to run over the correspondence to see how the boys are working. Suppose you write me this enthusiastic report, covering the same facts that you have just told me. I'll see that your letters fall under the Old Man's eye.

"And incidentally, Brewster," the sales manager resumed, "our Western agency is going to need a district manager soon—one that has lots of ginger and new ideas. You can put two and two together, can't you?"

Brewster could—and did.

CATALOGUES AND BOOKLETS.

London Office, April 14.—Spratt's Patent, Limited, are circulating a new export price list, containing twenty-eight pages of quotations, not only in English currency, but in Canadian figures also. The indexing of this pamphlet is an excellent feature, making it easy to refer to any department without the turning of pages. Foods for dogs, pups, poultry, pigeons, caged birds, etc., are all fully dealt with. The Canadian agency is in Montreal.

CHEAPNESS OF ASSOCIATION WORK.

Since the suggestion that an Ontario Retail Grocers' Association be formed has taken hold some have expressed the opinion that the idea of organizing a one line association is not feasible because the cost of conducting the association would be too great for one branch of trade to stand.

There is no reason for this objection as the experience of the Ontario Retail Hardware Association has shown. This organization was formed in April, 1906, with about twenty members scattered throughout the province. It met with active opposition on the part of the Retail Merchants' Association, secretary E. M. Trowern uttering a foolish threat that he would put the hardware organization out of business unless it nestled under his protecting wing. The Retail Hardware Association, however, declined Mr. Trowern's invitation and, placing its annual membership fee at $3, collected $400 the first year and after paying expenses of $340 began the second year $60 to the good. In 1907 the expenses were $450 and in 1908 only $365, the assets at the beginning of 1909 being $138 and the balance to the good on April 1, 1909, being $540.

The Retail Hardware Association paid out about $200 during the first two years in traveling expenses for an organizer and while the Association had a profit on the work, experience has shown that in the long run it is unwise to hire a man to talk merchants into joining an association as unless men join of their own accord they are likely to become disgruntled and withdraw, feeling that they have been "done" for the amount of the membership fee.

This is a wrong attitude to take, as the indirect results of having an association organized are considerable—notably in compelling concerns looking for custom from the retailers to sell more exclusively to the trade. But the experience of the officers of the Retail Hardware Association has been that their most enthusiastic members are those who attend the annual conventions while those who stay away are reluctant to pay their membership fees.

The conventions of the Retail Hardware Association have become events to be looked forward to, the gathering at Hamilton last February being attended by about two hundred retailers with another hundred present representing jobbing and manufacturing firms, one session being open to all branches of the trade. In connection with the convention a trade exhibition was held, over thirty firms paying a small fee of $10 for the privilege of exhibiting. It is the money raised from this source that has given the Association its creditable balance in the treasury. The Association has recently decided to hold its 1910 convention at London and to run an excursion of its members and retail friends to Montreal in August.

By having a balance in the treasury the Hardware Association is in a position to put up a strong campaign against any unfair legislation which the mail-order houses endeavor to put through parliament. It is largely due to this organization, in fact, that Postmaster-General Lemieux in 1907, withdrew his proposed parcels post c.o.d. law, the effect of which would have been to make every postmaster in Canada a collecting agent for the big department stores. Whole wagon loads of letters and petitions were delivered to Hon. Mr. Lemieux on Feb. 1, the date set by the Association for members to forward petitions.

Another matter being pressed by the Hardware Association is that of Mutual Fire Insurance. In the United States there are many Hardware Merchants Mutual Fire Insurance Companies, several returning an annual rebate of 50 per cent of the premium to its members in addition to maintaining a substantial cash reserve. In Ontario farmers are the only class privileged to form mutual fire companies but at the next session of the legislature the Hardwate Association will endeavor to have the law changed to include merchants generally.

The officers of the Retail Hardware Association state that they could have done more effective work if a $5 fee had been named as with a paid up membership of about 200 the $3 fee was needed to pay office expenses, cost of executive meetings, printing supplies, and a small honorarium to the secretary. But now that the Association is firmly established the membership should steadily increase until it reaches the standard of the Michigan Retail Hardware Association with its 800 members and the Illinois Association with its 1,100 members, these latter bodies having the advantage, however, of giving their members the savings resulting from mutual fire insurance. About 125 members of the Ontario Retail Hardware Association are using a set of "collection letters" supplied by the organization at cost, the results proving very satisfactory.

Grocers in Ontario far outnumber the hardwaremen and, with the advantage of already having several live local associations in the larger cities, there is no apparent reason why they should not be able to profit by the experience of the hardwaremen and organize a strong Provincial Retail Grocers' Association to work in harmony with the hardwaremen, booksellers, drygoodsmen and other classes of merchants.

A DEAD ISSUE.

Canadians are disposed to view with amused indifference the resolution passed at the Detroit convention recently asking the Government of the United States to at once open negotiations with Canada for a reciprocity treaty. Fifteen to twenty years ago their attitude would have been quite different. They would have hailed it with joy and have taken immediate steps to secure the concurrence of the home Government.

When in October, 1890, the McKinley tariff went into force in the United States, there were a good many in Canada who took a decidedly pessimistic view of the situation. They thought that Canada's future was blasted. It did, of course, for a time, look serious.

We had become impregnated with the idea that the development of our natural resources depended largely upon the good-will of the United States.

But the blow, instead of permanently injuring us, stirred up within us a degree of energy which we had not hitherto possessed.

Instead, therefore, of looking to the south for succor Canadians began to look across the Atlantic and not only to look, but to act. They began to realize, particularly in view of the commercial unfriendliness of the United States, that the British market offered a steadier and more attractive field for their enterprise.

The result of the development of this enterprise has not been by any means discouraging. Our total export trade when the McKinley Act went into force was less than $97,000,000. During the last fiscal year it amounted to over $280,000,000. The United States, in spite of the McKinley and subsequent hostile tariffs, now buys $73,000,000 more of products from us than they did in 1890.

But, of course, it has been with Great Britain that our largest increase has been. When the McKinley tariff went into force our exports to Great Britain only amounted to a little over $48,000,000. Last year they reached $134,488,000.

We do not court or desire any more McKinley tariffs, but that which bears the late President's name was by no means an unmixed evil. It did more than anything else up to that time to make Canadians realize their possibilities and inspire their nationhood.

The convention at Detroit showed two things. One was that the business men of the United States are repenting of their unkind commercial treatment of this country; and the other is that they are realizing the importance of the future of Canada and are disposed to do everything in their power to get a larger share of the trade which must necessarily be developed as the country grows.

But unfortunately for them, repentance comes rather late. The shoe is now on the other foot. Canada 20 years ago wanted reciprocity with the United States and wanted it bad. Now there is a growing desire in the United States for reciprocity with Canada, while in this country the matter is practically outside the range of practical politics.

It is a dead issue and the McKinley tariff was the cause of its death.

THE SCHOOL BOOK QUESTION.

Since the T. Eaton Co. has been given the contract to supply the school books for the Province of Ontario and since that contract extends over a period of ten years and is renewable, the retail merchants of the province have been given a big subject to think about.

Once these books have been published and are sent broadcast over Ontario with the name of the T. Eaton Co. on every cover, that company will have completed another link in its huge advertising mail-order scheme which will undoubtedly prove disastrous to the retail merchants.

It is now up to each organization that stands for the protection of the general merchant to do its share in alleviating the effects of the giving of this government contract to the T. Eaton Co.

It is stated that the government has the power of instructing the company to use only the imprint of the Educational Department and also that the government can force the company to hand the books over to it for distribution. The imprint of the T. Eaton Co. means considerable gain to them and a loss to the country retail merchants; and if they are allowed to distribute these books through the province they have the opportunity of enclosing advertising literature which cannot but detract from the business of the country merchant.

If the T. Eaton Co. therefore are allowed full swing to do as they please their course of procedure will have a far reaching effect and the government in awarding the contract could scarcely have taken all the possible results into consideration.

This is a serious problem for business merchants in almost all lines of trade. Evidently the government could not have realized the full situation and what it will mean to the commercial interests of the country and to substantiate this contention it is known that some of the permanent officers in the employ of the government have stated that they had not realized it before it was pointed out to them.

Another item which must be taken into consideration is the manufacture of the plates used in the various school books. These are made by the government and are said to cost in the neighborhood of $30,000. The country merchants are assisting in paying for them —paying for something that is going to injure themselves.

What should be done and done quickly by every retail merchant in the province is to write the local member of the Legislature to have him use his influence in the government restricting the publishers as far as possible. This is a question which should be vigorously taken up by the Retail Merchants' Association and all other organizations which appreciate the interests of general merchants in the province of Ontario.

VALUE OF AN ASSOCIATION.

A large deputation consisting of 150 grocers, representing the Retail Grocers' Association of Montreal, went to Quebec on Thursday morning, April 29, by special train to lay a petition before Premier Gouin. In the latter city they were joined by a large contingent of Quebec grocers.

At half past two in the afternoon, they met the representatives of the government and requested that the law be amended, to prevent brewers peddling beer from door to door. It seems the brewers had already anticipated their action, and have asked the government to dismiss their request. The Premier promised to give the matter his consideration. This will make the fourth piece of legislation which has been of great value to the retail grocer, that the Association has put through, if this particular petition is successful.

IMPROVING CONDITIONS.

During the slow months of last year we frequently pointed out that trade would not approach towards normal until two things happened—an emphatic increase in commercial loans in our Bank Statement and material gains in Grand Trunk earnings. Both of these circumstances have now come to pass.

The most interesting feature of last week was a gain of $12,750,000 in current loans during the month of March compared with continental decreases hitherto. The indications are that fairly continuous improvement has been in progress during the past three months.

We commend a perusal of the figures for the iron and steel production in Canada during 1908. The output of steel ingots for example decreased in Canada only 21 per cent., whereas it declines over 50 per cent. in the United States. Our production of iron ore declined from the previous year only 4.3 per cent.

There are evidences that however unpleasing the depression may have been as regards this country it was not really damaging but was more a salutary corrective and "a blessing in disguise."

POTATO PROSPECTS.

Correspondence from various parts of the Dominion indicates that there may be a potato shortage before the new season's crop arrives. At the Pacific Coast potatoes have gone up in price to forty and fifty dollars per ton, whereas a month or two ago the price ranged from twenty-five to thirty-five dollars.

From the maritime provinces potatoes are being shipped to the United States in large lots and prices are reported firmer. In Toronto prices have also advanced somewnat but it is probably in western Ontario where the greatest change has occurred.

In the article of this week from our Chatham correspondent it is pointed out that United States buyers have visited that vicinity and purchased large quantities of potatoes, the prices offered to and accepted by the farmers being seventy-five cents. Last Saturday's market price ran up to a dollar and a quarter per bag from seventy-five cents of the week previous. The buyers from across the line were able to pay a twenty-five cent duty and still sell at a fair profit in the State of Ohio.

Grocers in Chatham are facing a potato shortage, but some of the reasons are somewhat unnatural, and if the same conditions exist all over the province and in others as well, prices are likely to be enhanced. The present shortage, however, may simply be due to the inability of the farmers marketing their produce at this time of the year.

Steamships and Their Cargoes Expected at Montreal—Advance of Barbadoes Molasses in Primary Market—Good Maple Syrup Crop in Nova Scotia—Sugar Cargoes From the West Indies.

MONTREAL.

April 27.—Henry Morgan & Sons are showing a window display of electrical cooking utensils this week. The terror to a woman, of a hot stove in summer time is done away with by the use of these things. Each individual dish can be connected with an electrical current and in this way only the heat required for the special dish is used.

Reports from Richmond, Que., state that the storekeepers of that place are suffering from a plague of burglars. Sunday morning April 24, some members of the light fingered fraternity visited the store of McMorine Bros. From there they went to the St. Jacobs Hotel and then to A. J. Bedard's store. In each place they collected a fair amount of booty and decamped by the G.T.R. for Windsor, where they took the Orford Mountain Railway.

Andrew Watson, Montreal, was in Quebec for a few days this week on business.

The Laing Packing Co.'s store, corner of Berthelet and Bleury Sts., has a window which is nothing short of a work of art. It is arranged with the usual products to be found in a provision store and shows originality and resourcefulness. The Stanford Market on St. Catherine St. W., has an unusually beautiful window this week also. This store has long been noted for the beauty of its display windows, and certainly seems to be maintaining its reputation in this respect.

The harbor is practically ready for the arrival of the first boat of the season. Several are on their way here. Among the fruit boats bound for Montreal from Sorrento and other Mediterranean points, is the Jacona of the Thomson Line, with a cargo of oranges and lemons. Her cargo is made up as follows: From Genoa, 30 tons of sundries, from Palermo 8,800 packages lemons and oranges, and 53 bbls. of wine from Catania; 6,800 pkgs. oranges and lemons; 250 tons sulphur from Messina; 7,800 pkgs. oranges and lemons; from Sorrento 11,500 pkgs. green fruit. The Bellona of the Thomson line left Cadiz April 24, but the cargo list has not been received here yet. The Fremona of the same line left Palermo April 25. The Francesco Campa will arrive in port about May 1 to discharge a cargo of fruit, consisting of 26,000 pkgs. of oranges and lemons from Sorrento; 6,600 packages of oranges and lemons from Palermo and 1,600 pkgs of the same fruit from Catania. The Salacia has sailed from Glasgow for Montreal. The harbor front is a scene of great activity, but things are practically in readiness now for the expected ships.

Ex-mayor Laporte, of Laporte, Martin & Co., is seriously ill in Paris. Mr. Laporte has been in Europe for sometime, and his many friends on this side of the Atlantic will be sorry to hear of his misfortune abroad.

Hugo Rohde, northwest representative of Hudon, Hebert & Co., has returned from a trip through his territory.

B. McNally of the St. Lawrence Sugar Refining Co., was seen recently in connection with the announcement by the government to allow Canadian sugar refiners the privilege of importing two tons of foreign sugar for every ton of sugar made in this country from the beet, would be extended for three years. Mr. McNally stated that the probable effect of the extension of the government's agreement would be a weakening in the prices of Canadian refined cane sugar in the foreign market. He stated further that the Canadian cane sugar refiners did not favor the extension of the agreement of the government with the Canadian beet sugar producers. The former think that either the beet sugar makers should not be accorded the privilege of importing foreign sugar beet in twice the quantity that the domestic beet sugar is produced, or the duty which Canadian cane sugar refiners have to pay on raw sugar imported from the West Indies should be reduced. This duty is now equal to ½ cent a pound.

The report of the Department of Trade and Commerce, has just been received for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1908. The report is divided into three parts, (1) Canadian Trade; (2) Trade of Foreign Countries; (3) Subsidized Steamship Services. It also contains copies of the various treaties and conventions, that Canada has entered into during the year. In addition to the book, there is a set of diagrams, illustrating Canada's commercial development in a graphic way.

E. J. St. Amand has joined the staff of W. C. Christmas, Montreal, and has made arrangements to handle a line of teas on his own account at the same time. Mr. St. Amand has many friends among the tea trade in Montreal, having been with James Rutherford, one of the best tea men in eastern Canada for eight years. He received a good training with this firm. Mr. Christmas is one of the younger generation of grocery brokers, and he is making good in a decided fashion. He knows well the lines he is pushing, and has some first-class agencies.

ST. JOHN.

April 27.—The first of May will see a number of changes among the wholesale grocers on the south wharf. Thomas Gorman is moving from the premises he has occupied for many years, to the Tuft's building where C. M. Kerrison has been carrying on business. Mr. Kerrison is taking a store now vacant near the end of the wharf. The premises occupied for many years by C. D. Trueman who assigned recently will be occupied by J. Johnston.

Business, both in wholesale and retail circles is reported good and collections are fair. There has been no change in flour quotations this week and other lines remain stationary. The harbor fishing has been interfered with lately owing to the heavy ice running into the harbor from the river but some fairly good catches of gaspereaux are being made. The first salmon of the season was taken on Monday of last week and it sold for a good figure.

A cable from Barbadoes received by Baird & Peters a few days ago announced that the quotations on Barbadoes grocery molasses had advanced two cents a gallon, which is the highest price reached for many years.

The civic elections which were held on Tuesday, April 20, were unusually interesting this year and six new aldermen will sit at the council board after May 1st as a result of the polling. Alderman J. W. Vanwart, the Charlotte Street grocer enters upon his third year at the board. He was not opposed. Alderman Baskin, the west side grocer went down to defeat before J. Fred Belyea, fishery inspector, and A. O. Havelock Wilson, fish dealer in the north end was victorious over Alderman Rowan, a hardware dealer, by a very large majority. F. S. Purdy, groceryman, of Garden Street, Wellington Green, grocer of Winter Street, and R. R. Patchell, the Stanley Street grocer were unsuccessful in their fight for civic honors.

A demonstration of food products was conducted in F. W. Daniel & Co.'s store last week and many people were given a taste of the dainties.

William H. Edgett, of Moncton; Andrew D. McCain, of East Florenceville; Robert E. Mutch, of Charlottetown, (P.E.I.); John W. Vanwart and Henry R. Ross, of St. John; are applying for incorporation as the Eastern Produce Exchange. The capital stock is to be $55,000. W. E. H.

HALIFAX.

April 27.—The volume of business passing at the present time is considered satisfactory. The roads in most districts are improving. As a result business benefits materially. Prices are now pretty steady and there is not any immediate prospect of a change, though possibly flour may go a little higher.

There is considerable activity in the produce markets just now. Stocks held by dealers are running low, and buying is again in order. Heavy shipments of potatoes are being made from Prince Edward Island to the "American" market, seventeen hundred bags having been shipped last week to Boston. On arrival, however, these were met with the new crop from Florida, and as a result the shippers did not net as large a sum for their potatoes as they expected. On the local market cabbage are scarce, turnips are in fair supply, and there is a shortage of carrots and parsnips.

Large quantities of sugar are now being imported from the West Indies. Every steamer arriving here is bringing large cargoes. The Boston which arrived last week landed seven thousand bags. A large amount of the sugar is for Montreal.

New Bermuda onions are now coming on the market. The stock is only of fair quality, the onions not being as clean skinned as usual.

Fresh made butter continues to come on the market in good supply and it is in fair demand. The price, however, shows little change. There is a large lot of old butter on the market and there is little sale for it locally. Some of the dealers, however, are disposing of their stock to parties in St. Pierre, Miq., but the sales are light. The most of this butter is sold at a loss.

Eggs are a little easier in price. The demand from the upper provinces is falling off and in consequence stocks are piling up in some places. Fresh eggs are quoted at 18 cents here.

The maple sugar harvest is now in full swing and the crop this season will be quite heavy. Large quantities of sugar of excellent quality are now on the market, but the demand is somewhat lighter than usual. The consumer appears to prefer the maple syrup which is put up in the bark taken from thr trees, and it finds a ready sale. Some new maple syrup is also on the market, but the supply is not great. Most of the maple sugar comes from Cumberland County which is the largest producer in the province. The price varies from 15 to 18 cents.

Some Interesting Ontario Grocery Correspondence

Executive of London Grocers' Association to Discuss Ontario Organization—Potato Shortage Being Experienced by Chatham Grocers—Unique Delivery System Used by Brantford Firm —Strawberry Crop Reports From Western Ontario Favorable —Increases in Flour Prices.

LONDON.

April 28.—The executive of the Retail Grocers' Association will hold a meeting next week to consider the question of provincial organization. The members are understood to be unanimously in favor of such an organization, the only difficulty in the way being the matter of financing the proper carrying of it out, as President Ryan pointed out at the last meeting of the association. If grocers of all the cities of importance in the province can be induced to join in such a project there should be no difficulty in carrying it out. Before that can be brought about, however, local organization will be necessary in many cities, and that will take time. The result of the executive's deliberations will be embodied in a report to be presented to the association at its next meeting, on May 11th.

Secretary Hays, of the Retail Grocers' Association, has received a letter from the city authorities for the names of tea peddlers who are known to be doing business without either a license or paying a business tax. The necessary information has been given, and now the council is looked to comply with the association's petition to make the delinquents toe the mark.

The annual excursion is now the chief topic of discussion among members of the Retail Grocers' Association. Detroit is the city most favored, partly because of the cheaper railway rate than to other equally distant cities, but mainly because a visit to the city of the straits would enable the "fans" among the grocers—and that means all of them —to see the game played by a couple of crack ball teams of the American League.

Grocery trade is only fair with retailers. There is a good demand for pineapples, which are in earlier than usual. They are of superior quality and cheaper than in many years. The reason of this latter fact is that the Cuban product is coming into the market and promises to be a formidable competitor of the fruit from other countries.

Wholesale trade is a little quiet, but the prospects are excellent. Sugar is firm, with an upward tendency, as are also teas of all descriptions. Coffees are steady. There is no change in any of the staples. New Brazil nuts are coming in and finding a ready market. Raisins and currants are rather steady, the latter being higher.

Local grocers are now paying an advance of 25c. per cwt. for flour, but have increased the price to their customers only 20c., so that there is little profit in handling the commodity. Yet they must keep it.

"Dick" Woods, the Wellington Street grocer, has developed a talent which none of his friends thought him capable of. He has long been known as an expert judge of horseflesh, and a year ago came into prominence as a 100-yards sprinter. Now it appears he is an expert handler of the paint brush, which fact has come to light through his painting the front of his store a bright red. And now everybody is wondering what will be "Dick's" next surprise for his friends.

CHATHAM.

April 28.—Chatham this week is experiencing something like a potato famine, as the result of a temporary "corner" in this product. A week ago Saturday potatoes sold at 75c. a bag on the market. Last Saturday the price went up to $1.25. During the intervening week, United States buyers were in this vicinity and made extensive purchases. One buyer, R. A. Snider, of Ohio, purchased fully 6,000 bushels of potatoes from farmers in one section of Chatham township, and other buyers seem to have been equally busy. The price paid by the "Americans" was 75c. a bag. After adding 25c. a bag duty, the Ohio man was still able to sell cheaper than competitors across the line; there the price is given as $1.40 a bag. On Saturday A. S. Maynard, a Harwich market gardener, started in early and made large purchases, practically cleaning up the whole available potato supply. Maynard bought before 10 o'clock, and a police officer attempted to lay an information against him under the city by-law, which prohibits "hucksters, butchers, grocers, runners and wholesale buyers" from buying on the market before 10 o'clock, subject to minor reservations. Magistrate Houston, however, refused to take the information, declaring that Maynard did not come under any of these categories. As a result, Maynard went on buying, and the price soared speedily to $1, and ultimately to $1.25.

Grocers, who are face to face with a potato shortage this week, view with some resentment the fact that while they are prohibited from buying before 10 o'clock, outsiders who are not tax payers can come in and purchase to any extent. Although the by-law was framed with the express intention of covering all classes of persons buying with the intention of re-selling, the magistrate steadily refuses to interpret it that way. "We have paid taxes here for years, worked for the town and loyally supported every move toward helping it along," declared one grocer, "and yet outsiders for purposes of speculation can come in and boost the price of market commodities on us, while if we tried to buy we would be hauled up in short order." At the same time, it is doubtful if there is any real shortage of potatoes throughout the country, though the apparent shortage is accentuated by the fact that farmers are busy and cannot spare the time to come to town. Grocers state that they have plenty of potatoes ordered, but that the farmers declare that they cannot spare the time to deliver them until the end of the week.

Fred S. Bounsall, who has for some years past conducted a grocery at the corner of Murray and Adelaide streets, has sold to E. Duffy, formerly proprietor of the Teddy Bear grocery. Mr. Duffy takes possession May 1. Mr. Bounsall is moving to Hamilton, where he will start in the grocery business.

Miss Parsons, demonstrator for the Lipton Company, is conducting a demonstration of teas, coffees and jellies, at Harry Andrew's grocery all this week.

Hogs reached a record price last Thursday, when $7.40, live weight, was paid. Deliveries on Saturday were large, the price ranging from $7.30 to $7.35.

The tariff concessions brought down by Hon. W. S. Fielding in aid of the beet sugar manufacturers meet with general approval in this section, where sugar beets are an important crop, and where the industry in Ontario practically had its beginning. It is anticipated that steps will be taken in the near future with a view to locating a factory in this city, correspondence having been carried on by the board of trade for some time past with Michigan beet sugar men.

A. C. Gillan, who has been behind the counter at Dawson's big store at Inwood has purchased a grocery in St. Thomas, and left last week for that place, accompanied by Mrs. Gillan.

Building operations have been commenced on the cement block addition to Forbes & Simons' grocery at Wallaceburg.

Butchers are experiencing quite a squeeze, from all accounts, between the farmers on the one hand and the meat consumers on the other. Following the closing of the Dominion meat market at Wallaceburg till September, owing to meat scarcity, Jas. Purser has closed his butcher shop for two weeks, for the same reason. In his announcement Mr. Purser tersely states: "It takes money to run any kind of business, and people cannot expect merchants to run their places of business on air. The scarcity of cattle makes the prices very high, and when people ask for credit after the butcher pays spot cash, it's up to the butcher to draw the line." A local butcher anticipates a reaction from the present high prices in the course of a few months.

Francis Gregory, manager of the Leamington canning factory, says: "We have about 300 acres under contract, all we asked for this year. Could take 25 or 30 acres more in tomatoes."

The Imperial Tobacco Co. warehouse at Blenheim has been completed, and barns for curing the tobacco grown will be erected. The outlook is for an exceptionally large crop in this vicinity.

John S. Gesner, a Ridgetown grocer, announces that he intends leaving that town, and is advertising a "slaughter sale."

A record breaking strawberry crop is predicted for this year, growers stating that the plants have come through the winter in fine shape. Last year was an "off season" for strawberries, owing to dry weather.

TORONTO.

April 28.—W. F. Fullerton, 934 Dundas St., appreciates the help he gets from The Canadian Grocer. His business is favorably responding to his energy and tact.

Jas. J. Scott, Davenport Rd. and Dupont St., finds that his business has outgrown his present premises, and he is thinking of building larger. He is one of the hustlers.

An Englishman, clerking in a north end store, expressed his surprise that some grocers are not taking The Canadian Grocer. He served his apprenticeship in London where he worked three years and paid 45 pounds to learn the grocery business and got his board. Here he says, a youth usually drives a delivery wagon for two weeks and then he becomes an accomplished clerk, knows all about sports, but takes not even time to read a trade paper.

McDonald Bros. have bought the Rosedale grocery, 1064 Yonge St. They come with a good business training from Teeswater and are likely to make things go.

Wm. Andrew, 2 Sydenham St., is a thorough Scotchman with a thorough Old Country business experience. He, like all well posted grocers, reads The Canadian Grocer in order to keep up with the times. An article will appear in The Grocer in the near future on his experience of old land storekeeping.

Hill & Shiells, Weston, have a nice store and are recognized the leading grocers in that town.

J. L. Casey, who has very successfully conducted a grocery and fruit business at 470 Yonge Street for some time past, has moved to 638 College Street, owing to the continued advance in rents on Yonge Street. Mr. Casey has deemed it advisable to purchase the College Street property, and has opened a bright and attractive store in one of the best residental districts bordering on College Street, and will no doubt build up an excellent trade in a short time.

Bedser & Seaman, grocers, 1148 Bloor St. West, have dissolved partnership. The business is now carried on by A. G. Seaman.

Alfred E. Fairfield, 86 Close Ave., for many years a grocer and wine merchant on Yonge Street, died last week from a paralytic stroke.

Wm. Sunter, a young man favorably known in the Avenue Road district, has bought out the estate of H. Merrick. He will take possession May 1st and is likely to get his share of the business in that hustling part of the city.

Lloyd Bros. have purchased the business of Gervis & Co., 552 Queen St. West, and are getting ready to do a large trade in that busy part of the city. These young active men have had six or seven years experience as clerks, and are sure to succeed.

W. J. Dillon, 622 Queen West, has removed his "sugar bush" from his window where for weeks the process of maple syrup making was demonstrated to the knowledge seeking crowds attracted by it. So complete was this done that even beechnuts were found among the leaves which covered the ground under the sap trees. The clerks work in harmony with the proprietor and all take a lively interest in the store and even point with pride to their new waggon which makes its flying visits from street to street.

J. F. Morrish, for 20 years in the grocery business in Toronto, and for the past eight years at 237 Yonge St., has decided to retire from active work. J. M. Stanley who has been connected with Mr. Morrish for the past 18 years is taking over the business, which will in future be conducted at 256 Church Street. Mr. Morrish has customers yet whom he called upon 33 years ago before he conducted a business for himself.

The regular monthly meeting of the grocers section of the Retail Merchants' Association of Canada, Toronto Branch was held in their board room, 21 Richmond West, on Monday night, A. B. Griffin, chairman, presiding. At the invitation of the association representatives of the fruit, produce and provision association of Toronto, attended to explain in detail the real meaning of the circular they sent out in reference to weekly collections. Messrs. Thorpe, Despard, Bowes, Quinn, Clemes and others, explained the aims of the association, which they claimed was a move in the right direction to improve trade conditions. The meeting soon developed into a warm discussion. The retail men claimed that they also had demands to make on the wholesale men which should be granted in consideration of the retail men accepting their terms. In a nutshell they intimated that the retailers would pay all their bills promptly each week providing the wholesale men would also promptly cease to supply small consumers, and henceforth do a strictly wholesale trade. This seemed to be fairly satisfactory to all. In the closing remarks it was moved by Andrew Gunn, of Gunn's Ltd., and seconded by H. W. Thorpe, that a vote of thanks be tendered to the officers of the Retail Merchants' Association, for their invitation to meet them and for the kindly manner in which they concurred in the proposed shortening of credits about to be instituted, and suggested that a committee from each association be appointed to adjust any differences which might occur. A few of the retailers again opened the question which resulted in appointing a committee to meet the wholesalers to clear misty or any points of difference that might occur from time to time.

GUELPH.

April 28.—Easter is past, and the merchants are now suffering from the re-action; but then, the weather has been anything but favorable to good business. Saturday's trade was only fair no doubt taking its cue from the size of the market, which was far below the preceding Saturday. Prices generally seemed a little lighter. Eggs sold at 18c and 20c, butter at 24c, potatoes were a little easier, more being sold wholesale, the prices ranging from 75c to 90c per bag. Charlie Smye, was in the city last week and by what he says "slack trade is the order of the day."

Benson Bros. were demonstrating teas and jellies last week, and are expecting good results.

The result of the guessing competition at A. J. Goom's store is a good sale of the soap advertised.

J. A. McCrea is displaying a fine line of toilet soap just now.

Geo. William's "Maple Syrup" window had the desired effect—a splendid sale.

KINGSTON.

April 28.—The farmers are raising cain owing to the advance in sugar, and the fact that so much rainy weather is preventing the preparation of the land for seeding. Yes, everyone has his own troubles. Grocers know all about it. Jim the grocer got a lot of lemons and oranges from a Canadian firm and had to consign about half of them to the swill barrel. Care is taken by the government to have inspectors examine goods before crossing the ocean to keep the good name of Canada up, but Canada's own children suffer a lot in silence through a few unscrupulous jobbers.

I was a victim recently of one of them having sent 600 dozen of eggs to a Canadian firm and only got the empty cases back.

D. B. Gage has sold his business on the corner of Charles and Montreal Street to Harry Spencer. Mr. Gage is going out west to se what others saw—a great country.

The advance in flour added to high rents is making lean pocket books for the working man. Yet, strange to say, four 5c. theatres are crowded every day and night. Who pays the piper? Ask the grocer and butcher.

Canada has at last wakened up and pure fruit jams are being put up in competition with English firms who for years have ruled the markets on account of the high quality of their goods. Some of the Canadian jams of late years were not fit for swine to eat. And there was no need of it in the past, for Canada grows the best fruits on earth.

Andrew Shaw, of Hull; James, of New Brunswick, N.Y., and Robert, of Montreal, are visiting their friends in Kingston. All got their business education in the grocery business and all now are engaged in the 5 and 10-cent business and doing well. Andrew is proprietor of a 5 and 10-cent business in Hull and getting prosperous. Robert is manager of one of Charleton's 5 and 10-cent stores, corner St. Lawrence and Main, Montreal, and James, who was a commercial traveler for W. G. Craig & Co., is manager for Wallworth Co.'s store, New Brunswick, N.Y.

George Robertson, of the firm of Robertson, Nicolls & Co., has purchased an auto, and no doubt will combine business with pleasure.

Many merchants feel that the Government should put an end to the interference in trade by the Militia Department here running a store inside the barracks gate. It is said they sell at wholesale prices. One grocer stated they sell to anyone at any rate.

BRANTFORD.

April 28.—The merchants report that trade has been good and the prospects look bright. There are only about one third as many empty houses in the city that there was six weeks ago. The factories are all busy and the Massey-Harris Co. will build a large addition to their present buildings.

Saturday's market was very large but prices remained stationary with butter at 25c per lb. and fresh eggs at 18c and 20c dozen. Spring greens were in good demand at 8c per head for lettuce and three bunches of onions for ten cents. Potatoes were $1 to $1.25 per bag and apples 50c per basket.

Chas. Nichol who for a number of years conducted a general store at Glanworth, has purchased the business of Mr. Brodderick at the corner of Pearl and Palace Streets, and took possession last week. Mr. Brodderick has been in failing health for some time and finds it necessary to give up business for a time.

John Malcholm & Son of St. George are erecting a large warehouse to the rear of the condensing factory. It will be 26x42 feet and sufficiently high to store away considerable condensed and powdered milks. As they have not sufficient water supply for certain hours of the day, it is their intention to build a cement reservoir which will store sufficient for them at all times. The wells continue to flow as much as ever, but when the condensing process is in operation an extra volume of water is required.

Methods of delivering groceries are very different nowadays from those which used to be in vogue. The following method which has been used successfully for over three years by G. S. Winter, Son & Co., grocers of this city, may be of interest to the trade. They do a very large order business as well as the ordinary delivering. This requires that two wagons be on the road continually. At the outset the complete delivery outfit was sold to the driver—wagons, harness, sleigh, etc.—and a yearly contract entered into. The driver was to do the delivering, take the orders, hire extra help, keep the horses and rigs in proper shape and become responsible for the goods from the time of leaving the shop until they reached their destination—in consideration of a certain salary per year. The advantages are that they have no money invested in delivery outfit, no worry about runaways, sick horses and other details under the old way. The success of this method depends upon the man the grocer secures.

ST. THOMAS.

April 28.—Large quantities of green stuff were offered on the markets on Saturday and found ready purchasers, who paid from 5c to 10c a head for lettuce and radish and for green onions 5c a bunch. Dairy produce was quite plentiful, butter ranging from 23c to 28c a lb. and eggs 15c to 17c per doz. Potatoes, owing to several cars from the vicinity being shipped to the United States took an advance and sold quickly at from 90c to $1 per bag. Hogs were $7.25 per 100 lbs. live weight. The local millers have again advanced the prices of flour, and the bakers are making their loaves weigh one pound instead of 1¼ pound as before.

Owing to the amendment made to the Bi-Monthly Pay Act in New York State, notices have been posted in the New York Central yards in Buffalo that they are ready to comply with the law and announce that April 29 will be the first pay day. The amendment provides a penalty of from $100 to $10,000 fine for failure to pay railroad employes twice a month. The St. Thomas merchants pray that the M. C. R., which is a part of the N. Y. C. system, will give their employes here the benefit of the two pay days in a month. When a grocer carries an account for a month it becomes quite large and if the debtor happens to lose his position it makes the loss a serious one, and the change would be appreciated.

INGERSOLL.

April 28.—Although the weather has been decidedly unseasonable, seeding having only nicely commenced, merchants report that there has not been a falling off in the volume of business. One grocer to whom your correspondent spoke said that business had been fairly brisk during the month and that the outlook was promising. "Seed time" is usually a busy time both in the town and country. Practically every resident who is so fortunate as to have a garden believes in keeping it under cultivation, not so much for the real value of the products as for the sake of producing his own vegetables and knowing that they are absolutely fresh when required. Grocers as a rule carry a complete line of seeds and they are now experiencing a lively demand for them.

During the past week the price of potatoes has jumped considerably. A scarcity in Western American points is said to be responsible for the unprecedented demand and the resultant increase in price. During the past few days several carloads have been shipped from Ingersoll and surrounding points to Detroit and other points west on the American side. This is certainly reversing the rule here. Heretofore potatoes have not been very abundant at this time of the year and many carloads have been imported. Last season, however, the crop was an excellent one and the acreage apparently much larger than in previous seasons. A few weeks ago potatoes were being offered freely and some of the local grocers declined to buy when the price was cut down to fifty cents per bag. With the keen demand however, from the American side, some of the enterprising merchants got busy at once and began to scour the country, making purchases to meet the demands for carload lots. They have been successful in filling all orders but it is understood that the supply in this neighborhood has not been seriously depleted. The active state of the market however, has had an upward tendency in the price, and your correspondent was informed that the retail price has been advanced to ninety cents a bag. Some doubt, however, is expressed as to whether it will long remain at this figure. It is only a matter of a short time until new potatoes will commence to arrive from southern points. It is difficult to dispose of old potatoes when the new ones are on the market at reasonable prices, and as the old ones are considered fairly plentiful it is believed that the price will once more drop as soon as the seeding is over.

Although the price of wheat has advanced recently until every one has been speculating as to where it would end, there has been no increase in the price of bread here.

VANCOUVER.

April 27.—Potatoes in the Vancouver market are occupying just about as much attention relatively as wheat in the general market. There are just about enough to see us through, and those who want them have to pay handsomely to those who have them. The prices are very firm at $45 and $50 per ton, and some of the wholesale commission houses are really afraid that the supply will peter out before the next crop comes in. The available supply is reckoned at 400 tons in this city, with a consumption of about 20 tons per day. The season is backward, too, which will delay this season's crop. New potatoes, though have already arrived but they are the advance luxuries. They are small, and retail at six pounds for 25c.

Another early arrival is the first strawberries of the season, the usual pale on the under side variety, the top color showing up bravely through the sand. They job at $3.50 per crate, and despite the high price are going fairly well.

The Indravelli arrived the first part of last week from New Zealand with 300 tons of onions and some potatoes. The onions were mostly destined for tributary markets. When the steamer left New Zealand potatoes were selling at about $17 per ton, so if any quantity are brought in in time there is a good margin for profit. The distance, however, will preclude any trade this season. Next year, it is likely that there will be plenty of potatoes, and the business might not amount to much. Last year potatoes were low, so the farmers grew few this year, and following the usual order of things there will be a rush again for this article, with a corresponding low price.

There is a new brand of golden syrup on the market. It is put up by Wm. E. Criddle, of Liverpool, and is something like the Old Country treacle.

The Pacific Coast Condensed Milk Co. has an eight-ounce tin on the market, for the benefit of small families and picnic parties. It is a timely thing, as there have been many complaints to grocers that in small families the usual 20-ounce tin is not all used before it goes bad. This is no fault of the cream, but is owing to the length of time it takes to use it. The new size retails at two for 15c, and the extra cost of canning is made up by the two ounces difference in weight.

Howard Chapman, of Victoria, agent for Fry & Company, is here this week taking orders for goods for the next Christmas trade.

A visitor this week was A. A. Ayer, of Montreal, the large wholesale dealer in butter and cheese. He told The Grocer he was here just to look over the ground, and was well pleased with conditions.

Pat Burns was also in the city for a few days. He repeats his old injunction to raise hogs, and says that his company will take all the hogs it can get

The C.P.R. is going into the vegetable raising business here and is clearing twenty acres of land a short distance outside of the city, Large greenhouses will be erected where winter vegetables and flowers can be grown for use in the hotels of the company and in the dining cars.

Development is proceeding along the different lines of the fish industry. More lobsters are being brought to the coast for transplanting. These will be placed in a lagoon at Esquimalt, where they cannot escape into deep water, and the officials will thus be able to keep an eye on them and watch progress. Herebefore, lobsters have been placed in deep water, with the result that they scattered, and only one or two specimens were ever seen again.

The West Coast Fishing Company has brought out eight million oysters for transplanting at Esquimalt. They range from one to two years of age. The oyster industry is growing rapidly here, and the demand for Esquimalt oysters comes from all the coast cities. In Seattle, they are the favorite brand, and they are largely sold in Vancouver and New Westminster. They retail at 35c per dozen in the shells. Oysters here do not breed, but they grow rapidly, hence it is found profitable to stock up the beds.

Further development of the northern halibut fisheries is promised by an English company, which will also have canneries on the Skeena river, and invest altogether about two million dollars.

Matters affecting the salmon fisheries were taken up with Prof. Prince, Dominion Fisheries Commissioner, when he was on his way to San Francisco. It was pointed out again to him that it should be impressed upon the "Americans" that they should do their share in the conservation of the salmon, instead of taking advantage of Canada's close seasons. Owing to the season opening earlier in the north, representations were made that fishing begin on June 15th, instead of July 1st, and it is expected by fishermen this will be announced this year.

The business men of Kamloops met the clerks on the matter of early closing during the summer months on Saturdays and also a half-holiday once a week. There was some opposition at first, but it looks as if the clerks will be successful.

It may be of interest to those who have an eye on Prince Rupert to point out that until the railway is running at least between Prince Rupert and the interior of British Columbia there will not be many openings for new businesses. There should be reason for the operation of the first 100 or 200 miles of the railway from this end, for transportation facilities are badly needed. That, however, will not be for some time. In the meantime, the following enumeration of business places in Prince Rupert is given. It should be noted, though, that these are rather spun out, and in the case of general stores, each department in given separately. The list is: Six groceries and provisions; two meat markets; six clothing and dry goods and boots and shoes; one millinery, five hardware and stoves; two jewellery; one photographer; twenty-five hotels and restaurants; three news stands; one tent and awning factory; two furniture, three shoemakers; one coal; three lumber agencies; two banks,;one tailor and three clothes cleaning establishments; three bakeries; one steam laundry; two hand laundries; one wholesale clothing house; one jobbing commission merchant; two fish markets; twelve real estate and insurance; three law firms; three doctors; one dentist; two contracting painters; one machine shop; one blacksmith; five barber shops; one weekly paper; one daily; one job printing plant. The population is placed at between 800 and 1,000.

WINNIPEG.

April 27.—Winnipeg has declared war upon an army of rats which has invaded the province from the south. They began to come in about one year ago, and it is alleged they were first brought in on freight cars on the Soo line. Of the invasion, we quote the words of Roy Whitman, a grocer in the town of Ridgeville, four miles north of the boundary. "We have had a terrible seige with the rats here for about ten months. We are of the opinion the worst is over in this district, but they have increased in numbers and traveled north at the same time. They breed very fast, from eight to ten young ones at a time. For 20 miles north of the boundary line you will find them in every farmers' stable, granary and even houses. I imported a lot of rat cage traps last fall. One man caught 28 in an upstairs room in his house the first three nights. He has caught over 200 since in two traps and is still catching them. Last year they struck the village and got into the elevators, stores, barns, and killed chickens. We are fighting them in every form. I have sold two dozen large traps and hundreds of spring traps, but they are increasing in spite of all. Something must be done and done quickly or Winnipeg will be infested." Mayor Evans is at present communicating with American cities which have successfully fought the pests, in order that the best methods might be adopted to destroy them.

Frank Magor, of Montreal, who has been in the West for several weeks, left the city on April 20, having completed his trip in the interests of Lazenby & Son, London, Eng., the Franco-American Soup Co., of New York, and Southwell & Co., of London, Eng.

David Brown, representing Joseph Tetley, the big tea man, of London, Eng., has opened an agency office in this city for the purpose of arranging the distribution of his goods in western Canada.

F. E. Welden, for 26 years a retail grocer in this city, and who relinquished the business a few months ago, has bought, for speculation purposes, the bankrupt dry goods stock of James Wright, on Main Street.

Considerable complaint is being lodged at the present time among the various retailers here as to the laxity on the part of the express companies to deliver goods which have come in by rail to the retail stores. One grocer says he had 100 pounds of butter, which had come in from a Saskatchewan creamery, lie at the depot for four days before it was delivered. After the exorbitant express charges that are now claimed to be in vogue, the companies, he thought, ought at least to endeavor to give the best possible service in handling the goods.

The retail merchants are looking forward to the opening of navigation, when many lines of English and foreign goods, of which the stocks at present are low, will come in. Naturally they are anxious for early arrivals.

SASKATOON.

April 27.—A new department for groceries, confectionery and tobaccos has been opened in MacBeth's store. It is located in the rear of the store where an attractive display of goods is laid out. The stock of groceries arrived a few days ago from Winnipeg, and have been carefully selected by Mr. MacBeth, who, by means of the department, will fill a long-felt want in the city. In order to accommodate the grocery department the office has been elevated, giving sufficient room for shelving, bins and other equipment. A reserve stock is kept in the basement with which to replenish the shelves at any time. The manager of the new department is A. McMillan, of Winnipeg, who has had experience in this line of business. A show case with a tempting supply of confectionery has also been installed while a toilet soap table has been placed in the dry goods department. Show cases are becoming more and more in use in Saskatoon and Mr. MacBeth has also one provided for his tobaccos, of which he has a fine assorted stock. This case is appropriately situated in the men's furnishing department, facing the main entrance. In making these additions to his stock the proprietor feels that the growing trade of the community in which he lives demands it.

J. P. Frieson has added a bakery to grocery business.

B. H. Smith of Prince Albert has opened a new bake shop.

Avery Smith of Floral and T. A. S. Campbell of Zelma were both in the city this week on business.

One of the most recent marks of enterprise in central Saskatchewan is the Aberdeen Milling Co's mill at Aberdeen. It has just been opened and is now turning out flour. The mill has a capacity of 125 barrels a day. In connection with the mill is an elevator of 35,000 bushels capacity.

A. W. Cooper, the Broadway merchant, has made an assignment of his goods and possessions. He appeared in the local police court last week charged with forgery. At that time he was granted bail on $500 for one week but failed to put in an appearance. A new warrant has been issued for his arrest. The story of Cooper's short career here is one which is seldom heard of in the history of a grocery store. Coming to the city a few months ago he purchased the general business of B. A. Archibald & Co., which was for sale. He tendered a cheque for the full amount some $14,-800. At the bank the cheque could not be cashed. Explanations were asked for whereupon Cooper showed a letter from Martin & Co., London, Eng., to the effect that $28,000 was in their hands to his credit and that this was being sent out to him. It is thought this letter was a forgery as a pad of paper considered to be similar to that on which it was written was found in his possession. In the meantime goods kept coming in on the strength of the credentials furnished by Cooper. At length suspicions being aroused, the creditors closed in and he is supposed to have quietly left the city. He was quickly traced up by the police and allowed out on bail but he again could not be found. A meeting of the creditors has been held and a settlement arrived at.

Winnipeg, April 29.—It is usually the case after a brisk holiday trade such as the retailers experienced here last Easter, that a reaction sets in for a time when the trade is dull. Last week, however, was one that all merchants were well satisfied with. No cuts have as yet been made to get rid of superfluous stock, which not only indicates that the stock of Easter goods moved off well at the time, but that goods have been moving freely ever since.

The cold wave which came very suddenly on April 21, seriously impeded the business for the latter part of the week. But it is fine again, and as the public are used to sudden changes of weather in this quarter and at this season of the year, it does not take long for fine days to put trade right.

For about two weeks past the farmers have been coming in freely from different sections of the country. The city will have to get along without them now, however, until the seeding is completed. It is expected that eggs and butter of the dairy quality will not reduce much in price until the farmer is free again, when they will take on their summer price.

Fresh fruits and vegetables are more reasonable than they were at this time last year which is attributed to the fact that there are more merchants in the trade, and being keen for business are bringing in the odds and ends that contribute to the general output of the trade.

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS — Since the large Easter output the stocks are low in these lines. Withdrawals are reported in peaches, currants and apricots. The market generally is quite firm and particularly in those above mentioned. We quote last week's advanced prices. In some cases prunes have been run off at reduced prices owing to the fact that packers were anxious to get rid of their stocks before the warm weather set in. We cannot quote a reduction however.

POT AND PEARL BARLEY—The advanced prices of last week remain firm. Pot barley is quoted at $2.70 ; pearl barley at $3.90 and half sacks at $2.05.

BROOMS—The high prices continue. Manufacturers of hair brooms are reported to be endeavoring to undermine the sale of corn brooms, since they consider their prices to be more reasonable. Corn brooms are moving from $3 to $4.25 per dozen.

MEATS—The Canadian meats which we have been quoting are gaining in favor in the west. The "American" products have heretofore been selling heavily here, but it is expected that the Canadian goods will win out in the competition in time.

EGGS—The cold weather during the past week has decreased the supply of eggs from local poultry raisers. It was expected that they would be as low as 16c by this date, but to-day they are selling freely at 18c from the jobbing house.

BUTTER—The creamery product is quite firm at 26c to-day, and the dairy is also advanced one cent over last week, selling from the jobber at from 15c to 16c per pound. The butter market will be good until the grass product begins to come in.

A VALUABLE AID TO GROCERS.

Law's Grocers Manual contains much useful information for tea and fruit dealers, Italian warehousemen, grocers, chandlers, drysalters, bakers, confectioners, and general store-keepers. The work was compiled and arranged by James T. Law, and is in its 2nd edition. The work is being put out by Gilbert & Rivington, Ltd., St. John's House, Clerkenwell, London, E.C. In addition to the encyclopedia which contains matter dealing with practically every product handled by the above enumerated tradesmen, there is a large portion of the back of the book taken up by a treatise on the conduct of a retail store. This matter covers practically every phase of store management, including bookkeeping and window dressing, customs duties, weights and measures, and many other things of interest to the grocer. The book certainly denotes deep research on the part of Mr. J. T. Law, the publisher, and is one that a grocer, who once procures it, would scarcely care to part with.

PRESENT DAY CLERKS.

The Winnipeg correspondent in the issue of two weeks ago, complains about the difficulty merchants have in securing good clerks. It is a fact, he says, in which all grocers at least agree, that the clerks of to-day are not of the same calibre as they were years ago, and he would like to have the opinions of the clerks themselves on this question. If these merchants are right there must be a reason for it and nobody can give it better than the clerks themselves. The Canadian Grocer will be pleased to receive any correspondence from clerks and grocers on this interesting question.

HINTS TO BUYERS.

Orders for immediate and future delivery of canned goods and mushrooms, the former goods Soleil Brand, and the latter packed by F. Lecourt, Paris, are being taken now by Eby-Blain, Limited, Toronto. The stock of Soleil canned goods carried by this firm is complete and fresh and orders are promptly filled. These goods are so favorably known to the consumer that orders are coming in very satisfactorily. F. Lecourt, Paris, France, has made a reputation for himself as a packer of first class mushrooms and as the prices quoted are very attractive it is not surprising that the volume of business being done is extremely large. Travelers are now on the road with samples and prices.—Advt.

QUEBEC MARKETS

POINTERS—

Sugar—Strong Undertone.
Maple Products—Season Closing.
Tea—Stocks Light.
Coffee—Steady Market.

Montreal, April 29, 1909.

The week has been rather on the quiet side. This is generally the case at this time of the year. Business in the country is more or less tied up on account of the bad condition of the roads and the fact that buyers are waiting in many cases for inland navigation to open, on account of the special advantages in freight rates that they receive therefrom. In addition to this the whole country is waiting for the opening of the port of Montreal. Whether this makes as much difference to the business situation as is thought, is a question, but in any case it is looked forward to, to give a great impetus to trade in general.

The sugar market has developed a strong undertone, although no changes have actually taken place in quotations. The maple sugar market has not changed, although some very fancy prices have been paid in a few isolated cases, for exceptionally fine goods. These transactions have been limited, to a few special requirements.

Teas are very scarce in all varieties, the market being bare of Japans and some lines of blacks.

Other lines are practically the same as last week. There is a marked improvement in collections reported this week.

SUGAR—The continued unfavorable weather in Cuba has imparted a strong tone to the market. The rains have hampered work greatly, many factories have closed and will resume only when the weather becomes favorable again. Locally business has been fairly good but buyers are holding to the hand to mouth style of buying largely. There have been no changes in quotations.

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES—The demand for Barbadoes molasses is not as brisk as when the stock arrived on the bare market. Although the quantity which has come in is small, it has been large enough for the requirements. Corn syrups continue to go into consumption fairly freely, especially the smaller tinned lines. Prices have not shown any changes during the week.

MAPLE PRODUCTS—The maple sugar season is over and although the season has been a short one, the yield has been fairly gratifying. In discussing the situation with a resident of the Eastern Townships, he stated that the quality of the sugar made this year had been high. Demand has become regular and of fairly good size. There is noticeable an increasing preference for maple syrup rather than sugar each year. Prices have not altered during the week.

TEA—Picking for the new crop has commenced in Japan but this only applies to some choice grades which are picked before the leaves fully mature. It is rather early to form an opinion with regard to the future of the crop. The export stock will not be on the market for some time yet. The stock that is being picked now is for home trade and does not affect the export market. Locally, the market is bare of supplies. Practically all lines of blacks are also in small compass and some are exhausted. Fortunately trade is anything but good, so the two conditions co-incide. Reports from London state that trade in the month of March was decidedly dull and much under the volume done in the corresponding month of last year.

CANNED GOODS

MONTREAL—There is an exceptionally good demand for canned vegetables but canned fruits are going slowly. Fish has of late shown some improvement to the preceding two or three weeks. Canned salmon is being inquired for freely. Canned meats are increasing steadily in demand, owing to approach of summer. There is a good steady demand for pork and beans.

TORONTO.—For many lines of canned goods the demand is good. In the fruit line gallon apples have been moving quite rapidly. Pumpkin is als a fair seller in view of the comparative cheapness of the attributes which go to make up pumpkin pie. Tomatoes are also going into consumption readily as well as corn and peas, considering the quantity of the latter.

Meats are also gaining in favor with the approach of the warmer weather.

ONTARIO MARKETS

POINTERS—

Starch—Advance of ½c.
Corn Syrup—10c per case advance.
Sugar—Easier.
Dried Peaches—Splendid sales.
Evaporated Apples—Better trade.

Toronto, April 29, 1909.

While the announcement is made by some of the wholesale grocers this week that trade is improving others still claim that a quietness for this time of year still prevails. The rather chilly spring weather may have had something to do with business along some lines and also the fact that the farmers of Southern and Western Ontario are busily engaged with their seeding causes their trade with their country towns to be somewhat slack. Collections, however, are on the upward move and this is a good sign.

The advances in the prices of starch and corn syrups are the features of the week. This change came into effect on Monday. Corn syrup, on account of the advance in corn, has gone up 10c per case and some lines of starch half a cent per lb.

Sugar since last week was firmer but has since eased off a little. New York refiners advanced their prices 10c per cwt. but continued to sell at their old figure.

Dried fruits, and particularly peaches, are in good demand. The advance in currant prices in the primary market may eventually raise prices here but up to the present no changes have occurred.

SUGAR—The market in sugar has been fairly firm during the week. Since the last report it has developed considerable strength. Large quantities of raw sugar for April and May shipment have been taken on by the refiners and in New York May shipments from Cuba have sold as high as 2⅝c cost and freight and the recent total sales on this basis amounts to some 4,000 bags.

The advance was primarily attributed to heavy rains, causing considerable doubt as to the final outcome of the present crop as well as injuring the young canes. From latest reports however, the weather in Cuba has improved but still remains unsettled.

On the 23rd inst. New York refiners advanced their prices 10c per cwt. to the basis of $4.95 for standard granulated, but they continued taking orders on the old basis. At the time of going to press the tone of the market is, if anything, slightly easier, owing to freer offerings of raws than was anticipated.

In Canada there is no change to record and the market is without special indications for the immediate future. The demand here shows some improvement, which is a hopeful sign for consumption in recent weeks, was down rather low on the hand-to-mouth basis.

SYRUP AND MOLASSES—A general advance in corn syrups is the feature of this market. This took effect on Monday and was due to the advance in corn prices in the United States. The extent of the raise was 10c per case, ⅛c per barrel, half-barrels and kegs, and 5c per pail. Starch has also advanced in several lines, including Canada Laundry, Silver Gloss kegs, barrel and kegs, No. 1 white, Canada white gloss and Canada Corn to the extent of ½c per pound. Molasses are firm, but not changed in price.

TEA AND COFFEE—Brokers state that tea is moving rather slowly and nothing of interest is observed in the market. It is stated that the tea trade in the United States will urge a duty on tea, which, if it goes through, would effectually exclude competition from Canada. From this country in 1908 over 2,000,000 lbs. were exported, and the chief market for this is the United States. The coffee market is steady, with a good demand from northern Ontario.

DRIED FRUITS—Regarding dried peaches one wholesaler states that there were more sold this year than during any of the past four. The reason likely is that the prices are comparatively low. Prunes are in good demand and rather short in some lines, while apricots have also received a good call. Dried apples are handled, but little by the wholesalers, the demand for them being of an export character. Currants are firm in the primary markets and eventually prices should advance here. Valencia raisins are moving fairly.

NUTS—This is a quiet season of the year in the nut market and wholesalers report a quiet trade. Prices remain the same as last year.

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

"In your issue of 23rd you say the Eby-Blain Co. hace given Thos. Kinnear notice of their determination to quit membership in the Grocery Exchange, formerly called the Grocery Guild. Now please say how soon after this notice is given, can they start to sell sugars on open prices and dispense with the equalized rate book?"

WM. WALKER.

In answer to this query Eby-Blain say: Membership in the Guild has no bearing whatever upon prices or terms at which manufacturers' goods are sold by the wholesale trade. If it is necessary to give any further reasons they will be purely personal.

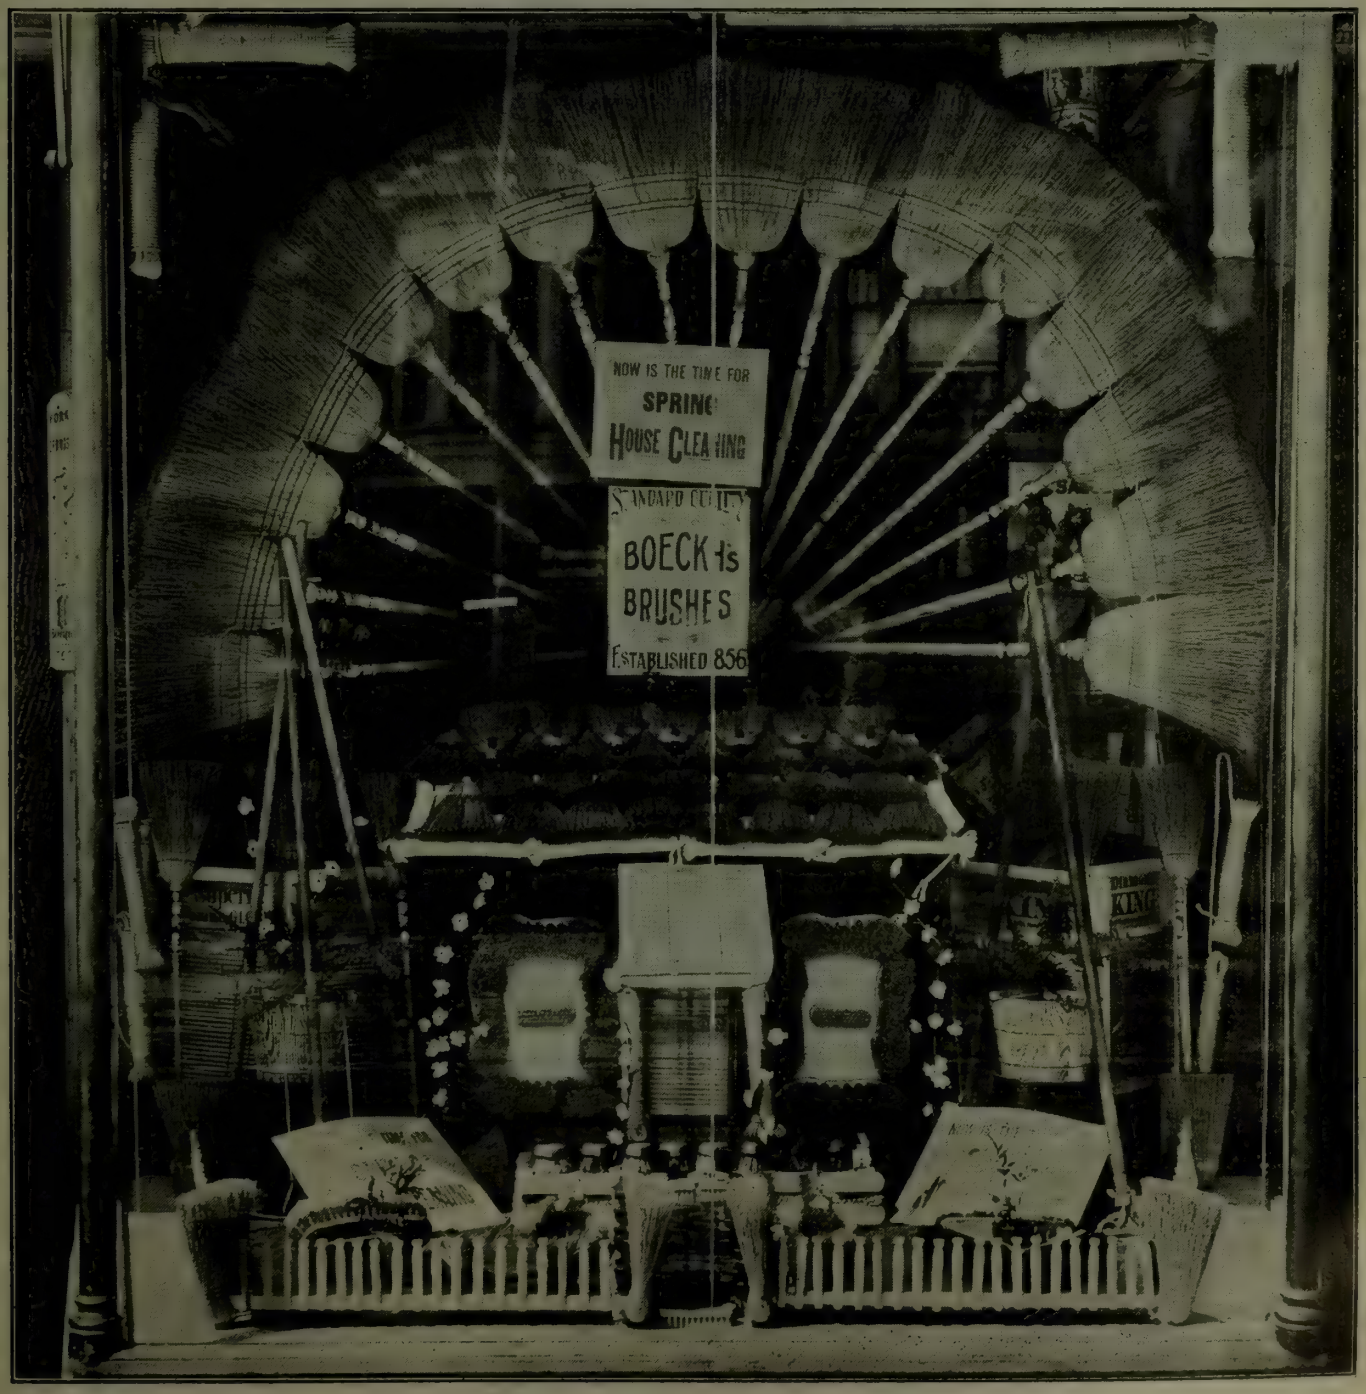
"Cottage" Window Wins in Display Competition

W. J. Graham, College Street, Captures First Prize With a Handsomely Dressed Window of Brushes, Brooms, Etc.—Splendid Display by J. Blood, of Yonge Street—David Bell Third—Some Others in the Contest.

That window dressing is becoming more and more a prominent feature in the business of the retail merchant is evidenced by the fact that some forty grocers and hardware dealers in Toronto alone were competitors in a competition instituted and carried out by the manufacturers and dealers in Boeckh's brushes, brooms, etc. The provisions of the contest were that the displays be kept in the windows from April 14th to 28th.

The winners in the grocers' contest were :

1st—W. J. Graham, 842 College St.
2nd—J. Blood, 419 Yonge St.
3rd—D. Bell, 702 Yonge St.



The prizes consisted of $25, $15 and $10 and these have been awarded to the winners of the competition. The judges were the editors of Hardware and Metal and The Canadian Grocer and in giving their decisions they took into consideration the selling power, attractiveness and originality of the displays in the order mentioned.

From the reproductions of the winning windows it will be seen that the first prize was deservedly won by W. J. Graham, of College Street. For its selling qualities, attractiveness and originality, in the estimation of the judges, it was almost perfect.

Cottage and Garden.

The feature of the display is of course the cottage with its whisk roof, eaves of clothes line, washing-brush window frames, wash-board door, rope porch-posts, and roof of clothes-pin boxes. All suggest to the observer the spring-time when housecleaning is in vogue, and the whole is pleasing to the eye.

The display, however, does not end with the neatly erected cottage beneath the fan-like foliage of brooms. It is carried into the garden and to the roadway. The arrangement of the clothespins as pickets on the fence is novel and immediately attracts the eye. Corner and gate posts are represented by whisks and the walk from the gate to door of the porch is composed of the backs of scrubbing brushes. The porch foundation is also of brushes as well as the floor.

Flower gardens are introduced on either side of the walk by means of inverted brushes or brushes tilted on the sides. Even a brush is used for the chimney top.

Mops, brooms, pails—the latter being used as flower-pots—are also worked into the display appropriately.

An Original Display.

The window of J. Blood is a splendid one so far as originality is concerned and it should also be a good seller. The background is a map of Canada, the work of the "geographical" hand of Mr. Blood's driver. The words "Boeckh's Brooms sweep Canada from Ocean to Ocean" are inscribed across it showing the value of the map. On the left hand side of the cut will be observed the inscription "Pin your faith to Boeckh's Brooms and Brushes" with the one B serving for the three words. The third original feature is the woman standing before the wash-tub wearing the smile "that won't come off."

The Third Prize.

Attractiveness is a strong point in David Bell's window. The brooms, brushes, washboards, pails, tubs, whisks, clothes lines, etc., are all neatly arranged and the window should induce a number of passers by to do some purchasing. Symmetry is also a strong point in its favor and while it might be a little more original, the other qualities under which it was judged, and especially the attractiveness, stand out in prominence.

Many of the other windows in the competition were attractive but seemed to lack the originality displayed in the winners of the first and second prizes. Some of them also wanted selling power, which of all qualifications is the one more earnestly sought after.

Among those deserving of mention were R. Higgins & Son, G. J. Melhuish, Blanche Goodchild (showing the neatness of a lady's touch), Charles Harlock, Geo. Rogers, R. H. White, Wm. Greaves, H. Tolchard, R. K. Dowsley, J. F. Holloway, Lewis Bros., W. Cole, and the Grand Valley Produce Co.

The competition was arranged and successfully carried through by C. M. Farringer.

CO-OPERATIVE STORES.

A Reply to Rossland Writer Who Tells of Success of Two of Them.

Editor Canadian Grocer,—After arguments sufficiently strong were presented to the Senate on which the Co-operative Bill was defeated, after it had been unfairly railroaded through the House of Commons, there are still a few who defend co-operative storekeeping. J. H. Stephens, of Rossland, B. C., can point to two stores which he claims are successful according to his letter in the Canadian Grocer recently. The one is managed by himself and the other by an "up-to-the-minute grocer," and both have been in operation for over a year. The time, however, is too short to be taken as a fair test. I will however not quarrel with him about the profits they have paid to the shareholders. I will leave that to the merchants to figure out.

Mr. Stephens wishes to know why co-operative stores cannot be succesful in Canada, after he has given us figures to show to what extent they have grown in England. One particular reason is, that the conditions are vastly different here from what they are across the ocean. Here a population not many more than in London alone, is spread over an enormously large country, and new settlements are made where small stores are needed and where it would be impossible to provide co-operative stores. These small stores have followed up the new settlers all over our vast country and were a blessing to the people wherever they went. The storekeepers were absolutely necessary to assist the farmers in bringing our new land under cultivation, and deserve as much credit for facing the hardships as the farmers, miners, or any other class of people. Many of these storekeepers supplied the new settlers with goods when they had no money, and waited till they had produced some grain with which to pay for them. After they had done this and established themselves a home, and the settlers had made some money then some irresponsible schemer comes along, who has no money of his own, takes no risk whatever, and asks these settlers, who have been accommodated by the regular and responsible storekeeper to give him their money to put the old storekeeper out of business.

If for no other reason than this, they should never be allowed to exist in this happy country of ours. The prin-

It is good storekeeping to sell only goods which you know to be reliable and to keep only such goods on your shelves.

All grocers should carry a full stock of Royal Baking Powder.

It gives the greatest satisfaction to customers and pays the grocer a greater profit, pound for pound, than any other baking powder he sells ciple is wrong and I hope as long as The Canadian Grocer retains its name it will knock this infringement on the best interests of our people.

But let us look at it from an economical standpoint. It is an undisputed fact that the cheapest and only possible system for distributing the products of the world over our large country is through the wholesale and retail stores. No other system could succeed and as one is dependent on the other, they must of necessity protect each other. Would it be fair, is it fair now, for wholesale houses to supply regular stores and also co-operative stores at the same time? Any one has a right to start a store wherever he likes, but when one goes into a place and either by honest or dishonest representation induces people to take stock in his store and in that way rob the other stores of their customers, and tie them up so that he can hold them even against their wishes, then he takes unfair means to defeat his competitor and the wholesale houses who have been benefiting through the retailers should be in duty bound to protect them.

It is also a well known fact that storekeepers as a rule are not getting too well paid for their work and risk, and will any sane man for a moment believe that hired managers will conduct a business more economically than owners themselves? It has never been the case and never will. From where then can the profit come for the shareholders? M. MOYER.

A SALESMAN'S AUTO.

How a Montreal City Traveler Moves Among His Firm's Clientele.

Charlie Wilkinson, who covers the city trade for Mathewson's Sons, Montreal, startled wholesale grocery salesmen last week by appearing on his rounds in an automobile. The boys are still wondering how it happened. This is the 75th anniversary of the founding of the firm now known as Mathewson's Sons, the wholesale grocers, and this may account for the appearance of the auto at this moment. The accompanying photograph shows the machine and three recent occupants of it. Charlie Wilkinson it at the wheen, while S. J. Mathewson, one of the partners, sits at his left, looking quite unconcerned. His son, Fred, is seated in the back, supervising the photographer.

The machine is the most recent Reo make, and a first-class automobile in every respect. Through it Mr. Wilkinson is enabled to cover his ground more frequently, and also more thoroughly. Mathewson's Sons is the first wholesale grocery firm in Montreal to supply a local traveler with an auto, but it is likely that the example thus set will be followed by other houses in the near future. The progressiveness of the firm in making use of the automobile to boost business has been favorably commented upon throughout the city.

IMMENSE AUSTRALIAN FARM.

More Than Nine Million Acres Purchased by Bovril Australian Estates.

The newly formed company "Bovril Australian Estates" have acquired pastoral lands to the extent of 9,261,400 acres in the northern territory of South Australia and the Kimberley district of western Australia, together with about 100,000 head of cattle. Even in this country of immense areas these estates may be considered large for two would more than equal the whole of New Brunswick and they would almost equal the whole of Nova Scotia. If the larger provinces of the Dominion were divided into estates of the size of the Bovril Australian Estate the result would be that:

Manitoba would make five.
Alberta would make sixteen.
Saskatchewan would make seventeen.
Ontario would make eighteen.
Quebec would make twenty-four.
British Columbia would make twenty-five.

The object of the company is to work with Bovril Limited and the Argentine Estates of Bovril Limited which recently acquired under a similar arrangement 438,076 acres and thus to place the Bovril Company in an absolutely secure position so far as their supplies of beef are concerned.

Lord Brassey is the chairman of the new company and Mr. Sydney Kidman, known in Australia as the Cattle King, is one of the directors.

The new company starts with a capital of $1,241,850.

Produce and Provision Situation of the World

Meagre Supply of Hogs Still Disadvantage to the Packers—Cured Meats Advance—Irish Butter on the English Market—Probable Advance in White Cheese.

While the situation of the provision business, from the packers' viewpoint, is very discouraging, it should be eminently satisfactory to the farmers of Ontario. It is, however, somewhat amusing to see articles in different papers from farmers asking assistance from the Government to protect the hog-raising industry, and yet the farmers of Ontario are receiving higher prices than they do in any other province in the Dominion, or perhaps in the whole world. Through the excellent quality of bacon produced by our curing houses, they have created a demand for cured meats, which is beyond the means of supply. In the effort to meet this great demand, they are paying those very high prices, and the farmers are getting the benefit of it. Through the keen race to secure the supply, hogs are bought before they have reached the proper weight and therefore the same number of hogs are not put into the same quantity of bacon on the market. This in itself, keeps the supply short for it works from both ends. The younger and leaner the bacon the better it eats, and, therefore, the more is consumed. The shortage of weight in the other end requires a larger number of hogs to produce a certain quantity of meat. There is at present nothing in sight to indicate that prices will be lower, but rather that they will still go higher, until the production of hogs has materially increased. On the whole, cured meats have advanced about half a cent, which the patient public will have to accept if they wish to enjoy their bacon for breakfast.

Reports arriving from England state that the weather prevailing there is wonderfully warm and bright and the pastures are coming on remarkably well. The arrival of the first consignment of Irish butter for the season has been received with demonstrations of satisfaction, and with the promise of a pretty big make in view, the market has taken unto itself a very dull feeling, with quotations pretty well 25c per cwt. down all around. Australians are arriving very slowly and have fallen off but this does not worry the buyers who do not seem to require it. Manchester, Bristol, Glasgow, Cardiff and Liverpool are all dull and prices lower. Canadian, at the latter port, is fixed at 96s. to 100s.

The English cheese situation is decidedly dull but prices remain firm and are unchanged with a tendency for white to improve at 64s. White is especially strong and probably will advance soon. The arrival of Canadian cheese during March was only half as much as arrivals from New Zealand.

The local market is without any new features, prices being firm on account of the recent strength displayed in the market for hogs. BUTTER—The market for good butter is still firm and there is not any too much to meet the demand. Since so much of held creamery butter, which was of good quality, was put on the market at reduced prices, the consumption of butter must have doubled and in consequence it rapidly disappeared, and the demand for good butter must depend on the fresh made article. German-Canadian Treaty and Possible Benefits

The statement that there is a possibility of a commercial treaty being concluded between Germany and Canada comes as an agreeable surprise to German business men, who deplore the fact that they are losing ground rapidly in Canada. The Tageblatt points out that a settlement of the conflict with Canada will pave the way for the regulation of commercial relations with Britain, and urges that an agreement of a permanent nature should be arrived at as soon as possible. There is all the more necessity for an early conclusion of such an agreement on a sound basis, it says, as there seems to be every prospect of the idea of tariff reform being realized in Britain.

The foregoing is the copy of a cablegram sent from Berlin, Germany, and published in the Canadian newspapers some few days ago. The talk of a German-Canadian treaty is by no means new. Every little while since 1897, when Great Britain, at the request of Canada and the other self-governing colonies of the Empire, gave notice of the abrogation of her commercial treaties with Germany and Belgium in return for a trade preference within the Empire, there have been proposals, more or less seriously considered, looking towards the adoption of a trade arrangement between Germany and Canada.

No doubt the present agitation for a commercial treaty is due to the benefits expected to flow from the recently-signed Franco-Canadian trade treaty, and that the present agitation for this treaty comes from Germany, shows what country expects to reap the greater benefit. Hon. Mr. Fielding, Minister of Finance, says no negotiations are going on with the Canadian Government looking to the making of such a treaty.

At the time of the giving of the preference to Britain dire things were promised to result to this country should Germany retaliate; and something did happen when Germany put up the bars; notably, a great falling off of Canadian flour, wheat and other grain exports to Germany, as well as some damage done to our other agricultural products exported to that country. But Germany was the greater loser, and time and again German merchants have advocated a closer trade union between the fatherland and Canada.

Little Effect on Grocers.

John I. Davidson, of Davidson & Hay, did not see how goods handled by grocers could be either helped or hindered, and so, for the grocer, the projected treaty had no interest. But he took an interest in and followed closely Imperial affairs, and his opinion now was the same as that he expressed a dozen years ago, when he advocated a closer union between Britain and her colonies by shutting out cheap trashy products and doing something to prevent Britain being the dumping-ground of all nations.

Assistance to Packers.

James Madden, general manager of the Wm. Ryan Co., provision packers, thought such a treaty would help his business. Up to the time of the British preference, and before Germany retaliated, his company had done quite a good business with German houses in the exportation of rough meats. Briskets and such class of fresh meat were boned, cured, packed in tierces, and sent to Germany, and a thriving trade was done. But the raising of the duty and the placing of restrictions regarding the kind of meats imported and how that meat was packed soon cut off this business.

Germany Makes Its Own Cheese.

J. Wright, of the MacLaren Imperial Cheese Co., did not see how a commercial treaty between Canada and Germany would help the Canadian cheese trade. Germany is a great consumer of cheese, but every villager who owns a cow makes cheese, and a traveler going through that country can see on almost every house window little cheese balls left there for seasoning by the frugal housekeeper. Then the Germans eat a stronger cheese than is made in Canada. Nearly every town in Germany makes a brand of cheese which is the pride of the inhabitants of that village. A commercial treaty would not help the cheese trade. Canada does not want German cheese; and Germany does not want our cheese. There should, though, be a chance for Canadian cheese in Spain, where cattle are few and only goats' milk cheese is made.

From a Flour Standpoint.

A. H. Bailey, of the Northwestern Miller, did not think a commercial treaty would be of benefit to Canada so far as trading in flour and wheat is concerned. Since the abrogation of the favored nations' clause in the trade treaty between Britain and Germany, the latter country had fostered a bounty-fed industrial situation, whereby had been built up a flour-milling industry which was there to stay. Such was the opinion of Mr. Davis who was sent to Germany by the U. S. Government to study trade conditions and commercial possibilities. Last year Germany raised 138,000,000 bushels of wheat from less than 5,000,000 acres, and she milled all this into flour. Her imports from all countries were 96,000,000 bushels. Mr. Bailey thought that the bounty-paying industries of Germany would not care to see any change in the present situation in regard to flour and wheat, for Germany was herself reaching out after foreign markets wherein she could sell her own manufactured flour.

The Importance of Discussing Trade Relations

Canadian Wholesalers Think it Advisable to Have Conventions of Manufacturers, Wholesalers and Retailers—Better Feeling Would Follow—Should Manufacturers Fix Prices to Consumers?—A Positive Argument.

A great deal of interest is evidenced in Canada in the convention held in New York a short time ago of manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers of the United States, to consider their relations to each other in the passing down of the manufactured product to the consumer. It was the first convention of its kind and naturally there was a great deal of speculation as to what the ultimate results would be. but all three interests congratulated themselves on its success. Opinions of the representatives who attended were of course bound to differ. but in many of the important questions they agreed and furthermore they were led to see each others viewpoints, which would naturally tend to break down the barriers so long standing.

In discussing the convention with The Grocer, G. J. Cliff, manager of the Toronto Salt Works and representative of the Canadian Salt Co. of Windsor, stated he was a thorough believer in trade going from the manufacturer to the wholesaler and then to the retailer. He did his business with the wholesaler and always found this plan beneficial.

"We collect from them," he said, "and eliminate all the worries and the extra expense we would have in dealing with the retailer."

Interests Are Common.

W. P. Eby of Eby-Blain, considered the idea of uniting to talk trade conditions was along the proper line. The interests of all three were analagous and it seemed right to him that they should consider together their own problems.

It would be difficult he thought to arrange a plan which would be suitable to all. Business conditions change so rapidly that it would be hard to stick to any fixed regulation.

With regard to manufacturers selling direct to retailers he said that very often it seemed imperative for them to do so.

"Often," he said, "the new manufacturer comes to the wholesaler asking him to handle his goods. The wholesaler may refuse on the grounds that he is selling similar goods for which he has a good demand. He will not carry a stock which he actually doesn't need and doesn't know whether he can sell or not. He says to the manufacturer—'go out and create a demand and then we will handle your goods.' He has then got to go to the retailer to have his goods introduced."

Favors Fixing Prices.

John Sloan, of John Sloan & Co., said the convention was a good idea. He was doubtful as to whether the plan of uniting to discuss rationally trade relations was workable or not but considered that a convention such as the one held in New York would tend to eliminate many of the petty trade prejudices existing. Each of the three sections thought his way was the only one and his views would be liable to be changed sometimes.

Of the manufacturer fixing prices, Mr. Sloan is a strong advocate.

"When a manufacturer insists on a price for any article," said Mr. Sloan, "he knows that that price will be maintained. He has no fear of the retailer underselling it, which not only injures his competitors but the manufacturer."

Mr. Sloan explained that very often the goods of a manufacturer were squeezed out of the market on this account.

"One retailer who is canvassed may say that his neighbor is disposing of the goods at a price under which he can sell to make a profit and so refuses to buy. The result is that retailers won't purchase the goods, preferring to make a profit on others that cannot be undersold."

Another point in favor of the fixed price in Mr. Sloan's opinion, was the smoother sales made. There was none of the haggling over prices so common years ago. When a price is set the buyer whether retailer or consumer knows he will be charged that price and that he is not being assessed higher than anybody else.

To illustrate his point he told a story of the days when stiff bargains had to be made to get a man's business.

"There was one fellow who used to come to town to buy and there seemed to be only one man who could get his trade. Everybody was quite anxious to find out his methods and I was very curious myself. One day I happened to be over there when this fellow came along. He asked the price of sugar by the barrel and when told what it was he said he could get it ⅛ of a cent cheaper somewhere else. 'Your a d—— liar, you know you are,' was the other fellow's reply and the man took the sugar without another moment's hesitation."

Afterwards Mr. Sloan was informed that the buyer did not very often adhere to the truth in such matters and that the way the wholesaler took was the only one with him. Such an occurrence would not be possible under the present sugar arrangement.

How Christie's Biscuits Sell More Than Biscuits—

A NEW grocery store was opened close to the best residential district of one of our largest cities. It was well located and splendidly fitted up.

In passing, Mrs. —— was attracted by its bright, clean appearance.

She thought of it next morning as she was going to the 'phone to order her supplies. Some of the articles on her list she wanted in a hurry. She decided to try the new store.

After getting the number, giving her name, and receiving assurance that quick delivery would be made, she started to read off her list ——

"A three-pound tin of Christie's Zephyr Cream" Soda Biscuits."——

"I'm sorry, madam, but we haven't got them in stock yet. We have ——'s and ——'s, though, if they will do," said the clerk.

"That's too bad," replied Mrs. ——, "for we never use any but Christie's. No the others won't do."

"We will be glad to get Christie's for you and send them up as soon as possible."

"I'm afraid they wouldn't get here in time. "I'll have to order them somewhere else."

"If you will let us fill the rest of your order we will send the goods up at once," urged the clerk.

"Well—no, I'll get everything at one place. Then I'm surer of having it delivered quickly," said Mrs.——

Just because he didn't have Christie's Biscuits, the new grocer lost this whole order, and probably many subsequent ones from the same source.

When he heard from his clerks of this and several similar occurrences, he figured that the little extra profit which had induced him to give other biscuits the preference over Christie's, counted for a good deal less than nothing alongside the trade he was losing.

Then he saw, very clearly, what Christie, Brown & Co's. traveler meant when he said that Christie's Biscuits sold more than biscuits.

Canadian Oatmeal Meeting With Favor in South Africa—United States Losing Ground in the Cape Town Market—Peculiarities of the People.

According to the British Consul-General at Cape Town, South Africa, Canada in 1907 shipped $181,411 worth of oatmeal through that port. The United Kingdom's share was $139,275, while the United States only sent $18,099 worth. This state of affairs was owing to a considerable extent to the preferential tariff in favor of British goods. The above figures show that the United States is losing her percentage of the trade and that Canada is gaining.

The Canadian oatmeal is wholesaled in Cape Town at $4.86 per case of twelve dozen two-pound packages, and retails at 15 cents per package. The oats from the United Kingdom wholesale at $6.56 per case of twelve dozen half-pound packages, $5.46 per case of three dozen two-pound packages and retails at 18 cents per package. In order to introduce their line the manufacturers of the British oats have given the merchants twelve dozen one-fourth-pound samples with every five-case order, which the merchants sell at 5 cents each. The result of this method of introduction is that very big stocks have been sold and are in the hands of the merchants, but consumers have been well satisfied with the Canadian rolled oats and have returned to their use.

Many other breakfast foods are being sold in South Africa, but the sale is limited, and it is stated that, although the population is always willing to try any new breakfast food which comes on the market, nothing has yet been found which permanently sells as well as the Canadian prepared oatmeal. Attempts are being made to induce people to eat breakfast foods made from South African grown maize (corn), but such foods do not meet with much success, as the general opinion in South Africa is that maize foods are only fit for the natives.

FLOUR—The pyrotechnics which have been taking place in the wheat market, have frightened buyers away. Another factor which militates against trade is the anticipation of river navigation. When it comes near this time, buyers strain a point to ship in this way, as they accomplish a considerable saving in freight rates. Prices among local millers still show considerable differences. No changes have taken place during the week.

TORONTO.

FLOUR—The flour market, in response to the advance of wheat, is firm with an upward tendency. Wheat advanced again on Tuesday about 2½c, and millers are beginning to realize that wheat will maintain its high level and that flour must go up to reach a price that will bear the proper relation to wheat. At present it is claimed that wheat could not be bought and manufactured into flour and sold without a loss, leaving therefore nothing for the miller. This is a state of affairs that cannot last long and either wheat must drop or flour go up. Although the wheat market is supposed to be based on the stock on hand and the outlook of the next crop, it is probably more a fight between the bulls and the bears, and the general public have to abide by the results and pay accordingly.

CUT OUT CREDITS.

Irrespective of the financial condition of their customers a large number of Minneapolis grocerymen will put their business on a strictly cash basis after May 1st. To this end placards now appear in many stores of that city notifying the patrons that the credit book will be a thing of the past within a few weeks. The action will be taken on account of the inability of many of the smaller stores to continue with outstanding accounts failing to materialize when due.

Manufacture of Licorice From the Roots of Various Plants—Cultivated in Southern Europe and in Asia—Valuable for its Medicinal Qualities—Demand Gradually Increasing—How the Sweet Juice is Obtained From the Root.

LICORICE. — This was anciently known as sweet root and consists of the roots of a genus of perennial leguminous plants, known as glycyrrhiza, of which there are seven or eight varieties. G. Glabra, the common variety, is a native of Italy and is well known, but the juices of G. echinata and G. glandulifera are equally esteemed as pectorals. They all have a sweet, earthy, strong and somewhat sickly taste and a peculiar flavor.

The true licorice (G. glabra) grows wild around Elizavetpol and Baku and other points in the south of Europe, but is cultivated extensively in the south of Spain, Italy and Asia Minor, and its roots, three or four feet long, abound with a starchy juice. They have a dark brown, longitudinally wrinkled and somewhat warty surface, and have a carrot-like bark, which is about one-sixth the thickness of the woody cylinder.

The plant also, has underground sucker-like stems, several feet long, harder and tougher than the root, but containing similar qualities. A considerable quantity is grown in Sicily. There, two species are found, but neither is cultivated. One sends down a root, three to six feet, with but few lateral roots. The other only creeps beneath the surface at a depth of 6 to 24 inches, the latter being the most productive and the most highly prized. In Catania there are some half-dozen factories of licorice employing 20 to 40 hands each.

How Root is Prepared.

In preparing the root for market, women with knives scrape off the bark, and then cut it into pieces from one-half inch to length desired. These are then dried in the sun and bagged for export.

Since the time of Elizabeth licorice root has been grown in England, about Mitcham in Surrey, and until twenty or thirty years ago around Kew and Isleworth, but now only in Yorkshire between Pontefract and Knottingly. The deep rich loamy soil of the latter district has long been noted for English licorice root. The plant usually grows from four to five feet high, has few branches but pinnated leaves with many leaflets and blue, violet or white pea-like flowers. In some districts the flowers multiply spontaneously, but where cultivated the plant is propagated by slips off the root stock and requires a deep, rich, loose soil. They are as tenacious of life as horse-radish, and as difficult to eradicate.

Ready in Three Years.

After three years' growth and during the cold season when the leaves of the plant turn yellow (this being an indication that the sap has turned) the whole roots are taken up and found to contain the very valuable and grateful juice called glycyrrhizine, a yellow transparent kind of sugar, uncrystallizable but perfectly soluble. At the above age, the root is at its best, but much of the thick root imported is of 10 to 20 years' growth and contains comparatively very little sap.

This dried imported root is somewhat darker in color than the fresh: it is furrowed longitudinally, and has a slightly acrid or bitter taste, but when peeled it has a yellow color externally and there is no acridity. When cut up into suitable pieces the dried root forms an excellent masticatory.

The British Consul at Batoum says the cultivation of licorice in the Caucasus is becoming very important. In 1897 the export from Batoum, being 4,423 tons, rose in 1898 to no less than 9,760 tons. In a district lying between Elizavetpol and Hadji Cabul, the green root is worth only about 25 shillings a ton. Large quantities are brought to America.

It is produced largely in Persia along the Burujird and Khorembad plains between Teheran, Karun, and Mohamrah, and it is found in considerable abundance in Turkey, near Korna, at the junction of the Tigris and Euphrates, whence it is sent in bales to Marseilles, via Busrah or Baora.

Demand Increasing.

There is an increasing demand for licorice root, in the manufacture of "chewing tobacco," especially in America.

Liquorice paste, or liquorice mass, is a form of crude liquorice somewhat coarse. The plant producing the modern chemical product "glycerolate" of ammonia is extensively cultivated in Turkey, the southern part of the Spanish Peninsula, in Italy, and Sicily and to a small degree in France, Germany, Russia, Mexico and China.

Its extraction from the root when fresh is very easy. It can be done without any special knowledge or training and without any machinery other than a copper kettle.

Has Medicinal Qualities.

After the licorice roots are cleaned and dried they are chopped and boiled in water until the liquid is saturated. When sufficiently boiled it is allowed to stand so that all foreign matter may settle. The liquid is then filtered and evaporated until it gains consistency.

This sweet, starchy and grateful juice has valuable medicinal qualities. As an emolient and demulcent it is very useful in coughs and colds, sore throats and other irritations of the mucous membranes, hence it is used in making cough lozenges, pontefract cakes, pipes and several other semi-sweets. Unfortunately, these pastes are not always what they ought to be; licorice is open to considerable adulteration, which is often palpable to the taste, and militates against its more extended use. It should be bought with considerable caution.

WEEKLY TERMS OF CREDIT.

Fruit and Produce Trade in Toronto Send This Notice to Their Customers.

The Toronto Fruit and Produce Associations have issued a small leaflet announcing to the retail trade the shortening of their terms of credit. This will take effect on May 1 next. The notice reads, regarding the terms all goods will be subject to after the beginning of next month, as follows:

1. That the terms of credit shall be weekly.
2. That all goods purchased up to Thursday night of each week shall fall due on Monday following and that all accounts are to be settled in full not later than the following Wednesday at 3 o'clock, at the offices of the members rendering the statement.
3. That notes, drafts or post dated cheques will not be accepted in settlement, unless same fall due before the final settling day.
4. That all accounts not settled within the specified time shall be subject to the rules of the association.

"It is earnestly requested that the trade will assist the association and the wholesalers by strictly observing the above terms of credit, the new arrangement having been found necessary owing to the large increase in the number of accounts, due to the rapid growth of the city, also to the fact that nearly all lines of fruit and produce have to be paid for by "spot cash" by the wholesalers. All important markets in the States have adopted this system and it has proved entirely satisfactory to both the wholesaler and retailer. The shortening of credit to the retailer means in the end the shortening of credit to the consumer, a solving of a problem which will promote a healthier state of affairs generally."

HEAD OFFICE CHANGES.

The A. J. Deer Co., manufacturers of the "Royal" electric coffee mills and meat choppers, are removing their general offices from Buffalo to Hornell, N. Y., where their factory is located. This company has grown rapidly since its inception four years ago when the idea was simply to erect a small single mill to sell to the smaller stores. But the business grew quicker than it was anticipated and consequently the company had to enlarge its establishment. Their sales organization now covers every state in the Union and they have of course foreign agencies.

About Carnegie and the Eggs

AND NOW Concentration is the Ironmaster's text—"Don't put all your eggs in the same basket," is all wrong. I tell you, "put all your eggs in one basket and watch the basket"; it's trying to carry too many baskets that breaks the most eggs.

¶ How many flour baskets do you watch and carry? We ask not through impertinent curiosity, simply because 'twill pay you better to concentrate your selling energy and put all your enthusiasm in the FIVE ROSES basket. The simple fact that you're pushing more brands than one is evidence that you have not sufficient faith in any. The customer gets the idea that you're bound to "get her coming or going."

¶ Pushing too many brands is like chasing too many rabbits —they all escape. Pick out a permanent, absolutely dependable flour, long on quality, a brand taking the place of all others, embodying their best features without their defects. Average flour cannot be this to you, else it would not be average.

¶ If you fear some other flour may be better than FIVE ROSES, refer the question to some unbiased expert—your own baker, say. Let him make comparisons point by point. Then follow his advice.

¶ We are in business to sell flour. Do you suppose for one moment if FIVE ROSES were not a bread-pastry flour incomparably superior to any other we know of, that we would stake our whole business reputation, our mills, faith and future on FIVE ROSES' quality against the competition of "near-good" flours and their bigger one-time profit? Just give us credit for ordinary business judgment. We're not trying to sell you once, but always. We expect your customer to buy "this brand every time," because she will find it right.

¶ Try Concentration—watch the FIVE ROSES basket. For it is results that will make your next order larger.

New Companies.

The Dominion Scale Co., of St. John, N.B., has been formed to manufacture and deal in all kinds of scales.

Announcement is made in the Canada Gazette of the formation of a company at Salisbury de Valleyfield, Que., and known as the Star Biscuit Company, with a charter to manufacture candies, chocolates, biscuits, etc.

P. L. McNeil, Denver, Colorado, is now in Nova Scotia forming a company to grow cranberries near Aylesford. They have secured a tract of land 130 acres in area but it will probably take two or three years to place it in a condition to yield a good crop. Mr. McNeil says there is an unlimited market for cranberries.

HINTS TO BUYERS.

The "S.C.Co.," which means the Sherbrooke Cigar Co., of Sherbrooke, Que., have stamped their name on a new cigar named the 7-20-4. They have risked their reputation on making a fine ten-cent cigar. They claim it is the best ten-cent cigar on the market to-day. It is copious with fine Havana filling, and is a long, well-shaped, round cigar. Already orders for it have been coming in from all parts of the Dominion. Although the idea of brands by numbers is common in United States, no Canadian house has before attempted to use numbers for brands. The name 7-20-4 is easy to say and is so convincing to the busy man that it is sure to have a large sale among all classes. It is fine enough for any club and is so reasonable in price that even the working man can buy it. Why the latter is mentioned is that it would be better for the working man to buy a good cigar like this one, as he gets not only double value in size but in quality. Grocers will find the 7-20-4 a ready seller, and in the West and in big railway centres they will sell like hot cakes. Ninety per cent. of traveling men ask for cigars by numbers. If you carry the right brands you will get the trade. This company still make the brands Hogen Mogen, Royal Sport and Saratoga.—Advt.

GREEN FRUIT.—On Tuesday morning after the fruit men had their meeting with the retailers the previous night to consider the new system of collecting their accounts, there was considerable talk about the different views retailers take of the plan. The wholesalers, however, feel that they are justified in taking the course they have adopted, and are satisfied, if strictly carried out, it will bring good results. Apart from this little excitement, business is moving along quietly with very little changes to report. Among the heavy work and hustle a little humor is always in place. The Grocer representative on his rounds observed a horse standing behind a waggon loaded with fruit and had his nose in a case of oranges enjoying a rare feast. A witty Englishman called the attention of the owner of the horse to the fact that his nag would be worth $3.00 more by the time he would "get through with that case." Navel oranges will soon be out of season. Pine apples are coming in freely. Exceptionally fine, hot house strawberries are shown at Wellwood's and watermelons at $2.00 apiece.

VEGETABLES.—Vegetables of all kinds are becoming more plentiful, and almost everything in this line is on the market. Almost from week to week it can be noticed that they are coming from points farther north and it will only be a short time till we will have them of our own growth here. It is remarkable however how the production of vegetables in hot houses has developed during recent years. Some of the finest lettuce that has ever been on this market has arrived from Aldershot, near Hamilton, where it was grown under glass. With constantly improved transportation facilities, and by artificial means of cultivation, fresh vegetables may be expected to be within reach all the year round. Several cars of cabbage arrived this week in good condition. Potatoes are firm with a slight advance.

Failure of Many of the Olive Crops in the Far East

Supply in Many Districts Insufficient to Meet the Home and Foreign Demands—Production Curtailed in Greece, Crete, Italy, Syria and Palestine—The Result is Higher Prices—Used for Soap Manufacture—Growers in Disgust Cut Down Trees.

By. O. S. Heizer.

It is estimated that the entire Turkish output of olive oil will not exceed 900,000 quintals (Turkish) or, say, 50,000 tons. The principal centres of production are Aidin, Baindir, Odemich, island of Mitylene, Edremit, Aivaly, Kulluk, and the islands of the Archipelago. This crop is below the average of 70,000 to 75,000 tons. It is, therefore, relatively insufficient to meet local requirements and foreign demands.

The olive-oil crop in Greece, Crete, Italy, and Morocco has completely failed. The crop of Tunis is estimated at about 10,000 tons, or about one-fourth of its average crop.

As far as Spain is concerned opinion is divided, but it is believed that the country possesses a very considerable stock of last season's oil and that the present crop will reach about one-third of that of a good year. Spain is the largest olive-oil producing country in Europe. A good harvest gives about 500,000 tons of oil. Its home consumption is very considerable, and it is probable that the high market price will prevent its exportation. If next spring the olive groves give hopes of a large crop, the prices of Spain will drop, affecting foreign markets, the American included.

The crop of Turkey alone gives no hopes whatever of export. Southern Russia, Roumania, Bulgaria, northern Asia Minor, Egypt, Tripoli, etc., draw their supplies from the Levant, which includes Greece and the island of Crete.

Shortage in the Crop.

The stocks on this market are nil, and the arrival of the newly pressed oil is anxiously awaited. Important orders are expected from France and Italy, which have already sent their agents to Smyrna to make important purchases. From the foregoing it is only natural that this market is firm and the prices paid for local consumption as well as export are in the ascendant. Compared with the yield in Spain, which often reaches 500,000 tons, the Turkish crop this season is an insignificant 10 per cent., which is all the more to be regretted as the climatic conditions are eminently favorable to olive culture and the trees grow wild in more than one province.

The exportations from Turkey amount to about 12,000 tons, valued at $1,851,529 for the year ending March 13, 1906, while the imports were 2,550 tons, valued at $380,287. Both exports and imports average 6 to 7 cents per pound, although the oils imported are superior French and Italian oils.

Improvements Needed.

Another fact bearing upon the quality of this product must not be overlooked, and it is that in many regions the system of olive pressing is most rudimentary and in some districts is very similar to that employed by the ancient Jews. There is certainly great need of modern machinery and more scientific methods in order to secure the best results from the oil industry in this Empire, which is so well adapted by nature and climatic conditions to be one of the leading olive-oil producers of the world.

Small Crop in Palestine.

Writing from Palestine regarding the olive crop in and around Jerusalem, Thos. R. Wallace states that the information gathered from the various olive-producing countries bordering on this district, as well as Asia Minor and Egypt, would indicate the olive crop at the best is this season far below the average, while in many places it is almost a total failure. In and about Jerusalem it is rated at a fifteenth of a crop, other neighborhoods it is a tenth, others an eighth; these ratings cover the general conditions of the crop in Palestine, so far as he was able to learn. In the large producing districts in Asia Minor it is reported at the best but half a crop, while in Egypt it is reported as almost a failure.

He was informed there was considerable oil kept over in storage, but not enough to affect the market prices. The stock on hand with the product of this season's crop will not nearly supply the local demand, and many are resorting to other articles as a substitute.

Oil Made Into Soap.

The price of oil is always lowest in December, but at the beginning of the year it was higher by 50 per cent. than at any time last season. Very little of the olive crop is shipped from that district in any form, except when manufactured into soap, but this season there is not enough to supply the local demand. The olive oil put upon the market is not tested, nor is it analyzed, so that it is impossible to determine the quality from that source.

The pulp of the olive is pressed three different times, and the quality or grade is fixed from that fact. The product derived from the first pressing is the highest grade, the third is the poorest. Oil derived from the third pressing is never put upon the market in that district. It is contracted for in advance by the soap manufacturers; therefore no market price is fixed to this grade.

The first two pressings are used as "edible," the third never; its color is black and much of the pulp is mixed with it. It is said a better soap is made by mixing with it the better grades. The best quality of olive oil sells on the market, says Mr. Wallace, at 80 cents per gallon, a poorer quality of the same grade at 75 cents, and the cheapest offered is 60 cents per gallon. There is no market price fixed for the third pressing.

The Syrian Olive Crop.

In the Aleppo district of Syria, the production is also greatly curtailed. Jesse B. Jackson writing from there says:

The statistics of the local government show that in the year 1907 the province of Aleppo produced 1,599,259 okes, equal to 4,397,962 pounds, of olive oil, figuring the oke at 2¾ pounds, with a total value of $748,000. These figures cover the amount of first-quality oil, pure yellow commercial oil, and a low-grade oil commonly used for soap manufacturing, but as no record was kept of each distinct quality, no separate figures can be given showing their respective amounts. The average value was estimated at 46¾ cents per oke.

Recent careful inquiry in the olive-producing localities indicates that the crop for 1908 is deplorably short, it being estimated at less than 25 per cent and probably not to exceed 20 per cent. of the product of 1907, or possibly 319,852 okes, at the present market price valued at $149,600.

Cut Down Trees in Disgust.

The great uncertainty of having a successful season creates much dissatisfaction among the growers, and it not infrequently occurs that a proprietor becomes so disgusted with the business that he cuts down his trees, sells the trunks and largest branches to the cabinetmakers, where he obtains fabulous prices, and the roots and other parts to the city inhabitants for fuel, thereafter cultivating the soil for the raising of cereals, etc.

For Three Cents

is the cost of electricity to grind one at a pound a minute. Think of it, ground faster than you can sell it. You can sell other merchandise while the mill is attending to the coffee.

INSTALATION. Simply screw plug into any lamp socket of lighting line and start and stop by snap switch. No rheostats and special power lines made necessary by larger motors.

SIMPLICITY. There are no gears or complications to go wrong and eat up power, and our cutters have hardened cast steel teeth and are fitted directly to motor shaft.

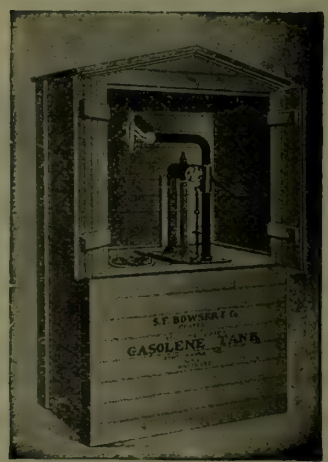
Keep Your Gasolene Outdoors

Store it in a Bowser Outdoor Cabinet

The Bowser will keep your property absolutely safe from gasolene fires and explosions because it keeps explosive gases from forming.



It will increase your profit on gasolene because it stops the usual loss of from 15 to 50 per cent., through evaporation, leakage and waste. It draws new trade because it is placed in front of the store where it continually advertises the fact to automobilists and others that you sell gasolene.

The Bowser costs you nothing because it pays for itself by its own saving of gasolene. Ask us to send Gasolene Catalog 5045. It's free.

S. F. BOWSER & CO., Ltd.

66-68 Fraser Ave., TORONTO

If you have an old Bowser and want a new one, write for our liberal exchange offer.

"Every little helps"—yes it does.

But this generation moves very rapidly; more business can be done in an hour than in a day a few years ago.

However many "little helps" a grocer may have, Great Helps are a necessity to establish and round out successful trade; and to the latter belong

SODA CRYSTALS (WASHING SODA)

Foreign Soda Crystals—and some of English manufacture—are being extensively offered for sale in this country which are grossly adulterated with Glauber-Salts (Sulphate of Soda), a cheap product which is not only entirely useless for washing purposes, but is even likely to injure the fabrics with which it comes in contact. The Adulterated Soda-Crystals, although nominally lower in price than BRUNNER MOND'S PURE SODA CRYSTALS, are in reality much dearer owing to the large quantity of useless and injurious matter which they contain.

Fish From Scotland

The "Tyne" Brand of canned Scotch fish has all the delicacy and richness of flavor of the freshly caught fish. It is a satisfactory brand to buy because it is always the same—you can judge the quality of the entire year's output by a single can.

The Shields Ice and Storage Company

are specialists in the packing of Scotch Fish—nothing can possibly be finer than their product "The Tyne Brand." Their reputation has been made entirely on this one thing. It is their hobby to offer only the "best"—and they do it.

The germ of the best wheat—the gluten—is the foundation on which the high quality of "CODOU" Macaroni rests. But added to that is the skill acquired by a life time of service in its manufacture. It is

Made By Felix Codou

It is very delicate and tender—never "rubbery." And there is a richness of flavor that makes it very toothsome. Monsieur Codou is so proud of his famous brand that he permits no package to leave his factory without having his name.

CEYLON TEA

IS SO

Rapidly Displacing the Thin Light Teas, Here, in America?

(Two and Three-Quarter Millions Increase in Direct Shipments Alone in 1908 over 1907.)

First: Because it Makes a Strong, Full-Bodied Tea to Satisfy the Coffee-Educated Palate;

Second: Because of Its Piquant Flavor;

Third: Because of Its Unvarying Excellence;

and

Fourth: Because of Its Cheapness Regardless of Cost.

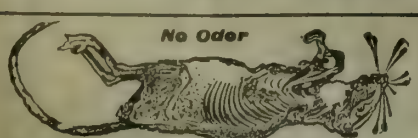
"Eureka" Refrigerator

BECAUSE YOU CAN'T GET A BETTER ONE

"Eureka" Refrigerators have the most perfect circulation of dry, cold air known. Impurities are quickly carried off in the waste water—the food is kept sweet and fresh—no outside ventilation is needed—wet matches kept in the cooling chamber 12 hours become dry enough to light—and the consumption of ice is remarkably small. They are being used by the leading Butchers, Grocers, Hospitals, Hotels and Restaurants.



"Eureka" Refrigerators are lined with either porcelain or with Odorless Spruce coated with pure shellac. Zinc, or iron galvanized with zinc, is never used, because the zinc corrodes and poisons the food. Nothing equals the Odorless Spruce which we have been using for twenty years.

"Eureka" interior fittings can all be removed in a moment for cleaning.

ST. LAWRENCE Granulated Sugar

Maintains its high standard of excellence. This is proved by the following recent Government analysis:

Laboratory of Provincial Government Analyst,

Montreal, February 22nd, 1909

I HEREBY CERTIFY that I have drawn by my own hand ten samples of the St. Lawrence Sugar Refining Co.'s Extra STANDARD GRANULATED SUGAR, indiscriminately taken from four lots of about 150 barrels each and six lots of about 450 bags each. I have analyzed same and find them uniformly to contain 99-99/100 to 100 per cent. of pure cane sugar, with no impurities whatever.

That offers possibility of a larger profit-earning or increasing your sales.

When a wholesale or manufacturing house has a specialty to offer the trade, it can help its travelers considerably by advertising in the recognized grocery trade journal, The Canadian Grocer, thus ensuring a warm welcome for the traveler.

If your proposition is one which interests the retailer—he will be waiting for the traveler to come along.

There is a remarkable resemblance between food and advertising. Advertising is the food of business; it is needed to sustain business-life, as food is needed for strength and vitality. Don't starve your business; give it regular and wholesome diet—give it a good supply of strengthening advertising in The Canadian Grocer.

Special Committee Will Consider Assessment Act

Ontario Legislature Likely to Make Some Amendments at Next Session —All Proposed Changes will Meanwhile be Considered—Working Out of the Business Assessment Generally Regarded as an Improvement on the Old Personal Property Tax—Manufacturers and Coal Merchants Want Reduction in Ratings – Other Retailers Fairly Well Satisfied at Present.

Throughout Ontario when the operations of the new assessment act come into force in January, 1905, resulting in the business assessment being substituted for the personal property tax, it was generally felt that some radical move on the basis of definite, accurate, and more equitable valuations was needed; otherwise, no change would have been inaugurated. After nearly five years of trial it is admitted that the business assessment as a substitute for the personal tax is, on the whole, preferable, although as time has proceeded some inequalities have developed in the working out of the new order of things, not only with regard to business assessments of manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers, but also in connection with the assessment of income, etc.

During the recent session of the Ontario Legislature several notices of amendments to the act were brought forward and specific cases instanced where its provisions were unfair, but the Government felt that to make changes in order to meet these objections would constitute a bad precedent and create a muddle. Patching up an assessment act, once in operation, is like tinkering with the tariff. It would create uneasiness, discord and dissatisfaction. If any alterations are to be made they should be general and take in the whole scheme so that business conditions and standards of valuation may not be too much upset. Mercantile interests want to know exactly where they are at.

Special Committee Appointed.

Nothing was carried out in the shape of amendments last session, but a special committee was appointed shortly before the House adjourned, to inquire into and report upon the working of the present act, and to this committee all bills having in view the changing of present provisions were referred. All these will be thoroughly considered by the committee which will bring in a report at the next session when the provisions of the whole act will come under review. Any changes that are deemed desirable from the standpoint of the many rather than the interests of the few, will likely be made. Merchants and manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers, who think that some of the present clauses should be altered, would be acting in their own welfare if, in the meantime, they present their views and lay their objections before members of the special committee which is a large one, and representative of all parts of the province.

The special committee is composed of Sir James Whitney, Premier; Hon. W. J. Hanna, Provincial Secretary; Hon. A. J. Matheson, Provincial Treasurer; W. K. McNaught, North Toronto; J. W. Johnson, West Hastings; I. B. Lucas, Centre Grey; W. F. Nickle, Kingston; Col. Hugh Clark, Centre Bruce; Henry Eilber, South Huron; W. S. Brewster, South Brant; W. H. Hoyle, North Ontario; G. H. Pharand, Prescott; J. R. Dargavel, Leeds; W. H. Hearst, Sault Ste. Marie; James Torrance, North Perth; P. H. Bowyer, East Kent; F. G. Macdiarmid, West Elgin; J. J. Preston, East Durham; George Pattinson, South Waterloo; Allan Studholme, East Hamilton; Hon. A. G. MacKay, Leader of the Opposition; Daniel Reed, South Wentworth; V. Stock, South Perth; W. J. McCart, Stormont; James McEwing, West Wellington; Duncan C. Ross, North Middlesex; Wm. Proudfoot, Centre Huron; J. C. Elliott, East Middlesex.

Why Change Was Made.

The reason that the business assessment was substituted five years ago for the personal property tax was that it had been the experience, not only in Ontario, but all through America it was found impossible to equitably assess personal property; that an assessor had not the means of getting at a fixed, true valuation, and that there was no definiteness, certainty or foundation for the system. These and many other reasons were urged in favor of a change. Under the old system different methods of escaping taxation were resorted to while the whole plan was found to lead to deception, suppression of facts, and evasion, in the matter of liabilities, liens, and notes, the latter being often greatly exaggerated. The loop-hole was afforded by sub-section 20 regarding "exemption" in the matter of a personal tax, which says: "So much of the personal property of any person as is equal to the just debts owed by him on account of such property." This was the avenue of escape and the machinery provided to get at correct returns was ineffective and inoperative. Some men could, and frequently did refuse to give an assessor a statement of assets and liabilities and then the assessor had largely to resort to guesswork.

As result of crude methods, inequalities and other objections, the business assessment came into force whereby the merchant, the wholesaler and the manufacturer are assessed a certain proportion of the value of the real estate or premises occupied by them, the rating varying from 25 to 150 per cent. of the total value of their respective quarters, and to what purpose they are devoted. No man, however, can escape, if he is engaged in business, for the law does not permit him to pay taxes on a less value than one hundred dollars.

How Merchants Are Assessed.

All grocers, hardware merchants, plumbers, dry goods merchants, and others, under the business assessment, are assessed at 25 per cent. of the value of the premises occupied where the population of the municipality is over 50 000; 30 per cent. where the population is over 10,000; and 35 per cent. if under 10,000. The business tax of wholesalers is 75 per cent. and manufacturers 60 per cent. Coal merchants are rated at 50 p.c., except in cities of over 100,000 population, where it is 30 per cent. This method is easy of application, definite and fixed and the assessor does not have to delve into the private affairs of everyone doing business. It is not claimed that the new system is equitable from a basis of wealth, and could not be for the reason that a percentage of the assessed value of the land is taken as the business assessment in lieu of the value of personal property. Large capital is employed in small places and vice versa, but its advocates contend that it has this effect; and that is, no one can escape. Under the old way, debts due on account of personalty were to be deducted and it is said that not one-tenth of the personal property liable to assessment was assessed. Under the business assessment a certain rating is fixed by the act and an assessor cannot go beyond this rating. Here is where the improvement comes in, although the rating may afford causes of dissatisfaction.

Inquiries made from the city assessment department in Toronto and other cities elicits the information that the new system of business assessment is regarded as a decided improvement, and, while not perfect perhaps, is more satisfactory than the personal property tax. In fact, the number of appeals entered by merchants wholesalers, and manufacturers are not one-half what they used to be under the old order of things.

Difference in Rating.

The question naturally arises why rate some at 25 per cent., some 50 per cent., some 60 per cent., and so on up to 150 per cent? The answer is that, in framing the act and considering its effect on the different municipalities throughout Ontario as a means of providing taxes, it was necessary that its operation should provide at least as much taxes as were collectable under the old act. To prove this statistics from seventy-two municipalities in Ontario, showing the total assessment of their real and personal property and income were collected and statements were obtained also of the amount of taxes collectable from the merchant, the manufacturer, the wholesaler, and others and the assessed value of their real property, so that by supplying the present ratings it was satisfactorily demonstrated that no loss in taxation to any of these places would result. There were also, other reasons for the discrimination in rating, particularly in the larger cities.

E. M. Trowern, secretary of the Retail Merchants' Association of Canada, states that, with very few exceptions, the system of business assessment is giving satisfaction to retailers throughout the country. So far as he knows coal merchants are the only ones complaining. They believe that their rating in places under 100,000 population should be reduced to thirty per cent., the same as that of the majority of retailers. Manufacturers have raised objections and contend the rating of 60 per cent. for them is too high. For various reasons they maintain that the figure should be fixed at 50 per cent. The framers of the act, however, it is said, fixed it at 60 per cent. generally, because, with few exceptions, it is not necessary that manufacturers be located on valuable land.

All objections entered by any business interests will be taken into consideration by the special committee appointed by the Legislature and all anomalies and inequalities, if successfully established, will, in all likelihood, be remedied next year. The general opinion is that the business assessment, although having weakness, is preferable to the old mode. In a recent address before the National Tax Association Mr. Foreman, Assessment Commissioner of Toronto, declared that, as a substitute for personal property, the business assessment is so far in advance of the former system, that the assessment of personal property as such, will, in his opinion, never be revived.

ADVANCE OF CANADIAN SALT.

Now being Extensively Used for Table, Dairy and Canning Purposes.

"Five years ago wholesale grocers sold nothing but English salt; five days ago a representative of an English salt firm called on the trade in Toronto and he couldn't make up a carload."

This was the statement made to the Grocer the other day by a grocery wholesaler. He added that he had some English salt on hand which he had bought some months ago and that there was now little demand for it. The lack of demand was not due to any inferiority of English salt but to the coming of Canadian salt on the market.

Not may years ago little Canadian salt was utilized for canning purposes but now the majority of the canners in Ontario use it. Our own salt has been shown to be inferior to few others and for this reason and because it is easy obtainable it has rapidly grown in favor.

It is, of course, difficult to obtain absolutely pure salt, technically known as sodium chloride. It may be said that it is impossible. Adulterations consist of moisture, residue insoluble in water, calcium sulphate, calcium chloride, and magnesium chloride. The insoluble residue is starch.

The less these adulterants appear in salt the purer it is. Some time ago the government through the Inland Revenue Department collected 87 samples of common salt from retail stores in Canada. The result showed that Canadian salt in most cases excelled the imported varieties.

The samples were promiscuously collected from stores all over the Dominion and another feature shown by the analysis was that Canadian salt was almost exclusively used. For table and dairy purposes as well as for canning, salt of our own country is extensively used. The analysis referred to shows that it is qualified for these purposes and that it is making headway.

LEAVING THE ROAD.

Travelers Form Partnership in Establishing Wholesale Business.

Chas. S. Parsons, a traveler for John Sloan & Co., Toronto, for over 28 years, and Philip H. Brown, traveler for five years for the same firm, united their forces May 1 and opened a wholesale grocery store at 78 Colborne St., Toronto, to be known as Parsons, Brown & Co.

The former belongs to the old brigade of knights of the grip, having started out on the road in the year 1881. In his early days as traveler he covered the Wellington, Grey and Bruce district, but during recent years his territory lay in Toronto city and the main points on the Northern Ontario ground in the Midland district. He was with the original firm of Sloan, Jardine & Mason. Mr. Jardine retired from it about 20 years ago to go with the Pure Gold Manufacturing Co. He traveled for the firm when the late Herbert Mason was connected with it. When he passed away the late Fred Mason became Mr. Sloan's partner and after him came W. C. Crowther. They were in business for ten years before the present arrangement was made. Through all those years Mr. Parsons was with that business until now with Mr. Brown he establishes himself in the wholesale grocery trade.

Philip H. Brown is a younger man than his partner, having been born in

P. H. BROWN,

A Young Traveler Who Forms Partnership with Mr. Parsons.

1873. His birth place was Mimico, where he received an early experience in business in the flour and feed trade. His father was the late C. E. Brown, one of the pioneers of York county.

With Harry C. Burgess, in 1891, he began his business career in flour and feed. The following year he purchased the business for himself and in 1897 added general merchandise. Ill-health, however, forced him to relinquish the business in 1902. The following year he took a trip to the Old Country in connection with an export apple business which he established. Health having returned, he was able to resume work again and secured the position of Toronto traveler for the firm he left last Friday night to again begin business for himself. He started in business originally with $150 capital and any success he made was through his own energy and foresight.

Mr. Parsons and Mr. Brown have known each other for years and at the time Mr. Brown sold his business in Mimico were contemplating becoming wholesale grocers. Their experience, however, as travelers since that time, they believe will benefit them in the present work.

RETAILERS GETTING ALARMED.

Retailers throughout Ontario are becoming keenly interested in the school book contract which has fallen into the hands of the T. Eaton Co.

It would be surprising indeed, were the retail merchants of this country to remain silent and inactive under the circumstances.

The fact that the T. Eaton Company have practically been given a monopoly of the school book trade of Ontario is, perhaps, of very little importance directly to the retailers, but when its far reaching significance is taken into account it is a matter that should very much interest every one of them.

It is estimated that during the first year some 700,000 books will be required from the T. Eaton Company. This means that something like 700,000 children throughout Ontario will send to the Toronto department store for the necessary readers.

The significance of this should make every retailer sit up and think, and think seriously, for not only will it be books that the parents will send to the T. Eaton Company for, but with the catalogue of that firm in their possession they will naturally, when they have to send for books, purchase other things.

While this menacing state of affairs is, for the present, confined to Ontario, business men in other parts of Canada cannot afford to remain disinterested spectators.

The T. Eaton Company can print the same books for other provinces, the only condition being that they shall not charge a higher price than that in Ontario.

What does this mean? This and nothing else: if the Governments of the other provinces become possessed of the idea of getting books at less than cost, they may be led into the temptation of making a similar contract. The retail merchants all over the country would then find themselves in a similar position to that of their confreres in Ontario. It behooves them, therefore, to be on the alert.

It is not our intention for one moment to blame the Government of Ontario. Its first thought was no doubt to get cheap books for the school children throughout that province. But in its desire for this it doubtless overlooked the fact that it was giving a monopoly to an institution which has already done a great deal of damage to the retail trade throughout the country.

Before tenders were sought the Government experts no doubt ascertained the approximate cost of printing the books. They must have known, therefore, when the tenders were received that the figures of the T. Eaton Company were below the cost of production. Knowing this, it is unfortunate that they did not realize that the T. Eaton Company, not being a publishing house in the ordinary sense, must have had some ulterior motive in quoting the figures they did.

This ulterior motive is now obvious to everyone. As we pointed out in a previous issue, every book will bear the imprint of the T. Eaton Company and every book that goes out will probably carry advertising literature, not only regarding books, but merchandise in general. As far as the retail trade throughout the country is concerned, it is here that the heaviest blow is struck.

It is not yet too late for the Government to deprive the T. Eaton Company of this trade menacing evil. It has the power to have the imprint of the educational department put on the books and the books delivered to the educational department and through that department distributed among the purchasers.

Self-interest demands that the retail merchants of Ontario stir up both their local members in the Ontario Legislature and the local press, with a view to bringing about the necessary modifications in the contract.

THE FRUIT MEN'S CIRCULAR.

Two weeks ago The Grocer endorsed the step taken by the Fruit, Produce and Provision Association of Toronto, in curtailing its credit terms to one week. We took this stand because we believed it to be in the best interests of the retail merchant who was endeavoring to carry on his business as successfully as possible, and because it would have the tendency to exclude those grocers who, on account of credit received, were allowed to break in on the business of reliable and established men whom they injured by slashing prices and unfair tactics.

That is still our stand. The circular issued by the association is causing a good deal of opposition, but on the other hand, its purposes are endorsed by a large number of retailers. Some claim the ultimatum is unnecessarily harsh and that they will positively refuse to submit. Their contention is that while they are always willing to settle their accounts promptly, there might come a week in which it is impossible for them to do so. For such cases they would like a special consideration.

In view of this it has been suggested that the jobbers appoint a secretary to look after all questions of this nature and where he deems it advisable to allow an extra time for payment. This appears to be a reasonable request and until the new system is running smoothly it might dispose of any differences existing between the wholesalers and retailers. Eventually the cash system would prevail, as it is the proper one.

When retail merchants pay cash themselves they usually are more interested in receiving cash from their customers. The majority realize that the cash system is correct and if it can be successfully carried out it means smoother sailing in business. The jobbers are justified in their action by the tendency of the times and by proper business principles and the merchants should do their share in bringing about cash transactions all along the line.

DISHONEST MACARONI LABELS.

"What Canada wants for the protection of the grocer, the dealer in foodstuffs and the consumer is a pure food law," said a member of an influential Toronto importing house of food products to The Canadian Grocer a day or two ago in discussing the sale of macaroni and other foodstuffs put on the market under improper labels.

The United States has a law which might well serve as a basis for any legislation brought before the Canadian Parliament. Take, for instance, the case of olive oil, which is made and prepared in Lucca and many other cities in Italy and southern France.

Lucca olive oil has always been recognized as the standard for quality. Before the pure food law was made to apply in the States, however, the great bulk of the olive oil sold in that country was labelled as "Lucca" whether made there or in Genoa, Naples or any other Italian or European city. Even oil made in the United States was so labelled. At the present time this cannot be done. Lucca olive oil must have been made in Lucca to bear the "Lucca" label. If the oil is made in Genoa or anywhere else it cannot be marked "Lucca." In such a case the nearest approach to a "Lucca" label that can be put on the bottles is "Made in Italy." Other oils must be similarly marked "Made in France," or "Made in the U. S.," as the case may be.

Here in Canada some dealers mark and sell olive oil as "Lucca" oil, although it may not be so. Even the labels of high grade oil are sometimes closely imitated.

Perhaps more injury is done to trade here in Canada, however, in the fraudulent marking and labelling of macaroni. There is some macaroni made and put up in Canada and sold under a label as having been manufactured in Europe, and grocers and consumers buy this product under the impression that it is imported. This practice is nothing less than trade deception and misrepresentation, and under the law is amenable to the criminal code. Officers of the law, however, do not care to exercise their authority unless some person prefers a charge, and this no one cares to do. At present this fraudulent custom, while irritating, is not very generally indulged in, but there is just the possibility that it might grow and spread to other lines.

One of the most effective means to check its advance is the enforcement of a pure food law, which would protect manufacturers, importers, wholesalers, retailers and consumers, and encourage honesty in business by placing the stamp of Government approval upon right methods.

THE BOOM IN BUSINESS.

Although there are evidences on every hand that Canadian trade is rapidly improving in almost every particular, travelers report that some merchants throughout the country remain pessimistic and talk of dull times. Why this state of affairs should exist in the face of existing conditions is hard to realize.

Bank clearings, customs returns and building permits in all parts of Canada in comparison with last year indicate that there is no sluggishness in trade and probably if the retail merchants were to reflect on the amount of their business during the first four months of 1908 they would begin the realize that we are on the threshold of a banner year.

In Western Canada bank clearings are showing enormous increases from week to week. As indicated by the Calgary correspondence, the increase last week was more than a hundred per cent. above the corresponding week of last year. Statistics of monthly customs receipts demonstrate similar progress in almost every town and city. The Dominion Government revenue receipts are away beyond those of last year, but in the increase of building permits in a dozen of the important cities of Canada there is found the best evidence of improving conditions.

For the month of March this year the permits taken out in Winnipeg showed an advance of over 645 per cent. over March of 1908. Peterboro was second, with an increase of more than 294 per cent. Halifax, Fort William and Edmonton follow next with substanial gains, illustrating that the building boom is not confined to any particular section of the Dominion.

With these facts before them, retail merchants should have little reason to complain of quiet times. While business may have been a trifle dull during the cool weather of the past couple of weeks, there is every possibility of a splendid year in the commercial arena and merchants, in order to aid in the bettering of conditions, should use their energies in booming business, instead of complaining. It will only be a short time, if the time has not already arrived, when money will be circulating in large and increasing amounts and a healthy state of affairs can be the only result.

INCREASE IN HOME CONSUMPTION

The report of J. A. Ruddick, Dairy and Cold Storage Commissioner for the Dominion, indicates that the dairy industry of Canada is going forward instead of backward. In his report he states that in the past it has been the custom to estimate the volume of he industry, partly on the factory output and partly on the export trade. He points out that this method was all right so long as the home consumption remained constant, because the export trade indicated the increase.

But now a new factor, must be taken into consideration. Latterly, our population had increased with such remarkable strides, that the old method of calculating the annual production was no longer adequate. The figures show that there has been a decline since 1903. This decline, however, has been amply compensated for by the increase in the home consumption. The decline in dairy exports for last year is given as $7,910,340, as compared with 1903, but there has been an increased home consumption of milk amounting to $4,500,000, of butter $4,000,000, of cheese $200,000 and of condensed milk $300,000, or a total increase of $9 000,000.

From time to time The Grocer has shown the injurious effect the habit of shipping green cheese to the English market was having on the Canadian export trade. Englishmen have a wonderful propensity for sticking to the people who treat them well and will do anything in their power to promote the best relationship; but when they are the victims of nefarious practices it requires a long time to win their confidence again.

The Canadian people should know this characteristic well by this time and put a stop to these practices which can only lead to disaster in the future. What little advantage may be gained momentarily is only mortgaging the future of one of Canada's greatest industries and placing her reputation in bad odor in the Old Country.

Mr. Ruddick states that if the Canadian farmer gives his best attention to the manufacture of only the best grades of stock, he will find the British public will be ready to pay the best prices. If the farmers will do this they need do no further worrying about cheese boards or farmers' exchanges, or whether we shall have inspection here or there, as all of this does not amount to anything, compared with the necessity of shipping only well matured cheese to the English market. From what Mr. Ruddick states, the possibilities of the dairying industry in Canada are illimitable, but the tocsin of the future must be first-class quality.

TAKE A DAY OFF.

It will pay every merchant to take a day off once in a while and visit a strange town to study the methods of doing business, the way windows are dressed and the arrangement of the various departments in the stores.

A retail merchant may be in a rut and not know it—a whole town may be unprogressive in fact and the grocer be but a product of his environment.

Some, of course, make an annual visit to the nearest large city but a merchant is more likely to pick up an idea in a town of 5,000 or 10,000 than in a larger city.

Take your day off among a class of people similar to your own townsmen in taste, necessities and environments. Take it, not in a spirit of rivalry or criticism; neither take it with the idea that nothing good or worthy of imitation can be found in your own town. Study your lesson with a desire to learn; with a desire to make your own town better in the future if it is behind the times a little at some points, and to appreciate it all the more heartily wherever it is found to be in the lead. And always remember that there are others in this great old world who can excel us in some ways, and who will surely do so if we fail to keep alive.

CHATHAM.

May 5.—For 40 years and more connected with the grocery business here, Ingram Marshall Taylor dropped dead while leaving his brother's dental office shortly before noon on Saturday. Mr. Taylor, who was 62 years of age, first embarked in the grocery business here in 1867, continuing the business, latterly in partnership with the late C. D. Williamson, until a few years ago, when he retired, leaving Mr. Williamson in sole charge. Later, he bought the business of H. G. Reed, but sold out about a year ago, retiring from active business life. For a while he conducted a mercantile establishment at Cedar Springs. He leaves a wife and three children, John P. Taylor, the Park St. grocer, is a brother. It is a singular coincidence that thirteen months before almost to an hour the late Mr. Taylor's partner, C. D. Williamson, dropped dead, and that both passed away practically on the self same premises, where they had conducted business together for over 20 years.

Herbert Malcolmson returned on Saturday from a few days visit to Toronto calling on business friends and picking up new ideas in the grocery line. Mr. Malcolmson pays periodical visits of this nature to the Queen City, and avers that it is good business. "Every trip pays for itself," he says.

Prices on the market had an upward trend Saturday. Eggs went up to 17c, while butter remained steady at 25c. Live hogs sold for $7.30 per cwt., though on Wednesday they sold as high as $7.50—a practically unprecedented price. Saturday's deliveries were very large. Maple syrup has been selling at 40c a quart for the real stuff, though some sold at 35c.

According to a correspondent, Blenheim grocers are perpetrating an unique stroke of business, in paying 10c a dozen for eggs where the regular market price is 16c and 17c.

Though there will be plenty of imported ice in Chatham this summer, the price is going to be high compared with former seasons, and a corresponding boost in ice cream and kindred products is assured. The two local dealers in ice, W. M. Grant & Co. and John Terry & Sons, have joined forces under the name of the Grant-Terry Co. They announce that henceforth monthly settlements will be the rule.

Frank C. Peck, the Jeannette's Creek grocer, is visiting in New Ontario.

Mr. Keerns of Wallaceburg, formerly of Chicago, will shortly open a grocery and general store at the corner of concession 14 and the electric line, Dover.

STRATFORD.

May 5.—In spite of the chilling breeze which prevailed, the market on Saturday was well attended, and a good supply of produce was offered for sale, but little change in prices was noted. Apples were a scarcity, while potatoes still maintained a high price. Eggs and butter remained firm at 20c to 22c for butter, and 18c for eggs. Chickens sold at 50c to 60c, and potatoes $1 per bag.

In the grain market wheat has jumped from last Saturday's price of $1.15 to $1.25, and visions of an increase in the price of flour and perhaps of bread loom up large upon the horizon.

Live hogs have dropped a little from last week and were quoted Saturday at $7 to $7.10. Evidently the farmers are taking advantage of the high prices offered.

Maple syrup is very scarce, the farmers of this district having sold their surplus stock. The price at present is $1.50 per gallon.

Lettuce, onions, radishes and rhubarb are selling very briskly these days, while pot plants and cut flowers are forming a good side line in some stores. One grocer here has worked up quite a paying business in flowers. He has made arrangements with a leading florist to supply him blooming plants in pots and cut flowers by the dozen. These are brought to the store on Friday and those not sold are returned to the greenhouse on Monday, and a very good commission is allowed for all plants sold. This grocer declares if he made no profit at all on his flowers it would still be a paying venture as it brightens the store and adds greatly to his window display.

The pineapple is finding its way into the stores in great quantities of late some of the stores having the windows full. The prices asked are 10c. 15c and 25c. Imported strawberries, too, are selling quite readily at 15c per box, and two for 25c.

McCully & Haugh have a demonstrator all this week serving jellies and coffee. In connection with the demonstration they have in their window a fine display of prettily molded jellies.

BRANTFORD.

May 5.—At the regular meeting of the Grocers' and Butchers' Association last Tuesday evening, it was unanimously decided that the stores close and the clerks be given their usual half-holiday on Wednesday afternoons during the months of June, July and August. A committee was appointed and given power to choose the date, and make the arrangements for the annual excursion to Niagara Falls. A report was also given by the members who are on the committee appointed to deal with the collecting system. They secured enough funds to pay everything the first year and advertised for a collector. The committee already have over 30 applications for the position.

Later—At a meeting of the committee who had the appointment of a collector in charge on Monday evening, after due deliberation on the forty applications for the position, chose Norman Willitts for the position. He is at present secretary of the Grocers' and Butchers' Association. Being an ex-grocer he should be well qualified to fill the position.

J. Russell, who has been in business for about 6 months at the corner of Pearl and Waterloo Streets, has sold his stock and the store is closed.

Pettit & Willitts, bakers, have dissolved partnership. The business will be continued by Harry Pettit. Mr. Willitts, who is secretary of the Brantford Grocers' Association, has not decided yet what he will do.

There was an excellent spring market last Saturday morning, and the attendance was fairly large. Eggs were quoted at 16c to 18c per doz. but were soon picked up. Buyers are offering 17c per doz. for them and this will keep the price up. Butter was 23c and 25c per lb. and chickens were plentiful at $1.25 to $1.60 per pair. In spite of the fact that local butchers have advanced the price of meat there was not a large offering on the market.

From some parts come reports that there is a scarcity of potatoes. Inquiries by the Grocer's correspondent find most of the local merchants are well stocked, although large shipments were recently made from St. George and Mt. Pleasant. Most of the merchants report that the sales of potatoes by the small quantities were small this winter in comparison to other years, no doubt due to the open winter when there was always large quantities on the market. Last week they were plentiful and were selling at $1 and $1.10 per bag.

PETERBORO.

May 5.—Ald. Gillespie, of White & Gillespie, grocers, has been serving the city well as chairman of the manufacturers' committee. He has been instrumental in the securing of a new industry for Peterboro.

Mrs. S. H. Mitchell is one of the city's successful lady grocers. She has moved to the store formerly occupied by Bert Hunter. It is new and larger than her own and the location a good one.

White & Gillespie are showing a window of pot flowers which they claim is a paying adjunct to the business.

R. A. Dutton's new fruits and vegetables are proving good sellers. Fresh tomatoes at 2 pounds for 25 cents is a conspicuous display card in his window.

The opening of the cheese factories has not brought about any change in the price of butter.

Geo. A. Gillespie, of White and Gillespies, was in Brooklin, Ont., last week installing a butter plant in the new factory there.

R. A. Dutton has been selling pine apples for preserving, the prices ranging from $1.50 to $2.50 a doz.

Butter is retailing at 24c and eggs at 17c, the same prices that are being asked on the farmers' market.

The maple syrup season is practically over. It is not likely that there will be any more offered on the market. The grocers have a quantity which is retailing at $1.30 a gallon.

ST. CATHARINES.

May 5.—Phillip Ginsberg will shortly open a grocery store at the corner of Geneva and North Sts.

An important change has taken place in the wholesale grocery business here. W. H. Merriman has disposed of his business to The W. H. Merriman Co., the latter firm assuming control on April 22nd last. W. H. Merriman will retire, for a time at least, from active business to take a much needed rest.

Potatoes are selling at $1.25 per bag here. The price all season until the present has been around 90c per bag. Inquiry among the farmers seems to confirm the opinion that potatoes are very scarce in this district. Two carloads of excellent potatoes were received within the past few days and passed into stock by the grocers at $1.10 and $1.15 per bag. These will be retailed at 25c per peck.

Fresh eggs are retailing at 20c per dozen and are not plentiful at this figure. The local demand is much greater than the supply. Grocers here buy eggs at western points to secure sufficient for their trade. Choice dairy butter sold for 25c per lb. on the market Saturday last. The supply of butter offered from week to week is very limited.

One well known canner in conversation with your correspondent here as to crop prospects for strawberries for this season stated that he expected an extra large crop unless an extreme dry spell occurred about berry time. He based his reason on the fact that the acreage devoted to strawberries in this district is being increased yearly and for this year will be about three times what it was two years ago.

An important business change took place in the wholesale grocery trade of the city recently. W. H. Merriman, grocer, retires from active business and has disposed of his large wholesale business to James E. Merriman, Fred Parnell, Stanley Switzer and Frank Bentham. The announcement will come as a great surprise to the trade in general. Mr. Merriman is a self-made man. He was a fearless buyer, and by close attention to business and hard work he has built up a business that to-day will compare favorably with many of the larger centres. Mr. Merriman's decision to retire from business was quite characteristic of the man. Recent poor health prompted him to accept the doctor's order that he have at least six months' rest. With such a business to look after he decided he could not have complete rest. Hence the sale. The men who comprise the new firm are known to the trade and will no doubt be able to uphold the prestige of the house in the future as in the past. The first four mentioned have been members of W. H. Merriman's staff for years—each one specializing his own particular branch of the business. Frank Bentham is also known to the trade, having been located in Merritton for some time, where he carried on a successful retail grocery. For the past few years he has been on the staff of Jno. Ross, wholesale grocer. W. H. Merriman will, it is understood, after the transfer of the business and completion of other business details, leave on an extended visit to the southern States.

The new grocery under the proprietorship of George B. Darker, has opened for business.

A motor bus line operating between St. Catharines, Queenston and Niagara-on-the-Lake, is being boomed by the Board of Trade of this city. The merchants are being solicited for subscriptions to aid the enterprise. The promoter expects that much extra business will be derived by the stores of this city from that district. At present the districts mentioned can be reached only in a round-about way. How the merchants feel towards the proposition will be learned when the committee appointed to solicit subscriptions report to the next meeting of the Board of Trade.

GALT.

May 5.—The conclusion of the month of April has shown a very successful month for the trade in Galt, in fact the most satisfactory for some years. And the grocers had every reason to expect the increase. Every shop in Galt is working ten hours a day and in many instances overtime is required. The housewives feel more at ease with regard to finances and as a consequence many little luxuries, forbidden in the days of short hours, are now being purchased. The traveling men say that the size of their orders in Galt point to a largely increased trade.

Ald. T. G. Robinson has disposed of his grocery business on Brant Road and moved to Kalamazoo, where he will go into business. "Tom" was known to all classes in Galt and he will be followed by the best wishes of many friends.

"That Clean Grocery Store" is the way Deans & Walker wind up their advertisements these days.

The town council has received a communication from a number of residents requesting that a by-law be passed prohibiting grocers from buying on the market before nine o'clock. It seems that certain grocers have been in the habit of getting up bright and early and purchasing all the butter, eggs and poultry in sight. It is not likely that any action will be taken in the matter, the town fathers evidently believing in the old adage that the early bird gets the worm—and is entitled to it.

There are murmurings in the distance that sound like an agitation for a half-holiday during the summer months.

Preston grocers report that their April trade was better than for the same month in any similar year, and the same story comes from Hespeler.

PERTH.

May 5.—A change of interest in trade circles was announced this week when it was made known that Robt. Meighen, Montreal, president of the Lake of the Woods Milling Co., had withdrawn from the firm of Arthur Meighen & Bros. This, Perth's oldest established business, was begun in 1848 and has been successfully carried on ever since. The remaining partners, W. G. and William Meighen will continue the business under the old familiar name.

A merry butter war has existed in Lanark village for some days. The point has been reached where butter is bought from farmers at 23c and sold to customers for 20c.

Potatoes are very scarce. In fact for the past two weeks not a grocer in town has had a potato to offer. Relief is in sight though, for a local dealer advertises a car to arrive this week.

H. L. Jackson, Wilson St. West, although but two years a grocer has built up quite a business in the west end. His latest move toward the establishment of a branch store at Christy's Lake for the summer months.

Some Lanark village grocers have installed a new system of gasoline lighting.

A number of vinegar and molasses pumps have lately been added to local grocery equipments.

Evaporated fruits are moving better than they usually do at this time of year.

In spite of the Messina earthquake, November cut lemons are being quoted as low as and in some cases below last years prices.

ST. THOMAS.

The regular monthly meeting of the Retail Merchants' Association of this city was held on Tuesday evening of last week and was well attended. No business of special importance was brought up yet a few minor questions were dealt with. The City License Inspector has on several occasions lately, been endeavoring to bring to justice offenders of the license laws of the city and while he does not seem to be getting the assistance which one would think he should have from other civic officials yet still he continues to do his duty even though meeting with very little success, and in view of this a motion endorsing his actions was carried and ordered to be sent him. The question of holding the annual picnic was laid over until next meeting night. The secretary was in receipt of a circular letter from the C.P.R. city passenger agent and while it was one catering for business for his company was of importance to all city merchants and worthy of consideration. During recent years it has been the practice of nearly all excursion parties to have their point of destination at some "American" port and while mention of this was made in the letter, attention was drawn to the fact that Ontario presented several good places for excursions among them being Guelph, Galt, Berlin, Preston, Port Burwell and Toronto. The communication was filed for future reference. The action of the grocers in trying to bring about a six o'clock closing was endorsed by the Association. It is to be hoped that the grocers will be successful in their undertaking and no doubt other merchants will follow suit. The formation of a Grocers' Section has been proposed by some grocers lately but still no definite steps have as yet been taken although no better time than the present could be found as the grocers are up in arms over the market by-law passed some short time ago which keeps them off the market until 10 o'clock.

LINDSAY.

May 5.—The town of Lindsay, situated as it is in the centre of an excellent farming community, is always sure, (weather providing) of having a large crowd within its boundaries on Saturday. Even when the weather is inclement, as it was last Saturday the farmers turned out in large numbers. As yet, owing to the recent heavy rains, the farmers have done very little seeding in this vicinity. They were unable to do any farm work on Saturday, and as a consequence they turned out en masse to the annual South Victoria Spring Fair. Horsemen from far and wide were congregated here and as the farmers of this county are to a considerable extent horse breeders, they displayed a great deal of interest in the judging of the same.

Fortunately the grocers of Lindsay, as well as merchants engaged in other lines of business, recognize the advantage of attracting the farmers and their wives to the town on Saturday, and such a Saturday is always looked upon as one of the best sales days in the year. Several of the town grocery men on Saturdays rearrange their display both inside and outside, so as to catch the eye of the visitor to town.

A. S. Harrison, one of the influential grocers of Norwood, is about to move to Lindsay, and it is said will open up a modern business. Mr. Harrison is an experienced and up-to-date groceryman, and has, while living in Norwood, been a public-spirited citizen, having been a member of the Board of Education, a town councillor, an active church worker, etc. He will be welcomed to Lindsay by business men and citizens generally.

Just recently Adams' Bros. closed their large grocery store, owing to the death of their mother, and on Friday and Saturday of this week, the store was again closed owing to the death of their father, Wm. Adams. In the death of the deceased, Victoria County loses a sturdy and highly-respected citizen, and the sons of the deceased have the heart-felt sympathy of the citizens of Lindsay and country. The surviving brothers are: Messrs. George, with the W. B. Sparling wholesale Co.; J. E. Delbert and Frank, of Adams' Bros. grocery, town; William, of Toronto; and R. T. Adams in the grocery business in Millbrook.

The market was not largely attended Saturday, owing to the bad condition of the roads. The grain market remained the same, while live hogs took another jump. Eggs advanced one cent per doz., and are now selling at 20c. Hay advanced $1 per ton, and is now worth $11 and $12 per ton.

Several of the grocers have been selling garden tomatoes recently, and being the first of the season they are being greatly relished by the customers.

Maple syrup was not an abundant article this season, but nevertheless the farmers in this vicinity reaped a small mint in the selling of the same, as the ruling prices were high.

During the past two or three months Ed. Robson, of Robson's grocery, has been writing some especially attractive ads., the same appearing in The Daily Warder every other day. Mr. Robson's ads. are the result of much careful thought, and are original in every respect. The same ad. never appears twice, and they are set up in an artistic manner, and in print cannot fail but attract the eye. A dozen of these appeared recently in "Brains." Mr. Robson states that the ads are bringing excellent results, and that "advertising pays" in every respect, that is when written up, set-up and properly displayed.

BRACEBRIDGE.

May 5.—Trade in town during the month of April has been very quiet on account of the backward season, and at times it was almost impossible for farmers to get into town on account of heavy roads. May, however, promises to be a better month. With the opening of navigation, warm weather and better roads, all have the busy feeling around them that makes things hum.

Improvements in our stores seem to be in order. Hutchison Bros. have added a bright coat of paint to their building and new electric lights. Jos. G. Meyers has built a brick addition, greatly adding to the appearance of his store.

Fire destroyed the frame store opposite the Queen's hotel last week, occupied so long by J. O. Phillips, grocer.

Potatoes in Muskoka seem to occupy the minds of our merchants just now. Your correspondent called on nearly all of the grocers regarding this important vegetable and all expressed the opinion that around Bracebridge enough could be secured for local consumption at 75c per bag. The crop in our district last year was good and the farmers have a good market in the capital of Muskoka.

More maple syrup has been sold in town this year than ever. Farmers are taking advantage of the name of "The Backwoods" given to us, by tapping the thousands of maple trees that abound through Muskoka, making this country a home for pure maple syrup that sells freely at $1 a gallon.

On May 26, the 367 Club of this town will take its annual sail around the lakes. This club is composed of grocers, who have at their head Peter Hutchison, as president. It was first formed with the object of soliciting orders from the hotelmen, boarding houses, etc., around the lakes, but now it is a club of pleasure seekers.

Grocers say that the trade in early vegetables and fruit is good, especially the pineapple. Splendid stock is being received and readily sells. Butter still continues scarce at 25c per pound, and fresh eggs plentiful at 18c per dozen.

Wm. Hanna, Sr., Port Carling, was a visitor to our town last week. Mr. Hanna is completing a new supply boat to be launched in June. Mr. Hanna has introduced the cash system in Muskoka, and speaks volumes in its favor.

GUELPH.

May 5.—With the land in such a condition that it is practically unworkable, the farmers came to the market in large numbers on Saturday. The result was a good supply in all lines and the prices which remained firm at the opening took a fall before the market closed at noon. Eggs, which opened at 19c remained steady for some time and then begun to go down, finishing at 16c per dozen. Butter was comparatively firm at 24 and 25c, but later in the morning 23c was paid. Potatoes took a big drop in price. When the market opened as high as 90c was asked and above 80c was paid, but those who held off got them as low as 65c. A basket of nice apples attracted attention as a curiosity at 50c. Chickens were scarce and high in price. Maple syrup was plentiful.

W. H. Fielding has two very nice windows this week. A good display of seeds is to be seen in one, while the other is devoted to pineapples.

G. Williams' window of oil and olives is one of the finest ever displayed—a window which readily catches the eye, and commands attention.

The guessing competition at A. J. Groom's store is concluded.

J. A. McCrea is holding a basket sale this week.

"To be, or not to be" is the thought which is occupying the minds of merchants and salesmen on the half-holiday question.

OTTAWA.

May 5.—At a meeting of the Ottawa Retail Grocers' Association, held in Royal Albert Hall, on April 28, the report of the committee which waited on the civic board of control to ask for an open market was received with the decision of the board to have the market open at 8 o'clock to the grocers instead of 8.30. The grocers decided to make no further move until it was found how this worked out.

C. J. Provost, treasurer, gave a most encouraging report of the year's receipts and showed a balance of over $500 in

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

The Grocer desires to remind its readers that a column of its reading space will be available each week for inquiries and answers, relative to the grocery trade. If an address, place of manufacture of any special line of goods or name of the manufacturer is required, send a post card with name and address attached, and we will try to answer the question. Letters from manufacturers, jobbers, travelers, retailers and clerks, with suggestions for trade improvement are invited.

bank. F. W. Forde brought up the question of the grocers' section of the retail trade, separating from the general Retail Merchants' Association. He said that little benefit was derived from the general association by the Retail Grocers' Association and that there was no object in remaining affiliated. President Wm. York said that the other lines had not assisted the grocers here this winter when this association was taking up the reform of the Transient Traders' by-laws, etc. H. C. Ellis was strongly in favor of the union standing. He thought the union of all the trades was much stronger in securing legislation than one line could be. Alex. Phillips thought that in some cases two lines clash as in the case of the grocers in the country district clashing with the druggists over the law to prevent grocers selling proprietory medicines, etc. It was decided to take no definite action with this question until after the convention to be held in Brockville this coming June. The officers elected for the year were:—

A. G. JOHNSON,

Re-elected Secretary of the Ottawa Retail Grocers' Association.

President.—Wm. York.

1st Vice-President.—Alex. Phillips.

2nd Vice-President.—Duncan Bell.

Secretary.—A. G. Johnson (acclamation).

Treasurer.—C. J. Provost (acclamation).

Executive Committee.—Geo. Atkinson, F. W. Forde, H. C. Ellis, R. B. Younghusband, P. Lamoreaux.

Auditors.—Geo. Hopper, and H. L. Dorion.

Delegates to Convention of the Retail Merchants' Association to be held in June, at Brockville.—F. W. Forde, H. C. Ellis, C. J. Provost and A. G. Johnson.

The Hull master bakers, although paying 50c per barrel more for flour, have decided not to raise the price of bread. Their price now is $1.30 per dozen of thirteen loaves and will remain so during the summer.

A. Cochrane has moved his grocery stock from 134 Florence St. to the corner of Preston and Somerset Sts.

C. B. McLean advertises canned tomatoes 7c a tin or 75c a dozen.

Merchants as a rule find business quiet just at present and collections slow, probably on account of the cold late spring. Saturday last quite a number of sleighs were seen around town—a most unusual thing for this period of the year.

LONDON.

May 5.—Wholesalers report trade in the country slightly improved last week. Locally, business is rather quiet.

According to local brokers, raw sugars keep very firm, owing to the short crop in Barbadoes. Advice from there says. "We have never experienced such a poor crop." Refined sugars are, of course, affected, and the market is strong. Fine and medium teas keep high. There is scarcely any Japan tea in the market. Picking of the new crop is only now beginning and none will be ready for export for a month at least. There is no change in coffees. Brazils being a little easier. California fruits such as raisins, apricots and peaches, are nearing the end of the season. Stocks in California are being cleaned up, and holders are asking a little higher for what they have on hand.

Work on the excavation for the new five-storey brick wholesale grocery warehouse for John Garvey began Monday morning. The building will be the finest of the kind in the city.

About four weeks ago the price of potatoes on the local market advanced to $1 per bag wholesale. The high price induced a more plentiful supply and in a couple of weeks there was a drop to 90c. On Saturday the finest quality could be bought for 85c. A local dealer says the advance was due to the demand from the Southeern States, where the plants were killed by frost. The second crop in the South being now available the demand from across the border has ceased. Farmers are believed to have still a good supply on hand, and the price is now more likely to go down than up.

R. H. Cullis, grocer, Wellington St., was the victim of a painful accident a few days ago. While driving on Talbot St. the wheels of his wagon became entangled with those of a butcher's wagon, the result being the smashing of Mr. Cullis' rig. He was hurled on to the pavement and badly bruised and shaken up.

BERLIN.

May 5.—In connection with the item in the Chatham correspondence anent the debt collecting scheme under consideration there, the question arises as to whether they are not going to a lot of unnecessary trouble. There is a system, an excellent one, prepared by the Retail Merchants' Association ready at all times to be put into operation. It is widely in use in Berlin and has been attended by highly successful results and at the extremely low expense of 10 per cent. of collections as against the 50 per cent required by first class collection agencies. The secretary of the local association, S. A. Brubacher, would doubtless be only too pleased to answer queries as to the success of the system in Berlin, in order to help merchants in other towns to a solution of the vexed question of "bad pays."

Honsberger and Hallman have taken over the grocery business established by Gravel Brothers, on Frederick Street, and conducted successfully by them since 1907 and have had the store enlarged.

R. Weber & Co., who recently started business in Guelph will dispose of their Berlin stock to the former proprietor, J. A. Good, who will continue it at the same stand in connection with his "China Palace."

Betzer & Co., have had their premises enlarged, the store now having a depth of sixty feet. A new plate glass front will be put in and there will also be two big plate glass windows facing Foundry Street. Mr. Betzer has just closed his eighth year in this business and has worked up a very fine trade.

TORONTO.

May 5.—A splendid window display and guessing contest combined was instituted a week ago Saturday by McCaw & McKay, grocers, corner Dundas and Argyle Streets. A candle was placed in the window weighing twenty pounds, it was lit and left burning day and night. Prizes were offered to the first five who came the nearest in guessing the number of days, hours and minutes it would take to burn away the entire candle. A great deal of interest was displayed in the contest and as the purchase of 50 cents worth of goods or 25 cents worth of soap was necessary for a guess, the competition was profitable. The prizes were a small express waggon, a fruit dish, and three pictures. Sunday evening last saw the finish of the candle after it had been burning 8 days, 15 hours and 50 minutes.

HAMILTON.

May 5.—Business here improved very much in the last two weeks. The grocery trade is busy, some of the merchants saying they had not quite expected things to pick up so quickly and consequently found themselves short of help. But as grocery clerks are always available, they were soon able to catch up with the business.

Markets for provisions are strong, almost everything having advanced. Flour is now retailing at $3.20 per cwt., and oats, barley and other commodities also advanced. Eggs and butter are still at high prices. Potatoes are from 40c to 50c a bag dearer than a month ago. Forty or fifty cars have been shipped from near-by points to the United States, and the local market has been booming. They are selling from stores at $1.25 a bag, or 25c a peck. One of the local dealers is buying in cars from eastern Ontario and he sells to the retailers at $1.10.

The grocers here are very much interested in the suggestion of the Board of Health to make owners of dogs not only muzzle, but lead them. It is well known that the dog is an annoyance to the clean grocer, and they most heartily wish that a by-law embodying the above provisions may be put in force.

INGERSOLL.

May 5.—Judging from the information elicited from the grocers and others the potato situation in this section cannot be viewed in the light of a scarcity. It is true that during the past few weeks the price has been advanced from 50c to about 75c a bag off farmers' wagons, but this was occasioned by a rather spasmodic demand from across the border. While there is said to be a scarcity in some of the old potato States, it is not thought this fact will have the effect of materially "boosting" the price here. Most of those with whom The Grocer talked declared that there are still plenty of potatoes in the country, but that the farmers, owing to the previously low prices, have not commenced to market them in large quantities. It is understood that local dealers who were in search of them to supply American orders, experienced no difficulty in securing all they required. One merchant interviewed stated that he had a large supply and that he was retailing them at 75 cents a bag. As the season is growing late many are inclined to the opinion that the price will not be materially advanced. In the U.S. new potatoes will soon be on the market, and as they are sold there much cheaper than here, they will be given the preference over old potatoes brought in from Canada. The same thing will apply to a certain extent with many Canadians. As soon as the new potatoes are available they will be given preference over the old one. Although some of the dealers have advanced the price to ninety cents per bag there are others who are still at seventy-five cents and this will no doubt continue to be the ruling figure.

A Splendid Biscuit Window Display Shown Recently by Deans & Walker, Galt, Ontario.

A NEW GROCERY BROKER.

The first of May saw the establishment of a new grocery brokerage business in Toronto, known as C. L. Marshall & Co. Mr. Marshall, who is at the head of the company, is not unknown to the trade. For 13 years he was with the Warren Bros., wholesale grocers, as manager of the sample room; for a year and a half he was in the Western Brokerage Co., Toronto, and during the past three years he has been connected with the MacLaren Cheese Co.

Having visited all the great producing centres in Europe, Mr. Marshall should be well qualified to successfully attend to the business he has undertaken. He has already identified himself with some good foreign agencies and is anxious to get in touch with manufacturers desiring to introduce their goods on the Ontario market.

The office of the company is located in the Gooderham Building, corner of Wellington and Front Streets.

HINTS TO BUYERS.

For many years past Ice Castle lobsters have been the first new lobsters on the market. This year is no exception and J. W. Windsor's Montreal office reports new pack as now arriving.—Advt.

TRADE NOTES.

Chas. Raison, grocer, St. Thomas, has sold to Geo. Durkee.

Chas. Hales, general merchant, Northwood, Ont., has sold to Mrs. Glover.

F. Sheldon Muter, grocer, flour and feed merchant, Hanover, Ont., has sold to A. Knechtel.

The first whole car of North Carolina strawberries arrived in Toronto on Wednesday, which are sold at 15c a box. These are the regular quart sizes and therefore very cheap for early in May. No doubt they will find ready sale.

Boeckh Bros. Co., Limited, have taken over the business formerly conducted by Boeckh Bros. & Co., at Toronto and Montreal, manufacturers of brushes, brooms and woodenware. The company is now under the same management as formerly.

A. M. Gray has purchased and taken possession of the store and dwelling of H. C. Card, Nashville, Ont. Mr. Gray is continuing the business as a general store and as it is the only one in the village it should be a success. Mr. Card is conducting a general store in Woodbridge.

W. E. Freel, Adelaide, Ont., has purchased the stock of T. T. Caster, Schomberg. Mr. Freel is now proprietor of a young but live business in a live town. He was formerly in business in Springbank. Mr. Castor has bought the general store stock of Mr. Shields, Grand Valley.

The opposition of some of the retail merchants of Toronto to the weekly payment system introduced on May 1st by the Fruit, Produce and Provision Association is becoming interesting. On Tuesday night the special committee met and decided to call a mass meeting to take place at 21 Richmond St., next Monday night, when they will report the decision they arrived at.

Brault & Co., manufacturers' agents, Montreal, have leased offices and a warehouse at 306 St. Paul Street. The premises run through to Commissioner Street. Some new agencies have been secured by the firm, which has been newly organized. H. A. A. Brault and J. Brault continue in the firm, which is strengthened by the admission of T. Michaud. The firm's list of agencies includes: Mooney Biscuit and Candy Co., Stratford; Chocolat Menier, Paris; Biscuit Pernot, Dijon; also Castile soaps, French macaroni, vermicelli and pastes.

PERSONAL NOTES.

Jno. Waddell has joined the staff of John Sloan & Co., Toronto, to succeed P. H. Brown, as city traveler.

J. M. Bothwell, Barrie, Ont., is retiring from the grocery business after nearly forty years' experience, during which time his business has developed to keep pace with the advance of the times. He is selling out.

W. S. Greening, of Todhunter & Mitchell, has undergone an operation for appendicitis in Brighton, England, where he was on a visit. He is recovering and will return to Canada with his father, T. B. Greening, who has gone over to meet him.

ST. JOHN.

May 4.—Prices in most lines continued firm last week. As yet there is not a great deal of produce arriving by way of the river. When the freshet subsides there is likely to be large receipts which the dealers think will affect prices. Butter and eggs remain at the same figure and the market for both is firm. New cheese is now being offered and the price has weakened somewhat. Fish, both fresh and dry, have declined in value with the exception of gaspereaux, which are still quite high, owing to freshet conditions.

King & McDonald, a new firm of wholesale grocers, produce and commission merchants, have begun partnership in business at 11 and 12 South Wharf. Louis King, who has been in business some years, has associated with him, Louis McDonald, who has been bookkeeper with R. Sullivan & Co., Dock street.

James Smith, who some years ago conducted a grocery store on Adelaide street north end, died at Coldbrook, on Thursday last, aged 78 years. He leaves a wife, one son and three daughters.

Bertrand J. A. McKenzie and Donald S. Trueman, of Campbellton, have entered into a general co-partnership as grocery and crockeryware merchants, under the firm name of McKenzie & Trueman.

With the sailing of the steamer Bendu, on Saturday last, five cargoes have gone from St. John to South Africa during the winter season now closing. The value of the first four cargoes amounted to $989 796, and with the Bendu's cargo the exports will be well over the million mark. Included in the Bendu's cargo was 65,000 sacks or 3,000 tons of flour, the largest consignment that has been shipped in one vessel since the inauguaration of the Canada-South Africa service. The steamer also took away a large quantity of Quaker oats, condensed milk and cream, canned meats, broom corn, broom handles, etc. Herbert H. Stewart, of Montreal, traffic manager of the Canada-South Africa service of Elder Dempster & Co., was here in connection with the sailing of the steamer and speaking of the business said: "We have had a most successful winter, all our vessels, with the exception of the Monarch, a vessel of 13,000 tons capacity, taking out full cargoes. Our flour is much in demand in South Africa, and we are holding our own with Australia. Prevailing prices, however, have prevented our doing much in wheat. In the last three months of 1908 Australia shipped to Cape Colony alone upwards of 12,000 tons of wheat for the milling companies there, while Canada in the twelve months of 1908 shipped to all South African ports only about 2,000 tons. Much is heard regarding the depression in South Africa. The cry is largely amongst those business men who, not realizing the business conditions after the war, over-traded and over-speculated. Captain Pousette, our new trade commissioner in Natal, says it is to be regretted that so little of their wealth passes Canada's way, but it rests with us whether we will secure for our manufacturers this growing market or whether we will sit still and leave it to our competitors undisturbed.

MONTREAL.

May 4.—A new grain inspector in the person of A. G. McBean, who is well-known throughout the grain trade in Canada, has been appointed grain inspector for Montreal and district by the authorities at Ottawa, and has been asked to take charge of the grain inspectors' office in this city, at once. The members of the Corn Exchange expressed their satisfaction at the Government's appointment, as they feel assured the grain inspection of this port will be considerably enhanced thereby.

J. G. Gordon, manager of the Montreal branch of McClure & Langley, of Toronto, has moved into his new uptown office in the Lindsay building. Mr. Gordon feels he will be in closer touch with his customers among the retail trade.

Walter Paul, corner Burnside and University Streets, has put his outdoor show cases out for the season. This is an invention of real practical value to the grocers. Very frequently foodstuffs exposed to public view outside a store without any protection whatever, are submitted to the dust of the street, to say nothing of the depredations of emulative dogs. Anyone who is awake to the tendency of affairs to-day, knows that the care of foodstuffs is becoming daily more hygienic and the higher the class of the trade, the more such measures are necessary. By this it should not be inferred that the poorer class trade are to be neglected, but perhaps the demand from them for such is not so insistent.

Once more the harbor has a business-like aspect. The sound of windlasses hauling freight from the holds of ocean boats, is again in the air along the waterfront. The boats of the R. & O. line are all spotless in new coats of paint and the prospects are good for a large season's business in both ocean and inland navigation.

As a result of the deputation of grocers, representing the Montreal Retail Grocers' Association, which waited on the Premier at Quebec last Thursday, it has been decided to allow the two factions to fight out a compromise of some sort. Already large deputations have interviewed Hon. Mr. Weir, presenting their views on the subject, and now they will be asked to meet him and try to come to some arrangement. A clause regulating the differences will be one of the most important of the proposed amendments to the provincial license law. The claim of the brewers is to the effect that the proposed restrictions asked by the grocers, to them means a restraint of trade, which is unjustified, that the grocers, with their comparatively limited supplies, cannot keep beer, a perishable product, in as good condition, and that by selling a spoiled article they may destroy trade. The grocers, on the other hand, say the brewers are infringing on their rights by delivering to Jewish, Syrian and Italian and other colonies, and spoiling their business without paying a license. The brewers, however, claim that this is not so, as they pay a license of $750 annually. It is expected that some interesting developments will take place at the meeting.

Thomas Jones, grocer, died suddenly of apoplexy on Saturday, May 1, at his residence, 289 Charron Street, Point St. Charles. Mr. Jones had been at his business on Friday, but not feeling well on Saturday morning, he remained at home. He was apparently all right in the afternoon, but at 5.30 he was seized with a stroke of apoplexy and expired in a few minutes. The late Mr. Jones, who was 31 years of ago, was born in Cornwall, Ont., and was a son of the late Matthew Jones. He came to Montreal as a youth and has been engaged in the grocery business on Charron Street for the past five years. He leaves a widow, who was Miss Florence Gourlay. The funeral took place to Cote des Neiges cemetery Monday afternoon.

Buyers in Montreal during the week included: G. Dumontet, Brosseau Station; A. St. Amour, Coteau Junction; G. Constant, St. Dominique; M. Laferriere, Chicoutimi; J. M. St. Arnaud, St. Geneviere de Batiscan; F. Beauvais, Laprairie; J. M. Richard, St. Jerome; J. B. Lefebvre, St. Therese; E. Boulerice, Napierville; J. Herron, Lac Masson; E. Lahaie, St. Eustache; T. CALGARY.

May 4.—Last week's bank clearings showed an enormous increase, being 100.01 per cent. more than the corresponding week last year. This is gratifying, and indicates in a substantial manner the development that is taking place in this part of the West. The demand for farm machinery is heavy. Last week a farmer went to one of the implement dealers wishing to purchase a seed drill, and to his surprise was informed that they were entirely sold out. Land seekers are still pouring in and the hotels are taxed to their utmost to provide accommodation for the incoming people, many of whom are from the United States. The attraction lies in the famous wheat lands of Southern Alberta. There is much survey and locating work being done by the railway companies, and should this year prove anything like as propitious as last for grain raising it would be difficult to estimate the advance that this province will make in the next five years.

Mercantile business is brisk in all lines; in produce and grocery prices are steady to firm. It is now definitely known that a large quantitv of potatoes will have to be brought in from the east as the available stocks in both Alberta and B.C. will not nearly meet the demand.

After a period of warm springlike weather the wind veered round to the north on Sunday night of last week and blew a gale accompanied by drifting snow which continued to fall intermittently for the following three days. Farmers were becoming anxious as seeding operations were being seriously interupted. The snow has, however put the land in excellent condition, and should warm weather follow—and present indications are favorable— germination will be rapid. Preparations have been made for a vastly increased grain acreage this year.

There are many outfits leaving the city to begin operations on various irrigation works which are being undertaken east and south of Calgary. Supplies are being purchased here consisting of groceries, hardware, tents, blankets, etc. Hay which until recently was somewhat of a drug on the market, is now in demand and has almost doubled in price. Good upland hay sold during the week at $12 per ton. Oats are high also, selling retail at $1.50 per sack of 100 lbs.

In grocery lines coffees are higher; Rios and Santos being up from ¼ to ½c according to grade. Starches and corn syrup have advanced, the former ¼ to ½c per lb, the latter 15c per case. Dried fruits are unchanged. There is still a quantity of 1907 crop prunes in California and buyers should be careful to see that they do not get this old stock, as they will not keep during the summer months. Fine Santa Clara prunes of the 1908 crop are available at very reasonable prices and as the crop in 1908 was a short one, it would seem that at to-day's quotation, prunes are a safe purchase, particularly in view of the heavy consumptive demand during the next five or six months.

VANCOUVER.

April 30.—Flour has gone up to $7.40 per barrel. "We poor retailers have to bear the brunt of the complaints made by consumers who come in and ask us why the millmen are always so quick at raising the price of flour when the price of wheat is high, but so exceedingly slow in reducing it when wheat goes down," a merchant remarked to The Canadian Grocer. "My customers from time to time remark on this peculiarity, and some have a tone of insinuation in their voice as much as to say that we keep the price up to make a little more. Heaven knows we drop prices all we can, for it takes all the trade we can get to make a respectable margin on what is allowed us."

Oranges are going up in price, being quoted at $2.90 and $3 a case, as against $2.25 a short time ago.

The export of Alberta wheat through Vancouver is the latest addition to this city's commerce, and the handling of it is occupying the attention of many parties. According to despatches, a deputation of Alberta grain men are in Ottawa asking the Government to build an elevator here, and the usual consideration is promised. William Whyte, second vice-president of the C.P.R., has been on the coast for a couple of weeks and went south to Portland, this same traffic occupying his attention. He declares that the C.P.R. will not dispose of elevator sites to private companies, preferring to keep control of the trade.

T. C. Irving, general manager of Bradstreet's, of Toronto, who comes out every year with Mr. Whyte, commented very favorably on conditions on the coast. There has been some talk of real estate activity in Vancouver amounting to a boom and being hurtful as such, but he says that he thinks the people here, taking into account the development of the past, have reason for their optimism.

From time to time, complaint is made by the halibut fishing enterprises that the "Americans" poach in Canadian waters, and further support of this was shown by the capture of the American auxiliary schooner, the Charles Levi Woodbury, charged with fishing within the three-mile limit. H. H. Watson and J. M. Atkins, of the Canadian Fishing Company, of this city, were in Ottawa a few days ago, to make protest against this illegal fishing, and their statements will have substantial corroboration by this event. Incidentally, it might be mentioned, the New England Fishing Company, an American concern, which has operated in Vancouver for years, has dropped out of the local market on account of local opposition.

Two carloads of seed oysters from New Haven, Conn., are being planted in the beds of the Crescent Oyster Company, just this side the boundry line. These are new beds, being started as a result of the success attending other companies in the same business.

The Brackman-Ker Milling Company are getting ready to ship 1,500 tons of oats from Alberta to the Orient. The grain will come here in bulk, but will be sacked here. Another shipment of 1,000 tons, shipped by the Alberta Pacific Elevator Company by way of Seattle, practically closes out last year's crop in Alberta. Four carloads of barley are now here awaiting shipment to Mexico.

That the fruit industry is to be properly cared for is evidenced by the conference held here of C.P.R. and Government officials in regard to the establishment of fruit cooling stations at points in the interior. There were present Hon. R. G. Talow, Minister of Finance and Agriculture; R. M. Palmer, deputy minister; R. M. Winslow, horticulturist to the department; William Whyte and R. Marpole, of the C.P.R.; W. C. Ricardo, manager of the Colstream ranch at Vernon, and R. H. Agur, a fruit grower of Summerland. The matter was discussed at considerable length, and while special announcement was not made of the conclusion, it is known that the cooling stations will be erected.

While last winter was not as severe as a year ago, when the frost continued for several weeks, the reports from the interior are that it was bad enough to cause extensive loss among the fruit trees. Peach trees suffered particularly, though a definite estimate of the loss is not yet made.

R. M. Palmer, who made a trip to the Okanagan district, reports that the crops of apples, plums and cherries promise well, but that the peach crop will be light, owing to the cold weather of January. A much larger acreage has been planted with nursery stock this year than last, and many new settlers are in the district.

One of the most important business changes in Kamloops for years was the joining of John Beaton, one of the oldest and best known merchants of that city, with Ramsay & Phillip, the business being transferred to the premises of the latter. Mr. Phillip will still be president, and Mr. Beaton vice-president, the firm name continuing as Ramsay & Phillip. J. B. Rice, is secretary-treasurer.

REGINA.

May 4.—Owing to cold and stormy weather which has been prevailing here during the latter half of April, the farmers generally have been unable to get on their land to any extent and as a result very little seeding has as yet been done in this district. The first of last week opened up very fine, but after Monday the weather seemed to have gone back somewhat.

Fine weather will leave the ground in better condition for putting in the crops.

No doubt owing to weather conditons, the number of eggs being received by local jobbers has fallen off very much. They are now paying sixteen and a half cents delivered Regina for eggs. Butter is in very poor demand and jobbers report considerable difficulty in getting rid of their stocks. The local market is mainly supplied by farmers in the vicinity, which makes it necessary for jobbers to place the butter outside and they report that very low prices are being offered both east and west. However, receipts have been very late during the past couple of weeks and the surplus stock is being now placed.

The weather has also had a bad effect on the fruit business and with the exception of oranges, the fruit houses report light sales. Southern strawberries are on the local market and they are selling fairly well. Green fruits and bananas are moving slowly.

Owing to the extremely low prices of California fruits, there has been a big movement in these recently and owing to the position of the local grocery jobbers and their favorable freight rate, they report good buying by country merchants.

There has also been a considerable movement in canned goods. Vegetables have been moving particularly freely, owing no doubt to the exhaustion of the fresh stocks held from last fall. Fruits are beginning to move, but not as freely as vegetables. Potatoes are very scarce and are bringing high prices.

We have to report several new arrangements in regard to sugar. The British Columbia Sugar Refining Co. have added their "Big Tree" brand granulated to their stock here, which is being sold at ten cents below their standard granulated. A short time ago R. C. Johnston, of Calgary, sales manager of the Knight Sugar Co., of Raymond, was here and arranged that the local jobbers would carry stocks of their sugar both in Regina and in Moose Jaw. Instead of the latter company carrying a stock as heretofore, the local jobbers have now to do this.

With the approach of Spring several new stores have been opened. During the last month Raymond & McConnell, of Winnipeg, have opened an up-to-date confectionery and ice cream business in the Smith Block; Fodey and Dale have opened a confectionery and fruit business in the Colman Block on South Railway Street, and T. Murray's old stand has been torn down and a new brick block with two stores has been erected on the site. This was completed on the 1st May and Mr. Murray will occupy one of the stores with a new stock.

Several of the business houses have also been having their Spring housecleaning and among the improvements noted are a general painting and brightening up of several stores. Cameron & Heap Limited, have enlarged and painted their offices and laid linoleum.

H. G. Smith, manager for Campbell Bros. & Wilson here, has been spending the last few days in Winnipeg. During his absence, C. W. Vivian of their travelstaff has been in charge.

Among the visitors in Regina this week were: St. Clair Balfour, of Hamilton, who is on his honeymoon trip and is accompanied by Mrs. Balfour. Mr. McLorie, of The Mount Royal Rice Mills, of Victoria, also spent a day in the city. Mr. Millar, western representative of The Imperial Tobacco Co., accompanied by Mr. Bourke, of The Empire Tobacco Co., of Montreal, also spent a couple of days here this week and were shown over the town by their representative, Mr. Ford. Mr. Ford has been placing their new brand of Old Chum cigarettes. Mr. Williamson, of the Eby. Blain Co., has also been in town this week. Mr. Muldoon, manager of the Stuartburn Trading Co., of McTaggart and Rouleau, was here also and in conversation with The Grocer representative said that they had secured premises at Estevan and were opening there shortly.

WINNIPEG.

May 4.—A few of the local business men are preparing for their summer vacation trips. It is obvious that these men cannot leave their business behind them absolutely, and wherever they go they will be gathering up ideas in order to put new life into their trade upon their return.

A local grocer who contemplates taking an European trip this summer is J. G. Hargrave, who has been in the trade in Winnipeg for over thirty years. This is the first trip of the kind that Mr. Hargrave has taken, and it is no doubt well earned. If more of our business men would lay their plans to get out and see the world, and incorporate into their business the knowledge thus gained, it would be a means of revolutionizing the trades to a very great extent.

The retail business in Winnipeg in which there is perhaps the keenest competition is that of the confectionery trade. It is attributed largely to the fact that there are many foreigners in the city whose inclinations seem to turn that way. The grocers do not pretend to handle much fresh fruit or candies, and the greater bulk of this business is left to the various small confectionery stores scattered throughout the city. As a general thing these small fruit stores have not much enterprising management that would lead them to build up a general business in the bakery and confectionery line.

In Ontario the bakery and confectionery business is as a rule, combined, and these are quite successful. But in Winnipeg the candy and fruit retailers are inclined to extend their business into a lunch counter rather than a retail business of cakes, pies, etc. The result is, since the candy and fruit trade is monopolized, the retail cake trade is rather in a demoralized condition, for it is scarcely extensive enough to support a business in itself.

G. L. M. Holmes, western manager for the wholesale house of Warren Bros. & Co., Limited, Toronto, leaves Winnipeg this week to establish connections with his firm in various western towns.

W. A. Coulson, former secretary of the Retail Merchants Association of Western Canada, was fined $100 and costs for operating an insurance company without a license. The evidence in the case was largely given by Mr. Premier, who did not know much about the company and was induced to take out a policy for $3 000. He knew the company was not incorporated, but knew that a charter had been applied for and thought his interests would be protected. The magistrate was inclined to think that the managers acted in good faith, but issuing policies under these circumstances was illegal.

The National Trust Compuany, which has taken over the affairs of the Retail Merchants Association, asked Mr. Coulson to appear before the management of that company to answer charges of default. Mr. Coulson failed to appear on the day appointed which was Tuesday, April 27, and the company secured an order from the court to issue a summons. It is expected that he will be brought before them in a few days.

W. T. Harris, who for the past six years has been travelling for Geo. E. Bristol, of Hamilton, Ont., has been engaged to travel in the west for Foley, Lock & Larson.

The Western Branch of the McLaren Spice Company, of Hamilton Ont., which has been under the management of Norman Schaffer for the past two years, have moved into a new office and warehouse. The new apartments comprise two floors 100 x 80 feet each. During the past few months two new travellers have been put on the western lines.

SASKATOON.

May 4.—At a meeting of the city bakers held last week it was decided that the number of loaves to be given to the dollar be 14 to private customers and 16 to stores and boarding houses. The recent rise of 20 cents on the sack of flour induced the bakers to meet and discuss the advisability of increasing the price of bread.

A. Carruthers & Co., of Winnipeg, Man., have opened a new warehouse here from which they will handle skins, hides, wool, tallow, seneca root and raw furs. The warehouse is on Alberta Avenue and is the only one of its kind in town. It will prove a handy market for dealers in this district who handle this class of merchandise.

Henschel & Co., of Rosthern, whose store was burned recently, are preparing to re-open again. New premises will be built on modern lines and a new stock of goods ordered. A frame store will be put up in the meantime and brick veneered when the material can be secured.

Rosthern creamery should be open for business at an early date. The new machinery will be installed on its arrival. Mr. Hundt of Winnipeg is the manager of the concern.

Amongst other places of business the new town of Venn on the G.T.P. has a good general store, a flour and feed store and two elevators.

R. J. Clare, of Warman, has built a new warehouse for storing flour and sugar. His former warehouse has been fitted up as a store.

MANITOBA MARKETS

Winnipeg, May 6.—The severe cold wave that came over the city last week has taken away much of the snap that retailers have been putting into their business in the anticipation that things were about to boom in their line. The goods that have suffered most from the rather poor trade of the last few days are fresh fruits and vegetables. It is quite discouraging to a dealer to have these goods withering in his store and in the store window.

Nothing but fine weather will sell these goods. They must move quickly, and when the weather is not such as will tempt the public into the street, damageable goods will suffer. Just now particularly, when these lines are beginning to come in and have not yet been established on the summer market, the loss will be greater.

The low prices at which these lines are selling are of no consequence in the output of the goods. They are exceptionally cheap considering the period of the year. Strawberries are selling for 25c per quart and 15c per pint. Cucumbers are selling from 20c to 25c, and Florida grape fruit is going freely at 12c each. These prices, as well as others, are phenomenal for this time of the year.

The features of the week are the declines in sugar, and the advances in maple products and brooms.

SUGAR—There is a decline quoted this week of 10c on all varieties. The cause for the decline is attributed more or less to the competition among the refineries. Some companies are making strenuous efforts to land the western trade. It will be remembered that only a few weeks ago an advance was made, and since then the prices have been somewhat inflated. The 10c decline will put the market in a more normal condition.

SYRUP AND MOLASSES—The market is quite firm in both these commodities. Syrup is selling for higher prices than those quoted in a few houses. Molasses continues firm, but the sale is moderate. The following are the quotations:

MAPLE PRODUCTS—The long-looked-for arrivals fresh from the bush were stocked last week. The quality is said to be of the choicest. The prices quoted heretofore were factory prices. This week we quote the bush prices, which are somewhat higher.

Choice apricots in some instances are going out at 13c per pound, but generally the price is 12c. Up to this time quotations in dried fruits have been low. The summer trade may bring advances to almost the whole list.

ROLLED OATS—We cannot quote any change from last week, but oats have declined ½c in price per bushel. This will, no doubt, affect the cereal market, but as the price is already high, it is expected that present prices will prevail for some time.

BEANS—The market is rather dull. This commodity is a winter food and the market will possibly be weak all summer. The 3-lb. picker sells for $2.25 per bushel, and the prime white for $2.20 per bushel.

POT AND PEARL BARLEY — The whole cereal market has been good for a number of weeks. Just how long this will continue is uncertain, but the summer season is not the most congenial for heavy trade in these lines. The high prices of grains are responsible and as these prices fluctuate, the cereal market will also fluctuate. Pot barley is quoted at $2.70 per sack; pearl barley at $3.90 per sack, and $2.05 per half-sack.

BROOMS—A few years ago such prices as brooms are marketing for at the present time would have seemed exorbitant. Competition cannot bring the prices down, as the corn crop failure is general, and the prices of this week, which are an advance of 25c per dozen, will prevail, or may even go higher, until the new corn comes in. Brooms today are selling from $3.25 per dozen to $4.50 per dozen.

CANNED FRUITS AND VEGETABLES—Owing to the superfluous stocks in retail stores, and also to the fact that green goods are taking the place of canned products just now, the market is weak. There is a great variety of prices. Special advertisements often appear announcing sometimes 3 and sometimes 4 cans for 25c. The following wholesale prices are, as a consequence, only nominal.:

EGGS—The supply has decreased on the local market. The price is firm at 18c and may advance to 19c if the weather continues cold.

BUTTER—The creamery is a little weaker in price than that quoted last week. It is selling from the jobbing houses quite freely at 25c at present. The dairy product is the same, with slightly improved sales. It is jobbing from 15c to 16c per pound.

A CAR OF STRAWBERRIES.

On Wednesday morning, April 28, the first car of strawberries to enter Canada was received by Geo. Vipond & Co., Montreal. It was sold at auction by the Montreal Fruit Auction Co., J. J. Callaghan, auctioneer. These berries came from North Carolina and are of fine quality. The strawberry season is opening earlier than usual and while the prospects are not good for an extremely large crop the quality is reported to be excellent.

PURE FOOD SHOW IN MONTREAL.

G. Robertson and his brother, A. E. Robertson, are the sole managers of the Pure Food and Housekeepers Show, which will be given in the Coliseum, Montreal, May 17 to 29. N. J. Duquette has nothing whatever to do with the fair, G. Robertson informed The Grocer this week. The list of exhibitors is almost complete now, and the success of the show seems assured. One feature which seems to particularly attract exhibitors is the almost guaranteed large attendance ensured by the fact that thousands of tickets are being sold by the various charitable societies in Montreal, who are being permitted to keep the proceeds of all their ticket sales. The Montreal Star is selling tickets for charity in their branch office, and La Patrie will be doing similar charitable work, it is expected, in a few days. The Coliseum is one of the largest rinks in Montreal, and its central location will draw crowds that might not otherwise attend.

H. W. Smyth, treasurer Rose & Laflamme, Limited, Montreal, was married on April 28 to Miss Lillian Wilson. The wedding was a quiet one, and the same day the happy couple commenced a short honeymoon spent in Boston and New England points. R. H. Hendry, secretary of the company acted as groomsman. Mr. Smyth has any number of strong friends already among the benedicts who will gladly welcome him to the ranks, while those making up the single army will at least congratulate him.

DEFINITE STEPS TOWARDS PROVINCIAL ASSOCIATION.

From Our London Correspondent.

Exery member but one of the executive of the London Retail Grocers' Association attended the meeting on Monday night to consider the queestion of the organization of a Retail Grocers' Association for Ontario. The discussion was carried on for some time, the views of those present being embodied in the following resolution which will be presented to the association at its next meeting on the 11th inst:

"We, the executive of the Retail Grocers' Association, are fully convinced of the advantages of a provincial retail grocers' association, and we will do our share to promote the organization of such an association.

"We, however, think it the duty of retail grocers in every city and town in Ontario to first form a strong local retail grocers' association and then send their representatives to a convention to be held in one of our large cities, to elect officers and other preliminary work. By this means we could start with a strong provincial retail grocers' association that would command the attention of both the Federal and Provincial Governments. They could also deal with the wholesale grocers' guild and the manufacturers and then they would listen to us.

"We are confident a provincial retail grocers' association with good men at the head of it would be as powerful as any of the state organizations across the border, and most of us know that their powers are unlimited.

"We, therefore, ask The Canadian Grocer to make an appeal through its columns to the retail grocers in every city and town in Ontario to start a local retail grocers' association (if they have none at present) and get every man in the business into their local association. Then when that is done we would have no trouble in forming a provincial organization that would be a credit to us.

"We are satisfied that such an association would be of great assistance to every local grocers' association and be a sure remedy for the many wrongs from which the retail trade suffers from time to time.

"We deplore the fact that a large number of grocers throughout Ontario belong to retail merchants' associations composed mostly of merchants in other lines that have nothing in common with them.

"We would like the editor of The Canadian Grocer to get the opinion of every retail grocers' association in Ontario by writing to the secretary of each association for their views on the above subject."

QUEBEC MARKETS

POINTERS—
Sugar—Decline of 10c cwt.
Molasses—Supplies running short.
Tea—Picking begins in Japan.
Figs—Moving freely.
Beans and Peas—Firm.

Montreal, May 6, 1909.

Trade during the week has been only fair. Many orders which were waiting for the opening of river navigation have been shipped. Steamers have arrived from the Gulf and ferry boats are running. The business which is incidental to the presence of boats in the harbor is of fairly good proportions. as the harbor has quickly filled up with boats. For the last few days, there has been a steady procession of steamers moving down the river.

Travelers state that the country roads are drying up, consequently a better volume of trade is expected from these sources soon. Locally, the wholesale grocery and provision situation has not changed very materially. The sugar situation shows a decline in Canada. Dried fruits are practically unchanged. The chief interest in the tea market is shown in the Japan crop, which is now in the process of picking. Favorable cables have been received regarding the quality of the new crop. but prices have not yet been announced, as it is a trifle early. Other lines are featureless. Collections during the last few days have shown a wonderful improvement. The principal of a large firm stated that the past week had been one of the best which he had experienced for a long time.

SUGAR—The market declined in Canada on Tuesday, the reason probably being on account of slow demand. It is impossible to forecast what will next occu in this market. A sale of 3,000 tons of San Domingo was made last week.

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES—Advices from Barbadoes state that the visible supply of choice molasses gets shorter week by week. On the larger number of estates the canes are poor and planters naturally offer sparingly at 20 equal to 29 cost and freight, Montreal, but as Newfoundland requirements are a long way from being satisfied it appears that a very little of this grade will find its way to this market. The supply of choice will not exceed 12,000 puncheons, of which two-thirds are already marketed. As regards fancy, it is feared there will be little to go forward, and there is no chance of lower prices. "The total sugar crop will hardly exceed 20,000 tons so we look for very little business this season," remarked one of the interested. A good crop averages about 60,000 tons. A later cable from Barbadoes reported sales of several hundred puncheons of molasses for Montreal account on a basis of 29c for choice, and 26c for fancy, cost and freight Montreal. Locally, the market is strong but prices have not changed. Syrups are selling well, especially for the smaller tinned lines.

TEA—Picking in Japan is proceeding and a cable received by a local house stated that the quality was good. It is a little early to predict prices, but it is expected that these will be out in a few days. Locally the market has been quiet, and attention has been centred chiefly in Ceylons and Japans. There have been no changes in prices.

COFFEE—The condition of the coffee market has kept up with almost clockwork regularity for many months, both as regards price and demand. This week, however, the volume of business is reported as much less than for some time. This is regarded as only a chance condition, as there is nothing in the primary market to warrant anything out of the ordinary.

DRIED FRUITS—California raisins have manifested a firmer feeling during the week, but no changes in prices have taken place. Currants have been passing into consumption freely of late. Reports from Greece indicate that the market is at its lowest ebb there just now, and that from now on a stronger tone will develop. Figs have brightened up a little, and are moving a little more freely. Dates, especially Hallowees and Khadrawees, are in small compass, and are selling well. Other lines are meeting a rather indifferent sale. No changes in quotations have been recorded during the week.

CANNED GOODS

MONTREAL—Canned vegetables are selling exceptionally well this week, also canned fruits. The price of the fresh stock has not yet come down within the reach of the masses, so the canned stock is getting a good call. Fish is going well considering the time of the year. Canned pork and beans is moving slowly. Meats are in seasonable demand.

TORONTO—Canned fruits are selling well with apples and especially gallon apples in the lead. Peaches and plums are in good demand also, this being the season when the stock of preserved foods of the housewife are getting low.

Vegetables are also in demand, especially corn, peas and tomatoes. Some claim there will be a shortage in corn before the new goods arrive as well as peas.

ONTARIO MARKETS

Pointers—

Sugar—Decline of 10c cwt.
Starch—Good demand.
Corn Syrup—Selling Fairly Well.
Dried Fruits—Demand Continues Good.
Beans—Scarce and Firm.

Toronto, May 6, 1909.

The only feature of the markets of the week was a decline of 10 cents in sugar which occurred on Tuesday afternoon. The decline was confined solely to Canada and the only reason given is the unusually poor demand at this time of the year. The market is so peculiarly situated that there are no indications as to what will happen next.

The advance announced in starch last week caused those who had their orders in previously to get their supplies and there was a decided run on starch stocks on that account.

"Better business," "more goods going out" and "trade has been fine this week" were among the answers to The Grocer's queries while on his rounds. The general impression is that trade is picking up although in a few lines it is somewhat quiet.

Collections for April were reported by several firms as good and much better than in March. The cold weather no doubt checked business to some extent last week and wholesalers are anxiously awaiting the time when "there ain't goin' to be more cold."

SUGAR—Since last week the sugar market developed some weakness and on Tuesday afternoon there was a decline in Canada of 10 cents per cwt. United States refineries on account of recent heavy purchases showed some indifference to further offerings of raw sugars resulting in fractional concessions in prices for sugars on spot and for shipment up to second half of May. The market is quoted nominally at 2 17-32 c. and f., New York, for 96 test centrifugals, with buyers at 1-32 less or say 2½c for May shipment, while a 1-32 mor or say 2 9-16 would be paid for June shipment. Latest reports from Cuba indicate 119 central factories in operation or 12 less than the previous week and now that we are approaching the close of the campaign it is stated that the final outcome will be up to the the original estimate of 1,300,000 tons. Europe for week declined 3d to 10s, 3d per cwt. While no change occurred in refined prices in New York, Canadian prices declined as stated above. The only apparent reason is the exceedingly slow consumptive demand, but there should be an improvement in this respect in the near future. Meanwhile, the market may be called "unsettled" with no special indications for the time being.

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.—At the present time sugar syrups are scarce but there is not much of a demand. Canada's Trade Revival

Canada has entered upon a new era of business activity. This means a great deal to you as a retail merchant. You have a grand opportunity to help on the general movement and increase your own business by talking good times to your customers. Here are a few facts such as are being published every day showing trade revival:

The custom receipts for the Dominion during April totaled $3,961,678, an increase of $511,730 over April last year, and the March revenue showed a betterment of $391,189.

Gross earnings of the C.P.R. for March were 20 per cent. higher than in 1908 and 6¼ p.c. higher than in March 1907.

While the aggregate gross railway earnings of American railways in March showed an increase of 11 per cent over March, 1908, Canadian roads show an increase of 19 per cent.

Toronto bank clearings for April, 1909, were $111,289,680; for April, '08, $86,829,124, and for April, '07, $101,544,017. This year shows also a high increase for the four months to date as follows:

Four months, 1909	$439,523,472
Four months, 1908	343,051,137
Four months, 1907	413,824,610

A dispatch from Montreal says: Financiers and others who are interested in the progress and expansion of the Dominion have regarded with increasing satisfaction the frequent signs and evidences of financial and industrial improvement throughout the country.

Montreal bank clearings for the month of April show in an unequivocal manner that the progress reported from ocean to ocean is general and sound. Last year the clearings for the month of April amounted to $111,092,633. This year they reached the large sum of $135,180,233, which is an increase of $24,087,600 over the previous year. Figures for 1907 were given as $117,054,598. which is also considerably smaller than this year's record.

Bankers have reason to feel satisfied at the strength of the figures. and with the opening of navigation the return of normal trade conditions is assured.

Construction for April says: Instead of there being any indication of a let up in the building line, greater activity becomes manifest as the season advances. A remarkable building wave is sweeping over the entire country.

A striking feature of the March reports is the strong upward trend which prevails throughout Ontario. Every city submitting comparative figures has more than doubled the amount of building operations, as compared to the month of March last year.

Failures in Canada during six weeks ending April 29 totalled 154, compared with 201 during the same period in 1908.

How are you going to get your share of the revived business activity?

There are several ways that suggest themselves. Believe that business generally has improved, tell your customers so and increase their confidence. Push the goods you know are the best in their line. Do you know a better article to make a leader of than good tea?

You know RED ROSE TEA is good tea. If you use it in your home you know it is the best tea in Canada.

With that confidence you can recommend it to your best trade. No other tea will do as much to increase and hold your customers. Try Recommending RED ROSE TEA. It brings more business.

The Grocer's Possibilities in the Month of May

Opening of the Summer Season Gives Opportunities for a Good Business—Merchants Must be Aggressive — Give Prominence to Seasonable Goods—Dried and Canned Fruits Should be Cleared Away Before Preserving Time — Value of Window Display and Interior Decorations.

Again the month of May rolls round, and with it the beginning of a new season for the grocer. During April the weather has been alternately winter and summer-like, and while it has not been a good planning month, it has not been at all good for carrying out or building up any set plans for the improvement of the business.

One of the things that should receive first consideration in May is the annual housecleaning, if it has not already been done. The good housewife at this time of year gives her home a thorough overhauling. The grocer, too, should be prepared to do the same with his store and stock. A freshly-painted, nicely-cleaned grocery store will serve as a splendid advertisement and help you to sell the housecleaning lines that should be carried by all grocers who wish to be to the fore in the business world. A bright store front with an attractive window display of tubs, pails, brushes, clothespins, rope, mops, soap, soda, blue, baskets and all the other housecleaning utensils and goods specially called for at this season should greatly assist in selling these articles, and other lines as well, besides making your store better known.

Good Displays Essential.

Too much stress cannot be laid on the importance of window displays—that is, good window displays. There is a story told among the Brantford merchants of a grocer who many years ago was a leader in the trade of that city. Some fifteen years ago, having taken his son into partnership, the grocer placed dependence on the son for dressing the windows. After a couple of years the son, being ambitious, left to make his way in a newer community, and, before leaving, gave the windows a final dressing. That was twelve years ago—and the same displays are shown in that grocer's windows to-day. That grocer, although in the forefront a dozen years ago, is to-day a back number, a "has-been." Don't be a "has-been." Devote some time and attention to your windows. Change the goods and displays frequently—every fortnight at least; every week is none too often. Do not crowd your windows; and only display one line of goods at a time. You will reap a reward and the result will be beneficial to your business.

It would be well to run a series of window pictures by making up the displays from seasonable lines. Besides housecleaning goods the grocer might use window displays of flowers, dried and other fruits and vegetables. A great many grocery stores have double windows. A nice plan in such an event would be to devote one window to a display of flowers and the other to vegetables. The centre of the windows might be occupied with boxes displaying seeds. Nearly every seed house puts up its product in neat packages and boxes, and these will make admirable centrepieces for your windows. Surrounded in one window with a number of plants and in the other with groupings of greens and vegetables the meaning of the picture would be clear—cause and effect.

Advertise Seasonable Lines.

As well (and this is most important) the displays will tell the passerby that you handle these lines—seeds, vegetables and flowers—and if you show them off to advantage your window pictures will be watched for and will cause comment in the homes of not only your present customers but also in those of many others who may become customers, but who otherwise might not know of your existence. The real object of window-dressing is to attract, to advertise your business and the lines you carry. First, there is the attraction. The passer-by makes the mental comment "that's a pretty window." Next week something new is shown, and the store is commented on for its nice, clean appearance. That fact is mentioned in the home, and little by little the news spreads that "Jones has a clean store; his windows are pretty; the interior is neat, and he carries good lines. He carries, too, lines that we did not know a grocer dealt in."

Everybody knows that all grocers carry certain package, tinned and bulk goods; but everybody does not know that many grocers carry seeds, green vegetables, green fruits, potted and cut flowers, housecleaning utensils, confectionery, fresh fish, cakes, crockery and many other lines which might, could and should be made profitable. And there is only one way to make the fact known that you carry them—and that is, show them. To show them make neat window displays, and the people will prefer to come to your store to buy these things, along with their other grocery needs, rather than lose half a day making trips to a seed store, a vegetable and fruit stand, a flower shop, a house-furnishing store, a candy store, a fish depot, a bakery, and a crockery store.

The various lines noted above might be used in rotation for window displays especially if they be seasonable. In May dried fruits, vegetables, confectionery, seeds, housecleaning utensils, cakes and preserving articles are seasonable; and they can be made profitable to handle as well.

Coming of Preserving Time.

The early fruits are beginning to come in now and nearly every grocer can handle these lines. Bananas and pineapples are the first arrivals, and the grocer who does not handle fruit the year round should now let his customers know he is prepared to meet their requirements in this respect. He should, too, show them that he has preserving bottles, gem jars, etc. More and more every year are the Canadian people preserving pineapples, which is the first fruit to be canned, and towards the end of May is a good time to advocate the preserving of them. The pines are then plentiful; they are of good quality; and they are cheap—all points favorable to making sales to consumers.

Early vegetables and greens are now coming in freely enough to enable all grocers to handle them. They are turned over quickly so the chance of them staying on the grocer's hands is slight, Then there are flowers, which many grocers are now handling all the year round. A great number of florists in all sections of the country are making arrangements with grocers for the placing of their plants. The grocer gives them shop and window room free (which is an expense saved the florist) and on sales he makes a profit of 15 per cent. The plants are renewed and replenished daily at no expense to the grocer. Under such an arrangement he cannot lose; and in the far-off event of not making even a single sale the grocer has the free use of many potted and cut flowers and plants to help make his store attractive.

Push Confectionery.

Confectionery is a line which rightly belongs to the grocer, and he should make an effort to retain it. The up-to-date grocer makes an occasional window showing of confectionery and has a neat display case inside to set off this line. That it is a profitable line when properly handled was proved at a recent salesmanship demonstration held in Toronto when a chocolate representative made the statement that one some milk chocolate lines as high as 100 per cent. could be made by a grocer handling this class of goods, and on some other high-grade confectionery lines the profit was as much as 60 per cent. Many grocers say they can only sell confectionery at Christmas time, inferring that people buy at that season only but there are other seasons, too, and it can be put down as a fact that the person with a sweet tooth is not going to wait for Christmas or any other season to buy confectionery. He, or rather she, wants it now and all the time, and if you have not got it the buyer will go elsewhere.

Cakes are another line that can be handled by grocers profitably and on the same commission plan as flowers. From investigation this line is said to pay about 20 per cent. The margin of profit on any particular bakery article may be small, as the cakes must be put at a popular price, but with care cakes should be a good line, not only for the profit in themselves, but because they may be used as magnets for attracting to the store new buyers, who eventually will become customers. The summer time is a good time to begin to handle cakes.

Re-arrange Interior Decorations.

Inside the store the shelf goods should be rearranged. Bring to the front more seasonable lines. If there are any quantities of canned fruits and vegetables left make them so prominent that they will figure in frequent sales. The other day a grocer made a display of canned apples at a time when they were reported scarce. The result was the sale of 100 cases of canned apples within a few days. That grocer was wide awake, but not any more so than hundreds of others all over the country. Be a wide-awake grocer yourself. Jelly powders, essences, spices and many other little articles may be used to fill in the spaces in front of heavier goods on the shelves.

They are summer and preserving lines and will be sure to be asked for. Their prominence will certainly inspire the buyer. In fact, the grocer should have this one thing always before him: to help the buyer by spoken word and prominent display to know and see the things which he wants. This can be done by helpful suggestion and bringing to the front the most seasonable, and, therefore most wantable, lines.

Watch Perishable Goods.

The keeping of butter, cheese and eggs will become a serious question for the grocer as the summer advances. If he is wise the grocer will, from the start, put these goods under cover in a cool refrigerator where they can be inspected and viewed without removal from the ice chest.

The interior decorations should now be changed. Perhaps the taking down of the old decorations and the making of a clean store will do for a time. Later on, the many cartons which find their way to every grocery store, may be used to weave into a number of fanciful designs which will greatly enhance the appearance of the interior as well as save the stock from the depredations of flies and the dust and dirt of the hot summer days.

And above all else treat every person who comes into the store, whether buyer or not, as a friend and in polite terms, and you will find that business will not be so very hard, nor so very unprofitable.

RELIC OF THE OLD DAYS.

An interesting old invoice was unearthed by S. H. Ewing & Sons, Montreal, this week, when they were doing some spring housecleaning. It was dated August 1, 1868, and was prepared to be sent out to J. McNiece, a Montreal retail grocer in those days. The invoice charged up 40 lbs. coffee bought in four lots during the month of July, and was made out under the heading S. H. & A. S. Ewing, as the business was being run then. The coffee was sold at 15½c and 17½c lb., and the total amount of the invoice was £1 13s. 9d. It is an interesting relic of the old days in the grocery trade in Montreal.

The Making of Feather Dusters a New Industry

Just Introduced Into Canada—Visitor to the Factory at Toronto Describes the Process of Manufacture—A Market Provided for Turkey Feathers.

The latest industry to invade the manufacturing field in Canada is the making of feather dusters. Strange as it may seem to grocers, hardwaremen, and other merchants who handle these goods, feather dusters until the present have not been made in Canada, if we except a small but unsuccessful effort made some few years ago to start such an industry in a Western Ontario city.

The Canadian wholesale and retail trade therefore, has had to depend on imported lines of feather dusters for their stocks. Naturally, being unable to obtain supplies at home the great bulk of feather dusters entering Canada have come from the United States, where the industry is established for many years.

New Industry Here.

It is but four months since H. W. Nelson & Co., Toronto, manufacturers of brooms and whisks, and dealers in woodenware, etc., added to their plant a factory for the making of feather dusters. The beginning was a modest one and the company confined itself to the manufacture of but one grade—the standard—used for household dusting purposes. Now, however, so great has been the success of the original effort that six or seven lines are being made, and the end is not yet.

S. G. Wharin, managing director of the company, showed a representative of this paper over the factory and explained the various processes of manufacture. He said the company was starting in a small way and would follow the lead of demand rather than go before, because the industry was just being built up. However, he was much cheered with the success of the undertaking up to now and was having some difficulty in supplying the demand for the lines at present made. As demand took concrete form for other wantable lines he would add them from time to time.

Wing and Tail Feathers.

Feather dusters, as everyone knows, are made from the wing and tail feathers of turkeys and they are cleaned, sorted and softened before being made up. Perhaps a description of the process of manufacture step by step will prove interesting and give some idea of how these useful household articles are made.

In the United States the saving and gathering of feathers has proved profitable to the farmer who plucks his own fowl for the market. He sells these feathers with his fowl to the dealers in his section, and through these dealers they find their way to the factories. They arrive, too, in fair shape, for the feathers are tied in bundles of 100 and placed in large sacks containing about 250 pounds. This allows of careful handling and also saves something in the way of freight tolls. In Canada, being a new industry, the feathers do not arrive at the factory in such fair shape; nor, in fact, does the same careful method of marketing, picking and packing obtain, the feathers reaching the factory in bulk lots of no particular size. However, this difficulty will be overcome before another year goes by, when the raisers of fowl know that turkey feathers are a merchantable commodity and have a monetary value.

The First Feather Dusters Made in Canada.

The Cleaning Process.

The feathers are placed in a huge rectangular box, the bottom and top of which are covered with screens. This box will contain probably 300 pounds of feathers. By means of an electric motor the box is revolved for some length of time and the dust and grit falling through the screens is entirely separated from the feathers. The feathers next go through two sorting processes, a number of nimble-fingered girls who soon become experts doing this work. The feathers are divided into black, brown and fancy feathers, and these three groups are sub-divided according to sizes, which run from 8 to 14 inches. The brown feathers are used in the standard household size, which is the cheapest and most called for line, the black and spotted fancy feathers being used in the higher grades.

The next stage takes the feathers through a machine which splits the quill, a sharp knife cutting off the rough underpart of the stem, leaving the vane or beard attached to part of the shell of the quill. In this splitting or trimming occurs the only noticeable waste. With the quill unavoidably goes some part of the feather, and as yet no use has been found for this waste. In some of the U. S. factories it is understood that this quill is used in the making of ammonia, but the manufacture and supply of this latter commodity is greater than the demand at present in Canada.

Putting on the Handle.

After trimming they are run between two metal cylinders of a rolling machine which softens the stem and makes them pliable. They now go to another set of sorters who count out twenty feathers, place them in a clothes-pin and put them in baskets containing similar sized feathers. This latter sorting makes it convenient for the men assembling and binding the dusters. Every standard duster contains 100 feathers, so the assemblers taking five clothespins have without any counting on their part the requisite 100 feathers necessary for a duster. Evening and rounding off the ends a circular stub is inserted in the centre, the whole placed on a binding machine, a few twists of which completely and firmly wires the feathers to the stub. A couple of rows of shorter feathers around the lower end of the stub hides the wire and finishes off the brush end of the duster. The remainder of the duster-making process is simple. A paper binding is placed over the feather ends ; a leather cuff is next put on and then the handle is inserted by being screwed into the wooden stub. This handle is of black-japanned tan and cherry-colored woods for household dusters, and in the better grades is of imitation ebony and rubberoid. On these latter there is also placed a drawn-steel, nickel-plated ferrule. The leather cuff, which is on all the dusters, is a new idea and the Nelson company use it for displaying the names of the grade, the firm, and the "bull dog" trade mark of the manufacturers.

Many Varieties Made.

As before mentioned, while the factory was started primarily to manufacture the standard household feather duster, of late the making of the higher grade parlor, picture, janitor and carriage dusters are important additions. The factory while yet conducted on a small scale is as complete as any in the United States. It is impossible to say what amount of feathers are available for manufacture in Canada, but for purposes of estimating last year Great Britain imported 916,122 pounds of feathers of all kinds from all parts of the earth, and valued at £981,459. Of these 26,383 pounds valued at £82,422 were for the purpose of manufacture into dusters and similar goods.

GROCERY COST EVOLUTION.

Some Ups and Downs in Prices Since 68 Years Ago.

Some one has discovered an old copy of the Philadelphia Courier, printed in 1841, from which he has gleaned certain comparative quotations for foods in the United States, which will be read with interest by the retail grocery trade. There appears to have been a marvelous readjustment in values in the lapse of 68 years, some up and some down. Just to what extent they are the result of natural evolution or how much they come from artificial influences, set up by men and laws and the natural development of invention and economies, is difficult to trace, but it is a subject possibly worth studying. Here are a few of the comparisons:

A NEW PACKAGE.

The demand for West India arrowroot which is specially suitable for the use of invalids and children, has prompted White Swan Spices and Cereals, Limited, to place on the market a quarter pound package of pure West India arrowroot to retail at ten cents and at the same time show the grocer a handsome profit. This new air-tight package should create a favorable impression. It gives directions for its use in preparing dainty and health-giving dishes.

Produce and Provision Situation of the World

Scarcity of Hogs Still Deplored by the Packers—English Butter Market Quiet—Weather Conditions on the Continent Favorable—Advance in Cheese Probable.

The scarcity of hogs continues to be the great trouble in the provision trade. The packers claim that they are paying so high for the hogs that they have no margin left for themselves. In an article in the Farmers' Advocate, a farmer considers that the hog industry is in a "deplorable condition," and asks, "Where lies the fault?" and then goes on to recommend a commission of competent farmers to go to Denmark to find the remedy. While he admits that they might bring back some good ideas of breeding and feeding, he places the most stress on the importance of co-operation in placing the products on the market. This answers his question from his viewpoint, and places the fault on the packers. This is not fair, neither is it true. The packers are doing their part right and well. They turn out the best possible product from the hogs, and are realizing from the patient public good prices for it, and are turning nearly all the money to the farmer and yet he thinks the hog situation is in a deplorable condition, and also that the Government should, in addition to the high price of bacon, tax the people to give some farmers a free trip.

There are enough packing houses in operation to take care of all the hogs the farmers will produce, even if they raise five times as many as they do now. It is not many years ago, since co-operative packing houses were started in many places of Ontario, and in every case they have failed. Why,, then, again waste the people's money to make experiments in the interests of the farmers? The farmers, no more than any other class, are entitled to the whole earth, and it is unfair to expect the Government to assist them in matters of business which are entirely for themselves. The only remedy to lift the situation out of this deplorable condition is for the farmer to do his part and be satisfied to raise hogs at a reasonable profit.

Reports arriving from England state that the butter market is quiet, but steady, with a tendency towards a weaker tone if anything. Buying has not been very large, and holders are not any too sanguine of a turn of the market in their favor. Advices from Ireland and points on the continent, state that weather conditions are highly favorable, so the probability is that the market will decline rather than advance. Supplies from home sources are also increasing. Prices have not altered materially, but a drop in the near future is inevitable, unless something extraordinary occurs. With these conditions existing, both buyers and sellers are interested spectators, but scarcely any business is transpiring.

Advices from England state that the cheese outlook is favorable, and an advance is a strong probability. It is thought that the new make is sufficiently far off to assume that the market will be fairly bare before the new make becomes a factor. In view of these conditions, the holders are waiting for better terms than can be obtained now. Stocks of Canadian are very small, and imports are nil.

MONTREAL.

PROVISIONS—A strong feeling prevailed in the local live stock situation at the latter end of last week, owing to a keen demand from packers for supplies, and prices advanced with sales of selected at $8.45. But owing to larger offerings on Tuesday than was anticipated, an easier feeling developed in the market, and prices reacted with sales at $8.25 to $8.35 per 100 lbs. weighed off cars. The market for dressed hogs was unchanged, prices being firm under a good demand at $11.25 to $11.50 per 100 lbs. No changes in lard prices have been recorded.

BUTTER—The butter market in the country rules at about 23½c, but it is expected that this will shade off during the week as the prospects for a large make are good. Stocks of fall creamery are in extremely small compass and prices are firm on this line. Lack of Salesmanship the Cause of Small Sales

Why Evaporated Apples are not Moving as Rapidly as in Former Years—Grocers Neglect to Push Sales at Proper Time —Export Trade to Germany not as Great as Usual — The Consensus of Opinions.

The attention of the Canadian Grocer was recently called to the fact that evaporated apples have not been selling in quantities as large as could reasonably be expected under existing conditions. Green apples are very dear, and as, evaporated apples can be used instead for a good many purposes there should naturally be a larger sale for them as they are much cheaper than green fruit.

Representatives of the Grocer in various parts of the Dominion were instructed to inquire into the matter, and the conclusion arrived at is, that it is owing to lack on the part of grocers to know how and where to present certain lines of goods to their customers.

The art of salesmanship is simply a thing unknown in many of our grocery stores. A good salesman is not only one who can run up the highest daily sales but a good salesman must lead and direct his customer to buy the right things at the right time, and consequently to the best advantage to the customer. Clerks in grocery stores according to many proprietors are as a rule waiters but not salesmen. They simply give the people what they ask for, without having an idea of what to lead the customer to buy, and if they do, they are apt to ask them to buy evaporated apples when green apples are in season. To offer anything to a customer which is out of season at once shows ignorance and want of business training. A good salesman should be a help to a customer to buy to the best advantage. He ought to know what to recommend, and the customer will soon see the value of it, and appreciate it.

Salesmanship Necessary.

Since nearly all the groceries are now done up in packages, the principal training a clerk requires is to handle his customers properly, but not to load them up with goods they do not want; to sell the kind of goods that will give them the best satisfaction at the lowest cost.

For instance if a lady not in the best of financial circumstances, were to ask for green apples at 60c a peck to make pies, it is the duty of a good salesman to direct her attention to evaporated apples which answer the same purpose, and which can be bought for much less money. If she finds that the advice was correct and that the clerk saved money for her she will be a customer that will stay.

Supposing a lady goes into a dry goods store to purchase the material for a dress, and she had no assistance from the clerk who should be far better qualified than herself to select the proper blending of colors, she would in nine cases out of ten not be pleased.

Good salesmanship has a great deal to do in making satisfied customers. Now is the time to sell all kinds of evaporated fruits before the summer berries and fruits come in, and these should be kept prominently before the customers, not only to get rid of them, but because they are the most economical things to buy. A grocer must realize the fact that he is not only in business for his own interests but to give the best possible service to the people who deal with him. they pay their money and they have a right to expect good service, not only in the quality of the goods, but also in directing them wisely in spending their money to their own best advantage.

No Export Demand.

A broker who handles evaporated apples extensively states that several things are due to the small sales this year. Usually a good export demand comes from Germany but this year there was little call from that country in comparison with some previous years. Why this was the case was difficult to answer.

Another item which he believed has contributed to the lack of sales of evaporated apples is the cheapness of California dried fruits. This year peaches, apricots, etc., were not very expensive and they sold well. Their appearance when placed beside evaporated apples probably catches the eye of the purchaser and detracts from the apples.

At any rate, he said they were not selling according to expectations but it was difficult to get at the real reason, if it was not that grocers were not well enough acquainted with the goods to advance their sales.

HUGE FINE AFFECTS BANKS.

New York bank statistics for last week show that a loss in cash of $2,638,400 occurred partially resulting from the enforced payments by the American Sugar Refining Co. of their huge fine to the Government customs department. These enforced payments amounted to $2,269,897, which, it will be remembered, was the sum necessary to balance the alleged fraud the company practised in weighing sugar importations.

Latest reports from New York regarding the latter case state that it is not yet over and that the Government is aiming to implicate men in the Federal as well as in the city employ. Harry L. Stimson, special assistant to the United States Attorney-General, intimates that the proceedings have as their object the indictment of certain officials of the corporation. The Government's intention is to get after individuals responsible for the fraudulent actions as far as the law will allow.

OUTLOOK FOR TOMATO PACK.

Opinion of Packer Who Disagrees on Prospects of Big Available Stocks.

R. W. Messenger in Journal of Commerce, N.Y.

The writer was certainly very much surprised to note in your issue of yesterday that "some of the market wise" thought a break in the price of tomatoes was due and based their opinions upon "estimates of a carry-over from the last season's tomato pack of at least 5,000,000 cases—some make it nearly 7,000,000 cases—with a new packing season approaching and every indication that the coming pack will be as large if not larger than it was in 1908."

Now, as for expecting a break in the price of tomatoes, if one is due, let it come. The lower that article is now for the next thirty days the better for the business next fall and the higher they will be one year from now, as this is planting time and a discouraging prospect such as we have right now, even without any further break, is going to cut the "Tri-States" acreage 25 per cent. We will say no more about that.

Let us play fair on "estimates of a carryover" though. On November 12, last, positive statistics made canneries in Maryland, Delaware and New Jersey, which packed 4,228,000 cases of tomatoes, have on hand 2,125,000, and a close estimate made the entire amount then held in the three States 3,150,000. These three States packed, according to the most exhaustive statistics ever compiled, 6,307,000 cases of tomatoes, and, as that would mean that nearly half of the tomatoes packed in that district had already passed out of the canners' hands, the market was considered by those holding blocks to be in a very healthy condition. The buyers, however, entirely refused to see it that way and, in spite of the fact that 13,500,000 packed the year before, according to very incomplete statistics, (it is likely that as searching an inquiry as was made in the fall of 1908 would have developed close to 15,000,000 cases) were almost entirely cleaned up, saw fit to consider 11,500,000 cases packed in 1908, according to remarkably complete statistics, a very dangerous amount, and have only bought from hand-to-mouth since they learned the size of the pack. If the same proportion was carried out all over the country nearly half of the pack was out of first hands on November 12. It is fair to assume that such was the case, and farther, it is fair to assume that sales since that time have been, the country over, about on the same ratio that they have in this section, for while most of the States making small packs are probably holding a larger proportion it would seem from the amount of Eastern tomatoes selling for shipment to the Middle West, that that large producing section was better sold out than we are and have on hand a smaller proportion of their pack. Canners in this section have sold around half of the tomatoes they had on hand November 12, and followed out in the same proportion this would mean 3,000,000 cases now in first hands, which I am firmly convinced is nearer right than 5,000,000. Then, again, stocks in second hands are probably 2,000,000 cases smaller than they were eight years ago.

I don't anticipate any advance of consequence before packing season. If a man don't want to buy a thing he can't be made to do it, and as the distributers have some very good reasons for not wishing to carry stocks of canned goods of every kind, and especially tomatoes.

As for acreage, it is bound to be smaller than in 1908. Somebody is certainly mistaken when they say that there is every indication that the coming pack will be as large, if not larger, than it was in 1908. On the contrary, the seed salesmen, the label salesmen, the can salesmen and others all unite in saying that preparations are nothing in comparison to what they were last year. If nothing happens to encourage the canners and farmers too much in the next thirty days the acreage will be small and canned tomatoes will immediately become a good investment.

At a recent meeting of the directors and shareholders of the Young-Thomas Soap Company, E. Marshall Young was appointed general manager, and the sales management of the business was given to Philip Gershel, late of Chicago who is an expert salesman and has had wide experience in handling men in specialty lines. The change was made owing to the increasing business of the firm. Mr. Gershel, who has become a stockholder in the firm, will have his forces in hand at an early date and intends branching out extensively in Western Canada, the company having heretofore confined their efforts principally to Saskatchewan.

The Quality of Christie's Biscuits and what it means to you—

IN buying goods there are three cardinal points that you consider carefully. They are:

1. How quickly can I turn these goods over and get my money out of them?

2. Are they the best that I can buy?

3. Do I get a fair margin of profit?

The merit of the goods very properly takes precedence over the matter of price, although, of course, the latter is important.

However, quality has more to do with profits than some merchants think.

Fundamentally, quality determines the success of any article just as the success of every merchant depends upon the quality of the goods he handles.

Christie's Biscuits measure up to the very highest quality standard. There is no acceptable substitute for them on the market. Therefore, Christie's Biscuits are as staple as sugar and salt in the grocery stores that cater to particular trade.

The thousands of merchants, from ocean to ocean, who push Christie's in preference to all other brands of biscuits, have come to realize, through experience, just what Christie Quality means to them.

These merchants have proved that Christie's give them a larger turn-over, and greater aggregate profit in their biscuit departments; also that they build up the paying trade and hold it.

They have proved, too, that Christie's Biscuits sell more than biscuits.

Flour, Cereals and Confectionery Department

Grocers Breaking in on the Trade of Confectioners—Use of Show Cases Enhances Their Sales — Rapid Progress Being Made—Bleaching of Flour Prohibited in United States.

"A few years ago," remarked a traveler recently, "you would scarcely find a grocer throughout the country who handled high-class confectionery. There were usually a few bulk and gross goods kept on hand but the better class of candy wasn't touched. To-day scores of grocers who cater to the best trade in their own towns carry these goods."

At that time the traveler declared that the confectionery stores did not consider grocers as rivals but now they have come to the conclusion that they are contenders in the confectionery trade and are attracting considerable business. The lines formerly carried were of an inferior quality, often dirty looking and not conducive to extensive buying.

"Grocers are now installing handsome glass show-cases and are beginning to realize there is money in the business," continued the knight of the grip. "Their show-cases attract the eye and keep out the dust and dirt and some are even going so far as to put in ice cream counters."

The truth of the assertions of the traveler is borne out by many store interiors shown in The Grocer from time to time. The grocers who have taken up confectionery as a side line and who are giving their business some attention are finding it of double value—an attraction in the store and a paying investment.

The bleaching of flour referred to a few weeks ago is a violation of the United States Pure Food law. Justice Stafford, of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, in giving a decision recently, declared that Secretary of Agriculture Wilson was right in deciding that the bleaching of flour was contrary to law.

The court's decision was made in the case of the Alsup Process Co., of St. Louis, manufacturers of flour bleaching apparatus. The company sought by mandamus proceedings to have the secretary of agriculture reverse his ruling that the use of nitrogen peroxide in bleaching flour renders it unwholesome and deleterious. Secretary Wilson's order forbidding the bleaching of flour becomes effective in June, at which time it is expected millers on the other side will begin further court proceedings.

The advance in the price of flour in the United States has compelled shippers there to repurchase flour which they had previously sold to China some three months ago. It is stated this was the first time flour was ever imported from the Orient.

MONTREAL.

FLOUR—Ontario winter wheat is scarce and a firm feeling prevails locally for these lines of flour. Millers are offering practically nothing. Inquiries continue to arrive from Egypt for low-grade flours but there is nothing of this kind offering as the market is practically bare. The big millers report business dull, very little new trade offering. Some fairly decent orders are being completed now for South Africa, and other orders taken some time ago, to await the opening of inland navigation, are being sent forward.

FEED—Bran is arriving in small supply, and the market continues firm. The demand is very limited and of the hand-to-mouth character. Dealers are fighting shy of anything not required to supply immediate wants. Shorts are unchanged, under a fair demand. Mouillie is showing a stronger tone, although the price has not changed any. Altogether, the feed market is decidedly dull.

TORONTO.

FLOUR—All that can be said of the wheat and flour situation this week is that the market is strong, which means an upward tendency. Very little wheat is offered on account of the bad roads, as well as the busy time being here for the farmers in putting in their crops. One of the strange features in the flour market is the small difference between Ontario wheat flour and Manitoba hard wheat flour. Millers who have not been fortunate enough to lay in a good stock of wheat before the advance, have considerable trouble to get their supplies. One miller declared that he did not know where he could lay his hand on a single car of Ontario wheat at the present time. Wheat is running at $1.20 to $1.23. Seeding operations are progressing favorably in the Northwest, which has a quieting effect on the market.

DEATH OF M. G. DE WOLFE.

The Maritime Provinces Lose a Faithful and Energetic Worker.

Those who knew Melville G. De Wolfe of Kentville, N.S.,—and he had many warm friends in Ontario—deeply regret his death which occurred a few days ago after an illness of some months.

Until two years ago Mr. De Wolfe was proprietor of the noted "Red Store" in Kentville, for many years kept by his father.

He was one of the kindliest and best hearted men in the Maritime Provinces,

M. G. DE WOLFE,
Whose Death at His Home in Kentville, N.S., is Announced.

and no one took a deeper interest in the advancement of the best interests not only of the community in which he lived, but in the eastern provinces. Regarding his home town he was always anxious to see it forge ahead and in view of this he was the father of a good many schemes to further its advancement. Among other things he arranged fairs in Kentville on various occasions, to bring in the farmers from the surrounding country.

He was a member of the Maritime Board of Trade, the Nova Scotia Fruit Growers' Association and the Nova Scotia Farmers' Association, so that in business circles he will be greatly missed. He was 63 years of age.

Albert Welter, of the staff of Naismith & Waddell, Humboldt, Sask., has left for points on the G.T.P., west of Saskatoon, where he will look up a location for the establishment of a general store.

AN EXCELLENT OTTAWA HOTEL.

Walter Walby is still making improvments in the fine hotel he opened a couple of years ago in Ottawa, the Cecil. The large new wing was opened a few months ago, but many little things are being done to further improve the accommodation and the service. The Cecil Hotel caters particularly to commercial travelers and knows this class of patronage to be such as can appreciate A1 service and first-class accommodation. The cuisine has never been better, plenty of plain and fancy food, and variety. The rooms are now clean, fresh and modern in every respect. Running water; comfortable beds with the latest springs and mattresses; sanitary hardwood floors—these are a few features worth having for the sake of comfort. All in all, the Cecil Hotel strikes one as being about as modern an hotel as there is in Canada. The attractive commercial rate, and the courteous attention which travelin~ salesmen are accorded impress the knight of the grip most favorably. The majority of the salesmen going into Ottawa stop at the Cecil one time or another. After the first trip the Cecil is willing to take chances on the patron coming back.—Advt.

DEFENDANTS PAY COSTS.

Result of Action Preferred by Frank Everist Against Grand Trunk Railway Co.

The action of Frank Everist, of McWilliam & Everist, fruit commission merchants, Toronto, against the Grand Trunk Railway Co. for $450 damages, has been dismissed by Justice Magee, with costs to the defendants. The plaintiff's claim was made on account of the alleged loss of 180 barrels of apples from Londesborough, Huron County, to Toronto in November, 1907, through the alleged neglect of the defendants.

The evidence showed that the apples were not loaded on a car, but were waiting on the platform, and were burned when the station house was burned. In giving his decision his Lordship explained that the plaintiff conceded that no case had been established for holding the defendants liable merely as warehousemen, but contended that they were liable as common carriers, and although they might have been exempted from liability if the usual conditions had been signed, yet as the company had not so limited its liability, and, in fact, did not ordinarily so limit it until the goods were actually loaded, the full common law of responsibility existed.

The defendants, on the other hand, said they did not assume liability except as warehousemen, or as carriers upon the terms of their ordinary shipping receipts. They also maintained the goods had not come to their possession or control as carriers, but were still in possession and control of plaintiff. The fact that the stationmaster, Carlisle, had paid the farmers for the apples on behalf of the plaintiff did not, in Justice Magee's opinion change the situation as between plaintiff and defendants, which remained the same as if payment had been made by the plaintiff's agent, Cantelon. His Lordship thought the plaintiff did not finally instruct the company as to any particular barrels that they were to forward, and that on that account his action failed.

WIT OF A CORRESPONDENT.

One of The Grocer's readers has discovered what we already surmised—that our Kingston correspondent is a wit. The former points out that in last week's correspondence from the Limestone city the following item appeared: "The farmers are raising Cain owing to the advance in sugar."

What does it mean—to you?

NO MAN'S selling talk is better than the goods he carries, for good salesmanship is founded on thorough knowledge of his wares.

¶ To get a first mortgage on good trade, you require not so much the spur of ambition as of faith and enthusiasm. These are qualities which take effect in the salesman, but find their origin in good merchandise.

FIVE ROSES
STRENGTHENS SALESTALK

¶ No retailer is at his best when he knows his flour may prove him a ——well, "gay deceiver."

¶ This power behind the salesman. How many flours possess it besides FIVE ROSES?

¶ We want you, our logical distributor, to know FIVE ROSES as we know it and to engraft in your mind merits possessed by no other flour designed to serve the housewife's every purpose. Twenty years have been spent in perfecting a good thing, twenty years spent (not wasted) in progressive study to find out what good cooks like best and need most in flour. When it involved top-notch men, methods, materials—cost was slighted.

¶ It costs you more, but pays you better — pays your customer better. If the other fellows could make FIVE ROSES they would charge more than we do and would have to cut the price.

The Grocer's Encyclopedia From Week to Week

Cloves are Flower Buds of a Plant — Word Derived From French Word for Nail—Where Our Supply Comes From — Cloves Used as a Stimulant and Condiment—A Valuable Condiment for Culinary Purposes.

CLOVES—The clove tree belongs to the botanical family known as the Myrtawe. It has opposite long, oval, shining, leathery stalked leaves, and a short terminal cluster of flowers. The flower stalks are green; the calyx consists of a brownish-red cylindrical tube, terminated by four ovate teeth; there are four small greenish concave petals, and a large clusters of yellow stamens. The fruit is an oblong, one-seeded purple berry, crowned by the persistent teeth of the calyx. All the parts, as in other true myrtaceous plants, are covered with dots containing the essential oil peculiar to the species.

The clove was first discovered in the Moluccas from whence it has been carried to all other tropical parts of the world.

Flower Buds of the Plant.

The cloves found in spice shops and of commerce, are the flower buds of this plant, gathered before they open and dried in the sun; the round ball at their ends is the corolla, enclosing the stamens; the quadrangular part below is the tube of the calyx, and the four teeth are divisions of the calyx.

The word clove is a corruption of the French word clou, meaning a nail, which comes from its obvious suggestion of a nail. The clove tree is a native of the small group of islands in the Indian Archepelago, called the Moluccas or Spice Islands; but has been cultivated for a long time by the Dutch in Amboyna, and two or three small neighboring islands.

Western adventurers were in a measure led on to greater exploits in the hopes of finding the habitat of cloves, as they were in the early ages extremely valuable, and trade in them was a lucrative one.

Introduced by Portuguese.

To those interpid navigators of the middle ages, the Portuguese, belongs the honor of first bringing them to the European markets and they obtained possession of the clove plantations of the Moluccas, and retained them until expelled by the Dutch in 1605. This latter power made a vain attempt to monopolize the trade by destroying largely the trees in the Moluccas, and cultivating them in Amboyna, and two or three neighboring islands. In 1770 the French, after many difficulties, introduced the tree into Mauritius, and subsequently they were introduced into Guiana, and at the end of the eighteenth century, they were planted in Zanzibar.

Sources of Supply.

The chief commercial sources of supply are now Zanzibar, and the neighboring islands of Pemba, on the East African coast, and Amboyua. Cloves are also grown in Java, Reunion, Sumatra, Guiana and the West Indian Islands.

Cloves of commerce are a deep brown in color and have a powerfully fragrant odor, with a hot acrid taste. They contain a volatile oil, with which they are charged to the large proportion of 18 per cent.. This oil is obtained by a process of repeated distillation. It is a pale yellowish liquid which becomes darker the longer it stands.

Uses as Medicine.

The chief uses of cloves are in medicine, and for culinary purposes. When taken into the stomach they are powerful stimulants and promote digestion by increasing the flow of the juices of the stomach, when taken with insipid food or that which is difficult of digestion. Though the action is generally limited to the stomach, yet if taken in excess, or the use long continued, it extends to the brain, causing giddiness, and other inconveniences.

Cloves are sometimes administered in powder form along with gum in very moderate doses, but the infusion is the best method. Infusion of cloves is often used as a gargle by people too much salivated by the use of mercury. Alone, or when made the vehicle for carbonate of ammonia, nothing so effectually and safely removes the feeling of coldness and weight about the stomach experienced by hysterical or gouty persons, and renders recourse to alcoholic stimulants unnecessary.

Oil of cloves is largely used to drop into decayed teeth, and also is given with many purgative and other medicines, to correct their griping effects. Cloves are regarded as one of the most useful and pleasant condiments that find use in a culinary way.

GREEN FRUITS—It is expected that the cargo of the "Francesco Ciampa," which is loaded with about 35,000 packages of oranges and lemons, will be sold about May 12. The demand for the California navel orange still exceeds all others. Valencias are stronger this week, the best grades going at $5. Cuban oranges are selling at a very reasonable figure, $2.25 to $2.50, all sizes, being asked for them. Grape fruit is getting scarce and the price remains strong. The prices on new stock from the Mediterranean are being quoted for Catania oranges at $3 to $3.50. Sorrento oranges are plentiful this year, and will sell around $2.50 to $3. Lemons will rule $2.50 to $3 per box.

FISH—Prices of halibut have reached a low mark and stock arriving is of good quality. Haddock is scarce and higher, also shad. B. C. salmon is a shade lower this week. Frozen lines remain as last quoted. Reports from the country state that the cold weather is keeping back trout fishing. Smoked and salted lines are unchanged.

GREEN FRUIT—Apples are rapidly disappearing from the market and good stock, if it can be obtained, sells at very high prices. Low-grade apples are not wanted, and must either be sold below the market value or allowed to spoil. Navel oranges will soon be out of season. Valencias are higher. Pineapples are plentiful and lower. Strawberries are now coming from North Carolina, and are in quart boxes, and sell to the trade at 20c a box. However, lower prices may be looked for in the near future.

VEGETABLES—There is nothing startling to report about the potato market this week, still there seems to be some uncertainty in the minds of the dealers. The fact of the matter seems to be that the "American" buyers who caused a little stir a few weeks ago, have withdrawn and the export demand has vanished, and the market is easier with a decline of from 10c to 15c a bag. That the "American" buyers were mistaken in their own market is shown from the fact that they resold some of the potatoes they had bought to Canadian buyers, at a loss. With the large quantity reported in the hands of farmers, both in Ontario and the Eastern Provinces, we may count with some degree of certainty that prices will not be any higher. At the same time it should not be overlooked, that all kinds of grain are higher and hogs are dear. So that the farmer is not obliged to sell his potatoes at a low price, because he can feed them and realize a good price for them in pork. Cabbage is arriving in large quantities, and is cheaper. Owing to the ill effects of the recent rain storms in Florida the tomatoes now coming to this market show that they have gone through the storm, and consequently are somewhat inferior in quality.

FISH—The fish market is unsettled. The real season for fresh caught fish has scarcely arrived and the frozen stock is out of date. One firm who seemed to be more fortunate than the rest received a good shipment of fresh fish in splendid condition, and were busy in filling the orders which were waiting for them. They, of course, reported that business was brisk, and as they were able, on account of their scarcity in other houses, to realize a good stiff advance, every one around the place was cheerful and glad to supply the "fisher for news" with the information he was looking for. In another place for the first time, a usually jolly Englishman was down in the mouth, and had very little to say except that business was dull, very dull. However, things will soon change. Contracts with the fishermen only begin May 1 and this is only the 4th, so that we may look for better things within a week.

THE FRUIT OUTLOOK.

First California Fruits Will Not Ripen as Early as Expected.

In a circular issued by the California Fruit Distributors, the following information on the fruit crop outlook in California is given :

Since our last letter to the trade dated March 11th, the fruit trees have passed the blossoming period and the fruit is set so that we can now give more definite information in regard to prospects for the coming crop. Our expectations of the ripening of fruit being earlier than last year will not be realized on the first fruits, but with good weather may be on those coming later.

Cherries—The early varieties will be rather lighter than last year. Black Tartarians, Royal Annes, Bings, etc., generally promise a fair crop. The first box of cherries is expected to go forward daily, but carlots can hardly be expected to move before the middle of May.

Apricots will be light in the early sections, but there will be enough for shipping purposes.

Peaches are generally looking well, and there will be an abundance of all shipping varieties. Muirs, generally used for drying purposes, and some varieties of Clings will not be as heavy as last year.

Plums and prunes will be in good supply.

Bartlett pears are generally looking very well.

Grapes—The vines are now well advanced and we anticipate a fine crop.

NEW PACKAGE OF BEANS.

Wm. Clark, Montreal, is putting up a new line of pork and beans, Chateau Brand, which is one of the most attractive lines he has yet offered the trade. The package is a very pretty one, and the quality of the beans has been the subject of considerable study on the part of the firm, with the result that it is something out of the ordinary. Wm. Clark is endeavoring to increase the consumption of pork and beans in Canada, which is not very large per capita, considering the nutritious value of the food. The firm is concentrating all their advertising along these lines, and they are asking the co-operation of the grocery trade in the movement they have undertaken.

A TALK ABOUT LOBSTERS

There is no line of canned goods in which people want the BEST more than in Canned Lobsters.

Many people ask us: "Why do Lobsters turn dark?"

There are two reasons.

One is that the goods may not be properly handled at the packing factory. Another is that they may be fished from a muddy or sandy bottom. The Lobster that will ALWAYS remain perfectly white comes from rocky fishing grounds, and this is where come from. They are backed by 30 years experience, and are packed immediately when caught. Each can contains nothing but selected claws and tails of the lobster.

We guarantee every can far superior to any lobster on the Canadian market to-day. Every can warranted good to keep forever.

EVERY merchant's back shop tells the story of stickers —things that sold well for a time and then went flat. You know what they have been in your case, don't you—and you don't need to look them over to find that SURPRISE SOAP isn't on the list.

SURPRISE has been a good seller from the very first

And every year it is getting harder for the man who sells a substitute to do any business at all. He finds that women simply won't listen to his argument about soaps that for the minute pay him a better profit—they've tried that kind before—and why should they when SURPRISE value is the best in the world?

Fish From Scotland

The "Tyne" Brand of canned Scotch fish has all the delicacy and richness of flavor of the freshly caught fish. It is a satisfactory brand to buy because it is always the same—you can judge the quality of the entire year's output by a single can.

The Shields Ice and Storage Company

are specialists in the packing of Scotch Fish—nothing can possibly be finer than their product "The Tyne Brand." Their reputation has been made entirely on this one thing. It is their hobby to offer only the "best"—and they do it.

The germ of the best wheat—the gluten—is the foundation on which the high quality of "CODOU" Macaroni rests. But added to that is the skill acquired by a life time of service in its manufacture. It is

Made By Felix Codou

It is very delicate and tender—never "rubbery." And there is a richness of flavor that makes it very toothsome. Monsieur Codou is so proud of his famous brand that he permits no package to leave his factory without having his name.

CEYLON TEA

Rapidly Displacing the Thin Light Teas, Here, in America?

(Two and Three-Quarter Millions Increase in Direct Shipments Alone in 1908 over 1907.)

First: Because it Makes a Strong, Full-Bodied Tea to Satisfy the Coffee-Educated Palate;

Second: Because of Its Piquant Flavor;

Third: Because of Its Unvarying Excellence;

and

Fourth: Because of Its Cheapness Regardless of Cost.

WHY YOU SHOULD SELL

MATHIEU'S SYRUP

of Tar and Cod Liver Oil

REASON NO. 1

Nine out of every ten people when troubled with a cough or cold call for Mathieu's Syrup.

Hence there is no time wasted in selling it. It almost sells itself. This is the result of its exceptional curative properties in all chest and throat complaints — backed up by good advertising.

This advertising consists of

1. Our newspaper campaign.
2. One person recommending it to another, and probably telling him that he got it at your store.
3. Dealers who know a good article when they see it and gladly recommend it to their customers and friends.

Let us have an order from you to-day.

THIS FIRM KNOWS What the "Royal" Electric Mill Can Do

There's an old saying that the proof of the pudding is in the eating. Read what W. Ross Bealor & Bro., of Harrisburg, Pa., say in reply to a letter from another firm inquiring about the "ROYAL."

Harrisburg, Pa.

"B. & J. Saylor,
Reading, Pa.

"Gentlemen:

"Your letter of the 12th inst. received. We are pleased to state that the coffee mill referred to is giving entire satisfaction in every particular. Our coffee trade, we think, is unusually exacting, and since installing this mill we can conscientiously say their demands have been met as to accurate and thorough cutting.

"The mill is also a labor-saving device, and often we can procure other articles for the customer while the coffee is going through, as the mill doesn't need watching.

"We assure you we did not jump in and buy a machine until we had inspected other makes. Every person admires it also for its beauty.

"One fact that illustrates its comparative lack of noise: Our mill is located within two feet of our telephone, yet we can use the instrument while the mill is running.

"We do not think you will make a mistake by purchasing a 'ROYAL.'

"Very respectfully,
"(Signed) W. ROSS BEALOR & BRO."

A postal will bring a copy of our latest catalog telling all about the "ROYAL."

Send for it to-day—it's free.

The Travelling Man's Helper

BY R. A. HOLMES

While good advertising does sell goods, its proper function is that of co-operation.

It prepares the way for the travelling man, walks by his side and introduces him to the merchant.

It stands at his elbow when he shows his samples, increases the order and guarantees the merchandise.

As a persuader it has entirely supplanted the riotously spent night, the booze h'isting and the expensive cigar.

If it has not entirely eliminated these things, it has made them absolutely unnecessary.

Secret Commissions and Rebates Contrary to Law

Act Passes House of Commons and Senate Prohibiting Such Considerations—Travelers and Retail Merchants Directly Interested—Heavy Fine May Be Imposed Upon Any Person Convicted of This Offence—How It Has Been Carried on in The Past.

To prevent the payment or acceptance of illicit or secret commissions, an act has been passed by the House of Commons at Ottawa, amended and approved of by the Senate and now awaits only Royal assent before it becomes law. It is to be known as The Secret Commissions Act and is especially applicable to the business of retail merchants and travelers or agents of wholesalers and manufacturers who employ them.

The act is known as Bill 31 and reads as follows:

Everyone is guilty of an offence and liable upon conviction on indictment, to two years' imprisonment, or to a fine not exceeding two thousand five hundred dollars, or to both, and, upon summary conviction, to imprisonment for six months, with or without hard labour, or to a fine not exceeding one hundred dollars, or to both, who,—

(a) being an agent, corruptly accepts or obtains, or agrees to accept or attempts to obtain, from any person for himself or for any other person, any gift or consideration as an inducement or reward for doing or forbearing to do, or for having after the passing of this Act done or forborne to do, any act relating to his principal's affairs or business or for showing or forbearing to show favour or disfavour to any person with relation to his principal's affairs or business; or

(b) corruptly gives or agrees to give or offers any gift or consideration to any agent as an inducement or reward or consideration to such agent for doing or forbearing to do, or for having after the passing of this Act done or forborne to do, any act relating to his principal's affairs or business, or for showing or forbearing to show favour or disfavour to any person with relation to his principal's affairs or business; or

(c) knowingly gives to any agent, or, being an agent, knowingly uses with intent to deceive his principal, any receipt, account, or other document in respect of which the principal is interested, and which contains any statement which is false or erroneous or defective in any material particular, and which, to his knowledge, is intended to mislead the principal.

(d) Every person who is a party or knowingly privy to any offence under this act shall be guilty of such offence and shall be liable upon conviction to punishment hereinbefore provided for by this section.

The latter clause was an amendment to the original bill which passed the Senate on March 31st last. After being amended it was sent back to the House of Commons and agreed to on April 21st and was finally sanctioned by the Senate.

The Practical Meaning.

The Secret Commissions Act, as its name infers, prevents the giving of secret commissions, rebates or considerations.

A traveler who sells an article to a retailer—one which is sold generally by the trade so that its selling price is fixed by the manufacturer—cannot legally give that retailer any secret rebate or commission to induce the latter to purchase from him. If the goods are sold for less than the manufacturers' price in the ordinary way the sale will of course be legitimate in the eyes of the law; but if the goods are sold for the manufacturers' price and the salesman puts his hand in his pocket and gives a rebate or commission to the purchaser then the sale is illicit and that salesman if convicted is liable to imprisonment for two years or to a fine not exceeding $2 500 or both, as mentioned above.

One way that this has been done in the past was by the agent or traveler giving a purchaser the secret rebate in order to get his business and then carging up the rebate to his employer or the firm he represented as road expenses.

The new bill when it becomes law makes such an act contrary to the criminal code.

In the event of the traveler or agent selling below the manufacturer's price and doing so openly that traveler or agent does not commit a breach of the law. The manufacturer, however, has the privilege of determining to whom his goods shall be sold and at what price and in such a case if he desires, may refuse his goods to the house whose travelers or agents cut down his price.

A Concrete Example.

In the case of a staple-priced article such as sugar the giving of the secret commission could up to the present be easily accomplished. A traveler may probably have difficulty in selling a merchant sugar but he knows that if he allows that merchant a rebate of $10 he can sell him a car load. To get his business he does so by personally paying him ten dollars. He gets his money back from his house in his expenses.

This system is sometimes used by a house anxious to get business and when the traveler for the one "on the square" comes along he finds he is up against a competition that he cannot legitimately meet.

A traveler may offer the merchant a discount of a certain per cent. for cash off the staple wholesale price of an article. He promises that his house will do this and is very often backed up by the house. If he could secure the business of the merchant in the regular way this offer would not be made so that clearly a dishonest act has been committed to the detriment of the honest firm.

Retailer Becomes Liable.

Clause (d) in the above bill is the amendment that was made to it after it had reached the Senate. It makes the retail merchant just as liable as the traveler or house he represents who is guilty of a breach of the act.

Hitherto, the retailer has been under no moral or legal obligation and there was no legal or moral obstacle in the way in the acceptance of a secret commission. Now, however, if he is a party to an offence such as described, upon conviction he will be liable to the same punishment as the traveler who gives to him the secret consideration.

Being under no moral or legal obligation—further than knowing that the traveler was doing something that he had agreed not to do—he could up to the present accept the rebate, but when the bill becomes law he will become legally liable and morally liable as well and will be considered in the eyes of the law as much a party to the criminal act as the traveler.

Deterrent To Dishonesty.

"While the new act may not entirely put a stop to the practice of giving secret commissions it will be a great deterrent" remarked an interested business man to The Grocer the other day.

"It is" he explained, "difficult to make a conviction but nevertheless there will not be so many breaches of the law."

Wholesalers know fairly well to whom they should sell sugar and soap, etc. They know their loyal customers and if they become suspicious that a secret commission has been given by the agent of another house to induce the sales of such goods they have the privilege of laying a charge against both him and the retailers. They will be obliged to make an affidavit that they have committed no breach of the law.

"The punishment being so heavy it is not likely that many offences of this nature will occur," remarked one man in referring to the new act.

Origin of the Bill.

What led the government to take up this question were the frauds recently exposed in the Marine and Fisheries Department in Quebec. The Act prior to the amendment referred to, was similar to an English Act which was passed some years ago because English buyers representing London houses used to go to foreign countries where they practiced the secret commission game. It became somewhat general that they should get a commission from the London house before they did any buying. They not only did business for their house but for themselves as well by secret commission and this became the foundation for the English Act. The English Act, however, did not include the amendment which made the party who accepts the rebate liable to the punishment mentioned.

Retail merchants and travelers will, no doubt, think seriously before they place themselves liable in eyes of the law and the Act should have a tendency to place wholesalers and manufacturers on a more even footing than they have been in the past.

Elimination for the Sake of Economy a Question

Manufacturers Often Undone by Work of "Preferred Classes" Among the Big Retailers Who Seek to Do Away With Jobber—The Rights of Small Retailers, Jobbers and Manufacturers—An Old But New Problem.

New York Journal of Commerce.

There is a great deal being said and written of late about grocery trade evolution that is truthful, and which ought to be carefully heeded by thoughtful minded grocers. There is also much that is neither truthful nor wise, and which is panicky rather than helpful. Of the latter class are the predictions that this one or that is going to be eliminated in the interests of economy and the assertion that the man who can force out of the chain of distribution every unnecessary factor is a benefactor to the human race. Usually the speaker of the latter sentiment, if he be carefully analyzed, will be found to have some hidden, ulterior, selfish end to be gained by the proposed elimination.

As a matter of fact, there is considerable ground to suspect that the consumer is not in such rabid anxiety for the making of economic sacrifices as is claimed, and when the convenience of the consumer is considered fairly, elimination may actually annoy, rather than aid him. Anyone who ever lived in districts where small stores are numerous and near at hand when wanted will agree that the perpetuation of the many modest establishments promotes the public convenience much more than its sweeping elimination in favor of a few great ones that could work the extinction of the small merchant. The public would willingly pay the small, near-at-hand dealer a living profit for the accommodation he gives.

But even so, it is doubtful if the big establishment really offers any advantage in the way of economies. In the recent agitation of some of the big retailers in favor of their setting apart as a preferred class. the claim is openly and often made that such preference is necessary if they are to survive. This is distinctly surprising in view of the high-sounding assertions that are frequently made that the big stores are in the interests of the economy of the consumer. This claim would tend to prove that if a larger profit is necessary to run such stores—and the probabilities are that it is—the economies are with the small dealer; not to mention the public convenience and the right of the small dealer to live and not to be eliminated.

Eliminating the Jobber.

This big retailer, however legitimate and desirable he may be in the distributive machinery of the trade, appears to depend vitally on somebody's elimination. If he cannot eliminate the small dealer by securing preferential treatment that will enable him to cut prices to the ruination point for the small dealer, he demands that the jobber must be eliminated and that the manufacturers elect him for direct sales on the same terms as the jobber. Some few manufacturers have fallen for such a plan, but the general trend is distinctly away from such an idea at the present time. From the manufacturers' standpoint "preferred classes" are a mischievous commodity and work his undoing. Let's look at it.

The big retailer relies on the size of his outlet as an argument for his preferential. He says that he can handle in a week so many cases of goods, which is very likely, more than this jobber can. But he forgets that that jobber is buying for a widely diversified retail trade and that out of the margin must, in common fairness, come two profits instead of one. If he bought at jobber's rates he would make both profits and—judging from experience—not keep it for himself, but to act as a big stick of preferment with which to eliminate the small retailer who keeps the jobber alive. And the jobber markets about 85 to 90 per cent. of the manufacturers' goods, collectively considered.

But, suppose the manufacturer adopted a quantity price, what would occur? Every retailer would hasten to avail himself of the quantity price—forming buying pools, buying exchanges, chain agreements, etc. In turn, this would drive other retailers into such combinations or out of business, and with them would go the life of the jobbers. Every buying exchange tends to displace a jobbing house—not necessarily does displace it, but tends to. Ultimately, if combination went far enough, ten jobbers in a community would be eliminated and displaced by ten buying exchanges. But would either the consumer or the manufacturer be any better off?

Expediency in Evolution.

There are certain economic laws that are as inexorable as the laws of nature, and it is quite as futile to seek to stay them, but it does not necessarily follow that because for a time a certain expedient prospers, it is therefore the true economy. This economy of elimination—if it has reached a point where it needs propping up by "special privilege"—is hardly proving itself entitled to the economic diploma. And, after all, in the proving there is nothing divine that calls for a series of lamentations such as rise occasionally. Rather, the course of evolution must be met by reasonable expediency and coaxed along by the prompting of successful results, so long as those results are not trimmed by dishonesty, discrimination, unfairness and double dealing. It all depends on the viewpoint from which the problem is approached.

It is undoubtedly fair for any man to buy in the cheapest market possible and sell in the dearest. If the big retailer can buy directly from the manufacturer, he has a right to do so; if the small retailer complains, he has an equal right to do so. If the jobber objects and says the manufacturer is playing him false, he has a right to refuse that manufacturer his co-operation; even has a right to manufacture his own goods to compete with that manufacturer. In any of those events it is only legitimate retaliation in return for unjust—or fancied unjust—treatment. But whether or not such squabbling is worth while, whether it pays as well as intelligent co-operation and square dealing is quite another matter. The era of trade associations is based on the co-operative and reciprocal idea, and it is having a very salutary effect on public opinion in the trade. There is a strong suspicion, however, that before such a programme can attain its ultimate success there will be necessary much "housecleaning" in the ranks of all the elements—manufacturer, retailer and jobber.

Associations have undoubtedly accomplished wonders in a very few years; in fact, their influence has ferreted out much of the real cause of past friction, has swept away the cobwebs of misunderstanding and brought forth the real stumbling blocks in a way that is not altogether pleasing to any of the classes of trade. It has emphasized the fact that the fundamental cause of unrest was, after all, to a great extent, internal double dealing and unfairness, and that, aside from this and irregular practices, there is no radical reason why better things may not come to pass. But it brings some of the associations uncomfortably near a crisis.

Retail Grocers to be Voluntarily Blacklisted

Toronto Section of Retail Merchants' Association Holds Meeting of Protest Against Circular of Wholesale Fruit, Produce and Provision Association—Some Strong Statements Made Against Alleged Injustices—Permanent Purchasing Committee May Be Appointed.

"Resolved, That all retailers here present allow their names to go on the blacklist after Wednesday next."

"Resolved, That a committee be appointed to discuss the feasibility of forming a permanent purchasing committee for the retail grocers and fruit men of Toronto; that the general secretary be empowered to name the members of this committee; and also that he nominate the members of the purchasing committee if it is thought advisable to do so."

These two resolutions were unanimously carried at an enthusiastic meeting of the Toronto sections of the Retail Merchants' Association, held in St. George's Hall on Monday evening last, May 10, to discuss the recent circular issued by the Toronto Fruit and Produce Association respecting the shortening of the terms of credit.

Though the night was showery the hall was crowded to capacity, and at one time a number of spectators were compelled to stand at the back, which brought a remark from the chairman to "follow the advice given by R. J. Fleming and 'sit close.'"

George Good, grocer, was appointed chairman of the meeting and with him on the platform were E. M. Trowern, F. C. Higgins, A. B. Griffin, John Wilmot, A. Duggan, S. Crealock, R. W. Dockeray and other members of the executive committees of the grocers' and butchers' sections.

Opening of the Discussion.

F. C. Higgins, secretary of the Toronto grocers' section of the R.M.A., was the first speaker. He read the correspondence which passed between the grocers' executive and the wholesale fruitmen, giving a history of the case from the time the fruitmen's circular was issued. The grocers were quite willing to accept the first two clauses of the circular, which stated that all accounts be rendered and settled weekly; but they did not agree to clauses 3 and 4, with reference to payment by paper, and the threat that buyers not settling in time be subject to the rules of the Wholesale Fruit, Produce and Provision Association.

A number of meetings had been held between repreeentatives of the retailers and wholesalers, but the latter rejected any compromise. The suggestion of the wholesalers' representatives to their own association that the new terms be withheld from enforcement for two months had been repudiated and turned down.

"If they wanted to make any changes," said Mr. Higgins, "they might have come to our association and proposed them. Instead, they had come personally to me and you and said 'this circular is not intended for you'—entirely from the selfish point of view. It speaks well for the men who are not selfish, but who are here to-night to show by their presence and their words that they have not forgotten their own climb up the ladder, but are willing to help their fellows who are struggling up the hill. (Applause).

"The wholesalers say they were compelled to reduce the time of credit to six days because their profits are small and because the growth of the city has taxed their business capacity. If there is so much business to do that they cannot cope with it, then there is room for someone else to get into the business. They are getting a commission of about 12 per cent., and I do not think they are suffering so keenly. Look at them; they do not appear to be so badly used. It may be that thinking they have the business entirely in their own hands they are able to do whatever they wish.

"Now let us look at some of their complaints. A wholesaler going into business is supposed to have some capital, else why does he go into business? With a capital of $10,000 it is possible to have a turnover of half a million—a very nice sum, indeed. The wholesaler in fruit and produce, if he does pay spot cash, or nearly so, for his goods, can open up his warehouse with four bare walls. He has no such amount of stock to carry as has a wholesale grocer.

"As you have heard, we are not against clauses 1 and 2 in this circular. We are in favor of a reasonable curtailing of credits where the conditions have been lax. But our opposition is against clauses 3 and 4. We are against such totally un-British arrangements. (Applause).

Charges a Shylock Method.

"Clause 4 states that if a man has not paid by the stroke of the clock he is to be reported to their association. This is not an association; it is a combination. Its conduct reminds me of Shylock demanding his pound of flesh. (Hear, hear). There is no consideration for humanity; no consideration of justice to be weighed in the balance. Is this fair between man and man do you think? I don't. It is up to you to say whether you are going to submit to this.

"There is another matter to be taken into consideration, the matter of private contract, which the terms of this circular transgress. And there is a moral side to this question also. The suggestion of the terms of this circular is tyrannical and it will fail. Some of the men are already wavering; some of the members of the association do not know the import of these clauses. Then there is evasion by members of the association. One wholesaler said: 'You do not owe anything unless a bill is presented,' and so a week's delay is granted; and still another week's delay may be obtained before the association is notified. Now let us cut this thing out of business. (Applause).

"If this matter of short credit and black-listing is a good thing for the fruit and produce men it should also be good for the miller, wholesale grocer, and soap man. These men are necessary to trade. The manufacturer, wholesaler, retailer and banker are all necessary to the trade of this country. The manufacturer and wholesaler have been accustomed to go to the banker for loans, but who ever heard of the retailer going to the banker for loans? The banking system of this country is not for him. Let us suppose a wholesaler goes to his banker for the loan of $10,000 for six days. When the time is up he is, because of unforeseen circumstances, only able to pay back $5,000. He is no thief, nor should his business secrets be paraded before the members of any association. This is what the wholesale fruitmen wish to force on us. If our bills are not paid by the stroke of the clock then we are black-listed, and our business debts are reported to the association. Let us get rid of this darn nonsense. (Laughter).

"It appears that reputation counts for nothing and the retailers of the city are being put on the level of vagrants. The whole curse of the situation is the combine, which, not being satisfied with reasonable profits, is trying to squeeze the life out of the honest retailer who is the backbone of the business of the Dominion.

Claims Self-defence.

"The issue is not of our choosing. I am personally acquainted with these fruitmen and value their friendship. We believe in associations; but we believe in associations built on fair lines, and we are fighting in self-defence. This whole situation reminds me of the story of the dog and the axe. A man going for a walk one day was attacked by a dog which rushed at him. Having the good fortune to be carrying an axe he let swing with it and split the dog's head. The owner of the animal rushed up and shouted 'Why did you kill my dog; why didn't you strike it with the other end of the axe?' Back came the reply, "Why didn't your dog come at me with the other end.'

"The executive is recommending a preferred list of dealers to buy from. For myself I would cut out the whole list; but we may have to do business with some of them; and this list is recommended not in their interest, but in our own. This arrangement, we think, is for the best interest of the retail trade in Toronto. If we think this whole question is absolutely wrong, then we can right it. It remains to be seen if the Toronto retailer is big enough to do this. The fruitmen by this circular have shown themselves to be selfish. They single out some merchants who are not to come under the operation of these clauses. Now, if these terms are right for the city merchants, why are they not enforced against the out-of-town buyer?" (Loud applause).

Different From the Yankees.

A. B. Griffin, chairman of the Toronto grocers' section, R.M.A., considered the action of the wholesalers very high handed. The recognized term of credit all over the world is 30 days.

"Why is my individual right of making a contract taken from me? They say this scheme comes from the United States. Why should we conduct our business on the lines that Yankees conduct theirs? Twelve months ago when the shippers along the railway west of the city refused to supply certain fruit dealers we helped these dealers, and now this is what we get.

"At 12 per cent. the profits of a $500,000 business amount to $60,000. Now the fruitmen say their expenses cost 8 per cent. There is thus a net profit of 4 per cent., or $20,000. "Do you get that proportion of remuneration from your business? Let us stand shoulder to shoulder and if we do we can help ourselves."

R. W. Dockeray, president of the Toronto branch R.M.A., did not know much about the question at issue, being neither a grocer nor butcher; but he was willing to give all the help in his power to help the retailers in their fight.

Unsound Judgment.

Jno. Wilmot believed the R.M.A., the best organization, not only for retailer, but for wholesaler and consumer as well. A wholesaler had said to him: "This is not for you; we do not want to put you out of business; we do not want to injure you. It is the small men we are after.' Again they said, 'Our profits are very, very small.' At the same time they said, 'we have eighty, ninety, a hundred thousand dollars on our books,' which, I think shows mighty poor judgment. Then again they state this scheme was concocted in the United States. The trading stamp people also came from the United States and when they came they said they would beat us with Yankee brains and Yankee money; but we beat them with Canadian money and British law. (Cheers.)

For myself I can say that not one of these wholesalers has so far had to waste a postage stamp on me, but now if I do not pay my bill by Wednesday noon they throttle me and say 'Pay me what thou owest'. Is that Christianity? Is that British fair play? If any of these men are here to-night they should leave this meeting and go over to Massey Hall and hear Gypsy Smith on such a subject. (laughter.) It is the last time any of these men will have my name on their books."

A. Duggan, grocer, said the retailers were nothing more than the slaves of the wholesalers and manufacturers. "Why should thirty wholesalers with whom I have no business dealings know all about my concerns or my credit simply because payment was not made on the tick of the clock?"

S. Crealock, on behalf of the butchers whom he represented, said they, too, were coming under the ban, for the shortening of credit now extended to the fruit, vegetable, meat and provision men. "That $500 bond provision is a cast iron one, and just because of that it is unworkable. It is, too, unjust. Out of all the retail butchers who had built up a business in Toronto not 2 per cent. but had at some time or other been in the debt of the wholesaler. Now, character which had counted so much in years gone by is to be done away with. If there are evils among traders surely among all these wholesalers there are brains enough to devise means to drive out the "scallywags" and leave decent, respectable and honest retailers to do their business unhampered.

Invitation to All.

E. M. Trowern, general secretary of the R.M.A., was next called on. "If I can say a word to help to-night I want can say a word to help you to-night I want to say that our meetings are conducted openly at all times. We have no tiled doors; no secrets to harbor. The wholesaler is welcome and so is the solicitor. We are not afraid to discuss our affairs openly.

"The matter before the meeting to-night is not a matter of credit; it is a matter of the relations of private contract. It means: are you willing to tie yourselves up to this unreasonable combine?

"We stand first, last and all the time for the liberty of the individual retailer. For years we have been fighting all kinds of evils and weeds. Just a short while ago we had the co-operative people. They went to Ottawa to get legislation to carry on their business, and we went to Ottawa to tell the legislators just what a diabolical scheme co-operation was—a scheme to do up the public.

"What I am pleased about to-night is that the best men among the grocers and butchers have come forward to say that they want to throw down this whole thing. Why cannot these wholesalers say to a man who has exceeded his credit 'we cannot give you any more credit?' That is the manly way.

"But you are not going to put these men out of business unless you meet organization with organization. Already we have spent $5,000 at Ottawa in trying to get our hands free. We are not yet in the same position as the labor men. Mr. Gompers who was here a few days ago said in his address: 'If going to jail will free us from bondage I am going to jail! That is our position. Half the wholesalers do not know our conditions of business at all. They ask you 'why do you not go to the banks?' Banks are not for the retailer. They are but trustees. They are for the wholesaler and manufacturer.

A Challenge to Lawyers.

"And now I am going to take legal responsibility for what I am about to say, and if any lawyer wants to land me before Col. Denison he can serve the papers on me now. Some of these men have had too much time sitting around the clubs, and some of them have not had time enough to think of the retailer. I am now going to read out the names of those who were recommended by the committee as houses with whom to deal:

Here Mr. Trowern read a list of wholesale fruit and produce houses doing business in Toronto and it was noted that of these wholesale firms 3 fruit, 2 produce, 1 vegetable and 2 provision houses were left off.

Continuing Mr. Trowern went back to the co-operative movement. "If you do not follow the lead of some strong man," he said, "you will find the same conditions prevailing here as in England. Co-operation has sent many merchants from that country to Canada to seek situations as clerks in stores here. Now we in Canada are built of sterner stuff and as has been stated the Governor-General to whom we pay $50,000 a year had taken an interest in co-operation in the old country. When we found he was interesting himself in the question here we said 'you keep your hands off this proposition or we will write to the King and have you called back,' and he kept his hands off."

At the bidding of the chairman a number of speakers in the body of the hall made some suggestions, one of the latter, that of John Good, grocer, hinting that all retailers go on the black list caught the fancy of the audience. As Mr. Good explained, "if all go on the black list there will then be no person to sell to and it will be up tothe fruit men to solve the difficulty." The resolution of the committee was, therefore, superseded by an amendment proposed by J. Patterson, seconded by J. Hurst which virtually means that all retail grocers present at the meeting will allow their names to go on the black list this week. The second resolution empowering the creation of a purchasing committee also came from the body of the hall. It was proposed by J. Skelton and seconded by F. Spooner.

If any writs of attachment ensue from retailers going on the black list the R. M.A. through Mr. Trowern proposed to bring action through the courts against the wholesalers as combining in restraint of trade. As Mr. Trowern expressed it "If they trouble you we will have the whole bunch up before Magistrate Denison for an unfair combination in restraint of trade."

APPLE MEN'S CONVENTION.

The American Pomological Society will visit St. Catharines next September, where its next convention will be held. It is expected that between three and four hundred delegates will be present from all parts of the United States and Canada. The committee in charge has appointed E. D. Smith, the chairman, of Winona, to confer with the Hamilton, Grimsby and Beamsville Railway with a view to arranging side excursions to Grimsby and Stoney Creek, a portion of the great Niagara fruit belt. Robert Thompson, of St. Catharines, will arrange excursions to Beamsville and to the Model Farm and the Agricultural College, at Guelph.

Effects of the Department Store School Books

A Correspondent Condemns the Arrangement Which Gives the T. Eaton Company, Toronto, a Practical Monopoly of the Sale of School Books as Well as a Big Lever to Use in Making Sales of Other Goods.

The following letter from a member of the Ontario Retail Hardware and Stove Dealers' Association is indicative of the growing feeling of protest among merchants of all classes who are beginning to understand the evil results which will follow the carrying out of the ten-year (renewable) contract for the printing and sale of school books entered into between the Ontario Government and the T. Eaton Company, Toronto.

Mr. Bell, as stated in his letter, does not sell stationery, but he has a feeling for the fellow-retailer who does, and he intends using his influence with his local M.P.P. to prevent, if possible, the working out of the contract from being too one-sided. Mr. Bell is helping himself by so doing as the arrangement seems likely to injure hardwaremen, grocers, dry goods merchants and other retailers almost as much as it does the booksellers.

It works out this way: The Eaton Company, as publishers, are under contract to sell the set of books at 39 cents to everyone, whether retailers or ordinary buyers. They will not pay postage on the books, however, so it will be possible for booksellers living outside Toronto and suburbs to receive shipments of the books at 39 cents, plus freight and sell at 49 cents retail, making as their margin to cover their cost of doing business the difference between what their freight costs per set and the postage per set paid by the Eaton Company. They may, or may not, be able to sell for the 49-cent retail price, and if they do not buy in quantity or if they are some distance from Toronto and the freight is high they will have no margin at all.

But the Eaton Company handle other goods than school books and they will not lose the opportunity to point out that buyers outside Toronto can secure school books from them at 39 cents, and if a shipment of other goods is ordered there will be no postage, freight or cartage to pay. Herein is where the harm will be done to grocers, hardware dealers and other merchants. The wholesale price on school books will be used as a lever to sell hardware, dry goods, groceries boots or shoes.

As this paper understands the situation the Eaton Company will monopolize probably ninety per cent. of the retail sales throughout the province besides influencing the sale of other goods and securing an advertisement of inestimable value in the form of the firm's imprint on the bottom of the title page of each volume.

The Government, by exercising its privilege of purchasing the entire edition and selling them at wholesale (39 cents) to be sold in regular retail channels at 49 cents, could protect not only the booksellers but all classes of retailers, and by further causing the publishers to leave their name off the books the department store advertisement could be eliminated.

In an interview, however, with Hon. Mr. Pyne, Minister of Education, no hope was held out that the publisher's imprint would be left off. The Government has the right to revise each page but it is said that another clause allows the publishers to add their name. If this is so the retailers can only secure protection by having the Government handle the sale of the books through the Education Department and to secure this protection every influence should be brought upon the local members of the Legislature, particularly if they are Government supporters.

Mr. Bell's letter follows:

A Letter of Protest.

Editor Canadian Grocer.—I read with much interest the editorial in your issue of last week under the caption of "Retailers Getting Alarmed." I am quite in accord with your remarks in connection therewith, and—being a Conservative—I, like yourself, have no desire to get the Government of Ontario into trouble, but on the contrary, I think they are entitled to receive the thanks of the people of this province for taking the school readers out of the hands of the "Book Ring" and thus enabling the parents of school children to procure the books at a fraction of the previous cost. In stating that I agree with your views in this matter, it must not be overlooked that the present Government took office pledged to break this "Ring" and let such contracts by tender, awarding same to the lowest tenderer, and to place school text books in the hands of the people at or near the cost of production.

Such being the case, the Government could not well overlook the tender of the T. Eaton Company—although the president is a Liberal—they being the lowest tenderers. Now as I understand the matter, the full set of readers can be procured from the T. Eaton Company for 39 cents, and retailers throughout the country are not allowed to charge more than 49 cents for the set.

To my mind this seems to be where the Government has erred. The T. Eaton Company should not be allowed to sell these books at retail, for any less money than any other dealer throughout the country can sell them, for the average householder, knowing he can purchase the books for 39 cents, will not be satisfied to pay his local dealer 25 per cent. more money, but will send or go to the T. Eaton Company for the books, and procure other goods at the same time, and this, it seems to me, is where the profit of the T. Eaton Company lies.

The self-respecting retailer, too, does not want to charge 25 per cent. more for his goods than the same articles can be got elsewhere, and so the whole business will go to the T. Eaton Company, for the country merchant will not carry the line, and the poorer parent in the country, whose buying needs are not great, will have to send his little 39 cents to the T. Eaton Company and pay express or postage in addition thus costing him more than they otherwise would if all retailers were placed on an equal basis.

I fully agree with you in saying "the books should be delivered to the Educational Department and by it distributed among the purchasers" or otherwise the Government should fix a uniform retail price at which the books must be sold by all dealers who may choose to handle them, the T. Eaton Company included, and thus remove from retailers what will certainly prove to be a great handicap.

I may add that I am not opposed to the T. Eaton Company getting the contract, since they were the lowest tenderers, but I am opposed to their getting a monopoly on the retail sale of such a necessary staple as school books, and practically to exclusion of all other retailers, at least, to the extent that they are permitted to sell these books at retail, at the same price as any other dealer in stationery would have to pay wholesale. I quite agree, too, with your suggestion, that all retailers get after their local member, and endeavor to have this lop-sided arrangement set aside.

FROM WHOLESALER TO BROKER.

The John King Co., wholesale grocers, etc., Fort William Ont., have sold to Cameron & Heap, of Kenora. John King, the president of the former company, and F. W. Fraser, the secretary, intend starting a general commission and brokerage business on June 1st under the style of Fraser & Co.

THE FIRM REMEMBERED.

On Saturday, May 8, the travelers of the F. F. Dalley Company, Hamilton, presented to the firm a life-sized oil painting of the late E. A. Dalley, formerly vice-president of the company. The members of the firm and the travelers were present. The presentation address was made by R. B. Hill, and replied to by F. F. Dalley, sr. It was just a small token of the high esteem in which Mr. Dalley was held by the travelers.

PUBLISHED EVERY FRIDAY

A TEN-YEAR MONOPOLY.

The school book monopoly which the T. Eaton Co. has secured from the Ontario Government is not a thing for the day only. It has a ten-year term to run, with renewable privileges.

In other words, the big department store will for ten years enjoy the privilege, under Government patronage, of educating the school children of Ontario and through them the parents in regard to the advantages of dealing with the T. Eaton Co.

While it is estimated that for the first year the number required will not be more than 700,000, yet what will it be at the end of ten years? The possibilities are almost too great to comprehend.

Without this instrument of monopoly in its control the T. Eaton Company, during the last ten years, has wrought a great deal of injury to the retail trade throughout this country.

With a monopoly of the school book trade in its possession, and with the large amount of business which this will necessarily bring to it in other lines of merchandise, it must be apparent to everyone who gives the matter a moment's consideration, that it will cut into the retail trade of the country a great deal more deeply during the next decade than it has during the past.

There is only one thing that can clip its wings and modify its influence, and that is for the Ontario Government to take advantage of the conditions of the contract whereby the Government may stipulate that the imprint of the Educational Department shall be placed on the books and that delivery shall be made to the Educational Department.

To the task of persuading the Government to do this every retail merchant in Ontario should set himself, beginning with the members of the Local Legislature, and through them to compel the Government to recognize the justice of their claims.

This should not be a difficult task. What the Government has done has been done inadvertently, not through design, and when it realizes the great wrong it does the retail trade, it is reasonable to suppose it will modify the conditions. The first thing is to persuade the Government, and no merchant in Ontario should either slumber or sleep until he has taken steps to assist in doing so.

THE BACK YARD.

Fire underwriters' inspectors are now on the warpath looking after the conditions of warehouses and back yards of stores. No doubt during the past winter there has been an accumulation of barrels and boxes around many stores and with spring here the chances of fires breaking out are by no means mitigated. The inspectors will probably order the removal of all combustible matter, as well as other rubbish around the back lanes and merchants who do not comply with the request may regret their tardiness should a fire occur; they may have difficulty in obtaining their insurance.

Apart from the safety that the removal of rubbish from the back yard provides the merchant, the change in appearance a little brightening up brings is well worth the trouble. The merchant who prides himself on cleanliness, as all merchants should, must not stop at the rear door of the store. He must use the broom, the rake and the wheelbarrow and clear away all dirt and decaying substances and make the back yard of his store as clean, comparatively speaking, as his show window, store floor or front doorstep. Sanitary conditions are absolutely necessary, even if cleanliness and fire protection are not taken into consideration.

It, therefore, behooves every grocer and general merchant to step ont into the back yard for a tour of inspection and see that it is properly cleaned before the arrival of the hot, sultry rays of the summer sun.

KEEP STOCK WELL INSURED.

A grocery store recently destroyed by fire in an Ontario town had $35,000 insurance on a $45,000 stock and $6,000 on a $9,000 building, the loss, therefore, being about one-third of the total value of stock and building, with the result of several years of labor swept away in a night. The grocer is still young and can retrieve his loss but it is safe to say he will take less chances with the fire demon in future.

Too many merchants take chances, risking not only their own property but their connections with those who are jointly interested with them in the success of their business. They feel that fire is hardly likely to hit them and they run along with a limited amount of insurance, besides taking additional risk in carrying dangerous stock on the shelves or in barrels where they can cause untold damage if fire reaches them.

High insurance rates undoubtedly encourage laxity in insurance matters, and lack of appreciation of friendly actions arouses antipathy to insurance companies. The Canadian Grocer knows of one case where a merchant was refused reasonable damages to some of his goods which he allowed fire fighters to use in quenching a fire in an adjoining building, both buildings being insured in the one company and both being saved largely as a result of his assistance. The Merchants should take advantage of every fire fighting device, meeting the requirements of the Underwriters' Association in getting their rates down to a minimum and maintaining some appliances for quenching a blaze when one occurs. A fire, even if the stock and building is well insured, is a thing to be avoided.

PASSING OF THE DELINQUENT.

The time seems to be fast approaching when the merchants of Canada in the larger towns and smaller cities at least will be able to cope with the time-worn and difficult problem of bad debts. This has been a condition which has sapped the life out of many a merchant's profits, and now, when a system has been unearthed by Guelph business men, others are anxious to follow their example.

Brantford has organized a system and appointed a collector. They have followed as closely as possible the example set by Guelph and with a hundred and twenty members in their new association paying ten dollars each for the protection there is every reason to believe that good results will be obtained.

The merchants in Chatham have been apprised of the workings of the collection department of the system, and already a number of them are willing to make the venture. The essential part of the system lies in the collector, and in this Guelph has been particularly fortunate.

In next week's issue of The Grocer the entire method of the scheme in Guelph will be given in detail, both from the association's and collector's standpoints.

QUEBEC MARKETS

POINTERS—

Fruits—Steady.

Sugar—Slight decline in some lines.

Beans—Advanced.

Peas—Advanced.

Montreal, May 13, 1909.

The recent cold and unseasonable weather has checked business somewhat but this is regarded as only a temporary check. There is an unmistakable feeling prevalent in all branches of trade that the pendulum has commenced to swing towards prosperity. This feeling has manifested itself in the way buyers are taking goods. The experience which they have practically all passed through in the last few years, has inculcated considerable caution into them, but at the same time, an obvious feeling of confidence is abroad.

The local market has shown only two or three very important changes during the week. The big millers are closer together this week owing to a decline in the prices quoted by one which brings them nearer the level of the other. This is, however, a local condition, and cannot be said to be in any way a reflection of the wheat market. Sugar has taken a slight drop, which is due to small demand, as much as anything else.

Beans and peas are both in an advancing stage, as the market is having a struggle to cover the requirements.

Altogether, trade has been fairly good, during the week, and remittances have been fair from all sections except the Northwest, where they have been exceptionally good.

SUGAR—The sugar situation has been an easy one during the week and some small declines have been noted. Country trade has improved but city requirements have not been large.

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES—Retailers are not buying in large quantities, as they are holding off for better prices. Some small sales, totalling about 1,000 puncheons, have been reported. A carload of mixed molasses sold this week at 35c for fancy and 36c for choice. Syrups are unchanged in price, and are in fair demand.

TEA—Cable reports from the Japan market show a tendency of advancing for early teas owing to many buyers in United States rushing to bring in teas, before the new tariff bill will be finally settled, as there is every probability that the same will not be passed for five or six weeks yet. It is reported that some orders for early teas are sent from Canadian buyers. Very little is doing in blacks, as the supplies on the market will not permit of a wide range of business.

CANNED GOODS

MONTREAL.—Canned fruits are going more slowly this week, owing to more favorable prices in the fresh fruit market. Canned vegetables are moving very well. Canned fish are slow. Meats are selling well. Sale of pork and beans, has dropped off considerably, during the week.

TORONTO.—"There is scarcely an order comes to us without some canned goods in it," said a wholesaler to The Grocer this week. "There must be a great quantity of them going into consumption just now."

Peas will probably be soon off the market. There are very few in first hands and little in second. The retailers' stocks must be getting low also. Advanced prices should be easily obtainable.

Canned apples are still good sellers in view of the passing of the housewife's preserves. Other fruits are also moving well. Some report good business in canned salmon but other wholesalers report differently claiming a poor sale for any canned fish.

ONTARIO MARKETS

POINTERS—

Sugar—Decline in two sugars.
Evaporated Apples—Good sellers.
Canned Apples—Splendid demand.
Canned Peas—Going off market.
Figs—Scarcity reported.

Toronto, May 13, 1909.

"Business is improving slowly," remarked one wholesaler to a Grocer representative this week. Others had no complaints to offer and some even declared it was better than anticipated. Manufacturers are highly pleased with the outlook and there seems to be no occasion to expect a poor season. One fact that points to the opposite is that collections from country merchants are improving, indicating a better financial condition among the retailers and the consumers as well.

There was another little flurry in the sugar market during the week when Beaver granulated and Imperial granulated declined 10c. None of the others declined. The cause for this slight fall was due to no apparent reason in the information of the wholesalers.

Among the good sellers during the week have been evaporated apples and peaches, canned apples and most of the dried fruits.

Retailers should endeavor to create a steady market among liverymen, farmers, etc., for molasses for horses and cattle. Since the beginning of the winter one wholesale house has sent out 20 barrels of molasses for liverymen's use. The latter find it to be a good, reliable food that gives a glossy coat to the horses. Grocers should make this one of their selling points and in this way should be able to dispose of considerable quantities.

SUGAR—During the week two declines in Montreal sugars occurred. Those affected were St. Lawrence and Imperial granulated and each to the extent of 10 cents. The decline occurred on Saturday with no apparent reason. Demand for sugar has recently been quiet and no doubt the recent declines are partly attributed to this fact. A better market can be expected soon.

Prunes, apricots and dried peaches are moving readily with little let-up and almost all wholesalers pronounce the present season one of the best they have ever had. RECORD CRANBERRY CROP.

Advices from the cranberry-raising sections of the United States state that there will be a record crop this year if present indications count for anything. The New York Commercial estimates that the yield will be about 495,000 barrels and that a ready market will be found, for the consumption of cranberries has been increasing greatly from year to year in the last decade.

Cape Cod has been furnishing most of the best cranberries, in competition with New Jersey, but now there is a new rival in the field, in Wisconsin, where the outlook is particularly good. There will likely be 50,000 barrels raised there, where there were only 12 000 barrels last year. About 225,000 barrels will come from Cape Cod and the remainder of the supply will come principally from New Jersey.

LOAVES WERE SMALL.

A couple of gentlemen the other day in a Hamilton grocery store discussing the smallness of the new loaves of bread told the following stories: A lady on seeing the bread left by the baker called him back and said: "Here I did not order any buns." The other story was this: "When the baker called at my house, my wife was upstairs and called to the man 'to open the door and put the bread on the table.' He answered back 'that the door was locked,' whereupon she told him 'to put it through the keyhole.'"

Greatest Export Year in St. John's History—Potatoes Still Being Shipped to the United States From Halifax—Montreal Miller Advocates Free Trade Throughout British Empire.

ST. JOHN.

May 11.—Ontario flour took another jump upwards last week, when the price on all grades advanced 25c. This makes a total advance of $1 a barrel in Ontario flour since February. The jobbing price is now $6.60. Manitobas also advanced on Friday last, 20c a barrel, and the jobbing price is now $7.15 a barrel, and the retail figure $7.40 to $7.50. This is the highest price since 1898, and it is expected that the price of bread will be advanced this week from 7c to 8c retail.

Sugar declined 10c a hundred; eggs are cheaper but butter remains unchanged. A good demand is reported now for seeds by both wholesalers and retailers.

A large quantity of maple sugar is in the market and is selling wholesale at 13c to 14c a pound, and retail at 16c to 18c. The quality for the most part is excellent. Maple syrup is selling at $1.10 a gallon.

There has been a shortage of fat cattle in New Brunswick for some years past and during the past year or two the importations of cattle from the west have been gradually increasing. In the annual report of the slaughter house commissiouers for St. John county for the year ended December 31, 1908, it is stated that "the number of cattle killed was nearly 1,000 head less than the previous year, while the slaughter of sheep has been increased over 2,000, showing that at least under normal consumption over 4,000 quarters of dressed beef were brought into the city from Ontario and the West, exclusive of live cattle imported from the same districts for slaughter, which does not appear creditable to the agriculture of this province." Speaking of this shortage of cattle, one of the provision dealers said, it was on account of the farmers going in more for dairying, saying that they find it pays better than to fatten cattle.

Two thousand live lobsters passed through here in a special car on Tuesday May 4, en route from Sydney, C.B., to the Pacific coast, where they will be planted at Vancouver Island. The crustaceons are being placed in the Pacific by the Dominion Government. with the object of trying to populate the waters there so that lobsters will be a staple article of commerce in a few years. The shipment was in charge of Alex Finlayson, inspector of fish culture for the Dominion. Mr. Finlayson said he expected to get the shipment through in good order. Last year he took across the continent 1,620, and out of that number he lost only 73. He expects to have even better success this year. About 800 of the lobsters were in pairs, while the balance were separated in compartments. They were in trays in large cases, each one covered with seaweed and a large number of jugs of salt water were carried for keeping them well supplied with their natural element. Applications of ice were also administered as needed to keep the temperature even and cool. One case in the shipment contained "buried lobsters," those which have the spawn attached and especial care was exercised in looking after this part of the consignment.

E. S. Kirkpatrick, of Woodstock, was in the city last week and sailed on Monday last for Cuba, where he will be Canada's trade commissioner. He received his appointment from the Dominion Government some weeks ago. Mr. Kirkpatrick will go to Barbados first and will hold consultation with E, H. S. Flood, of St. John, who is trade commissioner for the West Indies. He will then go to Havana, where his headquarters will be. Mr. Kirkpatrick has been interviewing residents along the river and also business men in St. John, relative to trade with Cuba, and he believes that a very satisfactory trade can be built up in several lines, including potatoes.

E. B. Eddy, of the Seed Inspection Department, Ottawa, was in the city last week and will make a tour of the Maritime Provinces in the interests of seed inspection.

F. E. Law, O. B. Akerley, F. E. Williams, A. W. MacRae and George Swanton are seeking incorporation as the St. John Produce Company, Limited, with capital of $49,000 and head office in St. John, to take over the export business carried on by F. F. Williams Co., Ltd. The company is seeking power to deal in all kinds of goods, to own and operate ships, barges, etc., to build and operate docks, wharves, warehouses, canning factories, cold storage and generally to carry on warehouse and storage brokerage and factors' business.

The Willett Fruit Co., Ltd., has had letters patent granted to it. It will take over the fruit business carried on by John G. Willett and W. Rupert Willett under the name of John G. Willett. The total capital stock is $40.000.

The annual meeting of the White Coudy Company was held here May 3. Only routine business was transacted, however, and adjournment was made to the 17th inst.

The export business through the port of St. John for the season of 1908-9, which was brought to a close last week, was the largest in the history of the port. One hundred and ten steamers took away goods to the United Kingdom and South Africa, valued at $24,377,576, of which $17,416,938 was Canadian goods, and $9,960,638 were in foreign products. The total exports in 1907-8, which was the biggest season previous to this, was $23,685,160, showing a gain for 1908-9 of $692,416. Some of the principal exports were: Grain (bushels) 7,180,375; cattle (head) 22,923; flour, (bags) 540,890; cheese, (boxes), 78,521; apples (barrels) 38,266; apples, (boxes) 3,730. There has been a gradual increase year by year in the exports through the port of St. John, and business is considerably enlivened by the presence here during the winter months of the steamers and the large number of men employed in connection with the work.

James J. Davis has opened a retail grocery and meat store at 77 Sydney Street, in the premises recently occupied by Charles A. Clark. Mr. Clark has removed to Charlotte Street.

MONTREAL.

May 11.—A fine new freezer is being built by P. Poulin & Co., for the storage of dressed poultry and game in which this firm does a large Canadian trade, The building they will use is a five-storey structure, 45x70 feet, situated at the corner of St. Claude and Leroyer Streets. The York ammonia system will be installed, while the latest machinery will be placed all through the building.

W. C. Christmas, has removed from the Merchants Bank building into commodious new quarters in the recently completed St. Nicholas building.

S. H. Ewing & Sons have recently installed another coffee roasting machine. Some time ago they placed several new roasters, which made their plant one of the most up-to-date in Canada, but the new roaster adds another feature to their already excellent equipment.

S. H. Ewing, of S. H. Ewing & Sons, has returned from a trip to Cuba and the West Indies.

Something of a surprise was occasioned at a recent meeting of the Board of Trade to consider the resolutions to be presented by the Montreal delegates to the Seventh Congress of Chambers of Commerce of the Empire, which will be held at Sydney, Australia, next September. This occurred when Robt. Meighen presented a resolution favoring free trade within the empire, and protection against the rest of the world. The resolution, which was seconded by Alex. McFee, was as follows: Whereas, this seventh congress of the Chambers of Commerce of the Empire is in hearty accord with the resolutions adopted at the fourth and fifth congresses, which expressed the opinion that the Boards of the British Empire would be materially strengthened by a mutually beneficial commercial policy and that it is in the interests of the empire that steps should be taken towards consummating such an arrangement. Therefore, resolved, that on imports and exports of produce and merchandise, the component parts of the British Empire should protect themselves against the producers of foreign countries, and that with this end in view the Government of Great Britain and of the colonies should grant to one another a substantial preference in duties, and that in so far as their respective revenues will permit the principle of free trade within the empire shall remain; and, further, that each organization represented by this Congress, hereby pledges itself to press its Government to take such action at the next Imperial Conference, as will give effect to the principles advocated in the resolution.

In support of this resolution Mr. Meighen made a patriotic speech, claiming that to retain trade within the Empire was the surest way to build up imperial relations, and assist in maintaining the supremacy of the British Empire. He considered that Canada would for years to come remain the granary of the empire, and rather surprised the gathering by prophesying that ere many years had passed, the Dominion would be growing 300,000,000 bushels of wheat a year. Alex. McFee also spoke to the resolutions, pointing out that if Great Britain adopted a protective policy, she would be likely to enforce tariffs against those colonies which had tariffs against her, as well as against foreign nations. There should be at least a removal of certain tariff barriers, if not absolute free trade within the Empire. Some opposition to the idea was expressed by A. A. Ayer, R. M. Ballantyne and Huntly Drummond, who considered that Canada needed protection to a greater extent than free trade within the Empire would permit. The resolution, however, was adopted, together with other resolutions on trade matters, which had been prepared by the council of the Board of Trade.

Sugars & Canners, Limited. Montreal, have just completed renovating their offices, which are now as fine as could be desired. A large, new private office has been arranged for Messrs. McMillan and Jackson, while practically no room has been lost in the general office, as a result of the change.

J. M. Kirk, representing White Swan Spices and Cereals, Ltd., Toronto, favored the Montreal office of The Grocer with a call last week. Mr. Kirk had just completed a satisfactory trip over his territory in Quebec Province.

J. A. Walker, Ottawa representative of the Blue Ribbon Tea Co., spent a few days in Montreal last week.

Many windows on St. Catherine St. and the west end are appropriately decorated in view of the Horse Show at the Arena. Whilst these things do not bring much trade to the grocers directly, they do in an indirect way. Many people are entertaining guests, and this means an increased provision list and likewise with the hotels.

A. B. Fisher, of J. W. Windsor, has left Montreal on a trip to the Maritime Provinces.

C. H. Killborn, of the American Can Co., New York, was in Montreal this week.

NEWCASTLE, N.B.

May 11.—John F. Dorothay, for over twenty years wholesale flour and feed merchant in Harcourt, the principal place on main I.C.R., between Newcastle and Moncton, died suddenly of pneumonia on the 9th inst. Deceased was a native of Ontario, coming to this province when fourteen years of age, about fifty-six years ago. Up to 20 years ago he taught school, then began business and built up a good wholesale trade. He was known everywhere as a man of integrity and fair dealing. He was known to be comfortably situated, but none of his relatives are known, no will has been found and not even his bank book. Mr. Dorothay was a profound scholar and philosopher and a lifelong liberal.

Ex-alderman George Stables has lately doubled the floor space of his retail grocery store here, on account of increasing business. Mr. Stables has one of the most up-to-date stores in New Brunswick. He has long been a subscriber The Canadian Grocer.

Wm. J. Black has closed out his grocery business here and gone to farming.

Wm. Stymiest has dissolved partnership with Wm. Corbett, the latter continuing the grocery business alone. Mr Corbett, who started a few years ago, in a small way, has this spring purchased the building in which he kept store and greatly enlarged and improved it.

HALIFAX.

May 11.—Business appears to be good in all lines. Produce of all kinds is in good demand, and stocks now on hand are gradually being reduced, especially potatoes. Large quantities of potatoes are now being shipped to the United States market. The local market is fairly well supplied; and as navigation between Prince Edward Island and the mainland has been resumed, sailing vessels will soon be arriving with cargoes direct from the centres of production. The price varies from 40 to 60 cents per bushel. Canned goods are now selling quite freely. The market is well stocked and there appears to be plenty in sight to tide over the season. There has been a slight advance in the price of eggs, due probably to the demand from the Upper Provinces. Nova Scotia eggs are quoted at 20c and P.E.I. at 19c. Butter is steady, the prices ruling from 24c to 26c, and dairy at 22 to 23c.

The first shipment of fresh salmon this season from Halifax to Boston, was made this week. The fish were netted at Tantallon. The catch numbered only two fish but as they are worth about one dollar per pound in the United States market, the shipment though small netted a handsome profit to the owner.

Generally speaking, collections are considered fair, though they are not quite as good as some of the business men anticipated earlier in the season. The outlook for the future is most encouraging.

While flour and feed prices are steady now, further advances would not cause any surprise in view of the condition of the wheat market. Hard wheat patents are now quoted at $6.65 to $6.70, seventy per cents. at $5.80 to $5.90 and straights at $5.25 to $5.35. Canadian hand pick beans are quoted at $2.10 to $2.30, round peas at $4.60 to $4.70, and split at $5.50 to $5.60. Oatmeal standard in barrels is worth $5.90 to $6.00, and in bags $5.70 to $5.85. Rolled oats is quoted at $5.45 to $5.50. and cornmeal in barrels at $3.50 to $3.60.

Both beef and pork are very firm and in consequence of the prevailing high prices the demand is not very heavy. American clear fat backs are quoted at $24.50 and P. E. Island at $23.00. Hams range from 15 to 16 cents, side bacon at 16 cents, and roll 12½. Lard in cases is worth 16 cents, and in pails 15 cents. American beef is $17.00 to $18.00 and Canadian about $16.50.

The importations of molasses continue to come along in good volume principally from Barbadoes. There appears to be some uncertainty about the market and the buyers now are not quite as active as earlier in the season. Barbados is quoted at 35 to 36c and fancy Barbados at the same figures. Newfoundland is also importing large quantities of molasses, several cargoes having reached St. John's this week.

The import of Bermuda onions this season continues quite heavy. The onions are of good quality and are quoted at three cents per pound.

D. Nelson McLeod has opened a new grocery store on the corner of Pownal and Euston Streets, Charlottetown. His store is well stocked with first class goods.

John Lumbers, wholesale and retail commission merchant at 145-147 Adelaide St., Toronto, and brother of Jas. Lumbers, wholesale grocer, Front St., Toronto, died last week after a prolonged illness.

LINDSAY.

May 12.—The market on Saturday was fairly well attended, but the farmers were inclined to remain at home for the seeding, taking advantage of the excellent weather. A large quantity of butter and eggs were offered for sale, the prices remaining the same as last week, viz., 17c to 18c. The wheat market has taken another jump of ten cents per bushel, with the result that flour has advanced ten per cent. Apples cannot be purchased at any price. Potatoes on the market sold at 75c per bag. At present they are very scarce, but the price remains firm as far as the grocer is concerned. One grocer gave it as his opinion that the prices would remain up until the farmers finished their seeding. At present the prices are being well maintained.

Pure maple syrup is coming in quite freely, and there is still a good demand for the savory fluid. The retail price is now $1.50 per gallon for the best quality.

At an enthusiastic public meeting last Friday night, it was decided to submit a local option by-law to the people of Lindsay at the next January municipal elections. A good many of the grocers look very favorably upon this. They claim that at present they are unable to collect a large amount of outstanding bills, owing to the fact that the money that should be going into the grocer's till is going into the till of the hotelkeeper.

INGERSOLL.

Several business men were chatting in a store a few days ago when the telephone as a business-getter incidentally came up for discussion. It was agreed that the telephone was a great aid to the merchant and particularly on certain occasions. Its greatest value, one merchant thought was during the fruit season, or special occasions, when the merchant desired to make "quick sales." This thought brought out a statement from one of the group which will doubtless be of interest to all Grocer readers. This gentleman, for many years a grocer, told of a plan which he had followed one Christmas eve when the weather conditions threatened to have a disastrous effect on a large number of turkeys he had hanging up. Sales had not been frequent, and as there was a prospect of his fowl being damaged by the weather if "kept over," he hit upon a plan to "save the day." He accordingly thought over his list of customers and finally selected a number to whom he sent out turkeys, charging them up in each instance. Notwithstanding that it was Christmas eve the "recipients" evidently did not look upon the turkeys as gifts, as there were no complaints when they were called upon to pay their bills. To the average merchant nowadays, who is accustomed to all sorts of complaints this will no doubt seem a rather strange method, but as the turkeys in each case were accepted without complaint it must be considered as absolutely legitimate, and goes to show that the old merchants were "longheaded."

The change in the law respecting the sale of creamery butter is generally conceded to have had a very beneficial effect. Under existing conditions the purchaser feels reasonably assured that when he asks for creamery butter, he is getting exactly what he expects. It was evidently a move in the right direction to bring about a rigid classification of the dairy and creamery product. The price of butter has been so high that those who prefer the creamery article, and are always willing to pay the extra price should never have any reason to doubt its genuineness. At Saturday's market a large quantity of butter was offered, with the price ranging from 25 to 28 cents per pound.

Jos. O'Meara, for some time past clerk in S. M. Fleet's grocery store, left on Saturday for Harvard, Idaho, where it is his intention to reside. "Joe" has been connected with the grocery trade in Ingersoll for several years and has many friends who will wish him abundant success under the Star Spangled banner. On Friday evening he was surprised by some of "the boys" when he was presented with a handsome signet ring and a well-worded address, as tokens of their esteem.

Grocers and confectioners are this week making a specialty of pineapples. In the language of the grocers this is "pineapple week" and housewives who do not do their purchasing now will rue it later on, as it is said the prices will advance. Large quantities of the "pines" are arriving daily and the governing factors in regard to the prices which range from $1.15 to $2 per dozen.

Potatoes are being marketed a little more freely than during the past few weeks owing to enforced idleness among mand is brisk. Size and quality are the the farmers on account of the continuous wet weather. Prices are practically the same as a week ago—75c per bag wholesale being the ruling figure.

There is certainly irresistible attractiveness about a well-dressed window, and particularly if the window happens to contain those things which appeal to the appetite. For some time past F. McDougall has been paying special attention to window displays, and the work has certainly reflected much credit, not only on the "artist" but also on the proprietor. There has been a happy intermingling of fruits, vegetables, meats, etc., together with many tempting delicacies. The result has been that the window serves as a good index to the store and the method must be regarded as "good advertising."

On the eve of his departure for Ingersoll, F. McDougall, who has purchased Beattie & Co.'s grocery store, was honored by the citizens of Fenelon Falls, where he had been in business for many years. Both Mr. and Mrs. McDougall were kindly remembered by the congregation of St. Andrew's Church, while his Masonic brethren of Spry Lodge presented Mr. McDougall with a cane.

Several of the local confectioners have advanced the price of all sundaes to 10 cents.

Most of the merchants are still paying 17 cents per dozen for eggs. Now that the traveling buyers have commenced their trips through the country the supply that will be brought to town will be materially lessened and there is very little prospect of the price dropping.

CHATHAM.

May 12.—There was a record breaking meeting of the Retail Merchants' Association last week to hear D. A. Scroggie, secretary and official debt collector of the Guelph association, discuss the debt collection system in vogue among the merchants of that city. Mr. Scroggie took up the subject in considerable detail, and was listened to with considerable interest. His description of the Guelph system was quite a revelation to the merchants present, though its general outlines had already been made familiar to those who were readers of The Canadian Grocer. His address will doubtless do much toward solving the difficulties with which the movers for a debt collecting system here have had to contend. An extremely interesting and convincing feature of the address was the list of accounts collected for the various Guelph merchants, and that in many cases from accounts previously written off as utterly bad and uncollectable. Following the address, a lengthy and general discussion took place, Mr. Scroggie being pretty well catechized regarding the system. It was pointed out that, even though a merchant had absolutely nothing to collect, the protection afforded him against the incurring of bad accounts was worth the fee involved. At the conclusion of the discussion, the executive was authorized to take up the matter with a view to working out a feasible collection system for Chatham on the same general lines as prevail in Guelph, the executive being empowered to add to its numbers so as to make the committee in charge representative of all the merchants. The point was raised during the discussion that the collection system would not reach county debtors, but the general feeling was that these, being in most cases property owners, were pretty sure pay, even though sometimes slow. Quite a few members were anxious to make a start, but the majority thought that the scheme would appeal more strongly to the great mass of the merchants if a good collector were first provisionally secured. A hearty vote of thanks was tendered Mr. Scroggie. Since the meeting, the executive has advertised for a collector, and a report on the scheme is to be forthcoming at the regular meeting of the association this week.

The front of Jas. Paul's grocery, St. Clair Street, has been repainted, and the "Baldoon Grocery" sign also touched up. Incidental to these improvements, the familiar big "T" which has for so long surmounted the grocery has vanished.

D. D. Gagnier's new general store at Pain Court is nearing completion. Incidentally, it is stated that in all likelihood Richard Reaume, who has been conducting a successful grocery on St. Clair Street, Chatham, will shortly open another store in Pain Court, where he formerly conducted business.

Chas. Hales has sold his general store at Northwood to Mrs. Glover.

Gaspare Favata, "honest fruit merchant," is once more holding the centre of the stage, which he shares with the peddler's by-law. The by-law requires a $100 license fee for all peddlers. Favata, who is an Italian conducting a fruit store on Queen Street, has been peddling with a push cart on King Street, and in other parts of the city. He appeared in the police court this morning charged with peddling without a license, when the point was raised by the defence that the by-law was passed, not in the general public interest, but in deference to the demands of grocers and fruit men. After hearing evidence on this point, Magistrate Houston adjourned the case till May 18. If a conviction is recorded, Favata will appeal to Toronto, so that an authoritative judicial pronouncement on this vexed question will doubtless be forthcoming.

Wallaceburg is imposing a $30 cigarette license upon tobacconists. The latter object, pointing out that grocers and drug stores are free to sell tobacco and cigarette papers, which, they claim, is unjust.

J. S. Gesner, of Ridgetown has taken a position in the grocery department of W. C. Crawford's store at Tilbury.

The Wallaceburg Sugar Co. held its annual meeting last week, when the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President and general manager, D. A. Gordon, M.P.; vice president, Capt. B. Boutelle; secretary-treasurer, Chas. Howson; assistant manager, Arthur A. Wright. Arrangements were completed for taking over the plant of the Ontario Sugar Co., at Berlin, which will be put in a thorough state of efficiency as speedily as possible. The Berlin plant will be operated under the Wallaceburg management, some of the latter's most capable men having been already transferred there.

A careful review of crop conditions throughout Kent and Essex shows that, despite recent rains, farmers are pretty well advanced with their work. In Essex the outlook is good for apples, peaches, plums and small fruits. Probably 90 per cent. of the peach buds are alive, and more farmers are spraying than ever before. There will be a large acreage of corn, and the sugar beet acreage is larger than in former years. A fair tobacco acreage, considerably larger than last year, is anticipated. In South Kent the outlook for small fruits and peaches is good.

Hogs are scarce through the country, and the high prices being paid—$7.25 to $7.30 on Saturday—are rapidly bringing them to market.

Bean quotations here went up to $1.50 to $1.75 a bushel on Saturday.

The deal whereby E. Duffy was to have taken over F. S. Bounsall's grocery at the corner of Adelaide and Murray Streets has fallen through, and as a result Mr. Bounsall, who was moving to Hamiltan, will remain here for a short time longer.

H. Malcolmson has added a fine new electric coffee grinder to his grocery equipment. The new machine, instead of crushing the coffee berry, slices it by means of an arrangement of steel blades.

Pineapples are being prominently displayed in the groceries and fruit stores, at prices ranging from 2 for 25c. to 20c. each, according to size, while more extensive buying is stimulated by offering anywhere from 6 to 10 for $1. The argument, "pineapples for preserving," is being made use of quite generally.

There is a surprising demand for grape fruit locally this year. The past few years the big, yellow fruit, retailing from 2 to 3 for 25c., has been a novelty in which people seemed slow to take interest. This year, however, the fruit has caught on, and where a grocer formerly sold two or three boxes, he now sells 25. All of which goes to show that even though it be a slow process, in the long run it pays to create a taste for a new thing.

BRANTFORD.

May 12.—As announced in last week's correspondence, the committee in charge of arrangements for the collecting system, has chosen Norman Willits as the collector. This appointment was carried out at a meeting of the merchants held in Moffat's Hall last Thursday evening. Despite the disagreeable weather, there was a large attendance of representative merchants, showing the deep interest they are taking in the new scheme for the protection of themselves. It was decided that an organization of the merchants was the first beneficial move, and the name chosen was the "Merchants' Protective Association." Seven members representing the various lines of business were appointed as an executive committee who will have full charge of the collecting system. They will secure an office and everything will be arranged in a few days. Up to the present time one hundred and twenty members have joined the association and this fact alone, if no accounts are collected, should make the protection worth the cost of a year's membership.

Moses McCormack has purchased the property and grocery business of F. W. Durst, Darling St., and will conduct the business in future.

Jas. Peachy has sold his complete delivery outfit to Wm. Courtenage, who has taken the contract for a year to do the delivering and take the orders.

Pineapple season is in full swing now, about one month earlier than usual. The grocers are making large displays of them and as the price is very low, sales are sure to be much larger than usual.

Last Saturday's market was not large. Butter sold at 25c per lb. and eggs 18c per doz.

A number of cheese factories in this district have started operations, although the Cainsville factory is not going to open this year.

BRACEBRIDGE.

May 12.—Nearly all of the grocers in this town handle large quantities of seed-grain of all descriptions. Last week being warm there was a rush for that line of goods. Hutchison Bros. and W. Kirk say that during the week just past more seed was sold than during any one month last year. Saturday the streets were crowded with farmers and the large public wharf lined with boats of all sizes and descriptions bringing the buyers into town.

Ruling prices on Saturday at the market were: Eggs, 17c per doz.; butter 25c per lb.; potatoes, firm at 75c per bag; maple syrup, up to $1.20 per gal.

The clerks in this town are clamoring for the more daylight movement and hope that some of The Grocer's correspondents will soon take up this question to see what can be done. They want more show for the man behind the counter.

Certainly our merchants know how to dress windows. Some very fine ones are now on view and even the smaller stores have the fever which adds greatly to the appearance of the front street.

PETERBORO.

May 12.—Fire Underwriters' Inspectors are inspecting the mercantile risks of the city. They will be here about three weeks. Some of the merchants do not appear as if they "cared a copper" about the saving advantages of a lower rate and are not clearing up the boxes, rubbish, etc., around their premises.

One of the most interesting and appreciable points about a particular line of the grocery business during the past winter has been a marked increase in the sale of dried apples, evaporated peaches and prunes. A local wholesaler referring especially to the latter two states that they have had a large sale. The low price of the peaches has permitted the grocer to make good offers to his customers. Prunes are selling well now and for some reason, like peaches, have been in great demand during the past season.

An incident which arose in the local police court last week should be of interest to grocers in general. One of J. M. Donovan's customers owed him a bill for $1.20 which he had been trying to collect for some time but without any success. The woman sent her son to the store with a five dollar bill to be changed. The boy told Mr. Donovan it belonged to his mother and in court stated that he afterwards said it was his sister's. Mr. Donovan on being told that it was the mother's money thought that he was justified in keeping out the amount owed him and the lad returned home with the change $3.80. It is learned that the mother's interest in the money was to the amount of three dollars which the daughter was handing over for her board. The mother laid a charge against Mr. Donovan for having "stolen" the money. She stated that she had received no bill and even said she did not owe the money. She said that if the proprietor had sent her notice and satisfactorily explained her indebtedness, the bill would have been paid. Mr. Donovan argued that he had repeatedly tried to collect the money. As he did not have his books with him in the court and as he stated that he would be willing to return the $1.20 to the young lady if her mother paid the amount owed him, providing he could prove that she really owed that amount, the magistrate enlarged the case for a week to enable the parties to come to an agreement.

Circumstances have a great deal to do with situations in the grocery business. This has been particularly demonstrated in the sale of apples during the past winter. The supply of spys was small and was soon exhausted with the result that the Ben Davis was used to meet the demand earlier than usual. Now that variety is nearly run out and the price is something to be reckoned with. Last autumn they could be bought for five cents a peck in this vicinity; now they are more than five times five and are all that is left to the lovers of the Canadian apple.

Announcement was made this week in the local papers that Harry Bradshaw was beginning his third business in his own behalf. He had extensive experience with Oke & Co., in the handling of fish and has made this a large department of his grocery store. He has arranged to handle fish on a larger scale than ever this season. He has contracted with an independent fisherman for daily supplies of trout and white fish fresh from Lake Superior.

The sale of oranges still continues brisk. E. F. Mason is making a specialty of them in his advertising and in his window displays.

J. J| Lundy and J. M. Brooks are each building three stores on George St.

One of the seasonable lines in the grocery business at present are the necessaries for housecleaning. Window displays of brooms, brushes, powders, etc., are quite common.

The wholesale price of flour is expected to advance in the near future.

Canned goods are seasonable and are receiving careful attention from the merchants with the result that there is a briskness in almost every line.

LONDON.

May 12.—A. Badenach, for eight years traveler for A. M. Smith & Co., wholesale grocers, of this city, has severed his connection with that firm to accept a position with Foley Bros. & Larsen of Winnipeg. On Friday evening last Mr. Badenach was the guest of honor at a banquet at the Grigg House, given by A. M. Smith & Co., the affair being intended as a sort of send-off. Col. A. M. Smith sat at the hend of the table, John M. Dillon, acting as vice-chairman and around the table were seated the firm's entire staff. In opening the toast list Col. Smith congratulated Mr. Badenach on the splendid services rendered by him while in the firm's employ, and declared he parted with him with feelings of profound regret. At the same time he wished him every success in his new sphere of labor. The toast list was then proceeded with. In responding to his toast, Mr. Badenach said words failed to express the regret he felt at leaving so many old friends. As long as he lived he would never forget the eight happy years he had spent with A. M. Smith & Co. After singing "He's a Jolly Good Fellow" and the National Anthem, the company separated. During the evening songs were sung by C. W. Nicholls, Mr. Milligan and S. Friendship.

Locally, retail business was fair last week but in the country towns rather quiet.

The only change noted by wholesalers the past week was a decrease of 10 cents in Montreal sugars, and of 9d. per cwt. in currants. The market for Californian fruits is very firm.

Local millers advanced the price of flour 15c on Saturday, the figure being now $3.15 for Manitoba milling. The bakers, who will be most directly affected by the change, say it will not cause an increase in the price of bread at present at least.

Eggs on the local market are in good demand at 17½c to 18c per dozen. Butter is somewhat easier at 20c to 22c, according to quality. Potatoes sell at 85c to 90c.

C. L. Mountjoy, for some time chief clerk in the grocery store of E. J. Ryan, hes resigned to accept a position with the Prudential Life Insurance Company.

C. Rennie who recently purchased the business of J. Goodge, corner Dundas and Maitland Sts., is remodelling the store and putting in new bin fixtures.

A baseball league, composed of grocers, butchers, shoemen and policemen, has been formed, and a schedule of games to be played Wednesday afternoons is being arranged. There are a number of fine players among the grocerymen and they should give a good account of themselves.

BERLIN.

May 12.—Maple syrup has been a very scarce commodity this season as far as the home product is concerned, and the price realized has been $1.50 and $1.60 per gallon.

Potatoes have jumped in price to $1 a bag, whereas a few weeks ago they were to be had at 75c. The grocers have had to pay as high as 85c and 90c a bag and sold them at a dollar. The people who thought they could do better at the Saturday market were generally disappointed, for the farmers, too, asked a dollar.

The Grocer correspondent had the pleasure of being shown through the fine establishment of W. Metcalfe & Co., the other day and came away with the conviction that he had seen a model 20th century grocery store. The firm now occupies all three storeys of the building at King and Foundry Sts., purchased by them several years ago, and in addition to the departments they have long carried on have added one which is devoted to the manufacture of candy. This department is located in a spacious and well-lighted room on the top flat and is open to the public. The candy-makers are attired completely in white and it is an interesting sight to see them at work. In addition to making candies for their own store the firm will carry on a wholesale business in this line in connection with the other lines they have been wholesaling for years.

A demonstration of extracting caffein from coffee took place in the coffee department of W. Metcalfe & Co., a few days ago by a representative of the Coffee Trading Co., of Bremen, Germany. This company is endeavoring to sell the patent rights for the United States and Canada and asks the modest sum of half a million dollars.

PERTH.

May 12.—Two car loads of potatoes, one from New Brunswick and one from Western Ontario arrived last week and put an end to the potato famine we have had for some little time. These are finding ready sale at 90c bushel; lots of 5 or more at 85c bushel. As far as can be learned very few potatoes are in the farmers' hands here and many of them will find it necessary to purchase their seed requirements. The Farmers' Club has at recent meetings considered the matter of potato growing in this district and with the point in view of making Perth an exporting instead of an importing point is urging its members to grow more potatoes and to confine themselves where possible to one common variety—Carmen No. 1.

Egg prices still stand at "paying 16c and selling 18c" but buyers are offering grocers 17½c, here, an advance of ½c over last week.

Last Tuesday's Spring Horse Show brought hundreds of farmers to town. The stores were very busy all day and most of them "enjoyed" the busiest day since before Christmas.

Apples, except the canned and evaporated variety are off the market altogether as far as Perth is concerned.

A number of fruit firms have been handling meats for some time now. A Hull, Que., firm of pork packers are offering all kinds of fruit.

A Gore St. grocer had the unique experience of being locked out of his own store on Monday morning. During Sunday night some boys had so filled the lock with matches and mud that an hour was required to remove the dirt so as to allow the key to turn in the lock.

Pineapples are being offered at very reasonable prices but very few are yet being bought for preserving. Many housewives are preserving rhubarb with their pines and as rhubarb is still on the scarce list this probably explains why pines are not moving for preserving.

BARRIE.

John Ferguson, of the sixth ward, has purchased the insolvent stock of E. Budd and opened up last week.

T. H. Baker has purchased the stock of T. Sproule, of Stroud.

Potatoes that sold here as high as ninety cents a bag by the load have taken, this week, a drop to seventy-five and buyers do not look for any higher prices till the new ones come in. There was a talk a while ago of one dollar potatoes but this theory has vanished to the pleasure of the retail buyers.

Eggs sold about the same price on Saturday's market as before, the prices ranging from sixteen cents to sixteen and a half. Butter sold at twenty to twenty-two cents while high-class printed wrapper goods brought twenty-four and five cents. Fowl sold at ten to eleven cents and chickens at fifteen cents. A fairly good supply of green stuff such as onions, lettuce, radish, etc., was sold at from thirty to fifty cents a dozen.

Trade in general is picking up gradually with the approach of finer weather etc. There is a quantity of early vegetables and fruits selling on the market and a feature to help the fruit sales is the early preserving pineapples which are of good size and color for so early in the season, the prices ruling in proportion. At this time of year weather being cool and it makes preserving more comfortable and the coming week should see the bulk of preserving pines sold.

This is the time of year to brighten up. It doesn't matter whether you start in the back yard, in the cellar, any place in the store or at the store front, but brighten up. It will make business better and make you feel better—just try.

John Jamieson of Minto Bros., has the sympathy of The Grocer over the sad loss of his mother, who was buried this week.

Chas. Cheesman, son of Jos. Cheesman, has opened a grocery on Bayfield street.

TORONTO.

May 1.—James I. Scott, corner of Davenport and Dupont Sts., is a pace-setter, and his clerks are all on the run. They don't wait for things to happen, they do things.

There are plenty of clerks in the city who would easily be worth $50 more a year if the "boss" would invest $2 in the trade paper and give them a chance to learn what others do in the business.

If a grocer does not like his business there are only two things open for him to do—either to learn more about it, or get out of it. To say that you hate your business is to say that you don't know much about it. To say that you have not time to read your trade paper is to say that you have lost interest in your business, and that you are already a back number.

R. H. Rudson, 964 Bathurst St., is one of the best qualified grocers in the city and feels perfectly happy in his well arranged and carefully kept store. He loves his business because he understands it.

Cliff L. Marshall, who purchased H. Gordon's stock on Bathurst St., has put new life and a decidedly up-to-date appearance in the place.

W. C. Cork, 994 Bathurst St., claims to be the oldest grocer on that street, and he is yet able to hoe his row with any of the new comers.

Mrs. W. H. Coo, corner of Spadina and Camden Sts., has retired from business and has turned it over to her son. This old lady has been in this same place for 32 years. She has had her ups and downs but ended with the "ups." She has customers who have dealt with her since she started, and many a good turn have they received from Mrs. Coo. She is highly respected and has the good wishes of her old friends and customers. She has considerable property which, in its increase in value, will bring her a nice income during her old age. Many a one going to the old store will miss Mrs. Coo, who for so many years was part and parcel of the place.

John McLeod, head of John McLeod & Sons, grocers, died at the family residence, 698 Spadina Ave., yesterday after an illness lasting some time. He was 62 years of age, a native of Inverness, Scotland, and came to Canada when comparatively young. He carried on an extensive coal and wood business in London and Thamesford until about four years ago, when he came to Toronto and with his sons went into the Spadina Ave. business.

R. Book, clerk in Elmes' grocery, 604 College St., attributes the failure of so many clerks to make good to the fact that their apprenticeship is too short. Some years ago a person had to be an assistant for so many years before he got behind the counter. Nowadays a three-months' apprenticeship seems to serve the purpose.

J. Everingham, from Parry Sound, has bought out F. G. Wilson, 185 Wilton Ave., and intends to carry a full line of groceries. He is in a good locality and expects to get his full share of the trade. He opens up with good prospects and will be one of the big pushers in that part of the city.

The committee of the Retail Grocers' Association, which have the arrangements for the annual excursion in hand, and definitely deciding this week as to where the excursion will go. The conclusion will be published in next week's issue.

HAMILTON.

May 12.—Plans for the annual excursion of the Retail Grocers' Association were discussed at the regular meeting, last Thursday night. The following were appointed to make the necessary arrangements :

J. O. Carpenter, chairman.

Jas. Main, treasurer.

M. R. Hill, secretary.

Transportation—A. G. Bain, J. O. Carpenter, Wm. Smye, J. Main, Jos. Kirkpatrick.

Refreshment—A. G. Bain, Wm. Smye, J. Main, Geo. Cann.

Printing—W. Smye, Ed. Hazell, J. O. Carpenter.

Amusement—A. G. Bain, W. Dawson, Geo. Hunt, W. Main, W. Smye, C. Cooper.

Games—J. Semmens, E. Lavis, E. H. Young.

The paper on canned goods read by J. A. McIntosh, at the last meeting of the Grocers' Association, has been favorably commented on by both wholesale and retail grocers. It was published in full in the Hamilton Spectator, and thus reached the consumer. It certainly has produced considerable talk among the people about canned goods.

GALT.

May 12.—The weather conditions have been unfavorable for the country trade for the past week, and as a result business in Galt has not been quite up to the standard. However the merchants are making no complaint.

Eggs sold on the market on Saturday at 16 cents per dozen. Butter was 25 cents per pound.

Fresh onions, radishes and lettuce are being offered at all the groceries.

In Galt as in some other towns, there is a scarcity of potatoes, and the price has now reached $1.00 per bag with the probability of something like famine before the new product is ready for the market. This condition of affairs is accounted for by the fact that during the early winter immense quantities of the tubers were shipped across the line. "There was no failure of the crop last year," said John Sloan to your correspondent. "Potatoes were very plentiful up to a short time ago. Three months ago it would have been possible to buy trainloads of potatoes at 50 cents per bag. Our American cousins, however, became short of the vegetable and immediately their agents invaded Ontario. And they bought right and left, and cleaned up practically all the potatoes. Of course there are still large quantities left but I hardly think there will be enough to supply the demand. It looks as if a record price for potatoes might be reached before the new crop is ready." P. Radigan said that while at present potatoes were not dangerously scarce all indications pointed to the fact that the available supply was nearly exhausted. The price will rise from now on in his opinion. The same story was told by Hugh Walker at the Red Front. "Canadian growers thought they had more than they could dispose of at home," he said, "and consequently began shipping across the line. And now it appears that before long the general public will have to pay a very fancy price for its potatoes."

Jas. Lumbers, Toronto, has secured the sole agency in Ontario for Baker's soap, put up by L. M. Leberman, Philadelphia, U.S.A.

WINNIPEG.

May 11.—W. H. Stone & Co., have bought the grocery business of Hardy & Buchanan, Whytewold Beach on Lake Winnipeg. The store has been run successfully during the summer season for a number of years, and the season which is about to open promises to be good for the trade in that section.

C. H. Baird, of Christie-Brown Co., of Toronto, spent a few days among local retailers last week.
